TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials posted small losses in active mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Other sections were steady.

Total gains outran declines 138 to 102.

Peel-Elder fell 1 to 37, Inco ¼ to 43, Quebec Natural Gas preferred 25, Great Lakes Paper ⅛ to 21, Clairtone ¼ to 5⅝ and James United Steel ¼ to 6¾.

Oshawa A was up ⅛ to 37¼, Carrier Shoe ¼ to 11¼, Atco Industries ½ to 22¼ and Consumers ⅛ to 31½.

Among the heaviest traders, Imperial Oil slumped 1⅛ to 80¼, Home Oil A ¼ to 28½ and St. Maurice Gas 35 cents to $2.00.

Robtmann gained ¼ to 20½. Annual profits rose to $2.54 a share from $2.35 a year ago.

Walker picked up ¼ to 32. The company has completed the purchase of 97,460 shares in Waterous Diesel and has made a share exchange offer to the remaining Waterous stockholders on the basis of one Walker common share for every two shares in Waterous.

Among gold mines, Bethlehem Copper rose ¼ to 13¾, Bankeno 20 cents to 55 and Consolidated Canadian Faraday 15 cents to $4.35. Northgate lost ⅛ to 16¾.

On index, industrials fell .32 to 179.69; Golds gained 1.44 to 211.38, base metals .12 to 113.39 and western oils .15 to 227.06. Volume by 11 a.m. was 990,000 shares compared with 1,000,000 at the same time Wednesday.

Prices closed lower in all sections on the Toronto exchange Wednesday, but a number of key issues reached record highs. Trading was active.

Among industrials, gains advanced ¾ to 69%. Slater Steel ¾ to 14⅛ and Electrohome 2 to 16⅛. All reached highs for the year.

Steloo moved ahead ¼ to 25. Dofasco declined ¼ to 51½. Algoma Steel rose ¼ to 21.

Famous Players rose ¼ to a high of 6¼ and Noon Products 1¼ to 31¼.

Victoria and Grey Trust rose ¼ to 17¼ after losing 17½ earlier in the day. About 8,000 shares were tendered and taken up before a ceiling was Wednesday by an unidentified purchaser who paid $17.50 a share. The buyer hopes to acquire the remainder of a block of 125,000 shares at the same price later this week.

Base metals were generally down. Cominco fell 1¼ to 31¼, Hudson Bay ¾ to 43½, Denison rose ½ to 76½, Rio Algom dropped ⅛ to 33.

Western Canada Canada ceased 10 cents to $4.90 and Discovery 2 cents to $1.41. Dickenson was up 10 cents to $3.60.

Laval Team Discovers Norseman Longhouse

QUEBEC (CP) — A Laval University archeological team has made "significant discoveries" in northern Quebec, indicating that Norsemen occupied the Ungava Peninsula in the 12th century, the university reported Wednesday.

A report by the party, under Thomas E. Lee of Laval's Anthropic studies department, said the finds were made in the course of a summer canoe trip down Fort Chimo along the west side of Ungava Bay into Hudson Strait.

Other members of the party were Pierre Bedard and Michel Morissette of Quebec and Paul Aubin of Montreal.

The party described as "most spectacular" the remains of a Norse longhouse found about 70 miles up the coast from Payne Bay.

"The architectural style matches some in Iceland and the Hebrides, according to information compiled, and suggests a time between A.D. 1100 and 1200."

Another find was a group of three stone beacons on an island, "clearly set up for navigational purposes."

The largest was at least 13 feet high and six feet in diameter. Built of large stones, it was surmounted by one stone estimated to weigh more than 300 pounds.

"It would seem that a hoist of some kind was needed to put it there."

The archeological team conducted excavations in another house ruin, 81 feet long, where the stone walls had tumbled over the interior.

As a preliminary step, these stones were cleared and set back in their original positions in the walls. Several of them weighed more than 1,000 pounds each and required the concerted and maximum effort of three men.

Another Norse feature was the occurrence of many small fireplaces along the centre of the building. This arrangement had been observed also in a smaller house on Parniok Island in 1966.

"But the most significant discovery was in the form of post moulds along the inner sides of the stone walls. These demonstrated that a very fine job is expected—a timber construction. Nothing else would have served to roof such a large building.

"This is a treeless land, and the position is 150 miles north of the nearest source of suitable posts and poles. They could only have been brought there by ship, which again speaks of the Norse people.

"It is clear that a colony or a kingdom existed along these shores. Quite possibly it was the kingdom of Skraggifjord."

Punctured Ear Drums Can Be Repaired

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: About eight years ago I lost my hearing. Recently the doctor told me I had perforated ears and I should have an operation. He said it could help my hearing. Do you agree? — Mrs. A. B.

Since he said the operation "might" help your hearing, I guess I have to agree.

I presume that you mean (or he means) that your ear drums are perforated. Perforation or puncture of the ear drums is a not-unusual problem.

How much of your loss of hearing was due (directly or indirectly) to the perforation of the drums, I would have no way of knowing. However, keep in mind the fact that the ear drums serve at least two major purposes. One is that the ear drum vibrates when sound reaches it and these vibrations are conducted, via chain of three tiny bones, to the inner ear, which translates vibrations into the senses of hearing.

The second purpose of the ear drums is to keep moisture and infection out of the middle ear which contains those tiny bones I just mentioned. If infection or moisture enter (eg) restricts their if movement, hearing is impaired.

A very successful operation known as tympanoplasty has, over the years, been developed to repair punctured ear drums, and this may well be the operation which your doctor recommended.

It may, in some cases, improve hearing. But it also provides protection against the risk of water, dust, or germs entering the middle ear and interfering with or damaging that chain of small bones upon which we depend for the transmission of sound vibrations.

Thus, restoration of hearing if it results, is a bonus, but even if hearing is not improved you are protected against infection or middle ear damage which always carries a danger of further destroying your hearing.

You doctor said you should have the operation: he said it might help your hearing. That, to me, is a clear enough message. I'd have it done.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a quadroon but could pass for white, have blue eyes and fair white skin, regular features, and dark curly, hair. I am married to a very fine man who is a light Negro, about one-quarter white, but people know he is a Negro.

He is very hurt and embarrassed by people asking questions about me. I would like to get something that would darken my skin, if possible. I am tired of having him hurt.

I read in your column that bath content will darken your skin, sometimes, in spots. Is there any medication that will darken you all over? — Mrs. W. I.

The birth control pills, as you noted, cause only spots of darker skin. My only suggestion would be a sun lamp to attain a tan or to use cosmetics.

As to your eyes, if it is worth the expense, and if your eyes tolerate contact lenses, they can be obtained in colors.

Dear Dr. Molner: In your article on cranberry juice for kidney and bladder problems, you said there are other juices that also leave an acid ash. My doctor told me to drink cranberry juice, but I'm so tired of it. What could I use instead? — E. C.

Fruit juices yielding an acid ash are cranberry, prune and plum. Others end as an alkaline ash.

Sliding Interest Rate Proposed To Pave Way to Farm Bank Loans

OTTAWA (CP)—Public officials and private lenders are working on a formula to determine interest rates under the new Farm Improvement Loans Act, Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson told the Commons Wednesday.

Reading a statement drawn up by Finance Minister Edgar Benson and the finance department, he emphasized that the availability of money under the act is as important as its cost.

Banks stopped lending early this year because of the five per-cent interest ceiling on government guaranteed farm improvement loans.

The revised act would have a rate prescribed by regulation and adjusted "perhaps quarterly" to market levels.

The rate would be related to market levels of interest, probably through yields on Government of Canada securities of comparable term. There would also be an administrative markup.

In the long run, the formula would work to the benefit of the farmers more than a fixed rate, Mr. Olson said.

He was unable to give further details of the formula because it was still being worked out through negotiations with lenders, he said.

Committee study of the amendments is to continue today, with other farm credit legislation expected to follow.

Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) welcomed Mr. Olson's statement but said much debating time would have been saved if it had come earlier. Rural MPs have been seeking information about the proposed interest system since the bill was introduced Oct. 3.

In the Commons, Mr. Olson disputed allegations by Jack Bigg PC Pembina that wealthy farmers benefit most from government-guaranteed loans.

Mr. Olson said 78,249 loans averaging $2,602 were made in 1967. Evidently thousands of small loans were made under the legislation.

The agriculture minister also disagreed with the contention of Alf Gleave (NDP-Saskatoon-Biggar) that loans for land should be made under the act.

Mr. Olson said a new provision in the act, allowing farmers to borrow for land purchase, would make the process easier and less costly.

Tours Can Draw Europeans Air Canada Official Says

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Discussions on challenges of change in tourism and travel ended didn't die with the final panel session of the Canadian Tourist Association convention Wednesday.

They will resume at the annual meeting in Ottawa next April 20-23 when the newly elected president, Dalton M. Walter of Toronto, hopes a five-year plan will be available for tourist development.

Air Canada was reported facing the most dramatic expansion in its history, with tour revenue the fastest growing segment of its passenger business.

Panelist Hugh Bolduc of Montreal said a conservative estimate of this revenue for 1978 has been projected at $50,000,000. He is Air Canada's supervisor of North American tour sales development.

Also in 1978, he said, "we expect to be carrying approximately 25,000,000 passengers annually."

The spearhead for getting deeper into the overseas holiday market is the package tour, the delegates were told by Arthur Peers, co-ordinator of offices abroad for the Canadian government travel bureau.

Europe alone had an estimated 13,000,000 people with the means to travel to North America for holiday purposes.

"Before Canada can hope to capture its share of this lucrative overseas tour market, we must custom-tailor tours to suit their needs," Mr. Peers said.

Panel member R. B. Erb of Ottawa, general manager of the Canadian Automobile Association, said motor clubs also were considering the possibilities of package tours.

Garth C. Campbell, general manager of Canadian National Railways passenger sales and services, Montreal, said CN wants to use tours to spearhead its drive for new business.

Students Take Over Four Quebec Colleges

STE. THERESE DE BLAINVILLE, Que. (CP) — Student occupation of junior colleges spread to four Quebec campuses Wednesday night as opposition to the province's education system grew.

Began with the take-over here Tuesday of Lionel Groulx College, there were fears student occupation would soon include Quebec's 21 other junior colleges.

Lionel Groulx students said they decided to barricade themselves inside the school 20 miles north of Montreal to draw attention to the need for reforms in Quebec's education system.

The demands include:

—Immediate government action to set up a long-promised second French-language university in Montreal.

—Reversal of a government decision to reduce the amount of money available for student scholarships by $5,000,000 this year.

—Reversal of a government decision to increase the annual interest rate on student loans to 7¾ per cent from 5½.

For Oct. 11th,

Your birthday today: The next year should bring you renewed surges of activity. This year should be devoted to simplifying your life and focusing your attention. Superficial relations and habits should be discarded. Today's natives are never satisfied short of mastery in their fields.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your selling abilities are near their peak today, particularly in the disposal of white elephants. Local travels and communications are favored. Use the evening for promotion of yourself.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Look into the needs of those who help you; you may find a surprise! Consult with at least one professional adviser today. And visualize a target for the near future.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Enlist the help of people who have more influence than you can organize. Review your progress briefly early in the evening, then put your attention on to your home.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): You find that some people wish to keep negotiations out of view today. Adjust to cooperate with this. Arrangements with welfare and charitable establishments are favored now.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Organize get-togethers of all the people who may be in a position to aid you. If you have business with the government, this is a fine day to handle it!

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Assistance is available in almost any direction. Select your line of action according to what is of most importance to you; go full speed ahead.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You just wish to sit back when the sailing is smooth. Push yourself to make some strong moves! Present your personal ideas!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Now is the time for attempting to collect anything that is owing to you. If you are active in politics, this is a big day in your campaign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): The group effort is favored today. Gather your team. Everybody has something to contribute. First think over what you have achieved, then during the evening, gather with others to plan further.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Health may take a great part of your attention on this day. Whatever you do is likely to attract eyes which don't usually notice. Put yourself into the work wholeheartedly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): If you can stick fairly close to your main base, your day ought to be highly productive. You may learn something of great value to your (future) activities just by listening carefully.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar 20): Press for improvement of your home situation, not just property but the human relations that are more important. Seek approval and support of people with local influence.

Ottawa Plans Hard Line On Income Tax Evaders

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is gearing up for tougher prosecution of tax evaders, sources indicated Wednesday.

In the process, out-of-court tax settlements will become rare.

All cases in which tax evasion is indicated by investigation, and in which prosecution is deemed to be warranted, will be put in the hands of the justice department.

In the past, it has often been revenue department practice to launch action but settle for recovery of taxes owed, together with a penalty, before a case is pushed to its conclusion.

Sources said this practice acted as a deterrent to repeated offences by the individual or company charged, but did not have the value of a court decision to deter others.

The hard-line approach will be directed by James L. Gourlay, 47, senior legal adviser on taxation in the justice department who has just been appointed director of the special investigations division in revenue's compliance branch.

An offender still may avoid prosecution if he makes a full and voluntary disclosure of his tax position before investigative action has begun. In such cases, only taxes, penalties and interest due must be paid.

The Income Tax Act provides for maximum fines of $10,000, plus up to double the amount of tax being evaded, and imprisonment for up to five years for each offence. An additional civil penalty of 25 per cent is automatically added to the total tax evaded.

Tax Incentives Best To Encourage Research

OTTAWA (CP) — Income tax incentives are a better way to encourage research and development by private industry than government grants, Maxwell W. Mackenzie, chairman of the royal commission on security, said Wednesday.

The best assistance the government could give to fostering scientific research in Canada was to create a climate in which individual initiative and decentralized decision making could flourish.

Mr. Mackenzie, a former deputy minister of defence production, a member of the Economic Council of Canada and a former chairman of the board of Chemcell Ltd., presented a brief to the Senate committee on science policy.

He stressed that he was dealing only with the field of industrial research. Many types of research, particularly in the ecological field, were best done by government agencies or by universities with government support.

Mr. Mackenzie said international corporations were growing faster than other parts of the world economy and within 20 years would be producing one-third of the gross national product. Any attempt to nationalize Canadian research efforts would not be to the country's benefit.

Senator Allister Grosart (PC-Ontario) called it a "frightening picture" and asked what happens when the international corporations discriminate against Canada.

Mr. Mackenzie said some international agreement had to be found that would control the activities of such companies in the interests of the small countries.

Hotel Demands Restitution

TORONTO (CP) — Lord Simcoe Hotel will insist on restitution for more than $5,000 in damages the hotel said was caused by Queen's University students celebrating a football victory over the University of Toronto Blues last weekend.

Hotel manager R. A. Mc-Eachern said Wednesday night: "We don't want to drag anyone into court, but we're going to be very firm."

The Queen's Alma Mater Society Tuesday night disavowed any financial responsibility for the damage. Society President Charles Edwards said the group decided it could not accept responsibility for the actions of individual students.

The hotel says doors were smashed, signs ripped from walls, numbers torn off doors, fixtures ruined in two bathrooms, telephones pulled from walls and rugs ruined.

Research Challenge Not Met

CALGARY (CP) — Canadian industry should take advantage of federal government incentives to get started in research, W. M. Armstrong, dean of the faculty of applied science at the University of British Columbia said Tuesday.

But even with government incentives, there should be more industrial research in the country, the former research supervisor for the Steel Co. of Canada told the Calgary branch of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

The challenge is not being met, he said, quoting figures that show Canada ranks eighth among industrial nations.

Mr. Armstrong said that by the year 2000 Canada may be a post-industrial paradise where industrial income will be 50 times higher than today, workers will have 218 free days a year and most economic activity will have shifted from primary and secondary to service industries.

Hull's Decision Shakes Hockey World

"Robert Means It" Says Woman Who Should Know Best

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

All that talk of salary disputes and contract holdouts did not carry much import for the matronly Point Anne housewife.

"I don't think Robert is doing that at all," she said.

What's more, if Bobby Hull's out-of-the-blue retirement notice delivered yesterday in Chicago is accepted at face value, his mother will be seeing even more of her world-famous offspring.

"Robert called his dad and myself yesterday morning about 9:30," said Mrs. Hull, "and he told us what he was going to tell the newspapers. I was a little upset, but Robert made me promise not to worry — he'd made his decision."

But what of the suggestion that hockey's greatest single attraction was using his retirement bombshell as a lever to pry his reported $100,000 salary demand out of Black Hawk management?

The answer came with-u-t hesitation . . . and firmly: "No, I don't think Robert is doing that at all. Robert said he had made his decision, and I know he'll be happy if he comes home. Since he was a small child he always wanted to be around cattle."

And that interest in cattle has continued to flourish along with Bobby Hull's hockey prowess.

Four Quinte area farms, and $40 head of prize Herefords are the spoils of 11 years of outstanding ice time logged by hockey's greatest crowd-pleaser since Maurice "Rocket" Richard's heyday.

Even if Bobby Hull wasn't reaching for personal 50-goal plateau (which he did three times), winning the scoring title (three times), or being chosen the NHL's most valuable player (twice), the Golden Jet has never found himself far from professional hockey's mega centre.

His 118.3 mile-an-hour slapshot has been the delight of crowds and the dismay of goalies in all National Hockey League rinks. His overpowering, 28-mile-an-hour rushes up ice were devastating and brought him in for more than his share of every rough-house defensive tactic in the book, but Hull was still enough of a student of the game to be voted the league's most gentlemanly player in 1965.

Perhaps the best comment on Hull's ability and appeal lay in the reports from several of the NHL's six "expansion" cities that attendance last year jumped more than 100 per cent when the Hull-led Hawks were in town.

And on two occasions, one following yesterday's retirement announcement, the Toronto Maple Leafs have paid Hull would be worth $1,000,000 to their organization, 1st

U.S. Moon Hopes Orbiting in Apollo

Test Results Vital

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — A space veteran and two rookies rode a manned spacecraft into orbit today on an 11-day adventure that could place the United States firmly on the manned path to the moon.

U.S. Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., Air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisele and civilian astronaut Walter Cunningham, dressed for the moon in the new bubble-topped lunar suits, hurled into orbit aboard the 69,000-pound Apollo 7. If the flight goes well, it ends after 11 days and 4,500,000 miles of flight through space.

Thousands of persons lined Atlantic beaches as the Saturn 1-B rocket, the most powerful booster ever used for a U.S. manned flight, drilled the spacecraft into orbit.

The eight first-stage engines, generating 1,600,000 pounds of thrust—more power than 100 jet fighter planes—ignited at 11:03 a.m. EDT, roared into the blue sky and curved down-rage.

Schirra said shortly after ignition that the ride "was a little bumpy," but six minutes later he said it was "riding like a dream."

Mission Control Centre said the mighty booster rocket performed flawlessly during its 10 minutes of powered flight, accelerating the spacecraft to 17,500 miles an hour and drilling it into orbit.

Success of the Apollo 7 flight may open the door for another Apollo crew to orbit the moon in December, a vital step toward landing men on the moon next year.

Quebec Student Revolt Spreads

STE. THERESE DE BLAINVILLE, Que. (CP) — The Union Generale des Etudiants du Quebec decided Thursday night that any decision to call a strike of the province's junior colleges, some under student occupation now, should come from the junior college students.

UGE. met with other student groups in Montreal to discuss the possibility of calling a province-wide strike for next Tuesday as student malcontent over Quebec education became more pronounced.

Seven junior colleges were occupied Thursday, including Lionel Groulx College in this community 20 miles north of Montreal where student take-over started last Tuesday.

Students in second and fourth year political science at the University of Montreal Thursday walked out of classes in sympathy with demands by secondary college students.

Earlier reports said the University of Montreal students had occupied faculty buildings.

UGEQ called on student executives of Quebec's 25 junior colleges to set up meetings of student bodies to determine strike support.

A spokesman for Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal said the minister has no sympathy for those who prefer to issue ultimatums and occupy institutions rather than discuss issues.

Lionel Groulx students are asking the Quebec government to hasten the establishment of a second French-language university in Montreal and reverse a decision to reduce the amount of money available for student scholarships this year by $5,000,000.

Rhodesian Talks at Crisis

GIBRALTAR (AP) — Prime ministers Harold Wilson of Britain and Ian Smith of Rhodesia faced a possible turning point today as they began the second day of their meeting aimed at resolving the three-year-old dispute over the breakaway African colony.

Both leaders took hard stands in the opening session Thursday, repeating known views that have previously proved irreconcilable.

Aides said it was "tough going for both sides." But both men are deeply committed to a thorough attempt at a settlement, returning to constitutional rule the country of 4,000,000 blacks governed by a white minority of 220,000.

They paved the way at the opening session for a possible breakthrough if one or both are prepared to bend.

Specific points of dispute were turned over to small study groups of officials from both sides, apparently seeking common ground, while the two leaders discussed the broader issues informally in a private evening session.

Wilson faces strong pressure from left-wingers in his own party and from Commonwealth prime ministers to give nothing away on the basic principle of unimpeded progress toward majority black rule.

Smith has said this cannot happen in his lifetime.

In public, British spokesmen talk about majority rule in two years or so. But privately there is talk of it coming in a generation.

Mr. Benson said he will table budgetary papers in the middle of next week.

HALIFAX (CP) — Volvo Canada Ltd. announced Thursday that as a result of high sales, production will be increased at the plant here. Production will be increased to 120 cars at the beginning of November and to 140 by January.

Czechs Approve 50,000 Troops

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Soviet Union has promised Czechoslovak officials that all but 10 per cent of the Warsaw Pact occupation forces will leave their country before its 50th anniversary of independence Oct. 28, diplomatic sources say.

The informants said Soviet officials made the promise in Moscow Thursday during negotiations on a treaty for temporary stationing of forces in Czechoslovakia. Czechoslovak Communist party leaders have promised to sign such a treaty, legalizing the occupation that began Aug. 20.

By some current estimates, the withdrawal during the next two weeks would leave 50,000 or fewer troops—all Soviet except for command detachments from Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria.

The Soviet Union has been responsible for demanding that some of its troops stay in Czechoslovakia to strengthen the guard on the West German border.

But there is evidence of public dissatisfaction in Czechoslovakia with the concessions made to the Kremlin. In a resolution addressed to Communist party leaders, 1,549 employees of the Prague Radio Communications Research Institute said: "We reject categorically any legalization of the stay of foreign armies on our territory. Do not permit it at any price."

"Anything to declare?"

Must Be Careful: Sharp

Hercules Head for Nigeria on Weekend

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian cargo plane heads for Nigeria this weekend for relief operations amid suggestions from Nigeria that Canada could have provided the plane much sooner.

The suggestions came just as External Affairs Minister Sharp was saying that Canada has been very careful not to go over the heads of the Nigerian government in trying to get relief supplies to starving Biafrans.

Mr. Sharp told the Commons external affairs committee Thursday night that Canada would have "messed our copybook" if it had tried to force its way into Biafra with relief supplies.

The Toronto Telegram Thursday quoted Abdul Razag, assistant head of the Nigerian mission at the United Nations, as saying that Canada could have put planes on the relief operation at least a month ago.

Mr. Sharp described the Telegram report as "not correct," "very mischievous" and aimed at raising controversy.

But at the UN, Oksi Arikpo, external affairs commissioner of Nigeria and head of his country's UN delegation, said his government announced publicly more than a month ago that any country, agency or individual wishing to send relief could do so through the International Red Cross.

Mr. Sharp has held that it was only this week that Canada obtained permission from Nigeria for a Hercules to fly relief missions into rebel Biafran territory.

However, he told the committee the base of operations for the plane will depend on whether it will fly into Nigerian areas of Biafran territory as well.

Moreover, Biafra might not want to accept the flights and Canada had no intention of acting as a "blockade runner."

In a gruelling four-hour stint on the witness stand, Mr. Sharp said UN Secretary-General U Thant advised him and other foreign ministers not to raise the Nigerian question at the UN. Nigeria had made a similar request.

At the afternoon session, David Lewis, NDP parliamentary leader, said Canadian authorities have known for a month or more that Nigeria had no objection to relief flights into Biafra.

Mr. Sharp said there was Nigerian "tolerance" for such flights by relief agencies but never active approval for them until this week when he had worked out an arrangement with Mr. Arikpo.

Mr. Lewis said the Canadian government was frightened to provide relief.

Mr. Sharp said there would have been a serious deterioration in Canada-Nigeria relations if a Canadian plane had flown into Biafra without Nigerian approval and there had been an incident.

Canada's "very careful" policy had paid off because there now was clearance for relief flights.

Two Planes 'Not Enough'

EDMONTON (CP) — Opposition Leader Stanfield said Thursday the two Canadian aircraft committed to the Biafra relief airlift are "not sufficient."

Industrial Commission, Council Meet to Discuss Future Policy

Belleville city council and directors of the Belleville Industrial Commission will get together next Tuesday afternoon for discussion of future Commission policy.

In announcing the meeting date this morning Mayor J. Russell Scott said that Tuesday appeared to be the earliest possible date for the two bodies to get together.

The meeting is called for the city hall council chambers at 3:30 and in the public interest it is the opinion of Mayor Scott that it should be open to the press unless otherwise decided on a recorded vote by members of council.

A notice of the Tuesday meeting will go out to council members and directors of the Industrial Commission.

Alderman E. A. Orr at Monday's council meeting suggested the joint meeting to iron out what he felt was a "strained relationship" between the two bodies.

And at a special meeting of the Industrial Commission yesterday afternoon, it was the members expressed wish to accept the invitation.

The board passed a resolution to send a communication to the city clerk requesting council advise the board of the time and place of the meeting and the manner in which it would be conducted.

Industrial commissioner Ray Brown said this morning that it was up to council whether or not the press could attend.

However the mayor said this morning that the meeting would be public with the press in attendance.

According to the mayor only a recorded vote of council against a public meeting would change the present plans.

The vote, he said, would be taken at the beginning of the meeting.

Mr. Brown indicated this morning that the commission was responsible to council in all matters dealing with how to comply with council's recommendations and decisions.

It was also the desire of the BIC yesterday that Fred Deacon, vice-chairman of the commission, accept the chairmanship vacated by George Hume's recent resignation.

Mr. Deacon countered that he would like to take the matter under advisement and said he would make his decision subsequent to the upcoming council-BIC meeting.

Considerable regret was expressed by all members of the commission as they accepted Mr. Hume's resignation yesterday.

It was the consensus of the directors that vice-chairman Deacon suitably acknowledge the resignation indicating extreme thanks for Mr. Hume's worthy contributions during his tenure.

"The loss of his constructive thoughts and his ability to serve the community so capably will be felt," concluded Mr. Brown.

Deacon Witholds Assent

upcoming BIC-council meeting.

"The industrial commission is presently in the center of the public eye, and I feel I should wait until after the council meeting."

Council requested the joint meeting after a suggestion was made by Alderman E. A. Orr Monday that it might prove beneficial because of strained relationships between the two groups.

"If council wants to make any changes I think I should wait until after they've been executed to accept the offer.

"If I don't agree with them, then I can resign from the commission."

Mr. Deacon will continue as vice-chairman and said he would be working closely with Industrial Commissioner Ray Brown in the meantime.

Rockhounds To Meet In City

Tomorrow is rock swap day in Belleville and "rockhounds" and jewelry hobbyists will arrive from all over eastern Canada and the Northern United States to take part.

The show is being sponsored by the Quinte Gem and Mineral Club which has a general membership of about 200 members.

The rock swap will go on from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. in the Belleville Community Centre.

While the swap is in progress there will be individuals on hand cutting rocks and making jewelry.

A great deal of trading among collectors will be the main attraction. Dealers will also be on hand to sell specimens and jewelry.

Spectators are welcome. Admission to the swap is 25c or a rock specimen. These specimens will be auctioned off to cover the cost of the day.

PRESIDENT AND PM

HALIFAX (CP) — Sir Charles Tupper, one of the founders of the Dalhousie University medical school, was the first president of the Canadian Medical Association founded in 1867. He was the only physician to become prime minister of Canada.

Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. F. (Florence) Ethier, Belleville, Mrs. T. (Myra) Bowman, Harmora, one brother, Ben Lee, Madoc, 14 grandchildren and 22 great grandchildren.

Three sisters and two brothers are predeceased. His wife, the former Sarah B. Bateman, died some years ago.

Mr. Lee is resting at the MacKenzie Funeral Home, Madoc. Service will be held in St. John the Baptist Anglican Church, Madoc, on Sunday, October 13 at two o'clock.

Interment will be in O'Hara cemetery with Rev. J. H. Thompson officiating.

RAYMOND ATKIN SNIDER
(Eastend, Saskatchewan)

A private funeral was held at the John R. Bush Funeral Home this afternoon for Raymond Atkin Snider, Eastend, Saskatchewan and formerly of Deseronto, who died on Monday.

Rev. Laurie Sutherland conducted the service in the chapel and also said the graveside prayers at Wilke Lake Cemetery.

The bearers were D. Windsor; B. Ross, D. Collins, R. and Al Greatrix and D. Douglas.

Mr. Snider died in Eastend Union hospital on Monday after an illness which extended a year. He was born in Deseronto, 78 years ago, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Atkin (Ed) Snider.

After graduation from Queen's University in Arts, he entered law school graduating in 1922 and went to Eastend, Sask. where he practised law until his retirement in 1967.

Mr. Snider was town solicitor for 42 years. He was offered a district court judgeship on two occasions but refused to continue his private practice. He was also a farmer and rancher.

Surviving are his wife, the former Grace Douglas and one sister, Mrs. Archie (Mamie) Greatrix, Thorlow township. One brother, Percy Snider, died in 1966.

EARL THOMAS WILSON

The funeral for Earl Thomas Wilson was held from the Grant Funeral Home on Thursday afternoon.

Canon R. B. Wright conducted the service in the chapel and also the committal rites in Belleville cemetery.

But, Bobby Hull prepared to leave 11 years of hockey limelight behind him with no more in the way of a goodbye than a 63-word press release?

Yes, says Mrs. Hull Sr.. "Useless something drastic happens. But he told me I'd hear from him today if things had changed in any way, and I haven't. Joanne (Bobby's wife, expecting a fourth child in January) said they would probably be staying in Chicago until the children's first school term is up — sometime around mid-January. Then they'll be moving back here to the farm.

Yes, say fellow NHL-ers who appreciate Hull's predicament.

Asked if he thought Hull were using retirement as a threat in his salary negotiations with Chicago, Toronto's Dave Keon said: "That's not his style. Bob has class." And former teammate and Black Hawk captain for several years, Pierre Pilotte said there would have been no retirement announcement if he didn't mean it.

There was one other important opinion to be consulted and over 300 miles of telephone cable, Bobby Hull's voice came across with the sincerity that is R's owner's office trademark.

"The club doesn't seem to think I'm worth what I'm asking for," he said, with some emotion. "If that's the case, I don't feel I should continue playing.

"It's nice to know you folks back home are thinking about me.

"Be sure to say 'hi' to everyone for me."

IN MEMORIAM

BARLOW — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Stanley Barlow who passed away October 12th, 1967.

He left us a memory we prize,
So treasure him Lord, in Your garden of rest.
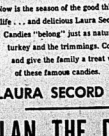
Sadly missed and always remembered by wife, sons and daughters and their families.

SUMMERS — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Charles John, who passed away October 11th, 1966.

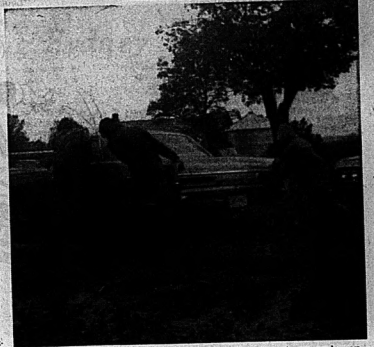
I do not need a special day, dear,
To bring you to my mind,
The days I do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
God alone knows how I miss you,
Never shall your memory fade,
My thoughts are always wandering,
To the spot where you are laid.
Lovingly remembered by loving wife Rose and family.



BRANNIK — In loving remembrance of a dear mother, Mrs. Anna Brannik who passed away Oct. 11, 1967.

We do not need a special day,
To bring to our mind,
The days we do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
You left us a world worse than ours to live,
We'd give it, yes, and more,
To have the chat of mother dear,
Come smiling through the door.
Sadly missed by son Peter Orchak, daughter-in-law Rowena, grandchildren, Robert, Susan and Sandra.

BRANNIK — In loving memory of our dear wife and mother Anna Brannik who passed away Oct. 11, 1967.



One sad and lonely year has passed
Since our great sorrow fell,
And we have learned that we must
No one can ever tell.
We have fought through to meet it,
And courage to bear the blow,
But what it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
You left us so suddenly, no farewell,
Not even a single kiss,
You were gone before we realized
it was this.
And only God knows why.
Lovingly remembered by husband Fred and daughter Beth and son-in-law Al and grandchildren.

Quinte Corn Day Bogged Down by Rainfall

VOLUNTEER MUSCLEMEN provide the shove to get car underway after becoming stuck in muddy field at yesterday's Quinte Corn Day in Ameliasburg township.

Corn Day Staged in Ameliasburg Area

"Profits in Corn" was the theme yesterday at the annual Quinte Corn Day staged by the Quinte Soil and Crop Association.

Hosts for the day were Clarence and Lyle Vandervliet where demonstration corn plots were planted last spring.

The day's program said the event would be held "rain or shine" and although the morning program went on much as scheduled, later a steady rain turned the cornfields into mud, forced the speaking program to be held indoors and cancelled out much of the afternoon schedule.

Farmers started leaving for home early in the afternoon and machinery dealers commenced pulling out their displays and exhibits.

Yields per acre and data respecting fertilizers used and rates of planting were given by William E. Hurst, soil and crop specialist with the department of agriculture at Brighton.

Yields ranged from a low of 73 bushels per acre for Stewart 4602 with a plant population of 9,000 per acre, up to 145 bushels per acre for Pag SX 47 sown at the rate of 22,800.

One of the highest yields on the Vandlief farm was in the narrow row section although it was admitted there was little by which a true comparison could be made.

Keynote speaker of the day was G. S. Jones, crop science department at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph who spoke on the future of corn in Ontario.

He said the biggest single problem today in Ontario's corn industry was the low price, resulting mainly from a large North American surplus.

Last week Western Ontario farmers went to Ottawa on a tractor march demanding an embargo on United States corn imports which they said was forcing down the price of the Ontario grown product.

Mr. Jones said it was ironic that the lower prices of grain in Ontario were largely influenced by local supply conditions.

The speaker said that supply of the local market was the only justification for extra grain production in Ontario. By and large Ontario farmers do not have the relative advantage in producing grain competitively for export, he said.

Grain production should be geared to supply the local market but to accomplish this economically it would be necessary to reduce "excesses" in corn production by making better investments in seed, fertilizer, herbicides and machines.

Farmers were urged to use feed locally, to be on the lookout for local industrial sales, look to quality improvement and move to larger production units.

Proctor-Silex Talks Adjourned for Week

PICTON (Staff) — Negotiations between Proctor-Silex and the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, local 585, are to be continued in Toronto.

The two parties meet again next Friday under the auspices of William Dickey, chief conciliation officer for the provincial department of labor.

So statement has been made on progress to date. George Hutchens, Canadian IUE president, said that Mr. Dickey had requested that all negotiations be kept secret.

Mr. Dickey could not be reached for comment.

The two parties met Oct. 9 and 10. Apparently a meeting was held between each party and the conciliation officer, and finally among all three.

Both James Findlay, Proctor-Silex plant manager, and Mr. Hutchens stated prior to the meeting they could not accept the proposals of the other. Mr. Findlay said the company has made its last offer. Mr. Hutchens said that offer of a six per cent increase was unacceptable.

Meanwhile, at the Proctor-Silex plant this morning, a bus load of workers arrived. Strikers say that fewer than 20 production workers are going into the plant, while a company spokesman said that about 30 are working.

Rumor Not True Says McFarland

"Best of luck to Mayor McFarland in getting his industry," said Belleville Industrial Commissioner Ray Brown this morning.

The statement came after the Picton mayor said Wednesday that a $5 million food plant had no intention of going to Belleville instead of Picton.

Mr. Brown admits working with a food company who is thinking of locating here but says he is sure that it is not the same one as the Picton mayor was referring to.

Rumors began circulating in Picton this week that the plant had lost interest in Picton but was going to locate in Belleville.

He said the prospective industry still plans to locate in Picton and has never considered Belleville as an alternative.

The lawyers added that the company has recently hired a consulting firm to compile a marketing survey of Prince Edward County and that is in progress now.

Meanwhile architects are drawing up plans for a physical plant, says Mayor McFarland, which will cost a total of $5 million.

Coin Show Slated

Competitive coins will make the scene tomorrow at the Hotel Quinte as the Bay of Quinte Numismatic Association sponsors its coin show.

There will be competitive as well as non-competitive displays and prizes will be awarded.

And admission will be free, all the money will all ready be inside.

Besides the local displays there will be collections coming from other parts of Ontario to compete in the show which will go on from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. tomorrow evening.

Wide Yards Needed : Planner

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board's assistant planning director, Frank Stokmans was misquoted yesterday in a statement regarding apartment construction.

Mr. Stokmans referred to underground parking planned for the T. E. Schwab apartment on West Bridge St. built as "a good feature." However he was not responsible for the statement that underground parking would eliminate the necessity for wide side yards.

Administrator Carl Casey Dies of Heart Attack

Well known in educational and business circles of the city, and business administrator of the Belleville Separate School Board for the past three years, Carl J. Casey, 127 Bridge Street, East, died suddenly in Toronto on Thursday.

Mr. Casey was attending a conference for school administrators when he was stricken with a heart attack and died later in St. Michael's Hospital.

Born at Tweed 50 years ago, Mr. Casey was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Casey and attended public and high school in that village. He later attended the University of Toronto.

Before becoming business administrator for the Separate School Board, Mr. Casey had been secretary treasurer at Deacon Brothers Ltd. for 25 years.

He had long taken an interest in education and served for several years on the Separate School Board. He resigned from the board in 1960 to become part time board secretary and business administrator, and three years ago became full time administrator.

His interest in education was rewarded by appointment to the board of governors of Catholic High School Boards in Ontario.

CARL J. CASEY

He was a member of St. Michael's Church.

He was a member of the Belleville Club, the Accounting Association, and the Belleville Sales and Ad Club.

An ardent sports enthusiast, he played golf and was a member of the Bay of Quinte Golf Club, enjoyed fishing and was a lover of baseball. As a young man he played ball for area teams and during the early 1930's pitched for the Latta club in the South Hastings League.

He is survived by his wife, the former Mary Lee and by two daughters, Mrs. Kerry (Sheila) Soden of Toronto and Miss Mary Lee Casey, attending Queen's University.

The funeral will be held Monday from the O'Brien Funeral Home to St. Michael's Church for Requiem Mass at 10 a.m. Interment will be in St. James' Cemetery.

Phoney Money Found in Trenton

TRENTON — A warning has been issued by Brighton OPP for persons to be on the lookout for phoney $10 bills which could mark the third surge of counterfeit bills to take place in the Quinte area in the past three months.

Police reported today that a bogus $10 bill was discovered at the Brighton Bank of Commerce yesterday. The bill was deposited by George Thorne who operates a Shell station on 401.

He estimates that it was passed during working hours on roy one of three days — from Oct. 8 to 10.

The serial number of the bill is S/E5358870.

A police spokesman said the bills "are of very poor quality which is most notable by their faded color."

By Aug. 13 a total of $102 in bogus bills had been passed in the Quinte area. And then on Sept. 9 Trenton police reported discovering $40 in phoney money.

Tight Money

The federal government has been making some play of its thrifty ways in these days of apparent shortage, with the provinces and this that and the other interest pressing their claims. Yet there is arrogance, as well as extravagance, in the way Ottawa, and the provinces too, dispense their beneficence. How else can we explain the financial difficulties being experienced at this time.

On the one hand there is Finance Minister Benson adopting a "what's-a-million" attitude in saying (at Hamilton last week) that if all the provinces join the Medicare scheme, the net total increase in national health care costs would be "no more than $80,000,000." At the same time Indian Affairs Minister Chrétien was regaling a visiting Quinte City, on a special trip to the capital to seek help for Indians in the Armstrong area, north of the Lakehead, about how little money he had in his budget.

Proof that Ottawa is having difficulty making ends meet as a result of its heavy spending programs is the fact that cutbacks have been ordered on many projects. Even the civil service is a less secure area of employment than before, as a result of tight economies ordered by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Meanwhile Mr. Benson, in that speech in Hamilton, said he would meet provincial treasurers soon to consider whether Ottawa's $5,000,000,000 - a - year social development spending can be done more efficiently. And, in a statement eloquent of Mr. Trudeau's objective of "a just society," Mr. Benson said: "It is our duty . . . to work out a balance in the Canadian economy so that all Canadians will be better able justly — so they will have the right to decent housing, decent health facilities, decent education and decent job opportunities."

He emphasized the need to raise education levels as a means of attacking the problem of poverty. Canadians will support such a statement. At the same time they should demand careful husbanding of the country's tax resources and their application to projects that are in the best interests of all.

What of the provincial scene? To quote the federal finance minister once again, Mr. Benson told his Hamilton audience that Ontario Premier John Robarts will not be successful in demands that Ottawa give the province a greater slice of federal tax revenues. "We are not a well that anyone can dip into . . . our taxing powers are not designed to make gifts to the provinces."

Mr. Robarts, meanwhile, has been speaking of the possibility of cutting spending in essential areas like education, health, welfare and roads, and in the same breath he raises the prospect of a provincial income tax to avoid a financial crisis.

Amid all this talk of financial distress, or pressure at least, our own quinte area perhaps can count itself fortunate in receiving a provincial grant of $5,000 toward the development of tourism in Hastings county. However, many would question the way in which the grant is being put — the development of snowmobile trails. How many will be in a position to enjoy such facilities? Only those who happen to have snowmobiles and they would be in a minority. Some thought could be given to using some of the money at least for other recreational purposes as well, so that a cross-section of the community might benefit.

Lighting the Way

Council has been discussing a collection of art and lamps in the city's possession. The Couldery collection and the Paul collection of lamps — described by one councillor, as "priceless" — may be in line for restoration and display in more adequate surroundings than the dim county courthouse building.

This is commendable. City treasures of this nature should not be allowed to fall into neglect. They are assets of which any city should be proud and Council's consideration of these factors is encouraging.

Speaking of lamps reminds us of city lighting fixtures in general — a subject more plebian perhaps than worth a cent but nevertheless one that cannot be ignored. We are thinking especially of the lamps on the upper and lower bridges.

These lamps are either dirty or weak or both. In any event, the light they give forth is minimal. A brighter aspect around these two bridges would give some added glamor to what essentially are strictly utilitarian structures. The river scene also would be enhanced.

There is of course the risk of vandalism — of youngsters breaking the lights. On the other hand it would be an opportunity to show young and old alike something more of value to the city, which all would appreciate and preserve from any such acts of destruction.

"Look, Lyndon — no parachute!"

Students, Manners and Loans

Hamilton Spectator

Universities aren't in the business of teaching good manners as Prime Minister Trudeau was reminded by a jeering, shouting mob of students in Saskatchewan earlier this week.

Just what the social function of higher learning is is harder to answer. Now that students are asking for substantial power to run universities, and for sweeping revisions in the student loan scheme which would lead inexorably to free tuition for all, the time has come to ask whether we are not perpetuating an elite minority at the expense, and beyond the control of the unelite majority.

Many students today are having a rough time financially. Tuition and accommodation fees can run $1,500 a year or more. Summer jobs were much harder to find this year.

The loan plan will provide a maximum of $1,000 a year to students who have completed four years of post secondary studies, have had one year's employment, are 21, or are married. The loans are interest free until six months after graduation at which time re-payment begins with interest.

Since the plan was started in 1964, 132,000 students have received loans totalling $160,900,000.

To many cases the $1,000 a year is not enough. A recent graduate, almost certainly at the best job of his lifetime is earning, is faced with repayment of a sizeable loan. He has his problems, no doubt about it. But he has something else. He has hope.

Certainly these earnings enable him, or in fact compel him to pay proportionately larger sums in personal income taxation to help finance education to a proportionately higher degree during his working life. And, the fact that a man is educated at all permits him to make a greater contribution to the welfare of society as a whole.

Even so, this graduate has already been massively subsidized. His disposable income, and the enjoyment and quality of his life in a material society, is far greater than that of his lesser educated counterpart, the man who still pays the bulk of the education bills, the man who is increasingly disturbed by displays of unruliness such as that in Saskatchewan, the man who is increasingly aware and annoyed by the fact that ever vaster sums are being disbursed to universities in a manner which leaves control of the purse so remote from the man who fills it that taxation without representation is approached.

Action Needed

Great Lakes' Pollution

Hamilton Spectator

Lake Erie can be saved from death by pollution if corrective measures are taken immediately, the Canadian-U.S. commission investigating the Great Lakes pollution has reported. The key word is "immediately."

The Great Lakes commission won't produce its final recommendations until another report is filed next year and public hearings have been held. But some obvious anti-pollution steps could be taken now.

Commissioners found sewage and industrial wastes the principal culprits.

The commission knows where pollution is heaviest and which factories are the major contributors of waste. The report places the biggest offenders in the United States but that evidence doesn't let Ontario off the hook.

Five jurisdictions own Lake Erie shoreline: Ontario, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Michigan. Ontario has launched a vigorous, if overdue, pollution control program. Michigan and Pennsylvania have set limits on wastes that industries may dump. Ohio and New York haven't.

Although the commission report traces Lake Erie's worst pollution to the southern shore, Ontario has a large stake in the game. This province has a right to ask for joint remedial action and a responsibility to do its share to clean up Lake Erie and other polluted border waters.

The commission's warning that Erie-style conditions are continuing to develop in Lake Ontario and the international section of the St. Lawrence River indicates Lake Erie is only part of a problem demanding effective international co-operation.

Instead of waiting for the commission's final report — which could take a year or more — Ontario should initiate provincial-state talks based on the commission recommendations filed this week:

Letter to the Editor

Employment of Canadian Indians

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I strongly protest the action of the Intelligencer in giving front page coverage in Monday's paper to the statements of a local farm employer depicting Indians as perfectly lovable and unreliable. Such reporting can only serve to reinforce the stereotypes and bigoted thinking which stand in the way of any serious effort to deal with the poverty and alienation of many Indians in Canadian society.

In the same article, statements attributed to Mr. R. F. Battle, of the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development compound the affront to Indian people by first attempting to dismiss the complaints as something which would be "the same with any group", and then pleading for understanding that the Indians failed to adjust because of differences in culture.

The lack of employment opportunities for northern Indians and the consequent hard ship they endure has frequently been documented by the press. A government which consciously deplores the suffering of children in Biafra or Vietnam cannot totally ignore the similar suffering and death within its own territory, so something must be done — no less as the "something" is not too costly or too disruptive of the priorities and vested interests which already exist.

Against this background, the neglect of relocating northern Indians as migrant farm laborers seemed ideal. It would demonstrate that those in authority really were trying to do something about native poverty and unemployment. It would meet the pressing need for temporary farm help during harvest; northern Indians might be able to adapt as migrant farm laborers since the life bore some superficial resemblance to the migratory pattern which had shaped their lives.

The project, which at best was a stop-gap measure, has evidently proved unsuccessful. The only Indians I know of, Mississagis who were to save money and save face for virtuous white Canadians and their government, have been sent back to the bush and once again the record will show: "We tried to help them, but they just couldn't adjust!"

Do CBC Men "Slant" the News?

Winnipeg Free Press

Many people must be weary by now of television journalists who turn every news report, no matter how brief, into a review of their personal opinions, deductions and prejudices.

A typical example of this sort of thing was seen on a recent CBC television news report in an item about the exchange in the Parliament over rumors that republican forces were gaining ground in Canada. One of the CBC's men in Ottawa came on and told us that, in his view, it was perfectly clear that Prime Minister Trudeau was an ardent republican. Mr. Trudeau hadn't said that, he had professed that he had said that he had no intention of tampering with established institutions which are important to other people. To the CBC commentator it was all perfectly clear. Mr. Trudeau was a red-hot republican.

Only minutes before this commentator had turned himself into a major news item, another reporter on the radio news had been giving a highly slanted report on the dispute between certain Indian bands and the department of Indian affairs, ending his report with a personal comment on the Indians' struggle for "human rights."

No journalist is perfect, but it would be refreshing to see and hear the occasional news report on radio or television in which those involved confine themselves to telling the audience what has been happening in the world since last they met. Let them save their opinions and prejudices for the guest shows and commentary programs. On the news report give us the news.

Good Manners Are An Advantage in Many Ways

Windsor Star

An observer of the human scene remarks that he can tell what kind of a home a man or woman came from by his or her manners. He further suggests that class or wealth are no criterion of manners; that the character of mothers and their influence on their beautiful assets determines manners.

He contends good manners are an advantage in business, separating the truly civilized person from the uncivilized. But there is, he argues, a very practical benefit in them. Naturally well-mannered people seldom get into unseemly disputes or altercations. Their manners are an aid to them in their careers. They have most troubles in the homes, in the community and in life in the world could be avoided just by the use of good manners.

He also associates manners with dispositions. It is difficult for a grouchy, petty, envious or spiteful person to exhibit good manners. Their temperament will tend to make them rude and nasty.

The observer of course distinguishes between naturally fine manners and the acquired etiquette, which may be phoney or assumed artificialities. There's a world of difference.

Unruly Students Bug P.M.

Peterborough Examiner

The rudeness and stupidity of the University of Saskatchewan students who booed and shoved Prime Minister Trudeau in Regina last week cannot be condoned. Demanding increased financial assistance, about 1,000 unruly students jeered the prime minister as he attempted to explain that money does not grow on trees planted on Parliament Hill and that the cost of education is borne by society as a whole. Some even banged sticks on the PM's car.

Just who do these students think they are? While it would be wonderful if the government had unlimited funds to spend on education — along with such programs as housing and poverty relief — the fact is that the Trudeau government is not one of the moment and all governments are being forced to cut back on expenditures. Every man complaint seemed to be the administration of the student loan fund, which is financed by the federal government but administered by the provinces.

The students' violent act in such an immature and disrespectful manner, the cause of education suffers. If students feel they need more money, they had better find a more disciplined manner of expressing their wants.

U. S. Reaction to Hal Banks Case

Kingston Whig-Standard

The Banks case refuses to die. Since the Secretary of State of the United States, Mr. Dean Rusk, overruled the recommendations of his legal adviser and a U.S. commissioner and refused to sign a deportation warrant for Harold Banks, the reverberations in Congress and elsewhere have been constant and noisy.

Senator Paul Fannin is the most persistent American critic of the policy of the United States in refusing to extradite Hal Banks, former head of the Seafarers' International Union wanted in Canada on perjury charges. The Senator has accused the Secretary of Labor, Willard Wirtz, of interceding with Dean Rusk on behalf of what he calls American "labor barons" — especially the heads of the AFL-CIO for getting Banks off the hook. The most potent aspect of the case against Wirtz and Rusk is that immediately after Banks went free the Democratic Party received $100,000 from the SIU.

As Senator Fannin put it, "Are we to sit by and see $100,000 political payoffs apparently take place in front of our eyes and not even cry out?" He called this "probably the most flagrant misuse of funds that I've heard about" and added that the matter had resulted in a setback to deterioration in American-Canadian relations: "This Administration has lost our trust with the Canadian people."

The U.S. Government, as Senator Fannin put it, does not want the Banks case examined further; "they hope it will go away. And it may well "go away" temporarily. But the smell will remain for a long time yet, on both sides of the border.

Flu Threat This Winter

Brockville Recorder and Times

There are those among us who look upon winter as a season of long hard with cold germs and other types of bugs. To such people winter is a battle.

The battle will be joined this winter, according to public health services, by a new type of flu. It is the Hong Kong flu, a new wrinkle in the virus that periodically lays low multitudes around the world.

For most people the flu is a nuisance and it lays them low for a few days. But it can be deadly because it weakens resistance to other diseases. As recently as 1957, it claimed 18,000 lives in the U.S.

Researchers are now at work on a new vaccine for the Hong Kong virus. It is expected to be ready before Christmas in Canada.

Monoxide Kills Four Teenagers

Ottawa Journal

Four teenagers were found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning last weekend at Chalk River. As soon as the temperatures dip the tragic toll of carbon monoxide poisoning increases.

Motorists — often teenagers — will sit for hours at a time in an idling automobile with the heater turned full. Carbon monoxide gives no warning to its victims; it is invisible and odorless.

Until automobile manufacturers design a car that won't leak carbon monoxide into the passenger compartment, motorists should always keep a vent or window at least partially open. Shivering is a sign of life.

Students Want Free Parking

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

The student council at the University of Waterloo is in favor of free parking every day. So are we. Other things we favor are five-cent coffee, churches without collection plates, and sunshine every Saturday. The trouble is that we can't get 800 cents to the golden pool and we can't live in a dream world of the future. We all have to live in the here and now. Free parking for students would be feasible if we could increase the size of university with more money and fewer students. The uncomfortable truth is that if 6,000 students and 1,500 staff members are going to congregate daily at one piece of ground, the space is going to have to be rationed somehow. Nobody has yet devised a better system of rationing than putting a price on it.

Loss Turned Into Profit

Nova Scotia Breathes Life Into Dying Sydney Steel Mill

SYDNEY (CP) — "We've jumped right off our death bed — and we're going to be alive and kicking for a long time now."

That was the reaction of Martin Mercer, 40, president of Local 1064, United Steelworkers of America, on Thursday's announcement that the Sydney steel mill will show a $2,500,000 profit in its first year under the wing of the Nova Scotia government.

"It proves what we've been saying all along," Mr. Mercer said in an interview. "This mill can compete with any steel plant in the world if it has the right kind of management."

His comments followed Premier G. I. Smith's review at a news conference of the first year's operation of Sydney Steel Corp. (Sysco), set up by the province to operate the 58-year-old mill after it was condemned as uneconomic by its former operators, Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation (Dosco).

When Sysco moved into the sprawling plant at the edge of harbor here Jan. 1, government experts—basing their prediction on Dosco's grim outlook—expected the mill to lose at least $5,000,000 in its first full year under the new government corporation.

But as Sysco's "arm-twisting" sales staff began to land contracts in areas never tapped by Dosco, that prediction was slashed to $2,000,000 by March and to a few hundred thousand dollars by summer.

Premier Smith and Sysco Chairman R. B. Cameron announced Thursday that Sysco management has recommended that $50,000,000 be invested in plant modernization over the next five years.

Plans for modernization, Mr. Cameron said, could get under way as early as next May.

The program would involve expenditure of $5,000,000 in 1968 and $15,000,000 in 1970, followed by $20,000,000 spending in each of the next three years.

The first step would be to upgrade the plant's rail-making facilities to enable it to turn out 78-foot rails, double the present capacity. Mr. Smith and Mr. Cameron said Sysco wants to exploit Sydney's reputation as producer of the world's best rails.

In recent months, Sysco has sold rails to Chile, South Korea and the United States. None of these markets was ever cracked by Dosco or its predecessor companies.

The second phase of the modernization program would be installation of two basic oxygen furnaces to replace the present open-hearth furnaces.

Thursday's disclosures came almost one year after Dosco announced it would initiate close-down procedures immediately, with complete closure set for April 30, 1968.

Dosco had said the mill's geographic position, far from the major markets in central Canada, made it non-competitive with Ontario steel plants.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials posted moderate losses in active mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Other sections of the market were steady.

Total declines outran gains by 134 to 129.

Imperial Oil fell 1 to 82¾, Royal Bank ¾ to 30⅝, Moore Corp. ⅛ to 39, Molson A ⅛ to 21, MTCC ⅛ to 9⅛ and Canada Cement ¼ to 35⅛.

Consumers Glass was up ¾ to 30, Unas Investments ⅛ to 16⅛, Famous Players ½ to 25⅛, Seyvets ⅛ to 6⅝ and Inco ¼ to 41⅝.

Among the heaviest traders, Bahamas-Caribbean jumped 20 cents to $1.45 on 26. Maurice Gas 10 cents to $2.85. Bank Organization dropped ¼ to 12⅜.

Seaway Hotels kept 4¼ to 22⅝ on sales of 23,000 shares. Trading was delayed at opening to match orders and to allow time for the release of new company plans.

Searay said it has agreed to buy Premium Forest Products Ltd. of Toronto for an undisclosed sum in cash and debentures from Philip Mandlebaum, founder and principal shareholder in the door manufacturing firm.

Among western oils and mines, Canadian Superior rose 1⅛ to 39⅝, Bankeno 40 cents to $6.25 and Upper Canada 15 cents to $3.30.

New Hosco lost 11 cents to $1.55. The Ontario Securities Commission said it will apply for a court order restraining the company from holding a shareholders meeting because the circular accompanying its annual meeting notice does not comply with the 1966 Securities Act.

On index, industrials fell .35 to 177.80. Golds rose .40 to 112.72, base metals .10 to 113.66 and western oils 1.08 to 227.64.

Volume was 927,000 shares compared with 900,000 at the same time Thursday.

Volume expanded to 4,040,000 shares from 2,814,000 Wednesday. Losses outnumbered gains by 282 to 236.

The industrial index fell 1.66 to 178.35. Western oils also were weak. Brokers said they were not surprised at the downward trend this week in view of the market's exceptional climb to record levels since Labor Day.

Southam fell 3⅜ to 51, Inco 1⅛ to 41⅝, Seagrams 1⅛ to 46, Dominion Textile 1⅛ to 16½, Imperial Oil 1 to 83⅝ and Calgary Power ¼ to 25.

Ford of Canada jumped 13½ to 272½, Peel-Elder 2 to 40, General Development 1¾ to 25 and Carrier Shoe 1⅛ to 12.

West Indies Plantations A climbed 1 to 7¾ and West Indies common 50 cents to $5.00. D. F. Currie, president, said preuminary merger talks are under way with an unidentified land development company.

Victoria and Grey Trust closed unchanged at 17¾. A total of 2,451 shares were bought under a special bid at 17¾ for an unidentified purchaser through Wisener and Partners, stockbrokers.

Levesque, Gregoire Form Separatist Party

QUEBEC (CP) — The separatist movements led by Rene Levesque and Gilles Gregoire are to establish a new political party this weekend.

The big issue separating the separatists is state school subsidies for Quebec's English-speaking minority, who number more than 1,000,000.

Mr. Levesque says a sovereign Quebec state should continue subsidizing English language education. Mr. Gregoire agreed in a separatist summit session at Montreal last August, but Mr. Bourgault's RIN stuck to his party's line of French-only in state schools.

This issue is about the only one that could cause trouble during the meeting to found a new party, prepare a program for the next provincial election and choose a name for the new separatist formation.

Mr. Levesque is expected to emerge as the new party's president and Mr. Gregoire the vice-president.

White New Tax Collector

TORONTO (CP) — John White, Ontario's new revenue minister, will be responsible for a department formed by the legislature only last spring.

Mr. White was sworn in by Lt.-Gov. Ross Macdonald Thursday.

The department takes over administration of all revenue statutes formerly administered by the treasury department. The existing statutes are corporations, gasoline, hospitals, income, land transfer, logging, motor vehicle fuel, race tracks, retail sales, security transfer, succession duty and tobacco tax acts.

The revenue portfolio has been held to now by Treasurer Charles MacNaughton, who also is minister of economics.

Mr. MacNaughton remains in control of financial, economic, accounting and taxation policy.

Oil-Pipeline Trade Disclosed

TORONTO (CP) — Canada is limiting crude oil exports to the United States in return for approval of a Canadian pipeline extension into the U.S., Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said Thursday.

Under the government of former prime minister Lester Pearson, Mr. Pepin said Canada agreed to limit sales of crude oil to U.S. buyers at the request of U.S. oil interests.

Mr. Pepin, who served as minister of energy, mines and resources in the Pearson cabinet, said the national energy board, which oversees Canadian oil policies, and the petroleum companies involved were informed of the arrangement.

The quota arrangement was not made public. Mr. Pepin said in an interview here, because there are powerful interests lobbying in Washington over the deal.

He said that Canadian crude-oil exports to the United States had declined in recent years as a result of the deal.

The design council is a private, 17-man consultative body established by Parliament in 1961 to stimulate creative design in Canadian industry.

Mr. Pepin said that, wherever possible Canadian industry should seek to integrate indigenous Canadian design in products made in this country.

He cited the automobile industry as an exception to this idea because design is a minor factor in the production of cars at Canadian plants.

The long-lasting effect of distinctively designed products with having created a world-was credited by the minister wide market for Scandinavian furniture.

Document Not Necessary in Some Eskimo Adoptions

CORAL HARBOR, N.W.T. (CP) — There are two kinds of law in the Northwest Territories: one made in Ottawa, the other handed down in the Arctic from beyond memory.

In Mr. Justice William Morrow's travelling territorial court, the two are taking their first steps together in a drive to register Eskimo adoptions.

During a swing through communities along the north-western shores of Hudson Bay, the court cut the first chunk out of a backlog of adoptions technically good in Canadian law but unconfirmed by any formal record.

Eskimo custom, developed in small, closely-knit communities, requires neither signed documents nor social workers to ratify an adoption. If both sets of parents agree, the baby simply is "given" to the new family without ceremony, as soon as possible after birth.

A 1961 decision by Mr. Justice John H. Sissons, first justice of the territorial court of the Northwest Territories, established such adoptions as valid. But a court order comes in handy for social insurance numbers or mothery allowance, inovations the Eskimos are as quick to appreciate as power toboggans.

"They catch on fast," Mr. Justice Morrow says.

His improvised courtrooms, usually in a school or recreation hall, are marked with a flag outside the door and filled with baby noises. Court proceedings often pause while the judge asks the spectators when a certain man will be back from hunting. When he does return, Mr. Justice Morrow is likely to ask him whether he got anything.

Through an interpreter, the judge makes sure both sets of parents are satisfied with the adoption, and has each sign a consent form. Often, as a woman leans forward to sign a small face peers over her shoulder to see what she's doing.

In her voluminous hood, a child will nestle from infancy until the age of two, or, as one girl explained, "until you have another baby."

If the other baby comes too soon, someone is likely to adopt him.

Generations of a harsh nomadic life have taught the Eskimo to think that a child properly belongs to whatever parents can give him the most attention and the best chance to survive.

Reasons frequently given for adoptions are that the child's natural parents had other children in near his for adoptions are that the or simply that the adopting parents especially wanted him and asked for him before he was born.

"The other people didn't have children," a Coral Harbor couple told the court. "We couldn't say no to them; they are relatives."

In Rankin Inlet, another couple said they let their baby be adopted at the age of one year because when his natural mother returned from a tuberculosis sanatorium, "the baby didn't want to leave the woman who had been looking after him."

"The Eskimo people have taught us that the welfare of the child is the first and foremost consideration," says another judge, R. G. Williamson, a member of the Northwest Territorial Council and professor at the University of Saskatchewan.

"To the Eskimo, love means compassion, a larger commitment to the child than just emotion," Dr. Williamson said.

Mr. Justice Morrow spented one session of court this way:

"Ladies and gentlemen of Coral Harbor, I am glad to be here.

"I understand there are quite a few adoptions you want me to fix up in the law.

"We will go ahead with those, even though the husbands are out hunting—we will go as far as we can. And if the husbands are here in the evening, we will be here again and we will see the husbands.

"If you have other questions, don't be bashful, come and ask me while you are here.

He asked one adopting father why he wanted the child.

"He said he has one child but it's grown up, he wanted another," the interpreter replied.

"Everybody happy that that's the way it stays!" the judge asked.

And everybody shook hands.

U.C.W. Meeting

BRIDGE ST. U.C.W.

A United Church missionary, who has returned from Japan this summer after 40 years service, Miss Gwen Suttie, was guest speaker at the autumn Thankoffering meeting of Bridge St. Church UCW on Tuesday evening, October 8.

Miss Suttie's last 15 years have been spent in higher educational work in Tokyo. In this capacity, the speaker had the opportunity to learn the mental background and way of thinking of the Japanese and appreciate the extreme difficulty for them to accept Christianity.

The Japanese believes he has to give up convictions and his enjoyment of festival. There is no god in Buddhism, just law. They are not trained, nor are they expected to think things ou for themselves, have no desire for individuality, and consequently have no desire for own future life as an individual.

The program was under the direction of Miss Grace Keizny and was preceded at 7 p.m. by a Japanese dessert and tea. Mrs. Don Williams led the devotional service and Mrs. Morley Davidson rendered an appropriate solo.

After the speaker's address, a brief business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. J. S. Toynes.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

GREINER — FUZZEN —

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence D. Fuzzen, Bellleville, announce the marriage of their daughter Carol Elizabeth, to Fritz Greiner, Orange, California, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Greiner, Welheim, West Germany, on October 6, 1968.

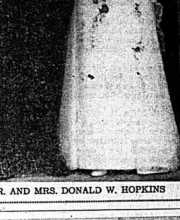
* * *

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. William Hopkins (nee Lynda Johnson) was entertained at several events. A community shower was held at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Vivian in Shannonville, with Mrs. D. Breadman, Mrs. J. Harrington and Mrs. V. Rump as co-hostesses for the occasion. A trousseau shower was held by her friends of the Bell Telephone, with Miss Carolyn Vanhorne as hostess and Miss Nancy Beatty as co-hostess.

Hopkins – Johnson

Holy Trinity Church, Shannonville, was the scene of the October 5 wedding, when Rev. Hawkins united in marriage Vivien Lynda Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Johnson, of Shannonville, to Donald George Hopkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hopkins, of Corbyville. Rendering the traditional wedding music was Mrs. Macy Byford; a duet was given by Mrs. Dorothy Vandenburg and Mrs. Barbara Powers, both aunts of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, William Johnson, wore a floor length sheath gown of white silk organza over taffeta with Alencon lace at the neckline. The bodice featured long sleeves and a cathedral train. Her headpiece consisted of sheer veiling trimmed with lace, which extended to the floor as a train. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white 'mums, entwined with ivy.



Maid of honor, Mrs. Lois Tryan of Belleville was attired in a floor length, empire waisted gown of burne orange with chiffon sleeves. The bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Anderson of Roslin, Miss Margaret Breadman of Shannonville, cousins of the bride, and Miss Rosemary Hopkins, sister of the groom, were dressed in gowns similar to that of the matron of honor, except in mint green. The headpieces and accessories were white and the bouquets consisted of white and tinted 'mums, to match their dresses.

The flower girl, Miss Sue Ellen Harrington of Shannonville was attired the same as the bridesmaids, and carried a basket of white and tinted green 'mums.

Attending the bridegroom was John Pound of Toronto; while the ushers were Jonathan Harrington of Shannonville, and Ted Yarwood of Montreal.

At the wedding reception at the Belleville Shrine Club, the mother of the bride was attired in a blue street-length fortrel two-piece dress, with a matching blue feathered hat and black accessories completed by a corsage of pink carnations. Also at the reception, the mother of the bridegroom chose a fortrel, shrimp colored two-piece dress with a matching brown and green feathered hat and coco brown accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations.

For the wedding trip to the southern states, the bride donned a matching dress and coat of sky blue and white with black accessories and completed by a gardenia corsage. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Toronto.

MR. AND MRS. DONALD W. HOPKINS

MR. AND MRS. ANTHONY W. GRAY

Gray – Burns

Christ Church was the scene of the October 5 wedding, when Canon R. B. De Blois Wright officiated as Ann Louise Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Burns, of Belleville, exchanged wedding vows with Anthony William Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gray of Belfast, Northern Ireland. Rendering the traditional wedding music was John Withers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of crystal peau de soie, enhanced by an A-line skirt with a scooped neckline and Mona Lisa sleeves. The bodice and sleeves were of Venetian lace, with tiny self-buttons at the sleeves. A matching cathedral train fell from the back of the shoulders, trimmed with Venetian lace and small self bows in the centre. The headpiece was a cluster of organza leaves with crystals and tiny seed pearls and a four tiered scalloped silk illusion veil. She carried a cascade of white sha'a 'mums and ivy.

Maid of honor, Miss Susan Burns, sister of the bride, was attired in a gown of pure silk chiffon over silk taffeta, featuring an empire waistline, scooped neckline and long Mona Lisa sleeves of Chantilly lace. The empire waist and waist of the gown were enhanced with a bow of peau de soie. She also wore matching headpiece of velvet, crysanthemums with a four tiered silk illusion veil in Persian melon. She carried a bouquet of bronze and yellow 'mums and wheat. The bridesmaids, Miss Beth Weymark of Belleville and Miss Sandra Dellison, cousin of the bride, of St. Briens, Quebec, were all attired similarly to the maid of honor.

Flower girls, Miss Kathy Caverly, and Miss Rhonda Caverly, were dressed identically in floor-length dresses of white brocade with green lace bodices. Both carried baskets of bronze and yellow 'mums.

Attending the bridegroom was Major John Inrig of Picton, while the ushers were Gordon Burns, of Belleville, cousin of the bride, and Larry Brown, also of Belleville.

For the wedding reception held at the Regimental Officers' Mess (Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment), the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a brown and white chiffon over taffeta ensemble, with beige accessories, and a corsage of bronze and yellow 'mums. Assisting her, the aunt of the bridegroom was attired in an ensemble of navy blue lace with pink accessories and a matching corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to Eastern Canada, the bride chose a two-piece beige dress and coat, trimmed with white, and accented by brown patent accessories. Her corsage was of orange delight roses. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Belleville.

Plans Set for "Fantasy in Fashions"

After a lapse of one year, the Belleville and District Physicians' Wives Association (as it is now known) will again present "Fantasy in Fashions" at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium, Wednesday, October 16 at 8.30 p.m.

This annual event was cancelled last year due to a full schedule of Centennial activities, but from all reports this year's presentation plans to be bigger and better than ever.

Convenor of this year's show will be Mrs. R. J. Scott with co-convener Mrs. R. S. Morphy and, fashions will be modelled mainly by the various doctors' wives assisted by others.

Lt. Evelyn Williamson will be the commentator and will describe the various ensembles including apparel from Milady's and D'Arcel's Ladies' Stores, hats and furs from Woodley Furriers, handbags and luggage from Lesle's Shoe Store, cosmetics from Kelly's Drug Store and locally made Avon Jewellery. Hair styles will be done through the courtesy of French's Beauty Salon and floral decor in the auditorium from Weese's Flower Shop.

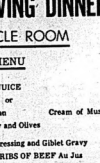
A number of local merchants have tickets for sale; also members of the group who anticipate a sell-out crowd. All proceeds of the event go to various charities and furnishings for the hospital.

As in other years a number of valuable door prizes will be drawn.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

The 1st Belleville Land Rangers have been holding regular weekly meetings at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church since September 3.

The new executive for the year is as follows: president, Mrs. Bikker; vice-president, Jill Miller; secretary, Suzanne Foster and treasurer, Catherine Ford.



The program committee has also been elected. Projects on pinpoint pin cushions and doodle-bugs have been started by the girls.

The Rangers held a surprise birthday party-wiener roast for Suzanne Foster at Zwick's Island.

Mrs. Sine, of Belleville, gave an interesting talk on the Mental Health Association, which was appreciated by all.

Would you bet your home, your car and every cent you'll ever make that you'll never cause an automobile accident.

It would be a foolish bet. Yet, year after year, people gamble their future by driving without adequate car liability insurance.

How important is liability insurance? It's vital.

It gives you protection against the cost of injuries or damage you may inflict on other people, their cars or property. It pays for your lawyer if you are sued. Without liability insurance you may find yourself paying for the crippling costs of a car accident.

You can see therefore that adequate liability insurance is your best bet against financial disaster.

If you want to know more about it, mail the coupon below. We will send you our new booklet which clearly explains car insurance and its cost.

Points for Parents

Grandmother: "The pacifier looks ridiculous in the baby's mouth all the time. We didn't use such things when your were a baby. It will deform her mouth."

Ideas about rearing babies change or swing in cycles. Grandmothers will do well to go along with the changes if they're sanctioned by the baby's doctor.

Mother: "The doctor says it's a good idea to let baby have a pacifier. It keeps her content and gives her a chance for some needed sucking even if she's not hungry."

Rally-rousing Exercises Score on Home Front

By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

Rally-rousing exercises, inspired by a group of cheerleaders, score on the home front, as well as at the stadium. Devised to firm and tone-up muscles, they are performed with such zestful enthusiasm, they've been labled "doom chasing gymnastics." One drill that concentrates on arm and bust muscles, begins by standing on toes, squaring shoulders and flinging arms back. Using a pair of pompoos or rolled newspapers keep shoulders down, the action swinging. Repeat 8 times.

If you're part of the jogging, jumping, gyrating set, here's a bouncy routine. Let age and physical condition decide if and how high you leap. Begin with a few hops in place, bound slightly higher; then, if you're athletically inclined, try a spread-eagle jump with arms raised, feet separated. Inhale on the up-go; exhale on the return. Demanda, seen in the 20th - TV series "Land of the Giants," began with one leap, gradually expanded to four "foot raisers."

The sing and zip movement of the arms pace the exercise. For instance, step forward on right foot with an exaggerated thrust. Note position of feet. Now, return to place; then repeat lunge. This time, swing left arm up as you step forward. See how much wider the stride is, how much deeper the knee is bent? Quickly alternate leg and arm positions. Keep stomach contracted and arms straight. Ten times is adequate for this stretch 'n' reach routine.

Pet Maltreatment A Problem for Humane Society

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: We had been feeding a little undernourished kitten who meowed at our door until we couldn't ignore it any longer. Then one day its owner snatched it off our front porch and boxed its ears all the way home, telling it she was going to keep it in a little tin box in the cellar.

I worried so, and then I got a friend to go with me to the kitten's home. The woman was wild at being called on; then said, "Here you can have it." Then took the cat back again.

I said all I wanted was for her to take care of it and feed it properly. At this point her husband told me to get out. That I had upset his wife and now she would be upset for weeks. I think she is really unbalanced. —Stymied

Dear Stymied: By doing one kind act you carry a torch. Dealing with a deranged person is not easy — for humans or animals. Aida Flemming of the Kindness Club suggests you call in your Humane Society and leave the case to them from now on.

She has sent me a pamphlet, "You and Your Pet" which I am passing on to you. It gives pointers about care of dogs, cats, hamsters and others; and hints about how to attract wild pets. (Young folks, for your copies, write to The Kindness Club, 233 Waterloo Row, Fredericton, Canada, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

Dear Doris: Someone who stuttered asked for help. I am now 70 but as a child was very shy, and was teased, and so started to stutter. My first teacher was smart and told my Mom, when I came rushing in to tell something, to check me a moment.

That was my first step to speaking plainly. It wasn't long till I got over stuttering except the old word with too many "s's" in it. When I was a teacher I avoided the use of those words when possible.

In one of the schools there was a 14-year-old boy who was a bad stutterer, so I set out to help him. I never hurried him, even if someone else missed a chance to read. I think the secret is to avoid over-excitement, and if you can't say it right, do. You don't stutter then.

Parents can do much by speaking slowly and clearly for a stutterer to copy. Maybe a whistle could break the spasm too. — It's Agony

Dear Agony: Just the sort of input we were asking for. "Grateful" will be grateful.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am 14, fairly mature and have never done anything so that I could not be trusted. My problem is that I can't leave the house. Even the friends I'd embrace I should get lucky and be allowed out of the house my mother has gone with me.

This embarrasses me no end and I can't tell my mother or she will yell at me and tell me that I am too young to be "gallivanting, bothering people." She also says that if I don't like the way the house is run to leave. Doris, I would but I don't get an allowance and I am under age to work. Please help me. — Tired of Home.

Dear Tired: But if you ever took her up on it and started leaving she'd walk out with you. Is that it?

Mothers are human, but I'd say yours is going the right way about turning you into a mixed-up kid. Teens love challenges, trust, regular allowances. They also need limits and rules, but they seldom need a keeper.

When does she plan on letting you begin to grow up?

Show her this column.

Anonymous letters are bad manners, and may be ignored. When writing in, give Doris your right name and address. It will be kept confidential.

Ann Landers

Sometimes Late Baby Gives Most Pleasure

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I read your recent plug for late motherhood my nervous cough which had not bothered me for years suddenly reappeared.

ANN LANDERS

My mother was 43 when I was born so I think I can speak with first-hand knowledge. Here's how it looks from here.

We "late dividends," as you so lovingly call us, usually lose our fathers when we are in our teens. They die of old age. We never know a grandparent. They usually die before we are born. Our widowed mother does not associate with the mothers of our friends because they are separated by approximately 20 years.

If we want to marry we must either take mother in or move in with her. She is too old to leave alone. (Guilt!) . . . Please, Ann, let this subject alone. Children are for parents in their 20s. People in the 40s should have grandchildren. — HORSE'S MOUTH.

DEAR MOUTH: When a woman 41 writes to say she is in her sixth month and feeling rotten about it I am not going to tell her to go jump off a cliff.

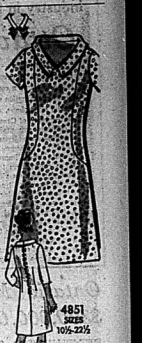
You've made some good points and I don't deny it, but it's amazingly how many women have written to say their late baby was the one who gave them the greatest pleasure.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Every morning at 7:15 our neighbor who works in the same office with my husband rises by to give my husband a lift. This has been going on for 18 months. I know the routine by heart. He says, "Just give me coffee." Then he winds up reaching for the muffins, the rolls, the berries, the cereal — everything in sight. When we have bacon and eggs he says "My, that smells good. Just one egg for me, please."

The office is 12 short blocks from here and a nice big bus runs by our house every 20 minutes. It goes straight past the office.

This clown has a strong, healthy wife who likes to sleep in the morning. I am getting so I hate the sight of him. My husband says he is no extra work and, besides, the ride in the morning makes it a fair deal for everyone. What do you say? — SHORT ORDER COOK.



DEAR COOK: Tell your husband the walk to work in the morning will add years to his life and the novelty of not having company for breakfast will add zest to yours. When the weather is bad he could make an exception, but a daily boarder at dawn is like forget it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband's sister was married to a wonderful man. They had three attractive children. The oldest is now eight. Two years ago my sister-in-law's "indiscretions" became so widely known that her husband divorced her. The man she was running with promptly moved into her home. She says she would marry him but she doesn't want to give up the alimony which is "beautiful." If she didn't have the children I'd look the other way, but under the circumstances I think she is a tramp. What would you call her? — VERITAS.

* * *

DEAR VER: She didn't call me so I don't have to call her. The name is as good as any, under the circumstances. So, if you want to call her a tramp, be my guest.

Traditional Roast Stuffed Turkey

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Could you please send me the temperature and time for your low slow method for cooking turkey? — Mrs. G. W. W.

ANSWER: Your request came at exactly the right moment.

ROAST STUFFED TURKEY
(15 to 16 lbs. — low slow method)

One 15-16 lb. oven - ready turkey (thawed if frozen)

STUFFING.
2-3 cup butter
1 cup chopped Spanish or other mild onion
12 cups soft fresh bread-crumbs (not packed — see below)
2 tsps. salt
6 tbsps. chopped parsley (or bottled flakes)
¼ tsp. (no more) rosemary
2 cups either canned drained chopped Chinese bamboo shoots or water chestnuts or washed chopped raw mushrooms or celery

NOTES: 1) For a lovely and convenient change try the bamboo shoots or water chestnuts. 2) If you have a blender be sure to use it to crumb the bread.

In an outsize frying pan or saucepan gently melt the butter and in it sauté the onion until soaked with butter but not one bit brown. Add the crumbs, mix well and let stand over very low heat for about 4 or 5 min. until butter just begins to crispen them. Remove at once and add all remaining ingredients. When cool stir into oven-ready turkey but do not pack. Close opening with skewers and tie wings and legs to body of bird. Brush with melted butter. Cover with a tent of wide heavy duty foil and put on trivet in roaster in oven at 9 or 10 a.m. on Thanksgiving morning at 250 deg. Fahr. It should roast 11 hrs. in all. Test by wiggling drumstick at hip joint. Two hours before dinner time raise temperature to 300 deg. Fahr. to brown it. Remove foil if it is not browning quickly enough. The skin is lovely and tender and the meat is moist and tender but the bird does not fall apart. I think the stuffing is terrific.

TURKEY GRAVY:
One cup makes 4 or 5 servings. Make 3 cups to serve 12.

Measure 6 tbsps. pan drippings (fat and brown sediment) into saucepan. Add 6 tbsps. flour and stir over medium heat until smooth and blended. Add 3 cups liquid, stirring. This should be broth in which giblets were simmered, plus enough boiling water to make 3 cups. Stir until thick. Add salt and pepper to taste. Chopped giblets may be added if desired. If gravy is not a rich brown add one or two chicken bouillon cubes and a little "gravy browner."

Industry in Favor

Ottawa Moves to Set Up Standards Council

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is preparing legislation to set up a council for national co-ordination of standards in the size, shape, content and performance of Canadian goods.

Officials say major gaps in Canadian standards must be filled. At the international level, Canada must improve on its token contribution to the adoption of standards vitally important to its export trade.

The need for better and broader standards was recognized by a federal-provincial conference last February.

It approved steps to establish a standards council of Canada which would co-ordinate work of organizations already formulating standards and testing and certifying products, and to encourage work in new areas.

Since February, the federal industry department has sounded industry on the idea. The reaction has been favorable in principle, but many responses express concern about government intervention.

John Orr, research adviser in the industry department, says the voluntary nature of standards actively will be preserved.

One carrot the council will hold out to encourage co-operation will be a new seal of approval applied to products that meet council-supported standards.

Fundamentally, well-written standards can encourage production of better materials and increase efficiency.

Government's move into the standards area also reflects greater attention to the public's need for protection.

Federal standards of health and safety already exist, with powers to support them, but Ottawa and the provinces want to influence the quality of consumer goods too.

Performance and durability will be prime considerations of the new council. So will product visibility—including standards of dimension and weight of contents. For example, the size of a woman's dress should have some specific meaning.

Quality claims should be more closely related to price.

Existing agencies such as the Canadian Standards Association will continue to function and to carry out as much as possible of the technical work required by the council. CSA standards cover a wide range of products in engineering and technical fields, but it has not yet touched food, clothing or electronics.

The federal government proposes to finance the council to the tune of at least $50,000 annually. Advisory members will be drawn from standards agencies, governments, primary and secondary industry, distributive and service industries, trade associations, labor unions, professional and consumer associations and the academic community.

At the working level, industry groups will be set up with technical committees comprising representatives of the industry, consumers and government.

The groups will aim at consensus on standards. Manufacturers will be invited to submit products to the council for certification, and approved merchandise will be able to carry a council sticker or label.

Public need may dictate the creation of standards without the participation of manufacturers if an industry group refuses to join the technical discussions.

Officials hope the council will be off the ground within 12 months, but this will depend on getting legislation through Parliament early in 1969.

Ontario Must Face $300,000,000 Cut

PORT WILLIAM (CP) — Ontario will have to reduce expenditures by approximately $300,000,000 unless federal-provincial tax sharing arrangements are changed, Ontario Economics Minister Charles MacNaughton said Thursday.

Mr. MacNaughton, speaking at the closing dinner of a one-day seminar on municipal housing sponsored by the Ontario Housing Corporation, said Ontario needs a bigger share of the federal tax dollar if huge spending cutbacks are to be avoided by the province.

The economics minister said the costs of provincial responsibilities are growing faster than the taxation revenues available while the federal government was enjoying revenues yielding "much more" than needed to finance its responsibilities.

Mr. MacNaughton indicated the most obvious way to correct the lopsided financial balance was to provide a greater share of personal and corporate income taxes to the province.

Unemployment Fund Shows Deterioration

OTTAWA (CP) — The unemployment insurance fund showed "unmistakeable deterioration" in 1967-68 for the first time since a recession and heavy unemployment in the early 1960s, a special report says.

"Even more serious is the fact that most of this deterioration appears to have taken place during the last part of the fiscal year," an actuarial report to the unemployment insurance advisory committee says. It was tabled in the Commons Thursday.

The report concluded that amendments in June, 1968, to the Unemployment Insurance Act will improve the fund's financial position by adding about 500,000 contributors.

The report forecast an $80,000,000 surplus in the fund at the end of the 1968-69 fiscal year —but said the figure should be treated "with extreme caution" because of statistical gaps in the figures used in forecasting it.

Every Chevrolet has to make it before we mark it.

GM MARK OF EXCELLENCE

Putting-you-firsts:

Headlight washers

You push the windshield washer knob and hold it, and what happens?

Your headlights come clean.

The feature is standard on 1969 Corvettes.

It comes with the hidden headlights available on Camaro, Caprice and Kingswood Estate Wagons.

It is available on all other models except Corvair.

Heated glass

In a moment your rear window will self-defrost.

Because we've built onto it a network of tiny ceramic strips capable of heating the entire surface.

Fog and frost disappear quickly and quietly.

Pushbutton tire chains

This is ingenious, if we do say so ourselves.

You press a button on the instrument panel and the rear tires get a shot of "liquid tire chains."

You spin your wheels once, wait a moment, and you're off—with traction you wouldn't believe possible on slick ice, or packed snow.

Which could get you through several winters in some parts of the country.

Available on all 1969 big Chevrolets.

Steering wheel lock

When you own a car as desirable as the 1969 Chevrolet, you don't take chances.

When you leave it, you lock it.

So even if somebody manages to break in and cross the wires, he'll have a hard time going anywhere.

Power steering plus

Variable-ratio power steering.

Variable-ratio power steering is particularly helpful in short, full turns.

And parking becomes unbelievably easy.

Walk-in wagons

Which in itself is no big deal.

But wait, there's more.

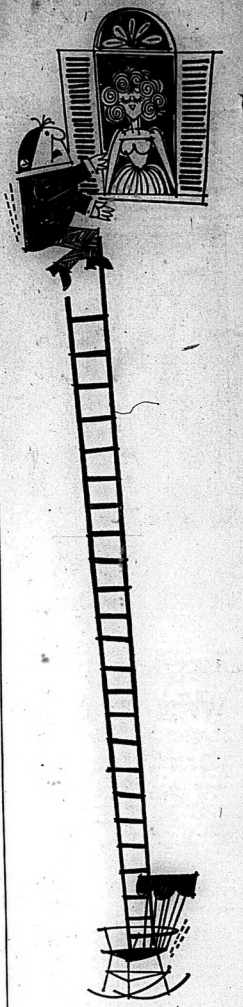
You simply step up, over, and in.

(The way we build our wagons, you can do it without bumping your head, and without acrobatics.)

Walk into a wagon soon at your Chevrolet dealer's.

'69 Impala Custom Coupe



Putting you first, keeps us first.

Centennial School Principal Instrumental In Preparing Statement for Advertisement

Ontario's high school principals, concerned about recent incidents of student unrest in the province, plan to tell the public their side of the story.

Clare Perry, executive secretary of the Ontario Secondary School Headmasters' Council, said Thursday a quarter - page advertisement will be carried in 24 Ontario daily newspapers next Tuesday outlining the principals' position.

W. J. Musgrove, principal of Centennial Secondary School and vice-president of the OSSHC, helped draft the advertisement at a private meeting in Toronto last week-end of the executive of OSSHC and the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

He said this morning that the principals are concerned about society breaking down due to "so much sympathy for the individual.

"The advertisement is an effort to recruit all members of the community to make sure our society is not disorganized by small noisy minorities trying to create chaos in the schools," Mr. Musgrove said.

The principals' move is also an attempt to learn the public's attitude towards many questions of school organization.

"We never heard the public's opinion about the school rules and regulations we enforce," Mr. Musgrove explained.

"Many times, as we enforce regulations, we wonder if we are really reflecting the community's attitudes towards behavior. But no one has ever come forth to express an opinion."

Mr. Musgrove attributed most of the recent student unrest in Toronto and elsewhere to outside organizations trying to extend their activities into the secondary schools.

"The general pattern is for a small number of outside organizers, usually from universities, getting a hold of a small group of impressionable high school students and urging to cause trouble," he commented.

"Perhaps," he suggested, "what the schools were doing 10 years ago in attempting to interest students in everyday affairs is now beginning to pay off.

"Some of the protesting might be good if more responsibility went with it," he added.

At the University of Guelph, the graduate students' association Thursday accused the university's student newspaper of "sensationalism" and use of "offensive materials" in a controversial supplement distributed to area high schools last week.

In a letter to the Globe and Mail, the graduate students criticized the "method of inquiry" used by the school newspaper, The Ontarion, to back its querying of the Ontario high school system.

About 22,000 copies of 32 - page supplement were distributed to high schools between Ottawa and Paris, Ont. No copies have been distributed to students in Belleville schools.

Compiled by the editorial board of the Ontarion, the supplement found fault with high school administration, questioned regulations such as those forbidding long hair on male students and suggested student freedom and creativity are restricted by the system.

Below Average

Figures Indicate Income Lower in Hastings

Average income in Hastings in that year was $3,480, compared with the Ontario average of $4,052.

This statement, is made in a survey conducted by the provincial treasury department's regional development branch, for the Lake Ontario Regional Development Council.

The recently released survey covers the counties of Victoria, Durham, Haliburton, Peterborough, Northumberland, Hastings, Prince Edward, and Lennox and Addington.

On the basis of population and industrial growth, average incomes and work force, the Lake Ontario Region ranks ninth of the 10 economic regions of the province.

Prince Edward County's average annual income was $278 lower than the provincial average and Lennox and Addington's $291 lower. At the other end of the scale, Peterborough County's average was only $1 less than the provincial figure, probably due to its proximity to the city of Peterborough.

The average labor income per capita of labor income employed in the region in 1964 was $3,328, considerably lower than the provincial average of $3,906.

Although females make up 33 per cent of the labor force in the province as a whole — they account for only 26 per cent of the total number of employed in the region.

The level of education in the region is lower than the provincial average, with 42 per cent of those over 15 having only five years of elementary schooling compared with 27 per cent for the province.

Only 2.2 per cent have university degrees, as against 3.1 for the province. Some 17 per cent have completed four or five years of secondary school, while 18.9 per cent have reached this level in the province as a whole.

Between 1956 and 1966 the population of Ontario grew by 29 per cent, while the population of the region grew only 13 per cent.

In 1966, Hastings was the most populous county in the region with 94,000 people, and by 1986 the population is expected to grow to 165,900. By 1986 Belleville will have a population of 82,000 and Trenton 24,000, the survey predicts.

Population declined in Haliburton, northern Hastings, and Prince Edward counties. Most areas of decline are rural and loss of population is attributed to abandonment of unproductive farms and consolidation of small farms into larger units.

The strongly rural nature of the region is demonstrated by population distribution. In 1966, 44 per cent of the region's people lived in rural areas and 16 per cent lived on farms. The figures for the provinces are 84 per cent living in rural areas and seven per cent farming.

Least urbanized counties were Haliburton, Lennox and Addington and Prince Edward, all with less than 30 per cent of their people living in towns.

The region has a larger proportion of its population in the under 20 years of age, and over 65 years of age groups. The proportion of those between 20 and 44 years is lower than the provincial average.

The birth rate declined sharply in the region between 1961 and 1966. While the number of births per 1,000 of population declined from 25.3 in 1961 for the province, the figures for Hastings county dropped from 27.7 in 1961 to 18.3 in 1966.

The report concludes that industrial productivity in the region is lower that provincial and national productivity, especially in the lakeshore towns.

Electrical Workers Union Issues Writs Against Picton Minister

The writs were issued at the request of the International Union of Electrical Radio and Machine Workers in response to a sermon given by Rev. Robert Stewart of St. Mary Magdalene Church.

Mr. Stewart declined to say today whether the writs had been served, the next step necessary if legal action is to be taken.

In a sermon given last Sunday and published Tuesday in the Picton Gazette, Mr. Stewart referred to the "Mafia tactics" and "despicable actions" of the union in its dealings with the Proctor-Silex company here. He spoke of the violence of three weeks ago when picketers attempted to prevent strike breaking workers from entering the Proctor-Silex plant.

Said Mr. Stewart "Let the Mafia get out of Picton and return to Italy."

James Deodrio, union representative, of Italian descent although Canadian-born, has interpreted the remarks personally and is responsible for one of the writs. The other was presented on behalf of the union.

George Hutchens, union president in Toronto, said: "It is a disturbing thing when we have to do this to a minister, but we are not going to have this slanderous attack on our people."

Mr. Stewart would not comment this morning.

A spokesman at Osgoode Hall Supreme Court in Toronto said that most writs are not heard in court "for many months, even a year".

Planning Under Way For Christmas Parade

How are you fixed for Christmas?

The jolly gent this year is sorely in need of helpers — little helpers, big helpers.

However, it went on the streets bigger and better than ever — thanks to a feat of strength by city firemen.

Belleville firefighters have been the core group in the parade organization.

But lack of time and space has taken its toll, and more volunteer help is urgently needed if the parade is to be as scheduled, say organizers.

"It's apparent that many more community - spirited citizens will be needed to take an active part this year," said a parade committee spokesman today.

Aiming at this goal, a public meeting has been called for next Tuesday. Time: 8 p.m. Place: West Moira Street firehall.

Thanksgiving Weekend

'Miracle of Trenton' at British Chemical in 1918 Recalled

Turkeys were scarce that Thanksgiving and what were offered on the local markets were expensive.

"Selling at war prices" as one Belleville newspaper reported, "turkeys were not so much in evidence as in the old days when the festival meant so much of reunion and joy."

Thanksgiving 1918 was among the worst of times.

World War I was entering its fifth year and, even though the news at last was of victory, many a victimized family had little to be happy about.

On the home front another war was being fought — against disease. Spanish flu was ravaging Canada, taking victims by the thousand.

In Belleville, the city hospital was packed with patients.

Work forces were decimated. Even the Bell Telephone marked the festival by begging its Quinte - area customers to use the phone only when absolutely necessary. A battalion of troops posted to the city protected the virulence. Even doctors succumbed.

Against this sombre background it was imperative that work go on as usual in at least one district industry — the British Chemical Works at Trenton.

Its job was a critical contribution to the war effort — the manufacture of munitions on a vast scale.

For Trenton the plant was one of the boons of war — at least until that Thanksgiving 50 years ago this weekend.

Its arrival in town with the outbreak of the war in Europe had created an unexpected boom.

Prewar Trenton was a quiet place, its population then was about 4,000 estimates one of its distinguished natives — O. W. Larry, now clerk-comptroller.

The advent of the big war industry more than doubled the population and suddenly Trenton was booming along.

Then suddenly, in the quiet aftermath of a Thanksgiving supper, the prosperity was gone as dramatically as it arrived.

Different people felt it in different ways.

Mr. Larry recalls sitting in a chair when he heard an explosion. A door screw struck him in the hand and, momentarily, he thought he had been shot.

Nearly five miles away at Bayside a youn gman was in his backyard and, looking suddenly to the west toward Trenton, was startled by what he first thought was a brilliant sunshine.

Seconds later, came the sound and shock of the mighty explosion.

The huge Trenton munitions plant was on fire, and suddenly, what had been a citadel of prosperity, had turned into a hideous threat to the town.

1918 Intelligencer : Trenton Miracle

It also began a night of drama unmatched in Quinte annals.

"Trenton was just getting up from the supper table when the whistle blew at the works. It was 7:10. The people of Trenton understood it and the men at the plant also knew it was a signal to run for their lives.

"Fire had broken out as a result of an overflowing vat and soon a large building was on fire. After a heroic effort to stem the flames, the endeavor was given up and the men were warned to look after themselves. Fifteen minutes elapsed before the expected happened — a terrific explosion which is said to have been felt at Oshawa. . ."

The town had no time to recover from its daze. In rapid succession, explosion followed explosion. A huge fireball, estimated by some at a quarter-mile high, rose over the town.

Then the exodus began. As one newspaper recounted: ". . . The brightly lighted city showed hundreds rushing in motors, carriages, or walking to Carrying Place, Frankford, Brighton and Belleville."

Impetus was given the refugees by the dread of worse to come. All roads led from Trenton.

At Bayside, one resident recalled watching the traffic lineup heading east, slowed and halted by its own volume. Some automobiles even were being driven on their rims.

In fact, the threat had subsided — thanks to human endeavor of heroic proportions.

The greatest danger was deflated when railroaders braved the threat and removed a carload of TNT from the pyre.

In all, there had been eight explosions to spar the panic, and the damage was devastating. Debris littered the area.

Then, as the night wore on without further incident, some refugees began returning. On the Trenton Mountain a reporter found 300 people sleeping outdoors — among them sufferers of the dread Spanish flu and a 14-year-old child suffering pneumonia.

Communications with the outside were shattered.

From Belleville, troops not hit by flu were despatched to the town as authorities moved to restore order and probe the situation.

Suddenly, at 6:30 a.m. the next day, there was another explosion which "rocked the foundations of the town." But it was the last.

Officials began to assess the situation seeking the dead, the injured.

Then emerged what the newspapers called the Miracle of Trenton. There were no fatalities, not even serious injuries.

But there were multitudes of stories — like the mother who was so hysterical she gave her child to a motorist for safety. When she recovered she couldn't recall his identity.

But the miracle also was economic disaster. Two days later the Imperial Munitions Board at Ottawa announced it would immediately rebuild the devastated plant. "It is output being very essential."

But, even then the newspaper headlines were hinting differently. The Allies were on the march in Europe, finally rolling up four years of war stalemate. Within the month armistice had been declared.

For many, the Thanksgiving exodus became permanent.

What's Hockey Without Hull?

By The Canadian Press

The National Hockey League season opens tonight on three fronts with one of the league's most popular players and best gate attraction in retirement.

The Black Hawks, also without Stan Mikita who is unsigned, open their season tonight at home against St. Louis Blues. Other action has Detroit Red Wings visiting Boston Bruins and Minnesota North Stars playing the Seals at Oakland.

Hull, who has scored 414 goals in 11 seasons with Chicago, announced his retirement in a brief statement in Chicago.

"It is with a great deal of regret and much sadness that I face the fact that my contributions to my team and to hockey are a matter of dispute," he said.

NHL president Clarence Campbell also said that Hull, a native of Point Anne, Ont., has not yet signed voluntary retirement papers which would keep him out of hockey for at least a full year from the date of signing.

"Right now he is on the active reserve list and can return any time he signs a contract," Campbell said.

Stafford Smythe, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, said Toronto Maple Leafs would be willing to pay $1,000,000 for Hull.

Hull, 29, who earned about $40,000 last season, is one of only three men in NHL history to score 50 goals or more in a season.

The others were Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens and Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal who each scored 50 goals — but only once. Hull scored 50 in 1961-62, then 54 in 1965-66 and 52 in 1966-67.

Are Soviets Gaining Ice on Us?

MEXICO CITY (CP-AP) — Nobody asked him, but Sergei Pavlov, Soviet minister of sports, said it anyway:

"We win ice hockey in every Olympics.

"We have 10,000,000 young people playing ice hockey in our country."

The minister, who had called a formal news conference at Olympic Village, went on to answer questions from reporters.

Asked what teams he feels will pose the greatest threat to the powerful, number 1-ranked Soviet team at the Olympic Games, Pavov answered:

He was asked if he anticipated any trouble in case of a head-to-head confrontation in the Games between the Russians and Czechoslovaks.

"We don't think so," he replied. "We spent a long time with our Czech friends yesterday."

He said he believes the Olympics always will remain amateur—"because they are dedicated to health and understanding and not commercialism"—and added Russia will continue to press for mass participation in sports.

Tigers Attain "Miracle" Status

Winning Battery: Lolich and "Santa"

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Willie Horton stood in the Detroit dugout watching Tiger catcher Bill Freehan settle under the ninth-inning pop fly.

"It was the darndest thing," said Horton, dripping from champagne in the soggy Detroit dressing room Thursday. "He looked like Santa Claus is not catching that ball."

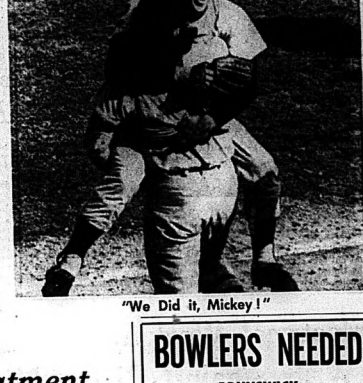
When Freehan squeezed the last-out popup clinching Detroit's 4-1 seventh-game World Series victory, it set off a riotous celebration and meant a difference of about $4,000 a man for the Tigers.

Two innings earlier, Norm Cash and Horton had singled with two out against Bob Gibson, posting Detroit's first threat in the scoreless duel between the St. Louis Cardinal ace and Mickey Lolich.

Then Jim Northrup hit a drive to centre field. Curt Flood started in on the ball, then turned and stumbled. When Flood finally ran it down, Northrup had a triple and the Tigers were leading 2-0.

"I knew when he slipped that he'd never catch the ball," said Horton. "I said to myself, 'run, run, run,' and I was going so hard I almost missed the turn at third base."

Bill Freehan followed with a run-scoring double and the Tigers were nine outs away from the title.



Lolich, working with just two days rest, got them easily, disturbed only by Mike Shannon's two-out homer in the ninth which cost him the shutout.

Cash, the Tigers' first baseman, described the feeling on the bench after Detroit had broken through against the seemingly invincible Gibson.

"We knew, with Mickey pitching so well, that if we could score, we'd beat him," said Cash. "Around the fifth or sixth inning we started getting good word on the ball and we knew we'd break through. When we did, it was great."

"We Did it, Mickey!"

Lolich Gets Lugosi Treatment

ST. LOUIS (AP) — It was a scene to make Bela Lugosi rub his hands in glee and chuckle menacingly.

It was 9:30 Wednesday night when suddenly there was a knock on the door. Mickey Lolich answered it and was faced with a quizzical look on his face at two men carrying a machine. At the same time, a doctor led Lolich to a bed and began wiring his body.

"It looked like they were trying to make me a Frankenstein monster," said Lolich.

Instead, they made him the hero of the 1968 World Series—for the strange-looking machine relayed the muscles in Lolich's arm enough so that, with only two days rest, he was able to pitch Detroit Tigers to a 4-1 victory over St. Louis Cardinals in Thursday's decisive seventh game.

"The machine is a weird looking thing." Lolich said afterward in the Detroit dressing room. "It looks like something that should be used on an Apollo shot.

"It's some kind of electric treatment monster. They hook all these wires up to you along with the sponge rubber pads on the front and back of the shoulder. I thought I might get electrocuted at any time.

"It feels like someone is grabbing and squeezing the tissues in your arm.

"But the doctor said it would cause my muscles to relax, and when I went out to the bullpen I felt like a million dollars."

He looked like it to the Tigers as he stopped the Cardinals on five hits, won his third game of the seven-game set and achieved a distinction that had escaped far more heralded pitchers by ending Bob Gibson's string of series victories at seven.

But you have to go all the way back to last Thursday and his first start to get a full appreciation of what the 28-year-old left-hander achieved in almost single-handedly pitching Detroit to its first world championship in 23 years.

Last Thursday, in game two, he went all the way in a six-hit, 8-1 victory—and also hit a homer—that squared the series 1-1

Flood Says He Muffed It

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bob Gibson was smiling when he walked into St. Louis Cardinals' locker room.

"I'm celebrating anyway," Gibson said between sips of champagne.

"We had a good year. I'm happy to say nobody feels ashamed there. We got best fair and square."

Gibson set all sorts of records during the World Series—consecutive victories, strikeouts in a Series, in a game, even home runs by a pitcher. But he was the losing pitcher as Detroit Tigers took the seventh game 4-1 Thursday.

"I don't have any excuses," Gibson said. "The other guy just pitched a better game. I thought I pitched good enough to win under normal circumstances. These weren't normal circumstances."

"It wasn't his (Flood's) fault. He couldn't see it. He didn't tell me, but I know that was what it was. It was just one of those things.

"I fooled it up. That's all," said Flood.

"I couldn't see it against the shirts. The reason I started in was I just didn't know where the ball was. A ball hit right at me gives me trouble in day games. If I hadn't slipped, I might have got it."

About the only thing that bridled Gibson was the suggestion that he had tired and lost his stuff as the game wore on.

Many Would Meet Price In a Minute-"He's Worth It"

By GEORGE H. CARVER

The shot that was heard around the hockey world!

Bobby Hull has quit!

The announcement by the Chicago Black Hawk's Golden Hawk yesterday shocked the foundations of thirteen NHL cities and sent millions of fans and admirers into a dizzy of wonderment.

The answer is obvious.

Bobby Hull is not only the greatest hockey player in the world today — but is the best drawing card in the league since Lord Stanley donated his silverware.

The Point Anne prodigy is reportedly to have asked $100,000 a year. Other stories have it he has requested a larger figure over a period of three years.

I cannot vouch for any of these reports.

I do believe that Hull is entitled to the top salary of all NHL time, not because of his record-breaking ability but because the gold-encrusted owners of the original "six" have lined their exchequers through the booty of expansion and the loot of American television networks.

Bobby Hull, in my book, is to the National Hockey League what Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale was to major league baseball; Joe Namath and a dozen others to National Football League and Bob Russell and Wilt Chamberlain to American professional basketball.

The fabulous salaries drawn by the American athletic stars was a matter of wonderment to those of us who sat in the press box or on the sidelines.

Koufax and Drysdale asked for and got over $100,000 a year. Joe Namath, the wonder-boy college quarterback, asked and got $400,000 for three years. Six-foot eight Wilf-the-Silt Chamberlain drew $150,000 a year. Bill Russell, player-coach of the Boston Celtics' pro basketball team signed the other day for $200,000 a year on a two-year contract.

It is about time the Chicago Black Hawks — and the National Hockey League evaluated not only the playing ability of such stars as Hull and Stan Mikita, but their drawing power in all centres of the league, especially the American additions via expansion.

I do not believe that Bobby Hull is money-hungry, nor is Stan Mikita. I believe that both — and in my book as NHL superstars, and as such should command salaries comparable to those of other fields of professional sport.

When I was a kid my father read to me a scripture quotation "A laborer is worthy of his hire." Me that as it may.

Bobby Hull has gone a long way since I pointed him out to the Black Hawks' chief scout Bob Wilson. He was a midget.

Since that day he has climbed the heights. He not only developed his playing ability to the super-star level but he has attained a knowledge of business. (He owns two farms.)

He has developed his own personality. He speaks on radio and television. In both he is Bobby Hull — and he "sticks out."

By the time this is published there may have been a settlement between Hull and the Hawks.

I think there will be. The National Hockey League and the Chicago Black Hawks cannot do without one Robert Marven Hull.

But one Robert Marven Hull can do without the Hawks and the league.

In my opinion Bobby Hull is worth every cent he asks for. He has established records and was, before noted, is the biggest drawing card in the NHL. And every damned team and their supporters in the twelve-club loop know it.

OHA Seniors Join Battle Tonight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Ontario Hockey Association Senior series opens tonight with many star players missing and the defending champion Toronto Marlboros not in the running.

The Marlboros, who won the senior title last year before losing to Victoriaville, Que., in the eastern Canada finals, have disbanded.

Guelph Regals, who placed fifth last year, have also disbanded, leaving eight teams to contest the 39-game schedule.

In tonight's curtain-raisers, Galt Hornets visit Barrie Flyers, Belleville Mo-Hawks entertain Orillia Terriers and Oakville Oaks travel to Collingwood to play the Kings.

The other two teams, Kingston Aces and Woodstock Aeans, play their first games during the weekend. Kingston travels to Galt Saturday and Woodstock is at Oakville Sunday.

The Hornets, who finished last season in a first-place ele with the Marlies, appear to be in a strong position to challenge for first place along with Barrie Flyers, sixth place finishers last season. Hornets and Flyers both added players from the defunct Guelph roster.

Galt has added wingers Bob Ertel and Frank Hincks, along with Rio Caron, Guelph captain and all-star defenceman last season.

Ron Hergott, a former senior scoring champion who played last year with New Haven Blades of the U.S. Eastern League, has rejoined Hornets.

All-star coach Bill Wylie will miss the retired veteran Ted Power from the Galt lineup. But Wylie will have goaltender Norm Defelice, who carried a 2.14 per game goals-against-average with five shutouts last season. Galt will also have their top five scoring forwards, Joe Hogan, John Beecher, Pete Brennan, Fern Belanger and Vance Millar.

Guidolin has signed 30-year-old right winger Pete Panagabko, a veteran of 11 pro seasons. He was with Memphis South Stars of the Central League last year.

Collingwood Kings have lost Dave McComb, the former Cleveland Baron who won the senior scoring title the last two years.

Also gone from Collingwood is goaltender Chuck Jewell, a league all-star two years ago.

Returning veterans for the Kings include defenceman Butch Keeling, Mickey Kay and Ron (King) Taylor and forwards Fern St. Onge, Joe Hemlay, Bill Abbott and Rec Brailnard.

Belleville Mo-Hawks and Kingston Aces both had late training camp starts due to financial and executive problems and both are missing top players from last year.

At Belleville, new playing coach Davey Jones had only 12 days to prepare for tonight's opener; Mo-Hawks finished out of the playoffs in ninth place last year and are reported to have lost $15,000 over the last two seasons.

Aces, who dominated the league two years ago, went to the red last season through poor attendance. Earlier this summer, they were doubtful starters.

Oakville Oaks, who edged into the final playoff spot on the last day of the season, should be stronger as they have added some veterans from Guelph and Woodstock.

Bost Hurley, a veteran goaltender who once starred in world tournament play, is the new coach. He brought two big scoring threats with him from the disbanded Guelph team Bob Pole and Terry Oliver.

Byrle Klinck and Pat Bester, two tough defenceman, have been lured by Oaks from Woodstock. Returning goaltenders are Ludger Doucet and George Tracey.

Quinte "Grid"-dle Hot

Player Eligibility Air Cleared

On Thursday afternoon, Coach Gord Smith of Moira Secondary called Wally Beevor, Athletic Director of BCI, on the question of the eligibility of John Chalmers, BCI's big tight end.

"I want to get this thing straight before we play," Smith said, referring to the BCI-Moira game at 1.30 p.m. today. "We don't want to win a game that way — that is, to find out later that Chalmers is ineligible."

But Moira didn't really have to worry. Under a bylaw passed by the Central Ontario Secondary School Athletic Association on June 15 of this year, BCI's star pass receiver is eligible.

The bylaw states that "Participants under 20 as of Sept. 1 be permitted to play in all sports regardless of the number of years in secondary school."

The act was amended in passing to only include sports in which there is no competition at the provincial level.

The OFFSA rules, which cover all sports conducted on provincial level, state that a secondary school student has only six years of eligibility.

As stated in yesterday's Intelligencer sports article, Chalmers has attended BCI seven years. Under OFFSA rules, he is ineligible for sports on a provincial level, but the authority delegated COSSA by the provincial governing body to establish its own eligibility qualifications for non-provincial competition allows Chalmers to play in any sport in which there is no Ontario championship awarded.

Meanwhile, unaffected by eligibility struggles, the Bay of Quinte Class A league continued its own battles Thursday afternoon with Tweed High School making a clean sweep of Nicholson Catholic College. The Tweed seniors topped their NCC counterparts 8-2 and the NCC Juniors also fell to THS 18-12.

Madoc topped Albert College 26-6 in the senior game and fell to QSD 12-6 in the junior contest.

Coach Joe Hogan of Tweed said in an early season analysis of his team that it was a second-half squad which didn't know how to quit.

Tweed came on in the second half, taking advantage of the slippery going to pick up fumbles by NCC. The winners collected two points when the slick going and bobbling ball handling kept NCC from returning punts out of their end zone.

Madoc's swamping of Albert College was a brotherly effort — by the Donaldson brothers to be specific.

Fullback Gord Nicholson started things off in the opening stanza with a punt that his defence turned into a rouge. Quarterback Jung Mah made the second Madoc major on a keeper set up by a drive which had Gord Donaldson going through the line and brother Don taking it around the ends.

Gord and Don combined on a fourth-quarter punt return to bring it to the Albert two-yd. line. Fullback Gord took it over on another line buck to make it 20-0.

Gibson's Bat, Mound Feats Among 17 Series' Marks Established

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The World Series between Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Cardinals saw nine individual and eight team records set.

St. Louis pitcher Bob Gibson set five pitching records and a batting record. Gibson hit one home run, giving him two for total Series play, the most by a pitcher.

The other batting mark was fewest hits in a Series—none in 22 at-bats by Dal Maxvill of St. Louis. The other individual marks were in field—most putouts by a catcher in Series, 61 by Tim McCarver of St. Louis, and fewest putouts by a first baseman in a game, one by Orlando Cepeda of St. Louis in the first game.

Records for seven-game Series:

Individual Batting

Most home runs, pitcher as batter, total series—2, Gibson.

Individual Pitching

Most games won, consecutive, total Series—7, Gibson.

Most complete games won, consecutive, total Series—7, Gibson.

No Weekend Turkey for Lions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

British Columbia Lions will be the busiest team in the Canadian Football League during the Thanksgiving weekend as they play two games in three days.

British Columbia, striving desperately to make the Western Conference playoffs, meet Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Conference Saturday in Toronto and the Alouettes in Montreal Monday.

Sunday, Ottawa Rough Riders play the Tiger-Cats at Hamilton and Edmonton Eskimos meet the Blue Bombers at Winnipeg. Calgary Stampeders are in Regina against Saskatchewan Roughriders Monday.

The Lions, fourth place in the WFC, trail third-place Edmonton by six points and must-start winning spot to entertain any playoff hopes.

Winnipeg, last in the WFC with four points, also has only a mathematical chance of making the playoffs.

An Edmonton win would seal Winnipeg's fate while a tie would leave a slim chance if the Bombers won all their remaining games and the Eskimos lost all their games.

The Bombers won that one 23-16 with an overpowering ground attack which general manager Earl Lunsford said will be employed again.

Winnipeg has been forced to make a few changes in its lineup. Tight end Mitch Zalnasky was lost for the season and middle linebacker Phil Minnick was knocked out of action for at least one game, during last week's loss to Hamilton.

Lunsford said Minnick's spot will be filled by halfback John Farler with defensive end Jim Avery taking over at tight end.

Cards Deal Trio After Series' Loss

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"We're still No. 1," said Bobby Tolan after St. Louis Cardinals lost the World Series Thursday. Minutes later he was No. 4, a member of the fourth-place Cincinnati Reds.

A break - up - the - Cardinals movement began shortly after they were dethroned as world champions by Detroit Tigers.

The Cards' desk - sway three players and acquired three others to highlight non-series baseball activity.

Tolan, a promising young outfielder, and eight-handed relief pitcher Wayne Granger were shipped to Cincinnati, apparently for outfielder Vada Pinson.

Catcher Johnny Edwards, who gave St. Louis valuable service as Tim McCarver's backup man this season, said he had been dealt to Houston Astros for right-handed pitcher Dave Giusti and catcher Dave Adlesh.

The Pilots also named three coaches—Frank Crosetti, long-time third base coach with New York Yankees who resigned last week; Sal Maglie, who was fired as pitching coach of Boston Red Sox after they won the 1967 American League pennant, and Ron Plaza, a former Cardinal farmhand.

Brundage Back

Racism Looms Large in Mexico

MEXICO CITY (CP) — The policy of apartheid—the separation of races—looms large on the Olympic front today as 33 African nations demanded that South Africa be banned from taking part in all organized world sport.

The demand, made by the Supreme Council for Sports in Africa, posed another major problem for Avery Brundage, re-elected Thursday as president of the International Olympic Committee.

It was Brundage, backed by a majority of nations, who spearheaded the move to have South Africa accepted back in the Olympics last winter.

But African nations, joined by Russia, banded together in protest and the IOC voted a second time to keep the South Africans out of the 19th Games, opening Saturday.

Now a move is under way, again led by Russia, to have the South Africans kicked out of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, which would mean they could not take part in any international meets sanctioned by the IAAF.

John Claude Gaanga, secretary-general of the African council, told reporters that the council has asked the IOC to take up the South African question with the IAAF.

Under South Africa's apartheid policy, white and black athletes are not allowed to compete against each other inside the country but integrated teams are allowed outside the country.

Issues of race were uppermost in the minds of some other Negroes as the opening ceremonies approach.

Jesse Owens, 55, the American Negro who won four gold medals in the 1936 Games at Berlin, Thursday asked the Negroes on the U.S. team to forget the color of their skin for the duration of the Games.

"I know there have been injustices in our system," he said. "I know there is reason for justifiable protest. But this is not the place nor the time."

Charlie Greene, the American Negro sprinter who has a 9.9 world record pending for the 100 metres along with two other runners, said he would let his spikes speak for his race.

He predicted he would win the 100 as a protest against the treatment of Negroes in the U.S. Harry Jerome of Vancouver, also a Negro, is among his toughest competition. Jerome is a co-holder of the listed world mark of 10 seconds flat for the distance.

Owens criticized some news media for what he called fanning the flame of hatred.

"To get a story, the newsmen keep calling out the black athletes and getting them to revive the controversy of racial bias," Owens said.

"The threat of a boycott is gone. Why don't we let them alone?"

'Empathy Approach' Explained to Police

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

At a meeting of police officers in Chicago last month, Chief Fred Ferguson told his colleagues about putting into practice the "empathy approach" I have been recommending to police officials for more than two decades.

In training his Asian police department, Chief Ferguson has them booked to jail as suspects, walking picket lines and living on Skid Row — in order to get a feeling of the way the dispossessed and the dissenters are treated by the law.

In one case, he reported, two "wives" walking along the Los Angeles Skid Row turned into a parking lot and shared a drink from a bottle one had pulled from his pocket. Two ed as part of his training to play the role of ex-wives.

I can't imagine a more important aspect of modern police training, especially in the increasingly urbanized areas of the nation. The need for police to "empathize" with the poor, the foreign-speaking, the uneducated, the minority groups of all kinds, has never been more pressing.

It is easy to blame the police or the slum dwellers, or both, for the civil war that rages (sporadically in such neighborhoods. But that fact remains that both are the victims of something bigger than themselves — the technology that has eliminated foot-to-foot and face-to-face contact between the police and the inhabitants of such areas.

Policemen used to walk through the worst slum sections of New York and Boston and other cities without fear of attack or even taunting. They knew everyone on their few blocks, and could easily separate the sheep from the goats.

Nowadays, they confront just a faceless mass, staring back at them balefully, suspiciously and contemptuously — because slum - dwellers know they are all considered an equal threat and menace to the police, who have neither the time nor the facilities to distinguish among them.

If it is too late — and I suspect it is — to bring back police on the beat, Covina is doing the next best thing, in giving its policemen first-hand experience at being on the other side of the shield, the stick and the gun. Strangeness begets fear, and fear begets force. When the police begin to comprehend the needs, the feelings and the responses of the "enemy" they might find they have more friends than foes in that no-man's-land they now patrol so warily.

Sunday School Lesson

Jesus Was a Mediator

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

"Government appoints mediator in labor dispute." This announcement is often good news to many people. It is good news to a strike-bound industry whose owners want to get their plants rolling again. It is good news to those who want to get back to earning wages. It is good news to the public that has been deprived of important services or products during the dispute.

Put in this setting, the modern reader who is often baffled by Biblical imagery, can understand the role of a mediator. He is the one who tries to bring of two sides together. He tries to work out a solution that is acceptable to all. He brings a reconciliation out of estrangement.

One of the terms applied by the early Christian Jesus of Nazareth was the title "Mediator." (Hebrews 9:15) He was the one who brought man and God together in a new relationship. He came into the world where men were on strike against God and with God. As Amos, the prophet, described it, there was a famine, "not a famine of bread, nor a thirsty for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord." (Amos 8:11 RSV)

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 13 is "Christ Our Mediator." Hebrews 4 through 6; 8 and 9.

People were indifferent to God. There was estrangement between them. They were disobeying His commands. They were not grateful for His blessings. Their service to Him was perfunctory. They needed someone to bring about a new encounter with God that would make them aware of His redemptive purpose, and restore them more productive and their religious lives.

The author of Hebrews set out to remind his readers of the Jesus mediating role of Christ. He did it in terms of the role of the high priest with which his readers were thoroughly familiar. Since few people today are familiar with this term, it is hard for the message of the letter to the Hebrews to get through to them. They are much more familiar with the role of a mediator in a labor dispute, or between warring nations. Since this is true, we can use this modern setting to understand the ancient message.

To be successful, a mediator must understand the problems and points of view of both sides. In mediating between God and man, Jesus knew perfectly the situation from both man's and God's side. He understood men's sufferings because He Himself had suffered. (Hebrews 2:18) He understood men's temptations because He Himself had faced them (Hebrews 4:15)

But He also knew God's love and power. Through perfect obedience, he came to know the perfect will of God. (Hebrews 5:8-9) He knew that the role of the suffering servant described so accurately by Isaiah had to be lived completely to reveal the aching heart of God.

Also, to be successful, a mediator must have the confidence of both sides. His disciples showed their confidence in Jesus by the way they left to follow Him. (Mark 1:18, 20) He carried in His heart the conviction that God Himself had appointed Him to the role of mediator. (Hebrews 3:2; 5:5) At the time of His baptism Jesus knew in the words of the second Psalm had brought to Him the overwhelming confirmation that God had appointed Him to fulfill the role of Mediator to bring men to God. (Hebrews 1:5; 5:5)

To be successful, a mediator must offer an acceptable sacrifice, or contract. Jesus was able to show that God has approved the contract (the Bible calls it a covenant) that was suggested by Jeremiah. (Jeremiah 31:29-35; Hebrews 8:8-13) The old contract (covenant) made in the time of Abraham was national. The new contract is personal. The old contract was based on laws' written on tables of stone. The new contract is one that is written in the heart. The old contract dealt with sin. The new contract deals with all who will accept and live by it.

The new contract offers the example of Jesus' life. (Hebrews 2:8-9) It offers free and direct access to God for all who will approach Him in faith and prayer. (Hebrews 4:16) It offers the "power of an endless life" to all who will accept God's reconciling truth. (Hebrews 7:16 RSV)

What Jeremiah suggested, Jesus negotiated with His own life. The priests of old offered the blood of innocent animals to atone for the sins of the people (Leviticus 17:11) Jesus own blood (life) as an act of reconciling love. To Christian believers, His sacrifices is God's signature on the contract assuring those who seek God that He will give them "mercy and find grace to help in time of need." (Hebrews 4:16 RSV)

I'm Going to Make It: Wallace

Johnson Makes First Speech Supporting Humphrey

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Johnson says Democrats have produced prosperity in the United States. Republican presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon says Democrats have fostered inflation.

Johnson made his first administration speech of the campaign for the Nov. 5 election over the NBC radio network Thursday night. The speech was sponsored by the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union.

Senate Republicans, led by minority leader Everett Dirksen, had blocked action earlier in the day on a bill clearing the way for three-way televised debates between Nixon, Democrat Hubert Humphrey and American Independent George Wallace.

Nixon had said he wouldn't take part in any three-way debate, anyway. It would entitle third-party candidates to far more attention than he deserves, Nixon aides explained.

Johnson, in his radio speech, credited Democratic administrations with moving toward a "better educated, better housed, healthier and more prosperous America."

Nixon issued a statement in Akron, Ohio, saying: "By failing to halt inflation, this administration has broken its contract with the men and women of organized labor."

Wallace told reporters aboard his campaign plane: "You boys better start writing some good things about me. It looks like I'm going to make it."

Wallace's speeches, coming in the wake of announcement that vice-presidential running mate Gen. Curtis E. LeMay would go to Vietnam for a fact-finding tour, described the Vietnam war as "the most important matter facing the American people."

"I'm going to assure you that we will win the Vietnam war militarily with conventional weapons if our generals fail," Wallace said in Peoria, Ill.

Humphrey said in a speech prepared for delivery at New York's College of Criminal Justice today: "I will propose meaningful federal assistance for local police" if elected president.

"And I mean support for salaries, training and modern equipment," he said.

Humphrey said police training should include "courses in sociology, psychology, anthropology and religion."

To Your Good Health

No Heart Attack Is Really Mild

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the commonest symptoms of a mild heart attack? — L. C.

I'm not sure there is such a thing as a "mild heart attack." True, some attacks are more severe than others, but any heart attack means that the heart muscle has been damaged to some degree. This will become a good deal clearer to you when you read my booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart," which you can obtain by mail. Send 25 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed envelope to Dr. Molner, in care of this Chicago Sun - Times Syndicate P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

The commonest symptoms are a sense of pressure and aching under the breastbone or pain in the pit of the stomach — the heart, contrary to common belief, is not in the left chest. It is near the centre of the chest, just slightly to the left. That is the reason why so many heart attacks are mistaken for "indigestion."

In some cases the aching discomfort may extend into the left shoulder blade area; sometimes the pain extends down the left arm.

Shortness of breath is common, along with the discomfort, which is readily explainable. The heart muscle has been damaged by interference with the blood supply to it. The muscle cannot make the heart beat as strongly as normal. Hence, total blood circulation is reduced and a smaller amount of oxygen is carried to the rest of the body via the bloodstream. That is why the patient feels "short of breath." He isn't getting enough oxygen distributed through his tissues.

Another common symptom is for the patient to be pale and break out in perspiration. should be suspected of indicating a heart attack until proved otherwise. There are, of course, other causes of pain in the chest: shingles, hiatal hernia, gallbladder trouble, arthritis and others. The only sure way to find out is to have your doctor examine you, of course.

The fact is that too many times patients take it for granted that the pain is something else. If the attack is not too severe, the pain subsides and the heart recovers to a considerable extent — although the original damage never can be repaired entirely.

That damage, sometime later, is discovered when for one reason or another the patient has an electrocardiogram, and he finds out that he has had a heart attack, although sometimes he cannot be sure exactly when it was.

Such instances are referred to as "silent heart attacks," but it is doubtful if they were truly "silent" — muscular symptoms. Rather, it was a matter of the patient insisting that he had "indigestion" or some other trouble and ignoring it at the time.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I went for what I thought was my third and last oral polio shot. However, I had miscounted and it was the fourth. Since then I have been bothered by loss of appetite, constipation and a general feeling of tiredness. Will taking one extra oral polio dose have serious consequences? — Mrs. R. C.

I suspect that your nerves are playing tricks on you, the extra polio vaccine will have no effect that the others didn't have. No harm is done. In fact it may be that the extra dose is a booster every five years anyway.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: I read recently that chlorine in drinking water causes heart attacks. Could you verify this? — F. J. B.

No — because I don't know of any evidence to indicate that to be true.

Interest Rate Draws Fire

Farm Bill Bogs Down in Committee

A series of opposition amendments slowed passage of the measure during clause-by-clause study in committee of the whole House.

Today the House turns to the spending estimates for the Governor-General, the treasury board and the Privy Council, leaving the farm bill still bogged down in committee.

The farm measure would revive a program of government-guaranteed farm loans which lapsed June 30, while broadening the purposes and size of loans that are covered.

It also would lift the five-per-cent ceiling on interest rates, leaving them to be fixed periodically by the cabinet with some account being taken of general market conditions.

It is this provision that has drawn the main opposition fire. Opposition MPs, led by westerners, have accused the government of playing into the hands of finance companies.

Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson replied that the best thing the government could do was to help farmers buy land and machinery so they could have economic units.

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) accused Mr. Olson of trying to jam the bill down the opposition's throat just because the Liberals had a majority.

The opposition had no right to accept the bill without knowing what interest-rate formula would be followed, he said.

Mr. Olson replied that there were a number of precedents for permitting the interest-rate to be set by the government, including the Small Business Loans Act passed by the Conservative government in 1960.

Two of four amendments proposed were put forward by Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot). One, calling for addition of "other financial institutions" to the banks, loan, trust and insurance companies designated as lending institutions under the act, was ruled out of order.

The other, imposing a seven-per-cent interest ceiling, was defeated 76 to 56.

An amendment proposed by Stanley Korchinski (PC—Mackenzie) was defeated 78 to 56. It provided that the interest rate be no higher than that paid by schools, hospitals and municipalities.

An amendment by John Burton (NDP—Regina East), which would have allowed certain types of loans under the Farm Credit Act rather than the Farm Improvement Loans Act, was defeated 82 to 4.

In the Senate Thursday, a move was launched to halt the progress of a bill which, according to Senator Arthur Roebuck (L—Ontario) would close the doors of the Supreme Court to poor people, ordinary citizens and small businessmen.

Senator Roebuck moved that a report of the Senate banking committee, dealing with the bill, be referred back to the committee for further consideration.

The bill is designed to take some of the heavy work load off the court by introducing new sifting procedures and stiffening the criteria for bringing cases before the court.

"If the court is overburdened, the answer is not to repel the applicants but to widen the court," said Senator Roebuck.

For October 12

Your birthday today: The coming year will contain just enough opposition to force you to put forth a full effort. If you take the trouble, a dream can come true during this period. Today's natives tend to be so tenacious that they must create, in order to find fulfillment.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Yesterday's pressure erupts a little. Still, your plans run into little snags. This gives you a chance to think what you are about.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): The early part of the day is rather productive. Disagreement comes all too easily as old circumstances pop all day. This is not a day to make any serious financial commitment!

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You may find yourself spending more time and money than you had foreseen. Your family and close associates all have different interests, so it's a test of your forebearance to keep the peace.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Changes may seem suddenly unavoidable today. Give yourself and others a little time in which to feel out the emotion and the reality of the situation. Let your intuition work; listen to your inner wishes.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Large purchases and snap decisions are tempting, but risky. There is more information available than usual, but not much of it can be applied today. Light diversion this evening gives you a chance to digest recent adjustments.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Prepare for an unexpected event; have alternate courses under consideration. Fatigue is to be avoided if your circumstances permit. Some of the unplanned parts of the day can be quite profitable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Some expense may pop up outside your expectations. Possibly your peace of mind will be improved. Haste in decisions is not advisable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Complex financial manoeuvers are not productive today. There are too many people who expect participation. But your friends are very helpful socially.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your strength and energy are fully in use. Everything's going at top speed. Enjoy your friends, but do not get them involved in your crisis of the moment. Not the time for signing contracts of any kind!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The urge to gamble can be sublimated; the returns are not certain in the long run. Newcomers tend to upset existing relationships. Tact is seldom more urgently needed than now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): If you can hold a steady schedule, do so. Your associates may be all for quick changes; resist, get them to explain their reasons.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Stick with your previous promises. Discussions, particularly of money, get out of hand. Keep life simple by not participating in squabbles.

Space Debut

Whirling Astronauts on TV

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Apollo 7's astronauts juggled several minor space problems today as they homed for a rendezvous with the second stage of the Saturn 1-B rocket—and a debut on space television.

The "slight problems" brought on no talk of possible cancellation of the 11-day training manoeuvre for future moon expeditions, said flight director Gene Kranz.

Walter M. Schirra Jr., capsule commander, reported a case of the sniffles and was directed to take some nose drops.

Dr. John Ziegleschmid, medical director, said the cold is not expected to adversely affect Schirra's performance.

The doctor said the three astronauts solved a failure to get early reports of biomedical data from instruments attached to their suits by undressing and putting the instrument cords into better connections.

Late Friday the capsule reported that the system which bleeds heat into space was freezing outside the spacecraft. The pilots cut off the system and let space radiators drain off the excess heat generated by the craft's fuel cells.

Control centre officials said this "slight problem" would not affect operations.

Schirra, Donn F. Eisele and Walter Cunningham enjoyed the roominess of the Apollo space cabin. All three got their first night's sleep on special bunks. Earlier American space pilots dozed jammed upright in their cramped quarters.

The trio guides their spacecraft today through a series of delicate manoeuvres and back to a rendezvous with the second stage of the booster that flawlessly drilled them into orbit Friday.

The rendezvous simulates a lunar rescue of the first Americans to land on the moon. On a lunar flight, the lunar module will ascend from the moon's surface and use a radar system to rendezvous with the command - and - service module "mother ship."

But in case the lunar module becomes trapped in a lunar orbit, "Mama" will have to come to the rescue. The rescue calls for the command and service module pilot to guide his ship to the lunar module and dock, permitting the lunar astronauts to transfer to the command ship.

Today's plans were for Schirra to fly the Apollo 7 spacecraft as close as possible to the booster stage, called the S4-B. It was expected the rocket hull would be tumbling, forbidding the Apollo crew to get much closer than 200 feet.

The crew also turns on the Apollo television system for the first time. Paul Haney, the voice of Apollo control, said the crew would start 10 minutes of television transmission from space during a pass over the United States.

The crew performed a short phasing manoeuvre with the Apollo module reaction control system Friday. This burn, not previously planned, was to realign the relative position of the spacecraft and the S4-B.

"It looked good here," mission control said later.

Apollo was launched in what flight controller Glynn Lunney called "an extraordinary performance" of the Saturn 1-B booster.

Apollo 7 remained attached to the S4-B for almost three hours after launch. During this time, Schirra, 45-year-old veteran spaceman flying his third time in to space, took the controls and guided the combined spacecraft and booster.

The crew then separated from the S4-B, inched away, turned around and inched back to what Schirra said was "four or five feet."

Students Plan Study Sessions

MONTREAL (CP)—Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal defended his department's work Friday as student disenchantment with a segment of Quebec's education system became more pronounced with student take-over of two more post-secondary institutions.

In late developments, students moved into Montreal's Ecole des Beaux-Arts and a junior college in nearby Ahuntsic to bring the number of student-occupied post-secondary schools to nine. A faculty building in the University of Montreal also was occupied late Friday night.

Mr. Cardinal, in his first public comment since student turmoil began Tuesday, denied on television Friday night his government has neglected to plan for this academic year's junior college graduates.

He said research and work groups have been set up for some time now to work toward more university facilities.

University of Montreal students, in sympathy with the junior college students, boycotted classes Friday in two faculties, then students occupied the philosophy department at midnight.

They intended to organize "co-ordinating committees" that would rule on possible student take-over of university buildings.

More sympathy is expected at the university and college level in Montreal.

Classes are expected to be cancelled at English-language Loyola College when student "study sessions" are held next Wednesday.

At Sir George Williams University, classes could be held on schedule Wednesday since the study sessions there are to be restricted to the arts faculty. Similar sessions are to be held at Quebec City's Laval University.

Sniffs Glue, Boy Dies

OTTAWA (CP) — Sniffing glue was the cause of death for a 10-year-old boy found in a clump of park bushes Friday with a plastic bag over his head, Coroner Dr. W. T. Kendall said Friday night.

A preliminary autopsy showed that Raymond Champagne "definitely died as a result of glue-sniffing, not suffocation," Dr. Kendall said.

The preliminary autopsy investigation was carried out here a few hours after the boy's body was found in Macdonald Park Friday morning. Six empty tubes of glue were found nearby.

Some of the body organs and body tissues were sent to the Ontario attorney-general's laboratory in Toronto for additional tests.

Dr. Kendall said ethyl acetate fumes from glue caused respiratory failure and this killed the youngster. The fumes make lung tissues swell up until respiration fails.

News Briefs

PANAMA (AP) — The 11-day-old government of President Arnulfo Arias was deposed Friday night. The leader of the bloodless coup said National Guard forces were in control of Panama today. Arias, 67, deposed the presidency twice before by the guard in the last three decades, took refuge in the U.S.-controlled Canal Zone with most of his cabinet ministers.

Rhodesian Impasse Threatens Collapse Of Tough Negotiations

GIBRALTAR (AP)—The deadlocked summit talks on Rhodesia's political future-African rule or continued white minority government—reach a possibly crucial stage today after two days of "tough" negotiations.

Should the impasse continue, it is generally expected that Prime Ministers Wilson of Britain and Ian Smith of Rhodesia will seek a face-saving formula to avoid a total collapse in the talks.

In that event the most likely possibility is believed to be an interruption allowing the leaders to return home for consultations.

Informed sources said Wilson and Smith were prepared to stay as long as necessary, but both sides have indicated the talks aboard the British assault ship Fearless in Gibraltar harbor may end Sunday.

Parliament reconvenes in London Monday and Wilson would be expected to answer questions in the House of Commons Tuesday.

Sources on both sides made it clear there has been no breakthrough on the key issue of the dispute since Smith declared Rhodesia independent from Britain in November, 1965, a move Britain regards as illegal.

The issue is Wilson's insistence on unimpeded progress toward majority rule for Rhodesia's 4,000,000 black Africans, now governed by a white minority of 220,000.

Smith has stuck to his pledge that this cannot happen in his lifetime, or in 100 years.

Smith, in a recorded interview here Friday with Rhodesia Radio, said the official description of the talks as "tough going" was an understatement.

He said there had been no breakthrough yet, that he had no reason to be optimistic, and that the issues that had always divided the two sides were still unresolved.

The British, who called the first day of talks "tough going," described the second day as "very tough going" for both sides.

The only positive notes coming from the meeting are the repeated statement by both sides that they are anxious to find agreement if possible.

This could be the last chance. Should the talks fail, Smith is committed to push forward a new constitution for Rhodesia, under which the breakaway colony would turn its back on Britain and move toward the apartheid in neighboring South Africa.

Government Has Pollution Report

OTTAWA (CP) — An interim report on pollution in Lake Erie, Lake Ontario and the international section of the St. Lawrence waterway has been presented to the Canadian and U.S. governments by the International Joint Commission.

At the end of a four-day commission meeting here, a spokesman said the report had been submitted "recently" and that it would be up to the governments whether to make it public.

No Miscalculation

Benson Has Lost Confidence: Stanfield

VANCOUVER (CP) — Progressive Conservative leader Robert Stanfield said Friday that Edgar J. Benson has done nothing to install confidence in his ability as finance minister.

"It's a very sad state of affairs," Mr. Stanfield told reporters after arriving here for a two-day visit to British Columbia.

"Two weeks ago Benson went against all his government's promises by introducing a budget with a big deficit and now he's preparing to give Canadians more bad news next week.

"There isn't any reason for anyone to have confidence in Benson in the future."

Mr. Stanfield said that last winter Mr. Benson gave assurances there would be a balanced budget and now he had announced a deficit of $$0,000,000.

"This couldn't be a miscalculation — he's not that unintelligent," the Opposition leader said.

In Ottawa, Mr. Benson, named finance minister with the formation of the Trudeau government last spring, said he will also give the first full accounting of the government to Parliament—including an economic white paper—since June 1, 1967, when he brings in his budget Oct. 22.

The white paper is expected to be tabled about the middle of next week.

The 45-year-old Kingston accountant would give no indication to reporters as to whether the budget will raise or hold the line on taxes. He also would not say whether he will be able to balance the federal budget this year, as he had hoped.

"Whether budgets contain good news or bad news is a matter of interpretation, and I should not interpret my budget before presenting it to Parliament on Oct. 22," he said.

Mr. Stanfield also suggested that transport minister Hellyer's cross-Canada housing investigation might be called off in an effort to reduce costs.

"The problems of housing are well-known and the Hellyer tour seems to be as much window-dressing," he said.

There have been several investigations into housing but now it's a matter of action."

After arriving by plane from Edmonton, Mr. Stanfield went to a luncheon meeting and later for an aerial tour of Robert's Bank, a deep - sea port being built 20 miles south of here.

Today, he was to meet with municipal officials concerning urban problems.

Fred Dainard and Capt. K. R. Kokesh take care of tickets for registration of all Hasty Pee veterans who will attend the regiment's reunion this weekend.

Hastings Regiment Holds Reunion Over Weekend

Registration started this morning for the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment's 24th annual reunion this weekend.

Anyone with a clean military record, over 21 years of age and who has served at least three years with the regiment is now eligible for membership.

It is expected that all of the unit's war-time commanding officers will be present and on the saluting base for the opening march past.

Saturday evening a dance in the armories could be one of the well-remembered activities of the reunion.

On Sunday the members will take part in their annual business meeting at 10 a.m. At noon there will be a church parade to the cenotaph.

The armories should be an active building over Thanksgiving weekend.

Weatherman Promises Generally Clear Weekend

Fog will shroud the Quinte area morning and night this Thanksgiving weekend.

Between times, citizens celebrating the holiday will have much to be thankful for weatherwise.

Heavy fog is predicted in the district each morning and evening during the holiday. However, when the mists lift skies will be generally clear and temperatures "pleasant," says the duty forecaster at Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

The mercury will reach into the low 60s during the daytime hovering between 35-40 degrees at night.

The holiday moved quietly into stride without serious incident.

Despite the fog blanket and a stepped-up traffic volume, police report no overnight mishaps.

Both urban streets and provincial highways were free of serious traffic incidents.

Thanksgiving is a time of reunion and most Quinte residents likely will spend the holiday close to home.

For many it also marks a definite end to summer pursuits.

In the northern townships, where holiday areas predominate, Thanksgiving traditionally is the last chance to close down summer cottages and camp sites.

In the towns, everyone from milkmen to mailmen has the day off. With industry closed and the weather generally too cool for prolonged outdoor activity, it also is a quiet time in urban areas.

In Belleville, there's one major public event — a Sunday morning church parade marking the annual reunion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Lodge Receives Charter

The men are members of the Mohawk Junior Odd Fellows Lodge No. 3.

The lodge which was instituted on Jan. 27, has had a busy six months of existence.

It entered a soccer team in the Belleville Minor Sports Soccer League and played league games during July and August.

Other activities included taking part in the Belleville Kiwanis Club's walkathon and in two other fund - raising projects.

Nicholson Students Told . . .

Education Doesn't End With Graduation

Effort must always be steered toward improvement of personal talents, J. C. Garrud, Trenton High School principal, told students at the college's graduation exercises in St. Michael's Academy.

"No man need worry about the results of his efforts or about the importance of his contribution as long as he is sincere and spends his efforts in improving his talents," said Mr. Garrett.

But, he warned, knowledge accumulated by any one individual is of little significance unless it is communicated to others.

"In spite of all the technological advances that man has made, we're in serious danger of descending into sophisticated barbarism unless we learn to communicate properly.

"Knowledge within your own mind is useless, unless you can communicate it to your fellow man.

"There was no human problem that could not be solved by "top-notch" communication.

Skills can be relearned, tools replaced, he said.

"But take away our communications, our ability to make each other understand, and we have to stop building our human destiny," warned Mr. Garrett. "You must educate yourselves in all facets of communication."

Presentation of five Ontario Scholarships by Archbishop J. L. Wilhelm of Kingston, highlighted the award ceremonies.

Winner of the student council award as best all-round student, Michael Marino also delivered the valedictory.

Graduates face a world of great potential, said the valedictorian.

But it also has enormous problems — symbolized by Vietnam, Biafra, the bomb, ghettoes.

"Good exists — but we can't overlook the problems," he cautioned.

"Obviously, none of us alone can improve these conditions, but each, in his or her particular way . . . can do his share — above all, to love his neighbor."

Young people could follow the example of Robert Kennedy in striving for a world of love and peaceful co-existence.

Obituaries and Funerals

WILLIAM RAY
(Thurlow Township)

One-of-the Belleville area's grand old residents died today.

In his 91st year, William Ray, life resident of Thurlow township, died in hospital where he had been admitted 10 weeks ago.

Born in Ivachoe, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ray, he lived on the township's eighth concession after his retirement years ago from farming.

Mr. Ray was a member of Roslin Trinity United Church.

He was predeceased by his wife, the former Blanche Jeffrey.

Mr. Ray is immediately survived by four sons and three daughters: Percy, of Holloway; Clifford, of Belleville; Gordon, of Holloway and Floyd, of Plainfield; Mrs. Marm (Hazel) Wellman, Ottawa; Mrs. Hazel (Annie) Stairs, Belleville, and Mrs. Roswell (Edna) Reid, of Stirling.

He also leaves six brothers and three sisters: Wesley Ray of Springbrook; Norman, of Stirling; Austin, of Foxboro; Samuel, of Ivachoe; Stewart, and Murray, both of Belleville; Mrs. Martha Wilson, Winnipeg; Mrs. Jenny Sutherland, Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. Theodore (Lyla) Cooney, Stirling.

He is resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home. The service takes place Monday at two p.m. with interment in Foxboro cemetery.

ROSCOE CLAUDE WRIGHT
Stirling

Funeral service for Roscoe Claude Wright was held Thursday from the Tim-Hogle Funeral Home, Stirling with Rev. M. J. Caswell officiating.

The bearers were Kinnear Bradworth, Bryson Reid, Everett Cooke, John Courtney, George Noble and Harry Jones.

Interment was in Stirling Cemetery.

CHARLES GEORGE MURRAY

A resident of the city for the past five years and in failing health for several months, Charles George Murray, 5 Turnbull Street, died Friday in Belleville General Hospital. He was in his 85th year.

Son of the late Mr.and Mrs. William J. Murray, he was born in Belleville and was employed in that city as a plumber for more than 50 years. He was a member of Local 2004, United Association, UFL, CIO.

He was a member of St. John's Anglican Church at Kingston.

He is survived by his wife, the former Hannah Garnet White, four daughters, Mrs. John (Gwendolyn) Farquhar, Richmond, Virginia; Mrs. Kilbourn (Geraldine) Upton of Montreal; Mrs. Jack (Norma) Lowry, London, and Mrs. Andrew (Hilda) Black of Belleville.

Also surviving are 11 grandchildren, four great grandchildren, a brother, Harry Murray of Kingston, and a sister, Mrs. William (Gertrude) Gibson of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held Monday from the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home with service in the chapel at one p.m. conducted by Canon R. B. Wright.

Interment Cataraqui Cemetery.

MRS. ANDREW WANNAMAKER
(Trenton)

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Beatrice Wannamaker, 8 Cedar Street, Trenton, was held this afternoon from the Weaver Funeral Home with service in the chapel conducted by Rev. David Minor. Interment was in White's Cemetery.

Mrs. Wannamaker, died Wednesday at Quinte Memorial Hospital, following a three month illness. She was in her 82nd year.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob McGregor she had lived for the past 50 years in Trenton where she was a member of Bethel Temple.

Pre-deceased by her husband, Andrew Wannamaker she is survived by one son, R. Harold Wannamaker of R.R. 1, Carrying Place, a brother Hermon of Picton, three grandchildren and one great grandchild. Two brothers predeceased her.

ARLETTA JANE ROGERS
R.R.4, Trenton

The funeral of Arletta Jane Rogers, R.R4, Trenton, was held this afternoon from the Weaver Funeral Home with service in the chapel conducted by Rev. W. A. Adam. Interment was in Carman Cemetery, R.R1, Brighton.

The bearers were Paul Ross, Everett Goldman, Kenneth Sills, Vaughan Adams, Harold Ireland and Harold Morgan.

Mrs. Rogers died Wednesday in Port Hope General Hospital following an illness of several years.

A life resident of the Brighton and Murray township district, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James McColl. She was a member of Wooler United Church and when health permitted, was active in many phases of church work. She was a former member of the W.I. and the UCW.

She is survived by her husband, Clifford R. Rogers, a son, Douglas, of Acton Ont., and three daughters, Mrs. W. J. (Marion) Wilson, Toronto, Mrs. H. G. (Jessie Victoria) Curry of Peterborough, and Mrs. D. R (Helen Luella) Fry of Quebec.

There are 13 grandchildren, three greatgrandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. S. Ames of Ottawa and Mrs. D. Thomas of Hamilton. Eight brothers and four sisters pre-deceased her.

No March Expected In Picton Dispute

Daniel Neilson, who helped organize two prior parades, explained that the main purpose was to encourage negotiations, and as talks are now under way in Toronto, the marches have outlived their usefulness.

"At least they are together now, the best thing is to leave them alone for the time being" he said.

The two parades that were held on the last two consecutive Sundays, drew about 500 marchers each.

Carrying placards protesting Prescription wage policies, local wages in the county, and Mayor H. J. McFarland's policy of non-intervention, the marchers covered about two miles from the corner of Ormond Proctor-Silex plant, to the gate street of the community.

Meanwhile at the plant, a union representative said the "hands off" policy on the picket line, would continue while negotiations continue.

Corby Representative Retires from Company

Local sales representative for H. Corby Distillery Ltd. for the past eight years, William J. "Bill" Johns, Moira Street, Belleville, retired recently after 45 years with the company.

Company employees tendered him a retirement party Friday evening and presented him with a portable planer for use in his hobbyist woodworking shop.

Approximately 40 persons attended the party, including former plant manager Wilfred LaPorte and other retired plant officials. Telegrams were received from the company president in Montreal and other executive officials.

Mr. Johns went to work at Corby's in London, 1923 and worked up through the various positions to become bottling room foreman. In 1960 he was transferred to sales to become local salesman.

Seminar Planned

The 24th annual seminar of the Industrial Management Clubs of Canada will be held Oct. 25 and 26 at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto.

"To manage or Be Managed" is the theme of the seminar and Dr. Jules Justin and Dennis McDermott will be the speakers.

BIRTHS

GRILLS — Roxie and Jim are happy to announce the arrival of their son, Jeffrey Allan, on Oct. 11th, 1968 at the Belleville General Hospital. A sister for Mark and Bradley. Weight 7 lbs., 3 ozs.

IN MEMORIAM

BOYCE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Harry Knowlton Boyce, who passed away October 14th, 1953.

The years may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
And never will the one we loved,
From memory pass away.
—Remembered by his wife and family.

WESTOVER — In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and sister, Dorcas Westover who passed away October 12, 1966.

God knew that she was suffering,
God knew that she was tired,
God knew her heart was broken,
And whispered Peace be Thine.
Sweet is the beautiful Isle of God,
By the valley of rest so fair,
Where never day was known nor night,
But where
We will meet our loved there.
—Lovingly remembered by husband Fred, son Douglas, daughter-in-law Elva, granddaughter Linda and sister Jennie.

BURKE — In loving memory of a dear husband, Blanche Burke, who passed away Oct. 13, 1967.
There is a link death cannot sever,
Love and remembrance last forever.
Sadly missed and ever remembered by wife Ethel.

CLARKE — In loving memory of my husband William H. Clarke, who passed away Oct. 13, 1965.
A silent thought, a fond regret,
A memory never dear,
A heart that breaks, a tear of grief,
But memory turns back every leaf,
And while he rests in perfect peace,
His memory I will always keep.
—Ever remembered by his wife Rachel, Margaret and Jim.

COURNEYEA — In loving memory of a dear daughter and mother, Gwendolyn Courneyea who passed away Oct. 13, 1965.
Your presence we miss,
Your memory we treasure,
Loving you always,
Forgetting you never.
—Ever remembered Mom and Dad, Karen, Kathy and Linda.

ROSENUSH — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mary Rosenush, who passed away Oct. 13, 1966.
We give her not to earth alone,
We leave her not to die,
For memory keeps her fresh and fair,
From year to year she'll dream,
Our lips need not speak,
Our hearts remain sincerely,
For great often dwells,
Where love is found.
—Sadly missed by daughter Kathleen, son-in-law Keith and grandchildren Robert, Carolyn and Tammy.

ROSENUSH — In loving memory of a dear wife, Mary Rosenush, who passed away October 13, 1966.
Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
Love's remembrance outlasts all.
And though the years be many,
They are filled with remembrance only.
—Lovingly remembered by husband Steve.

ROSENUSH — In loving memory of a dear mother, Mary Rosenush, who passed away October 13, 1966.
Days of sadness still with those ever sad,
Tears in silence through hearts that break,
For memory serves her best.
Though you died two years ago,
—Always remembered by Mr. Eugene Rosenush, Mrs. Phyllis and grandchildren.

ROSENUSH — In loving memory of a wonderful mother, Elizabeth Rosenush, who passed away October 13, 1966.
Two years have gone by dear, since you left us,
Two years of heartache and weeping.
Two years of loneliness and sorrow,
For one who suffered far too much.
Is resting in God's will.
You never said goodbye to us,
You perhaps it's just as well,
We never could have said goodbye,
Without breaking down.
—Sadly missed by husband Joseph, daughter Myrtle, son-in-law Bill and grandson Billy.

Finally A Smooth Ride on Bridge Street Hill

Mercy Flight Under Way

Giant Hercules Stops at Trenton on Way to Biafra

TRENTON — A Hercules landed at CFB Trenton last night and began its mission of mercy at noon this morning as it carried 20 tons of food to the starving thousands of war torn Biafra.

The whole operation came after talks at the United Nations in which Abdiak Ranzi, assistant chief of the Nigerian Mission to the UN, said that any relief would be accepted as long as it was handled by the Red Cross.

And so the Red Cross insignia was painted over the military markers and the life saving mission started.

According to a CFB Trenton spokesman, the personnel for the trip will be posted from Alberta. As far as he knows no Trenton men will be involved in the mission.

The crew, or rather crews landed in good spirits as the men ribbed one another.

There are two crews, 16 men, which will split aircraft duties on the 30-hour journey.

The longest leg of the trip will be from Trenton to Recife, Barbados, which will take eight hours.

According to the pilot for the second half, James Webber, the flight "was something we have been trained for. Now we have a chance to see how well we were trained."

Pilot for the first leg, Kenneth Olson, said he looked forward to the flight.

The remainder of the crew is made up of maintenance personnel.

A spokesman for CFB Trenton said the reason for this "was to maintain normal visitor regulations — we don't want to upset anything in this sensitive time."

And then they left for their first briefing followed by a nights sleep and then off on the first leg of the life saving journey at noon today.

On his way out navigator, Bob Ford, expressed the hope of all, " . . . there shouldn't be any danger, we're under the Red Cross emblem."

Three Day Event

Salvation Army Plans Congress Here

A Belleville, who gained international distinction in the Salvation Army, returns to his hometown this month as Salvationists assemble in the city for a three-day congress.

Colonel Arnold Brown will be among the 700 expected to attend the event from around Central Ontario here Oct. 25-27.

Among concress highlights will be a marchpast in the downtown area, a drama and a "proclamation" rally — featuring young Salvation Army swingers from Toronto.

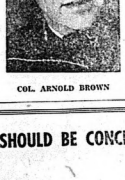
Col. Brown culminated his career to date in 1964 when he was appointed the Army's international public relations director and posted to London, England.

His service began in Belleville where he joined Salvation Army ranks in the mid-1930s.

Indirectly, his work is familiar to millions. Appointed national publicity officer in 1947, he originated the widely-known radio series, This Is My Story.

As a musician he also became well-known in North America, establishing the first Army music camps in Canada. In 1952, Col. Brown was appointed national youth secretary for Canada and Bermuda.

Between appointments, he penned the official history of the Army, What God Hath Wrought.



The congress opens at Bridge Street United Church, where the Toronto Pathway Players will present a contemporary drama — Christ in the Concrete City.

The marchpast, which includes bands and floats will be staged the following afternoon followed by a festival of praise at Belleville Collegiate, featuring the Scarborough Citadel band.

The Sunday ceremonies will continue at the collegiate with an afternoon performance by the Willowmen — a young guitar-drums duo.

In between extensive travels to reach youth groups, they also have cut a 45 rpm record of their own compositions.

Glenora Ferry Resumes Operation

The Quinte Loyalist charged its way back from drydocks in Kingston, arriving about three p.m. yesterday in time to help bear the first brunt of Thanksgiving weekend traffic along Highway 33.

The ship, the largest of the two on service, has been undergoing repairs for the last two weeks.

Y's Men Discuss Purpose

A meeting of the Y's Mens club last night led to serious discussion concerning purpose of the organization and "what do we have to offer to our community?"

Present at the meeting were two senior officers of the club, Mac Bowmen, past international president, and John Pyper, past Ontario - Quebec international director.

These men were acting as a "task force" to assist the Y's Men clubs of the Ontario-Quebec region to plan for future growth and development of the club.

In other business it was announced that the club is sponsoring a peewee hockey team.

The Y's men also discussed initial plans for this year's radio auction which is slated for Tuesday, Nov. 26.

Student Power

Puzzled Anglo-Saxons viewing events in Quebec over the past few years have been known to ask, "Just what do they want?" The same might be asked nowadays of the young student militants of the world who, unless they are taught the meaning of the words "maturity" and "responsibility," could well disrupt the entire educational system.

School staffs and university faculties may not have a monopoly of wisdom, but they do have the knowledge and experience that students do not possess and which they attend classes to acquire.

The function of students at school and university is not to administer such establishments or to take them over by force, as occurred in recent months at Columbia in New York and the Sorbonne in Paris. Any student who believes otherwise is deluding himself. Any student who equates this sort of conduct with "maturity" has no business either in school or university. If it is anarchy he wants, this country has neither the time nor place for it.

As the Youth Page of this newspaper has revealed, there are hints of "student power" activity in at least one of the high schools. The secondary schools have their councils and parliaments but these are there to help, not to instruct the school administrations how to run school affairs. They may make suggestions, but beyond that they have no powers.

Yet students are beginning to sense that they may be able to wield more influence. A Belleville students representative has been quoted as saying: "The older governing factors of high school education in this area are too conservative. Let the students be students. In modern life a student should have more freedom. This is what we're driving at — we're not immature people."

In one respect the student spokesman had a good point. He was referring to the fact the principal had said "No" to a proposed trip by a school club to Quebec, and he charged the school authorities with being "afraid of image-ruining experiences on the trip. . ."

Well and good — there should, indeed, be more of this kind of exchange with other provinces where it is feasible and likely to be of educational value. Nor is there any reason why school meals should not be more plentiful, nutritious and easier on the pocket. This apparently has been another subject of complaint.

But we take issue with such statements as: "If you want to chew gum — chew gum." And this from the student who was quoted earlier as saying: ". . . We're not immature people." There is a ban on chewing gum at the school. Nor are Grade 13 students allowed to smoke in their lounge. There are good reasons for both strictures. School is no place for the budding smoker. School is for school — for learning, acquiring knowledge and the maturity young people may think they have (but wait around a bit longer and see if the passing years don't make you wiser). Gum chewing is distracting both to other students and teachers. Nor is it a pleasant sight; indeed it is one of the lesser attributes of the rising generation — this perpetual need of something to chew.

So get off your high horses, students, and get on with the job of improving your mental capacities and acquiring all-round wisdom. Your forebears have done it, and if many of them have little to show for it, the road to knowledge and wisdom has not changed much. It still involves hard work and a responsible attitude.

Boost for Quinte Area

The pace of development in Belleville seems to be quickening — and this is encouraging.

The possibility of a 450-acre residential subdivision being established in the Hastings Park area of Sidney Township is a case in point.

Then there is the proposed shopping plaza in the north end of the city. Final approval of this project awaits a hearing of the Ontario Municipal Board on November 4.

Both enterprises, if they materialize, cannot help but give a strong boost to the city's economy. They will mean more jobs, more homes with more money circulating. Indirectly, it should help to focus attention on Belleville and attract more industry.

In short, the economy of the area is on the up and up.

Obsolete France No Threat to Real Caouette's Canada

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA. — So Creditiste Leader Real Caouette says plans are in the political works to expand the Quebec-based federal party on a national scale.

Don't laugh.

Former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker was one of those who chuckled at Caouette's hopes and dreams of power, and it was sad how quickly Tory smiles turned to tears.

That was when Caouette came back from the 1962 election with 20 members and the Conservatives found themselves a minority which crumbled in a year.

Former Prime Minister Pearson was another who laughed off Real Caouette and to his sorrowful surprise was soon crying.

And that was when Caouette came back from the '63 election with 24 members and the Liberals found they were in the minority position where they remained for five years of uncertain power.

In both elections, Caouette and his men lit more than enough seats to deny majorities to Conservatives and Liberals alike.

In both elections, too, while the former Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson teamed with Caouette, it was the Creditistes and not the Socreds who returned by far the most members and ruled the splinter party roost.

And after Creditistes and Socreds split, it was Caouette's little band rather than the New Democrats who held the life-and-death power balance for those minority governments.

In voting crunches, both Grits and Tories have grovelled for Caouette's make-or-break support — the last time just this spring when the Creditistes rescued the Liberals from the disaster of defeat on former Finance Minister Sharp's tax bill.

When he first came to Parliament 22 years ago — yes, it was back in 1946 — he was an ardent federalist, and has so remained ever since.

He might have been for Social Credit, but first and always he was for Canada.

He came from Rouyn-Noranda in Northern Quebec, a hot-bed of French-Canadian nationalism and then of separatism, but he never wavered.

He was for "One Canada" long before John Diefenbaker coined the phrase, and Pierre Trudeau purloined and parlayed it into power.

Caouette and his Creditistes meet this weekend in Sherbrooke, deep in Quebec's green and lovely Eastern Townships, to put the party on a national basis, with delegates attending the founding convention from all corners of the nation.

Then, leaving his 14 Creditistes behind to keep Common shop, he sets out on an Ontario-Maritime—Prairies— West Coast tour.

By the time the next election comes up on the calendar, he figures to have a candidate in every riding.

Can he swing it, more important, make it as the "Third Force," in parliament, perhaps replacing the New Democs?

Consider his credentials.

He sets out in Hansard some of the most appealing of them.

It was the speech he made in the Commons on his return with an interparliamentary delegation from France.

French Premier Couve de Murville was in Quebec City trying to lure it over to Union Nationale leaders, striving to patronize Prime Minister Trudeau, and with magnificent condescension addressing himself to Canadians on their relations with France.

Real Caouette talked back. He did it first and did it best. In Canada's Parliament.

He had been to France and the French were welcome to it.

Sure they had castles, dating from the reign of Louis quatorze and Louis quinze — but who needs castles when people are starving.

France talked of saving Canada, but from what Caouette had seen, it was more like Canada saving France.

To submit to France's embrace would be to take the Great Leap Backward for 50 years. French wages and salaries were a third of Canada's, and French prices double.

"Before trying to solve our problems," Caouette told the applauding Commons, "they should start solving their own — and they have enough to keep them busy for the next 100 years."

Water... Two Views

For Sale — Fresh — or Polluted?

Ottawa Journal

The Science Council report on water resources research, dealing briskly with a complex question, says in the first sentence it believes research into water resources is important to the nation.

The council says there should be an annual increase in water research outlays until in 1973 the annual rate is $25,000,000.

If doesn't shy away from the suggestion that Canada might be able to sell and export fresh water, an idea regarded with horror by those who think it would mean selling our birthright. The council remarks quietly that before decisions are made we need research to find out how much water we have and what we might have to spare.

It is not the council's opinion that big-daddy government should be left to nurse this baby alone. If the council's advice is followed, the $25,000,000 spent on water research in fiscal year 1972-73 will involve $11,000,000 provided by governments and $7,000,000 each by universities and industry.

The council would encourage economic industry from governments for specific water research projects but "it would also like industry to spend its own money in research. To ensure that industry did not duck its responsibility, the council would have the private contribution to water resources research reviewed in 1971.

The Science Council concludes that Canadians "have not learned to conserve and care for natural riches."

Company - president, union hand and bookish professor alike should read that indictment with concern.

But the note of urgency should be sharper. Why wait until 1973 for that $25,000,000 attack?

• • •

Milwaukee Journal

Conservationists and that should include everyone in this day of growing pressures and reliance on natural resources, understandably can be pessimistic about the future of the Great Lakes.

The grim outlook includes Lake Michigan, not yet "dead" but in a state of decline that threatens its fabulous value as a recreational and water supply resource. The problems were explored in depth in a recent series in The Journal. They were underscored again at a meeting of the Water Pollution Control federation in Chicago.

Although a timetable has been set and technology put in motion to save the lakes, there are the twin problems of money and enforcement.

The law that authorized the federal water pollution control agency envisioned $450 million in aids to states last-year, of which Great Lakes projects would be only a part. Congress started only half that, for this year, $700 million was authorized, but planned budgets would drop that by two-thirds.

The holding action to keep the lakes in acceptable condition faces another grave problem: Despite interstate compacts, setting of water standards and growing public concern, progress still hinges on the decisions of a distressing assortment of agencies, governments, industries and individuals. Where understanding is lacking or motives ignorable, there can be halting movement at best.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 12, 1968 . . .

Christopher Columbus discovered the Bahamas Islands, about 350 miles from the mainland, 375 years ago today in 1492. The islands were sighted just before dawn and the occasion was marked by the firing of a cannon from the Pinta, one of Columbus' three ships. He took possession of the islands in the name of King Ferdinand and Queen Isabella.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—replying to President Wilson's note, Germany agreed to withdraw from occupied territory and to satisfy other demands; Japanese forces arrived in Irkutsk, Siberia; Serbian and French troops entered Nish in the Balkans.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—Prime Minister Churchill announced Portugal granted Britain naval and air bases in the Azores; President Roosevelt announced Japan lost an average of 130,000 tons of shipping a month during the previous six months: an Allied air armada crushed Japan's main southward Pacific fortress of Rabaul, New Britain.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—French troops captured Laon, La Fere and Gobain Forest, forcing a German retreat on a 100-mile front from St. Quentin to the Argonne River; British forces pushed forward near Douai; Allenby's troops captured Tripoli, Syria.

Student Power

Where Is the Proof of Responsibility?

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

There is an old saying: Give him enough rope and he'll hang himself.

Paraphrased, it could apply to the current guest for "student power." The students themselves manage to bring their case into bad repute by the extreme methods they adopt.

A growing number of educational authorities accept the validity of moves for student representation on governing bodies of universities. Given proof of responsibility, it is only a matter of time until a formula is worked out to enable students to participate in the government of the institutions they attend.

Judging by recent events, however, it may be some time before this is accomplished.

The latest is the attempt by University of Waterloo student activists to circulate in Twin City high schools copies of a newspaper published by University of Guelph students, which is critical of what it calls a "repressive" high school system.

In this and in some of the language in the newspaper, the students reveal in unmistakable fashion their own basic irresponsibility.

Irrespective of any legal question involved, the university students have a moral right to invade high schools in a missionary attempt to convert younger students to their way of thinking. Here authority has the right and duty to see that this propaganda attempt is stopped.

By their extreme methods, the activists not only destroy the validity of their case, they bring about the hardening of official opposition. Distribution of literature to younger students before they are equipped to make a balanced judgment comes under this heading.

Andrew Stanley, high school co-ordinator for the U. of W. student council, makes the dangers of irresponsibility. The inclusion of swear words, he acknowledges, was bad taste, "because it gives them a nit-picking point to come back at us on."

It provides much more. It provides proof of the half-baked thinking and the shoddy methods being employed by students who are only marginally interested in more satisfactory university administration, and whose goal seems to be the achievement of power for power's sake.

Another Conflict Feared

Arab-Israeli Divisions Fanned by Power Politics

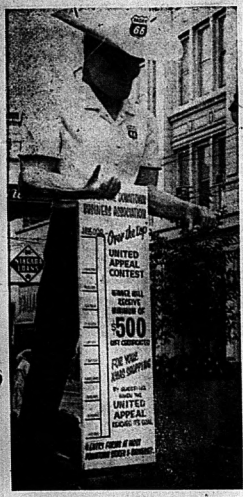
By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Israel's proposed peace plan for the explosive Middle East appears to be a rehandled old offer without new ribbons.

It likely will hold few attractions for disgruntled Arab states.

Essentially, it holds out the tantalizing possibility that the Arabs would get all their Israeli occupied territory back if they acknowledge Israel's legal existence and treat it as a sovereign state.

But Foreign Minister Abba Eban, in his United Nations presentation, did not spell out exactly what territories Israel would return, and there is some question whether the little Jewish state would give up all the ground it conquered in the six-day war of 1967.



For example, while Eban talks of establishing boundaries compatible with the security of Israel and with the honor of the Arab states," Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan says he is implacably opposed to giving up the Sinai Peninsula.

Dayan might be overruled in a cabinet struggle and, in fact, his statement may be no more than pre-negotiations strategy. In any case, there are so many points to the Eban plan—including Israeli rights to Suez Canal traffic—repugnant to Arab policy that the question of detail appears to be almost irrelevant.

The Arabs may have already concluded—as they have stated publicly—that the only likely way of regaining lost territory is through another war. The Soviet Union has rebuilt Egyptian forces and now President Johnson has announced approval on a beginning to negotiations to provide Israel with supersonic planes.

This exercise of escalation hampers the role of UN peace envoy Gunnar Jarring. While External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and others plead with Israel and the Arab states to co-operate, the roles played by super-powers in providing arms suggest the pleas fall on deaf ears.

The ominous suggestion of another military showdown is made more dangerous by the presence of both American and Soviet fleets in the Mediterranean. The fires, as Sharp has warned, can spread next far beyond the Sinai desert. But there is doubt that the smaller powers can persuade the giants to disengage and neutralize the Middle East.

Soldiers in War Turn to Poetry

SAIGON (AP)—Sometimes there is no other way of saying it except in poetry, when the moment is to be grasped and the emotion frozen for time.

When Virgil sang "of arms and the man" he became one of the first of the long line of war poets. The fighting man in Vietnam, both the U.S. serviceman and the North Vietnamese soldier, is keeping up the tradition, as examples printed in American service publications and diaries found on the bodies of Northern dead attest.

For one American at the U.S. air base at Da Nang, the rising sun meant the end of a perilous night. He celebrated it in this poem:

The sun just came up and the first golden spears
Came piercing the sky like a child's flowing tears . . .
The wounded are moaning,
the dead make no sound,
The story of last night is soaking the ground.

A North Vietnamese soldier, expressing the war-weariness of all soldiers, writes:

The flame tree flowers in defiance of the winds and
The flame of war.
Youth must be like the flowers
And stand firm in their determination to face the rigors of war.

Another American "boondocks bard" hits on the recurrent theme of the reality of war and death for the soldier:

Today at dawn a round came in.
I lost a buddy, I lost a friend.
I asked myself the reason why
There is need for a man to die.

A North Vietnamese writes:
When I had to lay a mine,
how my hand trembled.
And then I watched the blasting human flesh, the splattering rain of blood.
Whose blood was it?
The blood of people like ourselves.
My people's blood, mother
Still another trooper thought upon the time when the war would end, and penned these lines:
When the war has ended and the road is open again.
The same stars will course through the heavens.
bones heaped together
In desolate graves.

Another U.S. soldier wrote the following "ambush prayer":
Now I lay me down to wait,
The night is cold, the hour is late
Bullets rip through the night
Men dying is a hell of a sight
The war is not over, only the fight
We will be out again tomorrow night.

A counterpart among the North Vietnamese, writing to a sweetheart back home, combines a love lyric with anti-American fervor:

Your twisted hair looks like the meadows
In my mother's native land . . .
But comes a time when the mother country is torn by storms, bombs and hate,
I am the mountain standing against the Americans:
You are the river pushing them to the sea.
Do you agree with me that the mountain and river are immortal?

And an American, summing up his feelings about the war, wrote:
In this land of many people
I know they won't forget,
The friends who came and fought
And that freedom will come yet.

Christian Scientists To Convene

The traditional Thanksgiving Day service in Belleville Christian Science Society on Monday, will include a period for testimonies of gratitude to God from individuals in the congregation. The service is at 11 a.m. and the society if located at the Masonic Temple.

A brief Lesson - Sermon, consisting of readings from the Bible and the Christian Science textbook, relates gratitude to an understanding of God's goodness and love. The Lesson - Sermon will be read by the First and Second Readers of the society. The public is welcome to attend this service.

$2 Million A Year

Cost of Royal Commissions Questioned by Opposition MPs

OTTAWA (CP) — The worth of five current royal commissions, one of which dates back to the Diefenbaker administration, was questioned in the Commons Friday.

MPs voted $2,105,000 for estimated 1968-69 spending by the royal commissions but not before complaining about their cost and effectiveness.

Material gathered by a commission on farm machinery costs would probably be outdated by the time the commission reports next year, one MP said. The $7,000,000 cost of the commission on bilingualism and bi-culturalism again came under fire. Several MPs said the B and B commission should be terminated without ceremony. It began work five years ago.

Newfoundland MPs said the royal commission on the status of women will cost twice the amount of a $300,000 salt rebate for fishermen that has been withdrawn in the government economy drive.

One MP said that cancelling royal commissions would be an effective economy measure.

The oldest is the royal commission on pilotage, established by the Conservative government in 1962. It handed in its first report July 17 and more volumes are to come.

The three-man pilotage commission's budget for the current fiscal year is $246,000.

James E. Walker (York Centre), parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau, gave the following details on the other four commissions:

—Bilingualism and biculturalism: 1968-69 budget $668,000. Established in July 1963, it has handed in an interim report, a report on language, and is editing its volume on education. The 10 members, paid $100 for each day they work, are expected to be busy well into the 1969-70 fiscal year.

Status of women: 1968-69 budget $184,000. Set up in 1966, it currently is holding public hearings and is not expected to report before the end of 1969.

—Farm machinery: 1968-69 budget $382,000. Also of 1966 vintage, its report is due by June, 1969.

—Security procedures: 1968-69 budget $298,000. Report of this three-man commission set up in 1966 is expected by the government next month. Parts at least may never be made public for security reasons.

Frank Howard (NDP Skeena), Lloyd R. Crouse (PC — South Shore) and Rene Matte (Creditiste — Champlain) all said the B and B commission should be terminated.

Heath Macquarrie (PC — Hillsborough) described the commission as important, however, and asked whether the "massive exercise in research" is near an end. He said Canadians are more impatient about it than anything else.

Rod Thompson (NDP — Battleford - Kindersley) observed that the farm machinery data, gathered since 1966, would be "irrelevant" by the time the commission made its report. He asked about government action on machinery costs now.

David Orlikow (NDP — Winnipeg North) said opposition questions about legislation on matters such as wiretapping have been put off with the reply that the report on security measures is coming.

However, the government should not expect the opposition to swallow any recommendation that there be no restrictions on wiretapping unless the reasoning for such a recommendation is made clear. The opposition would not accept such a proposal on the basis of a secret report.

John Lundrigan (PC — Gander-Twillingate) questioned the logic of withdrawing a $300,000 salt rebate for Atlantic fishermen while spending $600,000 on the commission for women.

Women in the Atlantic region already are equal, he said, adding that 15,000 residents of his Newfoundland riding will face a difficult winter because of the rebate withdrawal.

Mr. Walker, speaking personally, said he has sympathy for critics of royal commissions. He wondered whether the Senate or "special task forces" might not be able to do a better job.

Since the Trudeau government was elected June 25, "task forces" have been established into housing and into amateur sports.

The Senate in recent years has been a vehicle for public inquiries into divorce, aging, unemployment, land use and consumer costs.

Racism Is Here: Negro

MONTREAL (CP) — Whether you are talking about racism or anything else, Canada adds up to the same thing as the United States, Nova Scotia Negro Rocky Jones said Friday.

"Even after death there is segregation here." Mr. Jones, 27, said in an interview before addressing the opening session of a black writers' congress at McGill University.

"Just last month in Ste. Croix, N.S., a little black kid couldn't be buried in the cemetery because of a town bylaw. It said no blacks, no colored people, no Indians."

Asked if he was a Black Power advocate, the student of history at Dalhousie University in Halifax replied:

"That depends what you mean by Black Power. There has to be a re-definition of the whole concept of what black is. White society taught us black is bad. But black is good."

Later, a bespectacled civil rights worker mounted the platform and pleaded with the group of predominantly black delegates from all over the western Hemisphere to unite.

"I get pretty lonely sitting out there in Nova Scotia wondering who I am," he said. One of Canada's 32,000 Negroes, he lives in a community formed in pre-Civil War days by slaves fleeing the south by the Underground Railway.

"But we will never unite as long as we use the white man's dress and allow the white man to lead us."

Blacks should look to Africa for a focal point. They should identify with Africans and with the revolutions in Africa and Asia.

The only Canadian delegate to address the four-day congress, Mr. Jones talked about some of the problems that beleaguer Nova Scotia's black community, which comprises half of Canada's Negro population.

"Charlie has really let us take strides there," he said ironically.

"Where I come from there are 9,000 blacks with one doctor, one pharmacist and two lawyers."

He said a civil rights commission had been established in Nova Scotia one year ago, but had done nothing yet because no "suitable" applicants for administrator had been received.

Postal Rate Debate Delayed

OTTAWA (CP) — In a change from the order of business announced Thursday, the Commons now is not expected to be dealing with proposed postal rate increases next week.

Privy Council President Don S. Macdonald, government House leader, said in an interview Friday the House will return Tuesday after the Thanksgiving weekend to debate legislation to amend the Farm Improvement Loans Act and Farm Credit Act.

The reason for not moving directly to the postal bill is that Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson will only be available Tuesday before he leaves for Winnipeg for a meeting on proposed formation of a national grains council.

Both the farm and postal legislation are high-priority items, Mr. Macdonald said. Wednesdays are short sitting days and not ideal for major debates such as the postal bill. There is also a question of Postmaster-General Eric Kierans' availability.

Thursday will be devoted to debate on a resolution preceding introduction of a bill designed to ensure equality of the English and French languages.

Mr. Macdonald anticipated completion of the resolution stage of debate on the language bill and automatic tabling of the bill itself so that MPs and provincial authorities would be able to study the proposed legislation.

Friday is likely to be spent on department estimates and the postal legislation is not likely to come up until the following Monday.

Senator Asks Courts For Banks Information

WASHINGTON (CP) — Republican Senator Paul Fannin of Arizona said Friday he will ask the federal courts to order U.S. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz to hand over copy of a memorandum to State Secretary Rusk on the Hal Banks case.

He also said the justice department is investigating allegations about the Seafarers International Union making large campaign contributions to the Democrats after Banks had refused to permit Banks to be extradited to Canada.

Fannin said in another Senate speech on the subject that he will seek the order against Wirtz under the Freedom of Information Act of 1966.

The province of Ontario had sought his extradition on perjury charges in connection with a royal commission investigation into violence on the Great Lakes.

The Wall Street Journal said that earlier this year $100,000 was contributed to Democratic party committee campaign funds a few days after Rusk had rejected the extradition request.

Cemetery Changes Race Ban

WINDSOR, N.S. (CP) — Directors of a cemetery at nearby St. Croix moved quickly Friday to strike from their books a bylaw which prohibits the burial of Negroes and Indians in their cemetery after revelation of the clause caused a public outcry and a government investigation.

At an urgently called meeting Friday night, the directors declared their intention to rescind the objectionable clause and agreed to carry out their intentions at their next regular meeting.

The bylaw, which states that "not any Negro or colored person, nor any Indian shall be buried in the St. Croix Cemetery, was brought to light Thursday by H. A. J. Wedderburn, president of the Nova Scotia Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

He said a Negro family had been denied permission to bury their child in the cemetery about a month ago.

Mr. Wedderburn said the association was demanding that the responsible bodies apologize to the parents of the deceased child, that the bylaw be rescinded and that the provincial government take steps to make illegal such discriminating bylaws.

The Nova Scotia human rights commission Friday launched an investigation into the case.

Graydon Spence, a director of the community cemetery, said the bylaw was written by G. B. Dawson, secretary-treasurer of the cemetery in 1905.

He said the cemetery was started by a group of town residents and is now in the hands of the next generation who live in the community.

Boost From Holiday Inn

Students Tour on $1.43 a Day

OTTAWA (CP) — A group of Grade 3 and 4 students from Toronto, who embarked on an Ottawa visit with a shoestring budget, headed home Friday after a spot of lush hotel living.

Seven teachers and 35 students from McMurrich public school financed the trip on their own and with a $500 grant from the Toronto board of education.

With the grant working out to only $1.43 a day for each person on the four-day trip, there was no scope for any free-wheeling spending.

From Tuesday to Thursday, the teachers and students slept in the gymnasium at Rockcliffe Park public school here and scrimped on meals. They toured all the free sights that can be taken in here—the Royal Canadian Mint, Museum of Science and Technology, Central Experimental Farm and, of course, a sitting of the House of Commons.

The management invited the group to the hotel, fed each member a roast beef dinner and turned over an entire floor of rooms for the party to bed down. All on the house.

Before the youngsters started their bus trip home Friday, the hotel also provided free breakfast and arranged for a luncheon snack to be served during the trip.

Nancy Mallett, a primary school consultant for the Toronto board of education, said the trip had turned out to be "a tremendous experience."

Reaction of the children to what they had seen and done during the trip had been tape recorded. This would give an evaluation of the impact the trip had for the children.

Deficit Forecast

Budget Signs Indicate Employment at Risk of Inflation

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Benson may have to make a virtue of necessity in the budget speech he delivers to Parliament Tuesday.

If this is the case, the government will want to stage cogent reasons —other than its own escalating costs — for justifying the stimulus a deficit will give to the economy.

Some analysts suggest that U.S. tax increases and budget cuts will bite in 1969 and slow down the American economy, with substantial effects on the level of activity in Canada.

If this is also the finding of federal economists, it could be a justification for the compensating nudge that a deficit would provide.

The finance minister has so far been optimistic on this point, suggesting that Canada is set to ride out any hesitation in the North American economy better than the U.S.

But Canada's unemployment rate in mid-August was 5.1 per cent in seasonally-adjusted terms, and Mr. Benson has also said he would risk a little more inflation for a reduction in unemployment if forced to make a choice.

Modest tax increases in this budget might demonstrate the minister's fiscal resolve to provincial finance ministers he will meet at a tax-sharing conference late in October or early in November.

They would also cut into a potential deficit of up to $500,000,000 without disturbing proposals for tax reform Mr. Benson plans to lay down early in the new year.

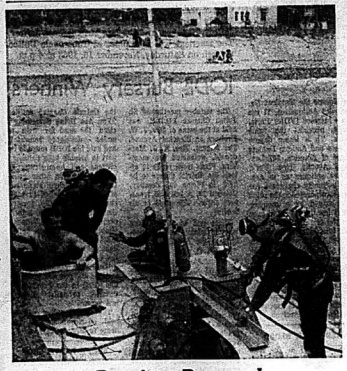
E. J. BENSON
Outlook "Very Good"

In announcing the budget date to the Commons Friday, Mr. Benson said his pre-budget white paper would be tabled about the middle of next week.

The white paper sets out the state of the economy and provides a framework within which a budget is cast.

This one will be the first full accounting of its kind to Parliament since June 1, 1967.

Mr. Benson was mum about tax changes when reporters inquired Friday, but he did say the general outlook for the Canadian economy in the next year is "very good."



The federal government has already levied one tax increase this year, a twin surtax of three per cent against both individuals and corporations. A speedup of tax payments by corporations was also introduced.

The three measures were applied by Mr. Benson's predecessor, Mitchell Sharp, as substitutes for a tax bill defeated Feb. 19 in the Commons, and were designed to increase 1968 tax revenues by $360,000,000.

At the time the government was projecting budgetary revenues of $10,185,000,000 and expenditures of not more than $10,900,000,000.

Revised spending estimates tabled Sept. 25 showed a sharp increase in costs of education, hospital insurance and welfare programs jointly financed by the federal and provincial governments.

The expenditure forecast was raised to $10,670,930,586, and a deficit of almost $500,000,000 was indicated barring tax increases this fall.

House Boils Over

Absence of Ministers Claimed "Mockery"

OTTAWA (CP) — A week of opposition impatience with a new system of cabinet rotation in the Commons boiled over Friday as a succession of members complained that the system isn't working.

Since it was introduced last Monday, opposition MPs have subjected the new approach to continual sarcasm.

And on Friday the resistance heightened as members called it unfair, ridiculous, a complete failure and a mockery of Parliament.

"The whole effect of this is a weakening of the question period, making it less important and cooling it off," said NDP rules expert Stanley Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre).

"I think this is bad for Parliament."

Government House Leader Donald S. Macdonald defended the system, under which the whole cabinet tries to attend Wednesday's question period while only 12 to 17 of the 28 ministers are expected to come on other days.

But Mr. Macdonald indicated the government is not wedded to the procedure.

"The prime minister and I have conceded that this is experimental," he said.

"I think it would be advisable to continue the experiment. . . . If it does not work, I would be the first to suggest that it should be abandoned."

One of the main opposition complaints has been that the government started the new procedure without talking it over with the opposition parties, even though a special committee had been set up to study House procedure.

Mr. Macdonald appeared to go some way toward meeting that point Friday when he said he would "have the opportunity to discuss these matters" with House leaders of the other parties.

But he also suggested the opposition had started its criticism before seeing how the new procedure worked.

The former British Columbia Liberal leader said he was aghast at some of the questions put during the period, which had become a "political baiting carnival."

He said there was no reason why ministers should be pilloried daily and asked facetious questions.

George Hees (PC — Prince Edward-Hastings) said the whole approach was ridiculous, ramshackle and wrong from start to finish.

"We ask the prime minister to be a big enough man to say: 'We tried it, we don't think it is good and we will go back to the former method of making ministers available in the House at all times.'"

The former trade minister said anyone who had been in government knew that it was good for a minister to face questioning every day. It kept him sharper, far more on the job."

Donald MacInnis (PC — Cape Breton-East Richmond) at one point noted that only eight ministers were in the House and said this was a "mockery of Parliament."

Patrick Nowlan (PC — Annapolis Valley) said the system sounded logical, reasonable and businesslike in theory, but "it does not work."

Charles Drury, president of the treasury board, said the opposition criticized the plan only because it projected a picture of a government with a serious and sensible approach.

Hees, Minister Exchange Barbs

OTTAWA (CP) — Not all the language in Parliament is decorous. Witness this exchange in the Commons Friday.

Donald S. Macdonald, Privy Council president, was steering his spending estimates through the House when one of his points prompted George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) to observe:

"Stupidity annoys me very much indeed."

Mr. Macdonald replied:

"I must say to the honorable member . . . that while we find that quality in him we have always found it charming."

Later in the same debate Mr. Hees demanded of the minister:

"For heaven's sake stop preaching to the House."

Mr. Macdonald greeted this sally with:

"I have difficulty preaching to the honorable member, I wish he would open his ears as freely as he opens his mouth."

Mr. Hees ended the exchange by saying he was "opening my ears but I simply object to a lot of the nonsense you are saying."

The subject matter concerned the government's experiment to reduce ministerial attendance in the Commons during the daily question period. The opposition opposes the scheme.

QUEBEC (CP) — Hailed as the "future president of the sovereign republic of Quebec," separatist leader Rene Levesque Friday night urged his supporters to establish a new political party that would channel forces of revolt "for the good.

The 46-year-old former Quebec cabinet minister was greeted by a noisy three-minute standing ovation when he rose to address the four-day convention to unite his Mouvement Souverainete-Association and Gille Gregoires Ralliement National.

An estimated 1,000 persons, almost half of them observers, appeared for the four-hour opening-night ceremonies, which concluded with 35-minute speeches by Mr. Levesque and Mr. Gregoire.

Among the observers was Philippe Bey, director of the information service of the French consulate in Quebec City.

Exactly 600 resolutions aimed at furnishing the new party with a program, name and organization are to be considered at the founding convention whose theme is: A Party to be Founded, a Country to be Built.

In his opening address, Mr. Levesque deplored as pawns on the chessboard of Confederation, saying they have been played to their "collective emasculation by federalists.

"We are convinced that this regime is responsible for degrading us collectively to the point of making us wallow in the smug and resigned acceptance of a situation as a colonial and inferior minority.

He asked whether, at the basis of conflict and protest abroad in society, there is not "something resembling a general revolt against all rigid and often outdated structures in which human beings are cased without discussion.

He asked:

"Are we not watching the awakening of pawns who have had enough with feeling manipulated by chess players who consider themselves unquestionable?

"At the national level, the level of all the Quebec people, this is exactly the kind of revolt we should try to stir up. . . .

"Only the sovereignty of Quebec will get us out of this depressing mess. . . .

Mr. Levesque was introduced as the future president of the sovereign republic of Quebec after a speech by Mr. Gregoire that concluded with an attack on federal politicians.

Mr. Gregoire, a member of Parliament for six years, joked about one of the issues that could cause division during the convention—the question of education rights in a sovereign Quebec for the English-speaking minority.

Mr. Gregoire began a phrase by saying:

"We will also respect recognized minority groups such as the Eskimos and the Indians.

When he referred to Eskimos and Indians instead of the English-speaking minority, there was laughter and sustained applause.

The president of the Ralliement National, who agrees with Mr. Levesques attitude that English-language schools should receive state subsidies in a sovereign Quebec, said it is possible that there will be quarrelling on the language question.

Mr. Levesque founded the MSA after resigning in October, 1967, from the Quebec Liberal party which rejected separatism in all its forms.

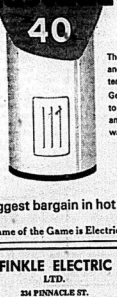
Computer Developed To Edit News Copy

NEW YORK (CP) — A computer program that cuts and edits newspaper copy at an editor's request has been developed by the American Newspaper Publishers Association research institute, it was announced Friday.

The program is called AMPAT—American Newspaper Publishers Abstracting Technique—and is the first known computer program that will, without human intervention, reduce a story to any desired length.

ANPA General Manager Stanford Smith says the program is a practical approach developed from growing computer technology to perform typically editorial functions.

In operation, a wire service teletypesetter tape is read into the computer. The program breaks the story down, evaluates importance of various parts and establishes an order.



The information is stored in the computer until an individual uses the keyboard to type in the size of the story desired. The computer then puts out a new story tape near desired length.

By analyzing each paragraph, the program determines its importance to the over-all story, dropping least important sentences until the desired length is attained.

Second Glance

By Viva Richmond Graham

AN HONORED HUMORIST

"To Leacock it was given to have always a cap and gown in his cupboard as well as a cap and bells. He frequently contrived to wear both costumes at once, with original and striking effect." — The London Times on Stephen Leacock, (1869-1944), regarding his career as humorist and economist.

A fascinating addition to Canada's list of historical sites was made this summer by the unveiling of a bronze plaque to designate the summer residence of Stephen Leacock, in Orillia. The rambling frame house, now restored, is open to visitors, where the recently acquired manuscript "Sunshine Sketches in a Small Town" for $21,000, is on display.

Thus it seemed rather appropos when a Belleville woman commented: "To find Stephen Leacock's books in the library of a small American mid-west town this summer was a pleasant surprise. It bridged and lessened the distance from home knowing that his sister, the late Mrs. William Burrowes, with her husband and four children lived on Dufferin Ave., in Belleville."

And so it was, we, in turn, spoke over the phone with Mr. Stephen Burrowes, R. R. 4, son of the late Mrs. Burrowes, who kindly replied in answer to our questions:

"Yes, my mother was the youngest of a family of 11 children, of which Uncle Stephen was the third child. He would always let mother know whenever he was travelling between Toronto and Montreal and mother would have a visit with him during the Belleville station stop, he being most fond of her, as the baby of the family.

"I really mostly remember him when we were children of nine, 10 or 11. Upon going to our cottage on Lake Simcoe, we would visit him at his cottage over at Orillia, where he used to take us fishing on his big launch well fitted with fishing gear. Those were boyhood summer red letter days. I remember him as a kindly uncle and fun to be with. It was not until later that we became aware of his literary achievements," concluded Mr. Burrowes.

As you may know the author was born at Swanmoor, Hampshire, England and when his parents came to Canada to settle on a farm near Lake Simcoe, he "decided to go with them". Educated at Upper Canada College and University of Toronto, he taught at the former Alma Mater for eight years, then attended the University of Chicago where in 1903 (after his marriage to Beatrix Hamilton in 1900 in The Little Church Around the Corner in New York) he received his PhD and joined the staff (permanently) of McGill University as an Economics professor. His first book was on a serious subject: "Elements of Political Science", and he once said:

"Many think I write humorous nothings in idle moments when the wearied brain is unable to perform serious labors of economics. Writing said instructive stuff . . . is easy enough. But to write something out of one's own mind, worth reading for its own sake, is an arduous contrivance to be achieved in fortunate moments, few and far between. Personally, I would rather have written Alice in Wonderland than the whole Encyclopedia."

Described as having a fine, grave face; a well - shaped head thatched with what one might call useful hair (without curl or wave); a deep vibrating voice, and a walk with a stride, Stephen Leacock in his stride became and is well remembered as one of "the greatest humorists of the age" by a grateful nation and the world alike.

There is an excellent bronze head of the author in the Public Library of Orillia, and there the Bank of Nova Scotia reprints and distributes to customers his sketch "My Financial Career" (1910) "When I go into a bank I get rattled," he wrote and relates how he opened an account with $56 and ended up by drawing it all out. "In 50s and sixes."

Club Activities

CANADA I.O.D.E.

The October meeting of Club Canaras Ladies' Auxiliary was held at the club room with 28 members present.

President Alice Storms conducted the meeting.

Vera Reynolds reported a much enjoyed fashion show. Donations will be sent to the poppy, cancer and heart fund.

Plans were made for the Christmas party.

The prizes were won by M. Spencer, Alice Storms, Mary Carmichael. The baby quilt was won by Mrs. Gordon Rose.

Meeting adjourned with Angice Haley's group in charge.

BELLEVILLE ARTS AND CRAFT CLUB

The Arts and Craft Club held its second meeting of the season on Wednesday, at the Belleville Recreational Centre 270 Pinnacle St., with the largest attendance for several seasons — which seems to prove that people are interested in hobbies to fill their leisure time.

Mrs. Ellen Peters of Odessa gave an interesting demonstration of candle making with some lovely candles on display depicting the various seasons and also, special occasions such as a wedding anniversary and many more.

ALPHA LAMBDA CHAPTER

The regular meeting of Alpha Lambda Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi was held at the home of Mrs. G. Hill with 13 members and four guests present.

Last minute details for the Black and Gold Ball to be held at Club Cedars, October 25 were discussed. The theme for the dance this year being "Reach for the Stars."

Plans were made to attend the fashion show next Wednesday presented by the Physicians' Wives Association.

Mrs. G. Hill introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Rodney Coyne who spoke on "Her Crowning Glory" from the booklet Beauty. His wife, Mrs. Coyne was the model to demonstrate the various techniques.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. P. Zakos.

Refreshments were served by the co-hostess, Mrs. F. Varney.

Open House Held at United Church Manse

An open house was held at the manse of Tabernacle United Church, recently when a large number of guests were received at the door by members of the United Church Women's group, who convened the event. They were also hostesses in the tea room.

All were welcomed by Rev. R. Crooks and Mrs. Crooks. Mrs. Chrisie Crooks was in charge of the guest book, while Miss Cathy Crooks and Jamie Crooks escorted the guests in viewing the various rooms.

Focal point of interest was the attractive tea table with lace cover and centred with an arrangement of roses, flanked by lighted tapers in silver holders. Beautiful bouquets of blooms were throughout the house.

Pouring tea in the afternoon were Mrs. A. D. Archibald, Mrs. R. Nelson, Mrs. William Slavin and Mrs. C. Templer, while in the evening, Mrs. J. Aitcheson, Mrs. K. Day, Miss E. Horton and Mrs. E. Cornish.

A number of the UCW assisted in the replenishing and serving both afternoon and evening.

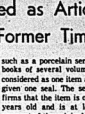
YOUR ANTIQUES

by Jack Jamieson

Antique Defined as Article Belonging to Former Times

What is an antique? The dictionary description, in common use since 1700, describes an antique as "belonging to former times; ancient, olden". Most people consider as antique any possession of a grandparent now deceased. The Department of National Revenue, has a double definition, defining as antique any article over 100 years old, or made before the first of January 1847.

For customs purposes, not more than 1-3 of the article can be repaired or replaced or otherwise it enters the category of a newly manufactured article (within the last 100 years), and hence subject to duty.



The Department specifically notes that spinets which have been made into dressing tables chairs made into settees, wardrobes converted to bookcases and silver mugs made into water jugs, are not antique, even though made originally before 1847. They are considered to be "substantially different from what they were when originally made and hence dutiable."

Antique items that have been "improved" are also subject to the customs ban. These include old plain furniture that has recently been carved or gilded, plain silver newly chased or engraved, old pictures largely repainted, old prints colored by hand. (Beware, they may be expensive to import) and in particular old sheffield plated silver that has been stripped and electroplated.

Before going on a trip to Europe or the United States it would be wise to check with Customs. Duty Free Forms require the endorsement of the vendor in many cases. Although your article may be duty free you must prove the fact. The Customs maintains a list of approved individuals and organizations considered as "authentic certifying authorities in respect of antiquities."

The British Antique Dealers' Association, of 20 Rutland Gate, London, England, is one. Their sign of membership is illustrated above (in gold leaf transfer) appears on all certified articles. Pairs of candlesticks of the same hallmark, or sets of articles such as a porcelain service or books of several volumes, are considered as one item and are given one seal. The seal confirms that the item is over 100 years old and is at least 80 per cent of the original article.

The Sign of Membership

In Europe the Syndicat National des Antiquaires, 11 rue Jean - Mermoz (VIIIe) Paris, France, provides the same service. To a lesser degree the Arts and Antique Dealers League of America, 807 Lexington Avenue, New York, certifies antiques as to age. Each authority charges a fee (often incorporated in the price of the article by a member dealer) but the saving in duty from the certification may be many times the nominal sum charged. The seal certifies the age, not the original maker, owner, designer, painter, or the quality of the item. The services of an expert (also at a fee) are required for appraisal and generally should be sought if the item is expensive or an estate is involved.

NEED MORE BLOOD

BOSTON (AP) — The Red Cross says one mobile blood donation unit, expected to obtain 100 pints of blood, produced only 10 — and six were from its own staff. The agency says that's only one illustration of a serious state-wide shortage of blood. It says collections have dropped to less than 300 pints daily compared with the 800 hospitals need.

Engagement Notice

WENDY WEBSTER — ROSS A. JEFFREY

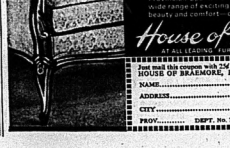
Mr. and Mrs. John S. Webster, Belleville, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Wendy Jean, to Ross Allan Jeffrey, son of Mrs. C. Jeffrey, Napanee, and the late Mr. Clarence Jeffrey. The marriage will take place at Tabernacle United Church on Saturday, November 16, 1968 at 4 p.m.

IODE Bursary Winners

The October meeting of St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. was held at the home of Mrs. J. W. Hepburn on Bleecker Avenue. The Regent, Mrs. K. J. Macdonald, welcomed the members. Plans were made to attend the district dinner to be held in Picton on Tuesday, October 22. A bus will transport anyone interested in attending.

There will be a rummage sale on October 25, held jointly with the Argyll Chapter.

Mrs. R. C. Ellis, educational secretary announced that the Grade 13 St. Julien Chapter IODE bursary of $100 has been awarded to Donald Cattin of Nicholson Catholic College, who is at present enrolled in pre-med at Ottawa University. Also a bursary of $100 to a graduate of the grade 12 four-year course has been awarded to William de Jong, Moira Secondary School, who is at present attending Sir Sandford Fleming College in Peterborough.



Mrs. Ellis gave an interesting report on the semi-annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter of the IODE held in September in Sudbury. The theme speech given by Mrs. W. R. Morrison, president of the Ontario Chapter entitled "You Are Doing Something", cited the need for help to under - developed countries, and said the IODE must do its part in helping both Canadian citizens and immigrants, as well as those in other countries, to improve standards of living. She asked that all chapters individually, involve themselves in some helpful project. "It is not enough simply to want to help, action must be taken. It is better to light one candle, than to curse the darkness", she said.

Mrs. Ellis reported that a total of $128,000 was given by the IODE in the Province of Ontario, to assist students last year.

The next meeting will be held on November 4 at the home fo Mrs. S. Kvarda.

SHEEP LEAVE SHOP

PORT WASHINGTON, B.C. (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Gofford Hobday have made room for more bric-a-brac in their Canadian shop, called the Jabberwocky by selling the sheep that used to wander through the barn-housed shop. They run it as a sideline along with a small farm on North Pender Island.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Hurry up, Susie. I'm late already. Let me put your clothes on. Don't you want to be dressed for breakfast?"

Susie: "No."

The 2-year-old often reacts negatively to orders and hates to be rushed. Give her some choices of action when possible and you may be able to avert the seemingly inevitable "no."

Mother: "Would you like to wear the blue dress or the red one today? After you're dressed, you can help me set the table for breakfast if you would like to."

Job of Housewife Can Be Described as Awe-inspiring

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Mothers —And Others: The following letter comes to us from the Department of Public Welfare in Fresno, California, and is reproduced by permission of Auspice, Inc.: M-O-T-H-E-R

Translated into the jargon of big business, the job of housewife can be awe-inspiring indeed!

A few months ago, when I was picking up the children at school, another mother I know well rushed up to me. Emily was fuming with indignation.

"Do you know what you and I are?" She demanded.

Before I could answer — and I didn't really have one handy — she blurted out the reason for her question. It seemed she had just returned from renewing her driver's license. Asked by the woman recorder to state her occupation, Emily had hesitated, uncertain how to classify herself.

"What I mean", explained the recorder, "is — do you have a job or are you just a...."

"Of course I have a job," snapped Emily, "I'm a mother!"

The recorder smiled indulgently. Then she wrote: "Occupation: Housewife."

"Oh, no", protested Emily, "I'd rather be listed as a mother."

"We don't list mother as an occupation. 'Housewife' covers it", said the recorder emphatically.

I forgot all about her story until one day I found myself in the same situation, this time at our own town hall. The clerk was obviously a career woman, poised, efficient and possessed of a high-sounding title like "official interrogator" or "Town Registrar."

"And what is your occupation?" she probed.

What made me say it. I do not know. The words simply popped out. "I'm a research

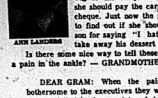
The clerk paused, ball-point pen frozen in mid-air, and looked up as though she had not heard right. I repeated the title slowly, emphasizing the most significant words. Then I stared with wonder as my pompous pronouncement was written in bold, black ink on the official questionnaire.

"Might I ask", said the clerk with new interest, "just what do you do in your field?"

Coolly, without any trace of fluster in my voice, I heard myself reply, "I have a continuing program of research (what mother doesn't!) in the laboratory and in the field (normally I would have said 'indoors and out'). I'm working for my masters (the whole darned family!) and already have four credits (all daughters). Of course, the job is one of the most demanding in the humanities (any mother care to disagree?) and I often work a 14-hour day (24-hour is more like it!) but the job is more challenging than most run-of-the-mill careers and the rewards are in satisfaction rather than just money."

There was in increasing note of respect in the clerk's voice as she completed the form, stood up and personally ushered me to the door.

As I drive into our driveway, buoyed up by my glamorous new career, I was greeted by my 'Lab' assistants — age 13, seven and three. And upstairs I could hear our new experimental model (six months) in the child-development program, testing out a new vocal pattern.



I felt triumphant. I had scored a beat on bureaucracy and I had gone down on the official records as someone more distinguished and indispensable to mankind than "just another..."

Home — what a glorious career! Especially when there is a title on the door!

(My hat is off to all such research associates! — Doris.)

Ann Landers

Wives' Daily Calls Irk Office Worker

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I work in an office for four high-powered business executives. Their wives call on the average of four times a day. This means, roughly, 16 calls. The nature of their calls is so ridiculous I can hardly believe my ears. One wants to know if he prefers lamb or veal for supper. The next one is asking if she should wear the straight hair wig or the curly one. Another idiot asks if she should pay the carpenter with cash or by cheque. Just now the president's wife called to find out if she should hit their 2-year-old son for saying "I hate you" or should they take away his dessert and TV privileges.

Is there some nice way to tell these women their calls are a pain in the ankle? — GRANDMOTHER FOLEY.

DEAR GRAM: When the pain becomes sufficiently bothersome to the executives they will let the little Women know. Until then, keep quiet and do what you are paid to do.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several years ago I married a boy of whom my parents disapproved. Rock and I were married four years and had a little girl. I divorced Rock but we still saw each other from time to time. When he left the country for two years I missed him very much and so did our little girl.

Now that Rock is back I'm sure I am in love with him as I never was before. My parents are driving me crazy. They say he is still a no good bum and if I remarry him I will be sorry. My father insists you can't change the spots on a leopard.

True or not? — UNDECIDED LADY IN LEXINGTON.

DEAR LADY: True — you can't change the spots on a leopard. But I didn't get the impression you were considering remarrying the leopard. I thought it was a man. People can and do change. If you and Rock want to remarry, the decision should be yours and yours alone.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A friend of mine has attached herself to me like a mustard plaster. She telephones every morning and asks, "What are you doing today?" If I say, "I am going shopping," she says, "I'll come along." If I say, "I'm going to the movies or to the art gallery, or to a rummage sale," she says, "I'll come along."

I can't play card game or a couple of friends in for coffee without inviting her, too. She knows every move I make. Don't tell me to drop her because she would give me the shirt off her back. When I need someone to take my kids, she's Johnny-on-the-spot. When I was sick she nursed me around the clock. What do you suggest? — HEMMED IN.

DEAR HEM: If you really want to be rid of this mustard plaster — I mean friend — stop asking her to do favors, like taking care of your kids and nursing you around the clock. When you are no longer obligated, you will feel free to live your own life. Until then it's going to be more of the same, and you can bet on it.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Lunchbox Sandwich Ideas

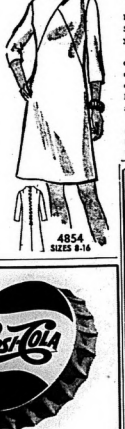
By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: . . It seems to me that one night a week of lunch sandwich making would be less irritating than having to go to the kitchen the last thing every night to pack my daughter's and husband's lunches. — R. Mch.

ANSWER: Yours to command.

Lunchbox Sandwich Ideas—May Be Frozen

—Nearly Enough Ideas for One Week



HARD-COOKED EGG SANDWICHES

Cover 4 eggs with cold water cover and bring to boil and turn off heat. Let stand for 20 minutes to hard-cook. Chill in cold water. Peel off shells and chop or grind hard - cooked eggs. Add ½ cup genuine mayonnaise, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons mustard relish or green bel dog relish, 1 teaspoon chopped green onion. NOTES: 1) If you do not have the relish on hand use 1 tablespoon French mustard instead. 2) Chopped salad olives are a good addition too. Mix all of whatever you choose well. This amount will fill six 2-slice sandwiches. Spread 6 slices of bread with butter. Spread remaining six slices with egg filling. Put pairs together. Cut each in half (or quarter) and wrap each in wax paper or saran. Using two plastic bags of same size, slip one inside the other to make a double-strength bag. Slip wrapped sandwiches inside. Add a note telling what the bag contains. Fold top of bags over four times, clip the fold together and freeze.

Variations: Ham: You can use the same proportions of additions for ground ham sandwiches. If you have a ham for Sunday dinner cut off enough from the shank end to make 2 cups. Lightly packed, when ground. Use it instead of the four hard-cooked eggs in above recipe. Make up in white, rye or whole wheat bread, slice and wrap and label and freeze as above.

CHICKEN: Substitute 2 cups lightly packed ground boiled or roast chicken for the eggs in above but omit mustard pickle or mustard and add finely chopped celery instead. Make up, wrap, label and freeze as above.

City Parks Board Hasn't Any Use For Landmarks

The Belleville Parks Board has no more use for two city landmarks which have been utilized over the years.

The two no longer wanted structures are the Orr house on Cannifton Road, Riverside Park, and the now unused city dog pound at the fairgrounds.

At their regular meeting yesterday board members recommended that both structures be demolished.

Earlier consideration had been given to the possibility of the former fairgrounds dog pound being retained as a washroom for use during Belleville Fair. But it was decided that with the washrooms in the new recreational building there would be adequate facilities for fair time use.

Also it was learned that the proposed widening of Bridge Street would make it necessary to move the building and parks board members felt the expense would not be warranted for a building which would be used only a few days out of the year.

But the board decision with respect to the Orr House will be a disappointment to several activity groups in the city.

The hope of the parks board was that the old Cannifton Road landmark could be renovated and see use by recreational groups.

However, lack of money in the parks board budget ruled out the planned renovation and board members felt, retaining the building merely for storage use would not be advisable.

Couples Honored On Anniversary

A double wedding anniversary was held recently at Melrose Hall, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fobert, North Front Street, Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. John Golden Everett Street, also of Belleville.

Both couples were married October 4, 1941, at St. Michael's Church, Belleville, and have resided in this area ever since. On arrival they were honored with a turkey buffet dinner in their honor.

The centre table was adorned with two three-tier wedding cakes, making a very beautiful setting. Tea was poured by Mrs. Dianne Golden, Mrs. Theresa Harper, the Misses Elaine Golden and Barbara Latham. After dinner, dancing was enjoyed by all.

The two couples were presented with a purse of money by Mr. Francis Tuepah of Oshawa, brother-in-law of the couples, who also read the address. Lunch was later served, and the two couples left amid showers of good wishes for many years to come.

Bissell Reported as Unhappy Over Reaction to Reforms

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Claude T. Bissell, University of Toronto president, considered resigning last week over what he believed was lack of student and faculty support for his reform attempts.

The newspaper says the 52-year-old president felt that rejection by faculty and student groups of his outline of a commission on university structure showed lack of confidence in his administration.

It says that an unconfirmed account has Dr. Bissell being reprimanded by "at least one" member of the board of governors for referring to his "presidential commission."

Dr. Bissell has indicated he would like to eliminate the board of governors in favor of an administrative board of teachers and students.

The commission Dr. Bissell proposed would recommend disbanding the board, the newspaper says.

As outlined by Dr. Bissell, the commission would have representatives of the faculty, student body, the administration and the board of governors.

When he took the plan to the Students' Administrative Council and the Association of Teaching Staff for endorsement, the newspaper says, Dr. Bissell was rebuked.

Both groups voted that board of governors' members should not have voting rights on the reform commission.

A proposal that the president himself be excluded from voting was backed by the SAC but rejected by ATS.

The president felt these bodies had rebuffed him, the Gobe and Mail says, and left him without a mandate of support from the student body and faculty that he felt imperative in his dealings with the board over the sensitive issue.

About 18 faculty members met Dr. Bissell in his office last Tuesday the newspaper reports, to try to convince him he had the faculty's support.

The board has put off further action on establishment of the reform commission until its Oct. 24 meeting.

Dr. Bissell decided to face the board earlier this week with the decisions of SAC and ATS, the faculty group, the newspaper says.

Dr. Bissell was unavailable Friday night for comment.

A CAPITAL FUNDS CAMPAIGN
FOR IMPROVEMENTS TO "CAMP SAGONASKA"

WHAT IS "CAMP SAGONASKA" ?

It is a campsite consisting of 25 acres, located in Col. Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area along the Moira River, near Thomasburg. This campsite was secured on a long term lease from the Conservation Authority in 1959.

Over the years the site has been improved greatly, trees planted and a permanent shelter for dining and recreation was erected.

OUTDOOR CAMPING

FATHER - SON ACTIVITIES

HOW MANY BOYS USE THE CAMP ?

During the 1966-1967 camping season over 400 boys camped for weekends or longer periods, representing 3,000 camper-days.

The campside was also used for training adult leaders and for Scouts travelling through the Province and from United States points.

WHO PAYS THE CAMP COSTS ?

Operating costs of the camp are borne by the Belleville District Council, Boys Scouts of Canada. Belleville and District Community Services Fund provides most of these funds.

WHAT WILL FUNDS RAISED BE USED FOR ?

Funds raised from Boy Scout Apple Day will be used for the following purposes:-

Building of six winterized shelters.

These will be used for Cub Camping, both winter and summer.

Landscape work (bulldozing) to level grounds for recreation and campsites for camping in tents by Boy Scouts and young men in the Venturers and Rovers.

BCI's Brian Harder Escapes Penalties Costly

Moira Edges BCI

It was a good one to watch, a tough one to play, and a hard one to lose for BCI Friday afternoon as Moira Secondary emerged the only undefeated Bay of Quinte Class "A" team by felling the big black squad 14-6.

Denis Gosselin pounded the single coffin nail into the BCI twelve with less than three minutes to go in the match between the only two undefeated teams in the league.

Gosseline punted out of the end zone for the solitary point which won the game. The winners had moved the ball front their own end of the field to the 45-yd. line of BCI through a major effort by fullback Dalton Lambert.

Then the referees took [illegible]

BCI fullback Steve Ling thought he'd recovered the ball on a Moira fumble, but the officials ruled otherwise. Hard words cost BCI 15 yards. Another player, obviously disagreeing with the call, kicked an official's flag which had gone down.

Another 15 yards for Moira.

Earlier in the game, BCI came close to notching up the only major of the contest when Brian Harder tossed the bomb to John Cholmers who'd lined up as split end, but the officials ruled Chalmers was in the backfield, not on the line, and an illegal procedure penalty called back the touchdown.

With few scoring opportunities, defence was the key to enjoyment of the game. BCI was at a disadvantage with injuries sidelining Elgin Wyatt and Mark Lucas, defensive linemen.

Coach Gerry Smith of Moira complimented his defence, singling out Harry Smith, defensive captain, for special praise. "Harry called a good game," the young coach said. "We stunt our defence a bit and it takes some brains to call the plays, Dalton Lambert was the offensive spark and our offensive linemen played their best game. But I could really give you 22 other names if you want the whole story."

In the other holiday weekend tilt, Centennial Secondary topped Picton 14-6 at Picton on the senior level and 43-6 in the junior game.

Bill Thompson, Centennial's doubleduty fullback who also serves as interior linebacker, punched home the first major for the CSS twelve. Thompson took the ball over in the second stanza on a 20-yd run. Ken Bertrand converted to make it 7-0 Centennial at the half.

Picton started a march from its own end in the third quarter and drove it till the way in for the losers' only tally. The conversion was missed.

Steve Buckles, speedy halfback for the winners, scored from the three-yd. line in the fourth quarter to nail it down at the eight minute mark. His major was set up by a 25-yd. run by halfback Brian Cook. The convert was bad, but Bertrand made it up with a 35-yd. punt out of the end zone late in the final quarter to make it 24-6.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The International Olympic Committee made it clear Friday to the 324 countries competing in the Olympics that athletes guilty of taking dope or stimulants will be thrown out of the Games. The medical commission of the IOC said: "Sanctions will not be applied until after consultation with the medical doctor of the team and the corresponding international federation." This is the way the IOC medical commission spelled out the regulations regarding doping: "The categories will be selected on a technical basis formulated by the international federations and by drawing lots on the morning of the event."

In other senior season openers, Barrie Flyers gave 1,105 home fans a 7-3 victory over Galt Hornets while Collingwood Kings dumped the visiting Oakville Oaks 3-1. Oaks defenceman Byrle Klinck was struck in the left eye with a puck early in the third period. He was carried unconscious from the ice and taken to hospital in Kitchener. There was no immediate report on his condition. Tonight Kingston is at Galt in the only game scheduled. The action Sunday nights is at Oakville and Orillia where the visiting teams are Woodstock and Barrie respectively.

NEW YORK (AP) — Nino Benvenuti, the world middleweight boxing champion, will defend his title against Don Fullmer of Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 23 in Sao Remo, Italy, it was announced Friday. The Italian champ outpointed Fullmer in a 12-round non-title bout in Rome on Feb. 4, 1965.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco Giants have named Clyde King, manager of their Phoenix farm club during the last season, as manager of the National League baseball team, succeeding Herman Franks. King's appointment had been rumored for months. Franks took over the club from Alvin Dark and led it to four straight second-place finishes.

BCI Booters Win

The BCI booters cooped their fourth consecutive win of the season this week as they topped BCI 1-0. The BCI Juniors stalled Moira's junior attack in the second game of the afternoon with a 0-0 double shutout.

Wednesday's soggy game saw BCI come back in the second half after being plagued with stiff sides, free Moira kicks, and generally giving their coach headaches.

Ankle-deep mud slowed the play in both halves, but the BCI kickers game around the Moira defenders in control the ball enough to allow outside right Cresswell to bounce it off a Moira player into the net for the only goal of the game.

East Nationals Want Revenge

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's eastern national hockey team will be looking for revenge when it meets the western Nationals here Tuesday night.

In their final encounter of last season the Winnipeg-based westerners whipped their eastern counterparts 8-2.

This feeling of optimism which pervades the Nationals training camp is due to the return of seven veterans and the addition of several promising rookies.

Heading the list is centre Terry Caffery, 19, who spent three seasons with Toronto Marlboros and defencemen Ab deMarco, 20, of the Kitchener Rangers junior team.

About Caffery, Bownass said: "The Winnipeg team has Frank Huck but we have Terry, who has great moves despite having less experience than Huck.

"I think deMarco was one of the two best junior defencemen in Canada last year and with Paul Conlin he'll give us a lot of strength on the blue line."

Bownass has brought in forwards Rod Zaine and Don Davidson from Clinton of the Eastern Hockey League and Conlin and Jean Casson, both experienced in international competition for Canada's representative.

The western Nationals lost six veterans to the professionals but still came up with two recent veterans over St. Louis Blues of the NHL.

Jim Pappin in for Hull; Mikita Comes to Terms

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jim Pappin may never replace Bobby Hull, but it looks as if he will be a valuable addition to Chicago Black Hawks.

Pappin, obtained by Chicago in an off-season trade with Toronto Maple Leafs, scored two goals Friday night as the Black Hawks opened the National Hockey League season with a 4-3 victory against St. Louis Blues.

The victory and Pappin's fine debut temporarily cheered Chicago fans, who were jolted Thursday by the retirement of Hull, one of hockey's great stars.

Hull, 29, announced his retirement after the Chicago management refused his request for a reported $100,000 contract. Centre Stan Mikita, another holdout, came to terms just before the game for an estimated $70,000.

Elsewhere Boston Bruins defeated Detroit Red Wings 4-2 at Boston and Minnesota North Stars downed Oakland Seals 5-3 at Oakland. It was the first game of the schedule for all teams.

The 29-year-old Pappin spent most of last season in hot water with manager-coach Punch Imlach of Toronto. The Sudbury, Ont., product was traded to the Black Hawks for veteran defenceman Pierre Pilote.

It was expected that Pappin would play on a line with Hull and Pit Martin this season, but Hull's retirement ended that possibility.

Helping Pappin with one goal apiece were Martin and Ken Wharram. Gary Sabourin, Craig Cameron and Red Berenson tallied for the Blues. finalists in last season's Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Blues and Hawks fought to a 2-2 first-period tie, but Chicago pulled ahead 4-3 in the second.

Sabourin's goal after 21 seconds of the second period gave St. Louis a one-goal margin, but Pappin scored his second goal of the contest at 1:52 to even the score.

Other Bruins goals came from Fred Stanfield, Ed Westfall and Dallas Smith. Gordie Howe and Frank Mahovlich, expected to form two thirds of Detroit's best line, scores, for the Red Wings. Howe's goal, at 13:45 of the middle period, gave Boston a 3-1 lead. Orr passed to the Boston centre after intercepting a pass and carrying the puck across the Detroit blueline.

Detroit pulled to within one goal at 17:02 of the final period when Mahovlich connected on a rebound from Howe. The Bruins added an insurance goal with 11 seconds left when Smith fired a 60-footer into the Detroit net which had been deserted by goaltender Roger Crozier.

Howe's goal was the 689th of his NHL career and it came on a power play at 14:20 of the opening period.

NHL referee-in-chief Scotty Morrison made his first appearance in a game in five years when referee Vern Buffey was forced out of action with a torn hamstring muscle in his right leg.

Scoring for Minnesota were Larry Hillman, Jean-Paul Parise, Ray Cullen, Bill Goldsworthy and Bob McCord. Gerry Ehman had the only goal for Oakland, occupants of last place in the Western Division last season.

Six more games are scheduled during the holiday weekend, two tonight and four Sunday.

Montreal Canadiens play Pittsburgh Penguins in Pittsburgh and Los Angeles Kings meet St. Louis at St. Louis tonight.

Sunday, Toronto Maple Leafs visit Detroit, New York Rangers are at Chicago, Philadelphia Flyers journey to Boston and Los Angeles plays at Oakland.

Mo-Hawks Fall to Orillia

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

If the Belleville Mo-Hawks thought they had seen the last of the Toronto Marlboros, they had a three-goal shock in store for them in last night's season's opener against the Orillia Terriers.

Linemates Grant Moore and "Moe" Galand — both members of last year's OHA Senior "A" leading Marlboro entry — accounted for all the visitors' scoring as the Terriers dumped the Mo-Hawks 3-1.

One of the nine relocated members of the now defunct Marlies, goaltender Gerry McNamara, stopped all but one of 30 Mo-Hawk shots aimed his way — the exception being playing-coach Dave Jones' low drive from in close to give the locals a 1-0 first-period edge.

The Mo-Hawks held their lead — and their own — until just past the 13-minute mark in a hard-hitting second period, when Moore caught the Belleville defence napping, broke in alone on Larry Holmes, and tied the score with a rising shot into an upper corner.

The goal seemed to deflate the log-weary locals, who were beginning to show the signs of their brief 11-day training camp.

By the time the third period rolled around, there wasn't an energetic Mo-Hawk in sight, and the two teams went through the motions while many of the spectators left.

The only monotony-breaker was Moore's second goal, tucked behind Holmes on a neat passing play from Galand, who had decoyed a Mo-Hawk defender.

A power-play opportunity in the game's final five minutes made the Mo-Hawks' shortage of steam well nigh impossible to ignore.

With Belleher off for interfering with "Moe" Hunter, the Mo-Hawks couldn't capitalize on their one-player advantage, and failed to muster a testing shot in McNamara's direction at times even having difficulty getting out of their own end.

A similar fate befell the Mo-Hawk lineup for the 1968-69 schedule debut was goalie Larry Holmes, who stopped 32 Orillia shots, including an early first period screened drive by Draper, a couple of long-range tempts in the second by the Galand-Milroy-Moore line, and Varl's point-blank screamer midway through the final stanza.

Doug Murray avoided some badly needed muscle for the Mo-Hawks at the blueline. In a lengthy second period, Jones, Goyer, and Wilton all limped off the ice after bone-jarring Terrier tackles.

Goyer aggravated a shoulder injury, and left the game, but playing-coach Jones said it would not likely keep him out of the lineup.

Canada Set for Swimming

Olympic Games Open Under Heavy Guard

Mexican sprinter Enriqueta Basilio becomes the first woman to light the Olympic flame when she carries the torch into the 80,000-seat stadium here on the last lap of its journey from Mount Olympus in Greece.

The ceremonial opening was the most heavily guarded in Olympic history. The army and the police were out in force.

The Mexican capital has been calm since a student fiareup last week that brought the death toll in recent riots to more than 50.

The Canadian swimming team boasts two strong contenders for individual honors in Elaine Tanner, 17, of Vancouver and Winnipeg, and Ralph Hutton, 20, of Ocean Falls, B.C., and is expected to put on a strong performance in the relays. Hutton will compete in four individual and two relay races.

Next to swimming, Canadian medal chances appear brightest in shooting, equestrian events, yachting and rowing. The nation look for Canada in track and field, biggest sport of the Games, is bleak.

After today's ceremonial opening of the first Olympics to be held in Latin America, competition begins Sunday in track and field, rowing, boxing, weightlifting, field hockey, soccer, basketball, volleyball and the modern pentathlon.

Swimming competition begins Thursday.

Not since 1912 has Canada won a gold medal in swimming, and not since 1928 has it won any medals in the sport. George Hodgson of Montreal took three gold medals in freestyle events in the 1912 Games.

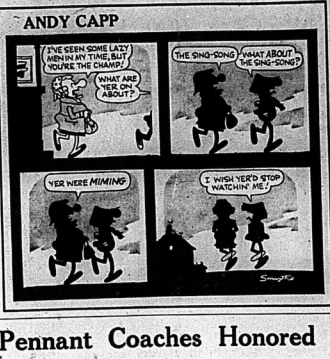
No Canadin waman has ever won a swimming medal.

It will be one of the major surprises of the Games if this long drought does not come to an end here. Miss Tanner is a heavy favorite in the 100-metre backstroke, and could also win laurels in the 200-metre backstroke and the 100-metre butterfly.

Hutton will go after medals in freestyle races over 200, 400 and 1,500 metres, and the 200 backstroke as well as two relays.

Hutton holds the world record of four minutes, 6.5 seconds in the 400-metre freestyle, but he will face stiff competition here from U.S. swimmers and Mexico's Guillermo Echevarria.

The U.S. team is expected to win between 25 and 30 of the 33 events on the swimming and diving program. But the extent of Canada's progress in the sport in the last several years is indicated by the fact that it now is rated on or near the level of East and West Germany, the Soviet Union and Australia.



Canadian oarsmen hope to continue a record of success going back to 1956. They have won at least one medal in each of the last three Olympics.

Canada's eight-oared crew, from the St. Catharines, Ont., Rowing Club, faces tough competition from West Germany and Czechoslovakia in its first heat Sunday.

As usual, the big-power competition between the United States and the Soviet Union will be one of the major themes of the Games. East and West Germany, split into separate teams for the first time, are expected to be the best of the rest, as they were at Tokyo in 1964 and Rome in 1960.

The Americans are confident of dominating track and swimming to such an extent that they will pile up a bigger total of medals than the more versatile Russian contingent, which has powerful entries in nearly all the 19 sports on the Olympic program here.

The only track final Sunday will be the 10,000 metres, which boasts an exceptionally strong field of runners from five continents. Among the favorites are Ron Clarke of Australia, Naftali Temu of Kenya, Juergen Haase of East Germany, Alvaro Mejia of Colombia and Juan Ramirez of Mexico.

Tri-Cat Defence Ready

EFC Title in Balance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Tiger-Cats have enjoyed more than their share of success in the Canadian Football throughout the years thanks to a tough, efficient defence.

So it's no surprise that the Tiger-Cats have been concentrating on defence in preparation for Sunday's important Eastern Football Conference encounter against Ottawa Rough Riders at Hamilton.

That game and one today at Toronto between the Argonauts and British Columbia Lions will decide which team finishes the holiday weekend on top of the EFC.

The Rough Riders lead with 13 points, one more than Hamilton and Toronto.

Rookie Hamilton-head coach Joe Restic said Friday his team must contain the explosive Ottawa offence to be victorious Sunday.

"Maximum rush is important against a quarterback like Russ Jackson," Restic said in an interview. "We have to try to prevent them controlling the football and we've got to control it when we get it.

"If we play as well as we did in the playoffs last year, we'll be alright."

The Hamilton head coach said he plans no lineup changes.

In a previous meeting this season, the Tiger-Cats failed to contain Jackson and his associates. The Ottawa quarterback completed 20-of 31 passes to lead the Rough Riders to a 33-12 win.

But after a poor start, the Tiger-Cats appear to be improving and are once again solid challengers for the EFC title.

Parker retired after completing the 1966 season with the Argos. But despite his sometimes spirited play, the Lions are in tgouble.

They trail the third-place Edmonton Eskimos by six points in the race for the third and final playoff spot in the WFC.

Today's game will be carried nationally by the CBC-TV network starting at 2:30 p.m. Monday's game between Montreal Alouettes and the Lions in Montreal is scheduled to be carried nationally by CTV starting at 2 p.m.

Toronto head coach Leo Cahill said Friday that rookie import linebacker Ken Corbin might make his debut in the Toronto lineup today. If Corbin is used, an import will be released. Defensive ends Bob Taylor and Bob Petrich and flanker Neil Smith are said to be prime material for cutting.

Pennant Coaches Honored

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayo Smith, who led Detroit Tigers to their first American League pennant in 23 years, and Red Schoendienst, who directed St. Louis Cardinals to their second straight National League crown, were named Managers of the Year Friday in the annual Associated Press poll.

It was the second straight year Schoendienst, 45, won the award in the balloting by United States sports writers and sportscasters while Smith succeeded Dick Williams of Boston Red Sox in the AL.

Smith received 135 votes to 28 for runner-up Ralph Houk of New York Yankees. Schoendienst also easily outpolled his nearest rival, getting 129 votes to 36 for Leo Durocher of Chicago Cubs.

Calgary Protecting Lead

'Riders Challenging

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The injury bug, which seems to have a special taste for members of Calgary Stampeders, has made only hit-and-run appearances in the Western Football Conference this season.

The Stampeders, protecting a one-point margin in the battle for first place in the WFC, are scheduled to meet Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina Monday, Saskatchewan, one point behind Calgary, is unbeaten in six home games this season.

In another important contest during the Thanksgiving weekend, Winnipeg Blue Bombers will need a victory on their home field over Edmonton Eskimos Sunday to remain alive in the race for the third and final playoff position.

The Bombers, with five games remaining, trail the Eskimos by seven points.

British Columbia Lions, one point ahead of Winnipeg, are scheduled to play in Toronto Saturday against the Argonauts and in Montreal Monday against the Alouettes. If Edmonton wins Saturday, the Lions will have to take both interlocking games to improve their playoff hopes.

The Stampeders, who still remember that November day in 1967 when Terry Evanshen broke his left ankle in a playoff game with Saskatchewan, have had relatively few injuries this year, although Ted Woods and Gerry Shaw missed a few games with knee injuries.

Williams says the club is in "good physical shape and everyone is in for playing form" for Monday's clash. In their last battle, the Stampeders rallied from a four-point deficit late in the game and scored a 38-35 decision over the Roughriders.

In 1966, injuries struck Calgary in rapid succession with Lovell Coleman, Jim Furlong, Herm Harrison, Shaw and Dick Suderman, all missing a good part of the season. The injury problem was not as bad last year, but Jeff Atcheson and Furlong missed several games.

The Roughriders, also in good shape, became familiar with the injury bug in 1967 when Al Benecick, Garner Ekstran and Jim Worden were among Saskatchewan players to miss several games. Worden missed all but two games of the 1967 season but returned to star for the Roughriders in the playoffs and the Grey Cup.

The Eskimos, who will be without fullback Art Perkins Saturday, will dress three quarterbacks and may use them all, coach Neill Armstrong said.

The Sunday game in Winnipeg, starting at 3:30 p.m. EDT will be televised by the CTV national network. In a rare television double-header Monday, the CTV western network will switch to Regina when the B.C.-Montreal game ends. The Regina game has a 6 p.m. EDT starting time.

Centennial Set For 1969 Track

The dedication of Quinte Secondary School's new $12,000 track Wednesday afternoon was a preview of the spring of 1969.

Six local schools took part in a limited track meet on the new track and the results were a pretty good indication of how the wind's going to be blowing in track circles this spring.

Centennial Secondary took four firsts in nine individual events and one first in six relays. Trenton took two in the individual events and three in the relays. QSD took one first in the individual events and Picton took one while Glen Easton, back for a visit from the Royal Military College in Kingston, took the open mile.

Quinte won one relay.

The individual events at the shortened meet included Juvenile, Midget, and Open 100 yd. dashes, 440-yd. dashes, and mile runs. There were 440-yd. relays and mile relays in the three classes.

Results of the meet:

Midget 440 Relay — Trenton (:57.3).

Open 440 Relay — Quinte (:57.8); Juvenile Mile Relay — Trenton (4:51.2); Midget Mile Relay — Trenton (4:30.9); Open Mile Relay — Centennial (3:51.0).

Handguns

The first indoor shoot of the Quinte Marksmen club was held Oct. 8 and the following were the top scores for the night.

Don Parks 246; J. Heimbach 235; R. Charlton 231; R. Read 216; P. Bailey 141.

Training Time's Short for the Juniors

Sunday afternoon will show whether those leg lifts at the nightly practice of the Morrison Realty Junior "B" hockey team did any good. The juniors open their pre-season exhibition schedule Sunday at 2 p.m. against the Kingston Frontenacs at the Belleville Arena.

Nigerian UN Ambassador Denies Genocide Charges

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A ringing declaration by Nigeria Friday that it has the right and duty to quell the rebellion in its former Eastern region brought to a high point the Biafra discussion which has been going on within the framework of United Nations General Assembly debate.

Okoi Arikpo, Nigeria's external affairs commissioner, denied accusations of genocide levelled at the federal regime, citing the "impartial reports of international observers," including one from Canada.

He declared his government would spare no effort in rebuilding its national life, including the provision of food, medicine and clothing—and that it welcomed outside assistance.

"My government has never and will never stand in th eway of any humanitarian organization or men of goodwill who genuinely want to help us in alleviating the sufferings of the civilian victims of our internal conflict," he said. "My government assures them of its continued service and full co-operation."

He immediately added a warning, apparently aimed at anyone providing aid outside the framework approved by the Lagos government, which on Sept. 3 gave the International Red Cross official permission to move supplies by air, sea or land to afflicted areas.

"We do insist," he said, "on full respect for Nigeria's sovereignty and territorial integrity.

"We also demand strict adherence to the established norms of international law and behavior in the fields of international co-operation and humanitarian assistance."

Arikpo deplored the impression given, through "skilful propaganda" and "distortions by certain sections of the world press," that the conflict was being waged to inflict dest hand starvation on women and children. . . .

"References to the so-called 'tragedy of Biafra,' the so-called amount to a flagrant violation of the basic principle of non-intervention in the internal affairs of member states."

The phrases quoted by Arikpo came directly from the UN speech of Foreign Minister Michel Debre of France on Monday, although Arikpo did not say so.

Arikpo declared "Biafra" is neither a political entity nor even a geographical location. The former Eastern region contained more than 2,500,000 persons not of the Ibo tribe, the basic element in the secession move.

Arikpo said the rebellion is nearly ended, with more than two-thirds of Eastern Nigeria now back in federal hands. He said an Ibo is administering the liberated area and other Ibos man all the law enforcement agencies in the area.

"The civilian Ibo populations, now realizing the barrenness of rebel propaganda, are coming out in large numbers to co-operate with the federal authorities and indicating their willingness to take their rightful places in the federation."

Rumor Discounted By Health Officer

A rumor to the effect that several cases of trench mouth had broken out in the Rossmore area was discounted today by Dr. C. R. Lenk, medical officer of health for the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit.

Dr. Lenk admitted there had been a case of what he termed "mild mouth infection" but said this had not been diagnosed as trench mouth.

He said the infection had been confined to the one family.

At the same time the medical officer of health said that trench mouth was not the dangerous communicable disease that it was some years ago.

As a result of modern day medical treatment, he said trench mouth was easily cured.

Construction Starts On Consecon Dam

Construction has started on the Consecon Lake Dam in Hillier township and it is expected the new dam will be completed by mid November.

Disher-Farmand Ltd. of Wiarton have received the contract for the dam after their low tender of $15,903 was accepted by the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority.

The original dam was in disrepair and deteriorating and it was felt that a patch job would not be adequate.

Upon its completion the new dam will control the year round water level of Lake Consecon and provide a summer flow in the stream that passes through the village of Consecon and into Wellers Bay. It is also expected that the maintenance of the lake level will help maintain the ground water table in the surrounding area.

City council is going to make it easier for Belleville residents to pay their property taxes.

At least it is going to be easier for ratepayers who use the family auto to get to city hall for the municipal shellout.

This week council voted to have parking meters at the north and south sides of city hall changed from the present one hour to half hour timing.

The idea is that the half hour limit will help move cars out of the area and, thus leave more spaces for residents driving to city hall to do business,

Quinte Delegates Back MacDonald

Quinte riding delegates to the Ontario New Democratic Party leadership convention in Kitchener next month will support Donald C. MacDonald as party leader.

This was the word today from Ian Reilly, president of the Quinte NDP Association, who will lead the local delegation to the provincial convention.

Mr. Reilly said the NDP party in this area owed much of its recent success to Mr. MacDonald's faith in Eastern Ontario.

"This faith will be returned in votes for the party leadership next month" he said.

The local riding association president said Quinte NDP members would work under any new leader but would rather work under Mr. MacDonald.

Planning Important In Fire Prevention

"Fire prevention in your home is of top importance, but you must also plan the family's escape in case a fire occurs," Mr. Poste said this morning.

"Hold a family meeting. Explain that the plan you are about to form together may make the difference between life and death, and that its purpose is to evacuate the house quickly, safely and without panic."

"In a two or three storey home it is vital to devise an alternative route from upstairs rooms which do not lead through the main hall or stairway."

"Once you have escaped, never return a burning building. Remember that in spite of all your precautions, you may some day have a fire in your home. If you prepare to escape from it now, you can live through it."

Engineers Hear Researcher

R. E. McBurney spoke to a Joint meeting of engineers in Belleville recently telling about the technical services available to industry from the National Research Council.

The technical information service is aimed at companies employing 300 employees or less to provide free technical information on background or current data as well as future possibilities.

A staff of about 25 provide engineering background, Chemical and mechanical engineers predominate in this group as problems centre mostly in these fields.

The technical development section is pursuing a program of sending technical development information article checklists to 3,000 companies. The companies respond with requests for the information available.

The industrial research assistance program involves programs of assistance to companies desiring to perform research on a fairly long term plan in fields of interest to them.

These programs are renewable yearly and may last for three to five years. The current available budget is about six million dollars. Many small companies have been able to start research programs for the first time with this program and large companies have been able to expand

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

Sunday, October 13

Your birthday today: You can look forward to a year of pleasant, normal existence. What you receive will be in proportion to what you give. The pursuit of romantic interests and the arts is encouraged. You will bring a better understanding of human nature. Today's natives seek poise and culture.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Human relations are stressed today. Social urges are stronger, family ties less tangled. Make full use of the chance to express yourself.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Family business and social activity come alive today. It is a day of abundant family life with the spotlight on children.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The demands on your time lessen somewhat. The duties at home will take your attention off weekday problems. If you're on a diet, you're apt to slip off it.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Your imagination is going full blast today. After church go visiting with your friends. The evening is good for creative projects or romance.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): If you let it flow naturally, the whole day can go like one big party. Take your loved ones along with you in the pursuit of fun. People amiably cooperate today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): This happy Sunday should remain in your memory as a day of deepened friendships, or perhaps a romance. Get going early.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Group recreation is favored today. Take your loved ones along, particularly the younger ones. Make it a day to be pleasantly remembered.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Short journeys and new contacts are strongly indicated today. It is a happy day, as people share the need for a spontaneous expression of feelings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Religious inspiration spreads over into social relations; you begin acting out your inner beliefs. Your friends are with you in brotherly fashion today and for the days ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your plans for today come out rather well. Enjoy the hospitable atmosphere that surrounds you. Meditate in the midst of the day, then go on refreshed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Despite an under-the-surface worry over health and resources, this Sunday offers relaxation. Join your loved ones for a day of fun and gaiety.

PISCES (Feb. 19 —Mar. 20): Everybody around you seems in a better mood. Join the community in a day-long celebration of good humor. Romantic ventures are favored bright.

For Oct. 14th,

Your birthday today: The coming year is one filled with great activity. Much will be taken for granted. Human relations change, your personal values expand. Today's natives tend to be impartial, studious, and meditative.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Get on the job bright and early! Watch the hobbies of the day; stay ahead of the game if you can. Take no chances with temptations. General activity begun this evening but not so much easily dropped.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your own set of people is with you all the way. Older people's admiration and respect for your independence could attract impressive effort from people of more prestige power. Tread softly.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You will always be glad you kept a straight course on this day, against a surge of strong feelings. Your knack of calling the shot could be handy to live with if you use it destructively.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): If you can find some way to tie your self out of the center of attention, do it. Creative work may thrive despite all the turmoil. Strangers are not to be considered as more than just that. Withold judgement until you know more about them.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): The fly in the ointment is your impatience in dealing with relatives and neighbors. Take no chances with safety hazards on the job or in driving.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): There is no grain to the pattern of your day. Changes that are normally handle need double-checking. You will be proud of remaining calm while everybody else frets.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): There's enough arguments going on. Your poise can help you remain neutral; nor do you need to defend it from others trying to mediate prematurely. At home tonight be wary of the same pitfall.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your intuition is the surest guide today. Mixed influences are almost certain. Go right on tiptoeing, and get done with it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): If it is not yourself, it is somebody you care about who is caught up in some dilemma. Stand by while the matter works itself out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Strangers may be of more importance than the people you have rubbed against before. Be especially considerate with those you know well. Try to remember, your mate may not have been the sole cause of the confusion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Policy changes are not favored today. Stick with the concern. People with authority do not always use it wisely just now.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Unsettled is the word for your inner-directed urges. Your best interests lie in close agreement with those accustomed to your needs. Purchasing is tricky.

For Oct. 15th,

Your birthday today: This will be the year of conquest! Obstacles will arise, but the disciplined will bring forth latent strength. The temptation is to allow yourself to pay much at once. Today's natives thrive on physical activity.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): There are conflicting forces at work. Until you find the balance between them, it is better not to commit yourself to any contract. Expect associates to disagree among themselves.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your courage rises in response to a challenge. Older people, parents, the formalized structure of our world seems to be opposed to your every move. This is not at any age, a consequence of your own strong stirring.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Carry on with a cheerful face and line of talk, whatever else you do. The disappointments of the day do pass. A placid female is priceless today.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Your natural caution should stand in a fretful comfy. The conservative note is struck early and there is time to studies in the evening

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Relatives require special attention today, particularly those sponsored by older people. are very much alive. Be careful as the rules in working with tools and in driving.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): There's a great deal you can do toward a peaceful adjustment between your demands and the limitations. Remember that others share the same tensions but not the self-restraint to avoid scapegoats.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Prepare for strong opposition. Discontent for poor or varied need not be your reaction. Postpone travel if feasible. . those you care about need your protection.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Safety first today! Your feeling for directions gaves a great deal of inconvenience if you will feel low it. Your expects are short, so watch your remarks. Use this evening for a review of what you've done lately.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Nobody wants to see how the courage to pursue your own views single-handed. Tomorrow you'll be glad you did.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Take a middle course today. Your personal security and business life seems almost unavoidable. Think about it. Your intuition is strong.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your dedication to justice collides with the practical problems of dealing with unreasonable people. You are promised bundles of help if you can make allowance for the discrepancy.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Vehicles, long-range traveling are rather unsatisfying for you today. Stay put and keep up with your routines. Other times are more open.

TREATED LIKE KINGS

HANNOVER, Germany (AP) — "Dinner is served" a guard announced, and about 120 inmates sit down to eat from chinaware on white tablecloths instead of battered tin plates on bare boards. Paul Nienhaus, family director of the Hannover prison, said guests are invited to special meals as convicts chosen for their willingness to be rehabilitated and to acquire social skills.

To Your Good Health

Danger Signs May Not Mean Cancer

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: I have always been troubled with constipation, and my brother and sister both died from cancer of the bowel. This naturally keeps me wondering and worried.

I have had barium X-rays several times and a recent sigmoidoscopy. My brother tells me a couple of months before he died that when he had a bowel movement it was formed like many small balls. This I have noticed in myself, as well as excessive gas shortly after eating, which I can't seem to pass too easily. I would be grateful for your opinion. — J. L. P.

With such a family history, I can understand your concern. And it remains true that any radical change in bowel patterns or action should be investigated.

However, it is also true that the seven danger signs of cancer can also be caused by conditions quite different from cancer. There isn't any sign that always means cancer. That, indeed, is why we insist on seeing your physician if a suspicious sign appears. All you can do as a patient is learn to recognize the possible signs, then have a physician make the decision as to learn whether the sign is or is not significant.

In your brother's case, the stool formation may have been due to the advanced cancer interfering with normal bowel action or it might have been co-incidental, resulting from faulty nutrition, insufficient moisture, or other cause.

In any event, you have had recent X-ray and proctoscopic examination and been given a clean bill of health. All you can do is be thankful for such a good report. A periodic bowel and proctoscopic examination will be in order every one or two years.

An additional useful test would be examining a stool sample for any sign of blood. This should,be done after you have eaten no red meats for three days, as in that way the test is more accurate.

Some people asked me to explain further just what is meant by "any change in bowel habits."

The best way I can put it is to say it means just what it says — any change in habit or pattern. Persistent looseness after having had normal action, or unexplained constipation or cramping, or a change to unusually frequent movement, or a marked change in consistency of the stool — all would fall into the definition of a change in bowel habits.

Again, I caution that all of these can be from other causes. Likewise a transitory experience with diarrhea or any other change, after which the normal bowel pattern returns, is not to be interpreted as "a change in bowel habits."

But if the change is radical, and especially if the change occurs under conditions in a person return to normal, investigation of the causes is the only safe course.

Further, and this should go without saying, any sign of blood should be investigated — or a black, tarry stool, which is the most common sign of intestinal bleeding higher in the digestive tract. Again these signs of blood do not necessarily mean cancer, but they definitely mean that something is wrong.

No.

Note to Mrs. C. W.: Histoplasmosis and sarcoidosis although both affect the lungs are essentially different diseases. Histoplasmosis is caused by a particular type of fungus; the cause of sarcoidosis is not known.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

The Intelligencer

Today Is International Newspaper Boy Day

As you read your Intelligencer today, give a thought to the young man who delivered it. . . This is his day.

There is no other part time activity in which a young person can learn Integrity, Perservance, Courtesy, Self Discipline, Self Confidence and Dependability.

There are more than 75,000 like him in Canada. He's learning the importance of punctuality, courtesy and good citizenship in his community. He's learning, too, the value of money and saving . . . and of looking ahead to the future.

He not only grows through the challenging responsibility of running a business of his own, but he's learning to meet people, to respect the property of others and to give dependable service to his customers.

TODAY HE STANDS 10 FEET TALL

He's your newspaperboy.

Today is his day . . . National Newspaperboy Day. In the performance of his duties as an independent junior merchant, he fills a vital role . . . for you, for his newspaper, for himself.

Your newspaperboy is the grassroots symbol of free enterprise in action. He is worthy of special recognition; so we salute him on this day. He's one of more than 75,000 young Canadians in business to serve you.

Day after day, week after week, these youthful leaders are learning the business fundamentals of buying, selling and collecting. More important, they're developing the personal qualities of good citizenship, dependability thrift, punctuality and self-reliance.

What better preparation for tomorrow's leaders? In the community, in the nation, in the world, the hope of tomorrow depends on the initiative and ambition of today's young people. Your newspaperboy has a head start. He is already demonstrating his desire to succeed.

Their Business is In the Bag:

Intelligencer carriers learn to take their place in the business world of tomorrow, guided by experienced counsellors. Their business is a newspaper route and you are one of their prized customers. They realize that to be successful in business you have to keep customers happy.

These enterprising young business people are learning the economics of our free enterprise system. They buy their papers wholesale and resell them at a profit. They deliver your Intelligencer, collect, pay their accounts and keep their own records. It doesn't take them long to learn that their profits reflect the effort and efficiency with which they conduct their business.

Promptness and Good Service are trade marks of Intelligencer carriers. It is also a rewarding experience which brings carriers satisfied customers, increased profits, prizes, cash awards and trips for good salesmanship.

Intelligencer carriers are hard-working young people who have accepted a challenge and who enjoy meeting people. They are on the job day after day, rain or shine, sleet or snow bringing you your favorite newspaper. The Intelligencer recognizes the fine work these young people are doing. We know each carrier is building towards a brighter and more promising future. Each year The Intelligencer presents two outstanding carriers with a Merit Award and a Cash Scholarship Award. Perhaps your carrier will be the winner this year.

Perhaps your son (or daughter) is one of our carriers. If he is you can be proud of him. If not you may want him to profit by the valuable experience he would gain from managing his own paper route. If he is interested in becoming an Intelligencer carrier have him complete the application form below and mail it to us. One of our representatives will contact him. We may have an opening in your neighborhood.

Another Hercules On Mercy Airlift

Touchdown Strips Needed

The plane, stationed at Ottawa, was slated to leave the Canadian Forces base here at 1:30 .

The transport is destined for Ascension Island in the South Atlantic. There, it will join a second Hercules — which left here Saturday — until relief plans are finalized.

It left Trenton Saturday with 45 men aboard and flew to the Nigerian capital via Barbados, Recife and the Ascensions. It was followed hours later by the second Hercules with 32 men aboard.

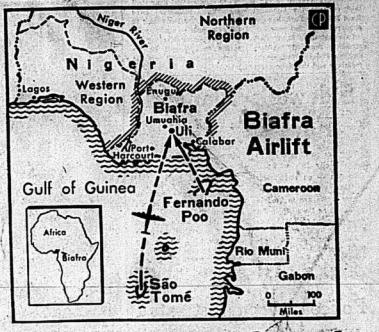
Both aircraft are stationed in Edmonton.

No personnel from the Canadian Forces base here are involved in any of the three flights.

None of the three aircraft is carrying food or medical supplies, but each is loaded to its 45,000-pound capacity. The cargoes carried are designed to make the Canadian relief contingent virtually self-supporting.

At Ottawa, a forces' spokesman said space was at such a premium that beer and cigarettes intended for participating personnel were scrapped.

"They'll have to scrounge around for whatever cigarettes they can find over there," he said.



The first Hercules carried maintenance supplies that will be required immediately. The second is transporting servicemen and a tent city, complete with sleeping, eating and other support facilities required for the Canadian equipment.

The third was scheduled to carry mobile communications equipment, two jeeps, and spare aircraft parts.

A reconaissance party in Nigeria, headed by Lt.-Col. Leslie W. Hussy, of Ottawa, is to visit territory held by Nigerian forces where starvation is widespread to determine if airstrips are capable of handling the lumbering transports. Under the permissive agreement with Nigeria Canadian planes may operate a shuttle service to the Biafra borders.

Relief on Its Way

So far, the Canadian government has assigned three giant Hercules aircraft to Biafran relief operations. The aircraft will freight badly needed drugs and food in a shuttle service to starving Biafran refugees.

Levesque's Party Geared To Sovereign Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — More determined than ever to get Quebec out of what he called "the crazy-house" of Canadian federalism, Rene Levesque emerged from the long weekend with a new political party intent on making a sovereign French state out of Quebec province.

Mr. Levesque's new party, called "Le Parti Quebecois," was founded at a four-day convention uniting the forces of the former Quebec cabinet minister's Mouvement souverainiste-associatin and Gilles Gregoire's Ralliement national.

For Additional Details See Page 23

If it gained a majority of seats in the 108-seat legislative assembly in a provincial general election, Le Parti Quebecois would declare Quebec's sovereignty and seek to negotiate an economic common market with the rest of Canada.

Inside Quebec, the party would:

—Guarantee state schools for the English-language minority, but English-speaking Quebecers would virtually be forced to work in French in a state that recognized only French as an official language.

—Introduce legislation to make French the working language "in all enterprises" and give English-speaking Quebecers five years to adjust to life in "the country of a French-speaking people."

—Clamp state control over the communications and drug industries, put doctors on the state payroll and make all hospitals, clinics and medical centres operate as non-profit institutions.

Mr. Levesque closed the four-day meeting Monday by urging Quebecers to rid themselves of the federal system, which he variously described as "finished," "used up," "worn out," "paralyzed," "abnormal," and "literally a crazy-house."

Bertrand Says People To Decide Eventually

PARIS (CP-Reuters) — Quebec Premier Jean Jacques Bertrand says the people of Quebec may finally decide in a referendum whether they want to become independent of Canada.

But he says in an interview with the magazine Paris-Match that separatism "is a solution that one can envisage in the absence of other solutions."

And although Quebec wanted to revise the Canadian constitution, he said he is convinced Quebec's aims could be met within "the imperative of Canadian solidarity."

"Today, instead of saying, 'Let us separate,' I would say 'Let us try to understand one another'."

Bloody revolutions had not occurred in Canada, he said, and Quebecers want to use negotiations to the maximum.

Help Not Hinder Asks PM

PARIS (CP-Reuters) — Prime Minister Trudeau says in an interview published here that he hopes France will continue to help Quebec, but she should do it without interfering in Canadian constitutional problems.

He said reports that French President de Gaulle lacks a sense of political reality is his statement on Quebec's place in Canada.

In an interview in the mass-circulation newspaper France Soir, Trudeau defends Canada's record of bilingualism.

The fact that French-speaking Canadians carry out their business in English in many areas was not the result of actions by the federal government.

"It is the result of the policy practiced for a hundred years by the governments of Quebec province."

Must Stay Neutral: Sharp

WINNIPEG-(CP) — External Affairs Minister Sharp said Monday Canada's aid in the Nigerian civil war must be completely neutral because both sides are suffering.

He told a news conference that if the Nigerian side of the dispute had been presented better to the western world, the public would not only show concern for the suffering of the Biafrans. The war has taken its toll of the Nigerian economy and agriculture has been neglected, resulting in spreading food shortages.

"That's one reason why we have made it clear that our help, such as the making of aircraft available to the International Red Cross, must be completely neutral."

News Briefs

PERTH (Reuters) — Two sharp earth tremors rocked buildings here again this morning, sending earthquake jittery western Australians into the streets for the second time in a little more than 24 hours. There were no immediate reports of casualties or damages. The tremors lasted only a few seconds and were not as severe an earthquake Monday which badly damaged the small town of Meckering and rocked wide areas of Western Australia.

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Wilson told Parliament today that his final terms for a Rhodesia settlement hinge on ironclad demands that the white minority regime there accept unimpeded progress toward black African majority rule. Wilson unveiled in the House of Commons the terms of a take-it-or-leave-it document he handed Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith on Sunday.

Hunters Invade Quinte

As a result, police have laid at least 15 trespassing charges.

By nightfall, scores of shotgun-armed Torontonians had been warned off local farms by police.

At least one hunter explained the problem.

Asked why he didn't first seek the landowner's permission to use his property, the hunter blandly told police: "We used to. But they always said no."

TV Acrobatic Show Astronauts Have Sniffles

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 7 astronauts, all battling colds, today performed a celestial acrobatic show and took television viewers on a high-spirited tour of their high-flying spaceship.

"Starring the great acrobats of outerspace," radioed commander Walter M. Schirra Jr., as the second live TV episode of the Wally, Walt and Donn Show.

With the transmission quality about as good as it was during the crew's first, live telecast Monday, Schirra and his co-pilots, Donn F. Eisele and Walter Cunningham, first lined up a sign welcoming people to "The Lovely Apollo Room High Atop Everything."

"From outer space, the one and only original Apollo roadshow," Schirra then said, and the three crew members began floating around in a dramatic display of how roomy their capsule is.

"It appears that at least Donn Eisele and Walter Schirra have bone fide colds," Dr. John Ziegischmid astronaut flight surgeon, said today. "And there's a slight question in my mind as to whether Walt Cunningham just has a few symptoms such as a little bit of sniffles and maybe a slight nasal discharge or whether he has a full blown cold syndrome."

There was no reason to believe the problem would force the mission to be ended sooner than the 11 days planned, he added.

The flight surgeon said he also was "not concerned at this point" that medicine on board would be used up before the 11 day flight was over.

He said he did not believe the colds would last the entire mission and observed the virus is "in no way interfering with their functions."

Hastings and Prince Edward Veterans Gather Before Memorial

Hasty Pees Reunion

Crackdown on Students Advocated

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

Student power unrest should bring a crackdown by university administrators, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment veterans were told at their reunion Sunday.

"Stop this take-over business. Crack down on them before it gets started," said Angus Duffy, a former commanding officer of the regiment and the present Emergency Measures Organization director in Belleville.

"We are paying clearly for their education. But we are not giving subsidies for their stupid wanton waste of time, material and energy."

Newspapers also were criticized by Mr. Duffy who described them as "negative thinking". He told his audience that they should look elsewhere for credible information.

"Do not subscribe to the idea that if it is old destroy it or if it is wrong change it? It is not good enough to say no. We must do something about it."

Draft dodgers also were attacked by Mr. Duffy.

"We say to the immigration authorities that we do not want draft dodgers from the United States in this country."

He described them as "yellow-spined" and "undesirable citizens."

"Further we say to our universities who we are subsidizing that there is no room for this scum in our universities, and, above all, we do not want these welchers as instructors for our young people."

Mr. Duffy, who served as RSM during the war, reminisced about the regiment and its wars.

"For more than 100 years the men of this regiment, in spite of public apathy and sometimes scorn, when Canada has been threatened have taken up arms to defend her."

He spoke of winning World War II against impossible odds.

"We paid for it with the years of our youth, wounds and our dead, but the world was free again."

"Our children are stronger, wiser and healthier. They enjoy many advantages that were beyond our reach."

"We have lived up to the gospel. I am my brother's keeper and we share our bounty with less fortunate people of the world. We have troops in many troubled spots not to fight a war but to prevent one."

Seasonal Dam Has Disappeared

The Moira River seasonal dam, which for the past two months has created a small lake opposite the Canadian Road Riverside Park, has disappeared until next year.

Late last week Revoy Construction removed the dam stoplogs and steel supporting members and the river again is coursing unimpeded over the broken rock riverbed.

The stoplogs and their steel supporting members have been stored for the winter at the city public works yard and next spring following the spring freshet, will be replaced for the small parkside lake.

Sidewalk Planned For City Hall

They are going to dress up the old city hall with new sidewalks — on three sides that is.

New walks are to be laid this week on the north, south and east sides of the 90-year-old building.

And at the same time basement doorways on the north side of the building are being closed up and the protective railings removed.

In past years one of the basement doorways at the north were used as a coal chute but now the city hall furnace has been converted to oil and the doorways are no longer needed.

And to complete the job parking meters at the north and south sides of the city hall will be converted to half hour timing with the view of making it easier to find parking space.

Police Search Instigated

PICTON (Staff) — Picton OPP are investigating a hit and run accident yesterday.

They have requested that anyone with knowledge of the accident contact their detachment.

A spokesman said that all information would be held in the strictest confidence.

Injured in the accident was an RR 4 Picton man, John Baxter, 41. It occurred at seven p.m. on the Glenora Road about four miles east of Picton.

The man suffered scalp lacerations and fracture in his right leg. He was taken by Bond's ambulance to Prince Edward Memorial Hospital in Picton where he is reported to be in "fair" condition.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

Rock, Gem Swap Held on Weekend

Spectators were prevalent at the Quinte Rock and Gem Club rock swap at the Park Dale Community Centre Saturday.

Rockhounds, jewellery makers and dealers from all over Ontario, Quebec and the Northern United States made their way to Belleville for the show.

The day was highlighted by a rock swap-auction in the afternoon.

The show went on all day from 10 a.m. until midnight.

Officials of the club estimate that 150 enthusiastic visitors went through the exhibition.

Present at the show were five dealers and 25 swappers and rockhounds.

The Boy Scout Apple Day for the Belleville district, will be held on October 18 and 19.

Funds collected will be used for capital improvements to "Camp Sagonaska" — a 25-acre camp site located in Ox-Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area, near Thomasburg.

Funds will be applied to the construction of six winterized shelters which will be used for Cub camping. In addition landscape work to level grounds for recreational field and tent campsites for older boys and young men in Venturers and Rovers, will be part of the program.

As there are many ladies who assist in camp programs, sleeping quarters will be constructed for their accommodation. Plans for a swimming proceeding.

Moose Scarce: Hunters ...But Deer Are Plentiful

Moose hunters in Ontario's northland are finding it a bit tougher this year to locate their quarry

At least, that is the story of three Belleville hunters who returned from the Cochrane area on Saturday. During their hunting safari to the north the three were successful in shooting a four-year-old moose weighing approximately 1,600 pounds.

But at that they considered themselves a bit lucky.

Bill Nickle said that 90 per cent of moose hunters are not getting their quarry this year. No reason was given for the apparent scarcity.

The Belleville party were hunting north of Lake Abitibi on the Ontario-Quebec border. They left their hunting camp at 11:30 Friday night and arrived home shortly before noon Saturday.

The other two members of the hunting party were Earl Beverley and R. Laughlin.

Deer are apparently plentiful this fall in the Hastings area north of Millbridge and motorists are warned to be on the lookout for the animals crossing the highway.

That deer are apparently more plentiful this year was learned yesterday by Dr. Gerald Morton, publisher of The Intelligencer, whose car late yesterday afternoon crashed into a big doe as it crossed highway 62 about nine miles north of Millbridge.

The doe darted across the highway and was narrowly missed by a motorist proceeding in the opposite direction before cutting in front of Dr. Morton's car.

About $400 damage was done to the front of the Morton vehicle, but despite its injury the doe was able to escape into the woods and could not be located by searchers.

But, for Dr. Morton, the experience was completely new.

"I've been driving that road for 40 years and this is the first time I've ever seen a deer on the highway," he said.

Phyto-illumination Subject of Talk

Phyto-illumination or the growing of plants under artificial light was the subject of Raymond Ostrander who spoke to the Belleville Horticultural Society at a recent meeting.

The artificial growing process is attracting the attention of farmers with large cattle herds and scientists interested in space travel.

Mr. Ostrander, who has been experimenting with plants under artificial light since 1958, says that these people may eventually be able to produce green foods at unusual times in unusual places.

Experiments conducted by Mr. Ostrander and his family have shown that individual plants have varying receptivity to light.

And the season, in which the plant grows and blooms naturally, must also be considered.

For example, Begonias do not take as much light as petunias or geraniums although in both cases extra time under lights is needed to make up for less sunpower.

Light would be given to a normal garden for 14 to 15 hours a day but annuals in the spring need up to 16 hours.

Plants in these gardens need to be on a tray where water can drain through them and where they can still have moisture, and heat.

Any plants brought from the outside should be quarantined for a time to insure they do not spread pests or infections.

Mr. Ostrander is the general manager and director of Keet Tools Ltd. in Markham and is well known in that community, being past president of the Rotary Club, president of the Ontario Heart Foundation chapter, secretary of the Markham York Hospital Corporation and of course an executive on the Horticultural Society.

IN MEMORIAM

POUND — In loving memory of dear husband, father and grandpa John Pound, who passed away Oct. 15, 1966.

Placed in God's garden at silent rest,
A flower with a husband and dad.
Sweet memories of a loved one.

Years were swift, but we knew him.
But he was ours and we loved him.

He badelgne one a last farewell,
A gentle kiss, a prayer.

POUND — In loving memory of dear brother-in-law and friend, John Pound, who passed away two years ago October 15th, 1966.

Eternal rest, cemetery sorry sleeper.
Rest.
Close beside a country road,
He sleeps well, so silent.
But could not save,
His loss by one we his last farewell.
He said good-bye to none,
If all the world we knew,
Were given it, yes, and more,
We'd not call back our dear.
Gone with his memory, peace and rest.
Sadly missed and always remembered by his loving wife Mabel and Frank Harris.

Guard Railing Replaced

Dilapidated guide rail fencing along a section of Canniff Rd. Road where it closely borders the Moira River is being replaced by the city works department.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said today plans are to replace approximately 600 feet of guide rail fencing in two sections — one in the Avon Street area and the other opposite McFarland Drive.

About 400 feet of new fencing will be installed this year with the remainder being left over until next year.

The two areas where the fencing is being replaced run close to the river bank which has a drop of 15 to 20 feet to the river bed. Heavy square timbered posts and metal rail are being installed to provide a greater degree of protection.

Radio Club Hears Innovator

A man who recently made amateur radio history by being the first person to transmit and receive slow scan TV pictures across the ocean was the guest speaker at the Quinte Amateur Radio Club's meeting held recently at the EMO building here.

Syd Horne, of Ottawa demonstrated his equipment and explained the theory of its operation to guests including the technical staff of CJBQ, local high school technical teachers and pupils and members of the Kingston Club.

At the next club meeting on Nov. 13, the speaker will be William Barrie of Northern Electric in Ottawa who will speak on the Satellite program.

There will be color slides and a model of the earth satellite and the internal aspects as well as the ground station equipment will be explained.

Third Hercules Added

At the time, only one Hercules had been publicly released for relief work.

Gen. Wrinch said he expected more from his countrymen and appealed to Canadians for larger individual contributions to Biafra relief.

The Hercules are painted white with red crosses, and the entire Canadian contingent is wearing Red Cross armbands and civilian clothing to show that the airlift is a non - military mercy operation.

Along with flights within Nigeria, some flights may be made from the island of Fernando Poo, just off the Nigerian coast, where relief supplies have been stockpiled for weeks.

The spokesman said that if the transports are required for a period of more than two weeks, further support flights probably would be made.

He said if the International Red Cross requested, Ottawa would pull additional Hercules off normal supply runs to Canadian North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces in Europe and make them available for the airlift.

OSD Getting Set for Centennial -- Two Years from Now

The Ontario School for the Deaf is readying to celebrate its centennial — two years from now.

Two years is a long time, but then the preparations demand much attention. The OSD represents much.

It is as significant as a symbol as it is socially vital, a fact understandably not fully appreciated after nearly a century.

The scool, now a big educational complex in west Belleville, has, after all, become a familiar sight to Quinte generations.

Yet, it was the first of its kind in Canada — the first centre for the deaf instituted by government funds.

As such, it marked a new social era — society's acceptance of aiding its handicapped as a public responsibility.

This development lends much significance to the CSD centennial. For this reason, the school staff, headed by J. G. Demeza, is planning an ambitious program to mark the anniversary.

Already this week the event's organizing committee have held a preliminary meeting and taken a major decision: The centennial will be a year-long program of events, to be climaxed Oct. 20 — the founding date.

They are hopeful of assembling any articles or documents pertaining to the school's history. Much of such memorabilia likely is to be found in Belleville after 100 years close association with OSD.

The search, however, will be carried continent - wide.

The school has much to celebrate, not only as a training centre with few rivals in North America, but as a social institution.

Care and training of the deaf was still a matter of personal philanthropy up to the latter half of the 1800s.

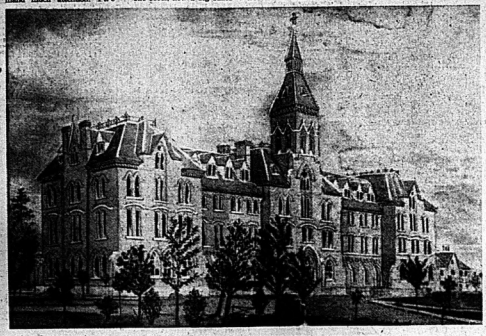
Early attempts at starting schools followed the familiar pattern of private humanitarianism in schools started in Halifax and Montreal.

The first venture launched in Ontario came in 1858 in Toronto.

The problem already had been receiving public attention.

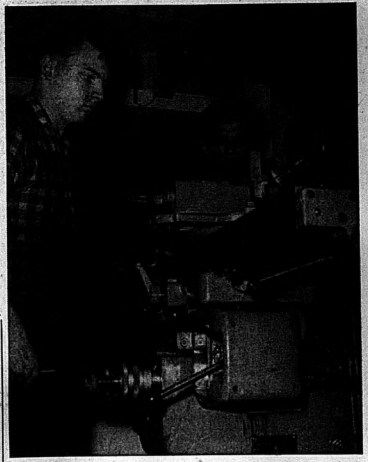
In 1854 the Upper Canada Legislature voted $30,000 for establishment of a school for the deaf and blind.

Political uncertainties delayed any action however, and it was not until a new pattern of government emerged with Confederation that definite interest was renewed.



In 1869, the Legislature finally confirmed its decision to build the centre — choosing Belleville despite pressure from Toronto politicians.

The school was opened Oct. 20, 1870, the public pomp of the occasion drawing on the presence of the lieutenant-governor and Ontario Premier John Sanfield Macdonald.



The original site has undergone many changes since that time.

But, for the centennial, school authorities are hopeful to recapture something of the grandness of that first day.

"We hope," says Mr. Demeza, "to make it as big and eventful an occasion as possible."

Girl Injured in Accident

TWEED — Two accidents at the same time and in the same place, one mile south of Thomasburg on Highway 37, Saturday morning caused $925 damage to the four cars involved.

Two cars one driven by John Joseph Williams, 46, of Guelph and another driven by Donald Holbert, 56, of Roslin, collided at 10:30 a.m Damage to the Williams car was $200, while estimated damage to the Holbert car was $250.

At the same time, only a few yards from the first mishap, cars driven by John Edward Hill, 22, of Belleville, and Robert Jack Sanders, 21, Toronto collided, causing $400 damage to the Hill car, and $75 damage to the Sanders car.

There were no personal injuries in the mishaps.

Catherine Joyce Rose, 12, of Bowmanville, is reported in fair condition today in Belleville General Hospital with a fractured skull sustained when she was thrown from a wagon during a hay ride.

The girl was injured at 9:20 p.m. Saturday when the farm tractor hauling the trailer she was riding in was in collison with a car driven by Patrick Ward, 17, of Thomasburg.

The mishap occurred in the 10th concession of Rawdon township east of Springbrook. A boy was thrown from the wagon at the same time, but was treated and released.

Home and School Plans Seminar

Roger Ingall, a member of the Hall-Deole committee on education, will be the speaker at a leadership seminar sponsored by area IC of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations in Peterborough, Oct. 26.

The theme of the day-long seminar will be membership and leadership. Representatives from Oshawa, Belleville and Peterborough Home and School Councils and Associations will attend the seminar, to be held in Thomas A. Stewart Secondary School in Peterborough.

The new Bonds have fourteen regular annual interest coupons which can be cashed each year as they come due. The first pays 5.75%; the second, 6.50%; the next three, 6.75% each, and the last nine a big 7.00% each. Total regular annual interest amounts to $95.50 on each $100 Bond.

If you choose you may hold all these regular annual interest coupons uncashed until your Bond matures. If you do, you will then get interest on your interest totalling an additional $54.50 on each $100 Bond.

At maturity, therefore, you can get back total interest of $150 plus your original $100 investment. This way each $100 Canada Savings Bond becomes worth $250. Other denominations can grow at the same exciting rate.

Adults, children, businesses and institutions—all may buy Canada Savings Bonds. They are available in convenient amounts of $50 up to $50,000 for cash or on instalments, wherever you work, bank or invest. And, as always, Canada Savings Bonds are cashable any time at full face value plus earned interest.

Few investments are so profitable. None builds more surely for the future. Buy Canada Savings Bonds and make your savings really grow.

Buy yours today!

The Soviets and China

Two newspaper headings the other day were eloquent of the schism that for some years now has placed the Soviet Union and China at opposite ends of the communist camp.

In one report, from Hong Kong, the heading read: "Chinese Chief Hits Russians," and it has Huang Yung sheng, chief-of-staff of the Chinese army, branding the Soviet Union as "the biggest colonial ruler and exploiter of the people of the East European countries."

Allowing for the fact that the Peking regime has done some plundering itself, Huang Yung sheng could not have said it better or more accurately if he were President Johnson himself. He told a rally that Russia has economically plundered the East European nations and used armed threats to maintain its control over them.

The other heading read: "New Missile Sites — Soviets Zero In On China." This is over a story from London noting that Russia has established new missile sites near the Chinese border.

With Russia and China no longer the solid comrades they once were, the current chill between them reinforces the belief that the Soviets are no more able at this time to contemplate warring with the West than is China. As Prime Minister Macmillan once put it with such insight: "War happily has become too dangerous." He meant nuclear war of course and Russia, as well as China, is likely content just to exploit to the limit U.S. difficulties in Vietnam, as well as the domestic troubles and rallicalism that are more and more a feature of life in the West today.

Township Furor

There is a real "brushfire" war going on in Murray township where township council has raised the ire of residents who object to the operation of a speedway near their Trenton-area home.

A stormy meeting of council attended by township residents was told that home values have dropped by some $2,000 since the speedway was established. Council appears either unwilling or unable to intervene in the matter and the ratepayers are now talking variously about "legal action . . . a board of inquiry . . . and taking the issue to Queen's Park."

The crux of the difficulties of the Pine Acres subdivision residents was summed up by one resident thus: "We can't sleep when the races are on, we can't talk in our homes because of the noise, and we can't breathe because of the dust."

On the other hand the track has an investment at stake — according to the co-owner, $25,000 in the track itself and grandstands planned for next year. He says there will not be much more Sunday racing this year and next year events will take place mostly on Saturday nights. Whether this is of any comfort to the residents of Pine Acres is a moot point. Saturday night is possibly a peak home and relaxation night for Canadians when they are not dining out or at a show.

But plainly the people involved are in no mood to trifle, and legal action to resolve the matter one way or another is a legitimate — and probably the most effective move at this point.

Frustration Explosion

Health Minister John Munro's warning in a Hamilton speech that the same conflicts that are afflicting American society could happen in Canada is timely. The minister was right also to remind Canadians that they have a Negro problem too, not to mention a problem involving Indians, Eskimos and Metis.

In spite of a "frustration explosion" among students and hippies, even among the farming community, and of wildcat strikes, and suggested the new role of welfare must be to meet the needs of the whole man and not just the physical man.

It is a tall order. Certainly there must be education for all, as a means of enabling people of all races to make the grade in a competitive world. More jobs must be made available. There must be more housing. Above all, we must evolve a society where Canadians of every race and creed respect each other as human beings. But first each group must earn that respect.

Human nature being what it is, such an ideal may be impossible to achieve, but it is worth striving for at least. As it is, there is too little respect for the dignity of the individual. Too few really care one for the other . . . "I'm all right Jack" is the attitude that prevails and as the saying goes, more's the pity.

Nixon Front Runner

Democrats Seem Certain to Go Down to Defeat

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—A kind of death wish among some deflerralized Democrats in the United States is reminiscent of the tired blood within the Canadian Liberal party in 1957 after the pipeline debate and more than 20 years in power.

Perhaps four years out in the political cold would be healthy, they variously advocate out of conviction, from anger with the party hierarchy or from resignation to victory by Republican presidential candidate Richard Nixon.

Nixon, providing he is elected in the Nov. 5 vote, will be confronted with so many problems that his 1972 election defeat will be easy, the reasoning goes. By then, Senator Edward Kennedy, four years older at 40, would lead a unified Democratic party to victory.

The Liberals, it is remembered, saw John Diefenbaker pile up a record majority in 1958 and then face serious problems in unemployment and finance.

But it still took the Liberals four elections to regain a solid edge in the House of Commons.

The lack of fire inside the Democratic party in this Nov. 5 campaign is not only a major headache to Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, as the party's presidential candidate, but a dire warning of future trouble to some Democrats.

"The spectacle of a great party only moderately committed and partly engaged in a presidential election is a disturbing one," complains the Washington Post.

The newspaper assails what it calls the worrisome rationale "so often heard among so-called liberals these days that four years in the wilderness would be good for the Democrats, that there is sound strategy in aiding Mr. Nixon and the Republicans with the awesome problems of the cities and Vietnam, that in 1972 a rebuilt and reinvigorated Democratic party will come roaring back to power again."

Nixon's skill in re-establishing himself from political oblivion should point, the paper says, toward the possibility Nixon will take an eight-year stranglehold on the White House if he gets the chance.

The editorial is a clear rebuttal of views by veteran commentator Walter Lippmann recently that the "country may demand and necessity may dictate the repression of uncontrollable violence."

Lippmann, one of the many Democrats disenchanted by the Vietnam war, urges a Nixon victory because "it will in all ways be better if the conservatives are in power should these necessities arise."

Nixon certainly is the only one who seems capable at this stage, less than four weeks away from the election, of getting elected.

But Truman in 1948 started badly and moved steadily up. Humphrey started badly and has remained stagnant, well behind Nixon and perhaps behind candidate George Wallace's third-party popularity as well.

Lesson for Canada

A Critical View of Richard Nixon

William Gold in the Hamilton Spectator

In this space Saturday I said that Richard Nixon is an exceptional man. Having heard him speak here in Buffalo Monday night I am reluctantly compelled to agree with myself and now urge Canadians to fortify the longest undefended border in the world.

A facetious statement, but in the physical sense only. That which we cannot defend with guns we had better start defending with ideas, with excellence of mind, with quality of deed and with self-confidence.

It is becoming increasingly obvious that whoever wins the Nov. 5 presidential election down here — Nixon or Hubert Humphrey with whatever complications George Wallace can provide — the resulting administration is going to be far more "America-first" than anything since the Second World War. Humphrey offers the only slim hope contrariwise.

That being the case, Canada had better start looking after itself. We will need every bit of the confidence in our dealings to the south that Diefenbaker gave us. We will need every bit of Pearson's independent professionalism. And we will have to have full realization of Trudeau's promise of individual excellence. Otherwise our neighbor could be a sticky customer, with incalculably deadening mental and moral effects.

From the standpoint of political theory, Mr. Nixon's performance here last night was a farce. He told his 15,000 - plus audience nothing concrete or even sensible. He was the man to make the U.S. great again — in space, in armaments (for peace, of course), in science, in wealth, in law and order, and in everything else. And of course he would end the Vietnam war, just as Eisenhower ended the Korean war.

There was not a syllable about how all this was to be done.

Intell. Spreads The News

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Your kind acknowledgment for our renewal subscription has come to hand. We are very pleased with the news coverage that comes through your paper. To us it is our home paper, knowing Belleville so well. I was in county council for 13 years; in fact, my name and photo appeared the year I was Warden, 1940, and we had the paper in our home all through those years.

We understand that after Jan. 1, 1969, there will be no delivery on Saturday. That will mean we will not get Friday's paper until the following Monday. I wonder in the meantime if something could be done to help this situation.

City Is Thanked for Its Hospitality to Visitors

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am asking you to convey to the Parks Board, city of Belleville, the sincere thanks of the Hastings County Farmers' Union for their services.

Messrs. K. Soden and D. Williams and Mayor Dr. Scott were most helpful in assisting our organization to care for the "Travellers with Tractors" from Western Ontario on Oct. 1.

The use of the grounds for parking the tractors, the building for feeding these men was appreciated. I would like to thank the workmen who made the chairs and tables available. All these things aided us in doing a better job.

I want to put our thanks before the citizens in order that they will understand the services rendered by the City of Belleville—the "Friendly City."

(Mrs. L. JEANNE WILLIAMS, Sec.-Treas. Hastings County Farmers' Union.

New Drug May Beat Migraine

Windsor Star

Some of the ailments most common to humankind have been the most stubborn in their resistance to medical scientists.

The common cold is but an example. Another is the headache, common or otherwise.

The worst of these is the migraine which causes inestimable human suffering, often being almost unendurable. It frequently defies medicaments which bring relief to ordinary headaches. Curiously it affects younger people, tending to become more rare or even absent as one grows older. This is small solace to one afflicted with it in youth.

Now experimental work in a Pennsylvania hospital indicates a drug has been discovered which will eliminate migraines. This, if true, will be a wonderful boon to those who often suffered the tortures of the damned.

Men and Women Two Sexes Divided by Common Language

Christian Science Monitor

"Men and women are two sexes divided by a common language. Husband and wife think they are talking about the same thing when they're really not." So says a University of California professor.

He wonder how much scholarly study it took to determine what many husbands could have told the professor was a universally known fact?

Take as ah example, that little word "never." When a wife says to her husband, "you never say that you love me," the husband is apt to take a very masculine view of the accusation and judge the word as expressing eternity, whereas "never" to the wife merely refers to the past half hour.

Or that little phrase "where did you get it?" Ask a man that question and he'll give you the name of the store. Ask a woman and she's quite likely to say "why, what's wrong with it?"

Yet, in the most famous discussion in the English language between words, it were the girl who defended their semantically correct use. When Humpty Dumpty who most certainly was male, said that a word "means just what I choose it to mean . . ." it was little Alice who was horrified. That should be a warning to us self-satisfied males.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 15, 1968 . . .

First Mass de Lamothe Cadillac, the founder of Detroit, died in France 238 years ago today—in 1730—aged 62. He emigrated to Acadia in 1683, sired 13 children and took part in Frontenac's war against the British. In 1701, he explored Lake Ontario to Detroit where he founded a colony and lived until 1710.

1754 — Anthony Henday sighted the Rocky Mountains, near Red Deer, Alta.

First Week in . . .

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—French forces north of Laon and in the Champagne district made important advances: British troops captured Estevelles, Mourchin and Bauvin, west of Lille; Belgian soldiers captured Ingheim and Cortemarck; Allenby's forces occupied Homs, Syria.

Ironically, the source of Mexico's current anxiety, the institutional Revolutionary party, PRI, that has ruled Mexico for three decades with patriarchal firmness, is the font of the current storm.

There has been growing disenchantment at nearly all levels, but particularly among middle-class youth and students, with the one-party system and its long-established ills: cronyism, nepotism and corruption.

Olympics Untouched

Student Unrest Threatens Mexican Stability

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ
And
WILL GRIMSLEY

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The political strife that has soiled the image of a progressive, stable Mexico is unusual in that it did not happen sooner.

The students-inspired violence that has claimed some 50 lives since July has been throttled at least temporarily by official muscle. The world's foremost sports pageant, the 19th Olympiad, seems certain to go on.

But when the last Olympic cheer dies down at the close, Sunday, Oct. 27, the curtain may be going up on a sequel to the worst political storm to rock this prosperous nation since the abortive revolt led by Gen. Gonzalo Escobar in 1929.

Because of its size, 6,300,000 people in a 300-square mile metropolitan are, Mexico City looks big enough to stage a revolution and an Olympiad at the same time without one bothering the other.

"The Olympic Village is a sort of Shangri-L," said Barry Waeistenberg, U.S. water poloist. "Its hasn't touched us and we feel it won't."

"How can we take a stand when we don't know what the issues are?" asked a Czechoslovak student. "I'm sure the students have rightful complaints, but it is their problem, not ours. We were sent here to prepare for the Games."

Salute to the Past by Hasty Pee Vets

A highlight of the Hasty Pee reunion on the weekend was the march past in which almost all registered regimental veterans took part. The march travelled along Pinnacle and Front streets before turning up Bridge Street where the salute was given before The Intelligencer building.

Hasty Pees Reunion Attended by Hundreds

Approximately 400 people were present for the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental reunion held Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Most of Saturday was spent with registration of members of the Hasty Pee Association who came from all over Canada — east as far as the Maritimes and west as far as Vancouver.

Saturday afternoon was highlighted by the renewal of old acquaintances and a dance really threw the friends together.

The Hasty Pee veterans turned out Sunday morning for a church parade before the memorial on the Armories lawn.

The church parade was followed by a march past along Pinnacle and Front Streets, with Maj. Stanley Ketcheson, Maj. Howard Reid and Lt. Col. F. R. Allan taking the salute in front of the Intelligencer building.

A banquet Sunday afternoon in the armories wound up the official activities of the reunion. Angus Duffy, head of the Emergency Measures Organization and once commanding officer of the regiment, spoke.

In his speech Mr. Duffy said that the regimental association itself could be proud of its accomplishments.

"We raised $7,000 to assist in the further education of children of Hasty Pees killed in action. We published the regimental history for which we raised $3,000.

"We raised $7,000 for the memorial in the armories that our dead and their deeds may not be forgotten.

"We have seen to it that the regiment continues to be ready to defend Canada if need be. Today it is better trained and equipped than at any time during peacetime."

The meeting of the association Sunday morning was the impetus for a proposed trip to Italy in the early 1970's as the reunion project.

Belleville and District Obituaries and Funerals

MRS. DAVID W. CASSELMAN (Smithfield)

TRENTON — The funeral for Mrs. Sarah Emily Casselman, Smithfield, was held from the Weaver Funeral Home on Monday afternoon.

Rev. J. A. Payton conducted the service in the chapel and also said the committal rites in Greenwood cemetery, Smithfield.

The bearers were four nephews, Ernest Turneliff, George Kellar, Jack and James Casselman and two grandsons, Donald and Harry Casselman.

Mrs. Casselman, died in Trenton Memorial Hospital on Friday in her 80th year. She was born in Hastings County, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Turnelliff and was a resident of Brighton township for 38 years.

Surviving are three sons, Wesley Casselman, R.R. 4, Trenton, Clarence of Trenton, Charles of R.R. 2, Brighton and one daughter, Mrs. C. (Areitia) Wannamaker, Smithfield.

Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Laura Kellar and Mrs. Mary Young, both of Bancroft, three brothers, Frederick Turnelliff, Bancroft, William of Deseronto, John of R.R. 1 Trenton, 13 grandchildren, 15 great grandchildren and three great great grandchildren. One brother, Arthur Turnelliff is predeceased.

HOWARD ROSS REID (Deseronto)

DESERONTO — The funeral service for Howard Ross Reid of Mill St., Deseronto, was widely attended by friends and relatives from many parts of Ontario and beyond. Mr. Reid was killed in a traffic accident near Cornwall last Wednesday morning, October 9, 1968. The funeral service, conducted by Rev. J. M. G. Soutter of Wellington, was held in the chapel of the Wartman Funeral home in Napanee, Saturday, with interment in Riverview Cemetery, Napanee. An IOOF memorial service was held Thursday evening at the funeral home.

Mr. Reid was born in Morven 48 years ago, the son of Percy Ray Reid and the former Florabelle Curran. He was educated there and in Napanee, and lived in that area until eight years ago when he moved with his wife and family to Deseronto. From his early youth he had been a truck and then a transport driver, working for the most part for canning companies.

He was employed at the Vandewater Canning Factory in Bath until it closed, and since then has been employed by Metcalfe Foods, Ltd., in Deseronto. His work for this firm took him from coast to coast, and his nature was such that he made friends wherever he went. He had the reputation of being a very expert and a very careful driver.

The accident in which he lost his life occurred in very heavy fog, when he collided with another transport which had been involved in an accident with a station wagon a few minutes earlier. The transport burst into flame and he was trapped in the cab.

Mr. Reid is survived by his parents, and by his wife, formerly Audrie Acleen Silver of Hay Bay; by his two daughters, Mrs. Gerald Tompkins (Nancy) and Mrs. Robert Bernhardt (Joyce), both of Deseronto, and ron Douglas, at home; by his grandaughter, Daphne Tompkins; and three sisters: Mrs. Alvin McCrae (Helen) of Lonsdale; Mrs. Clifford Booth (Edna) of Napanee; and Mrs. Richard Martin (Orma) of Wilkesdale; and his brother Donald of Deseronto.

Mr. Reid was born in Belleville, 62 years ago, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Reid and had lived his entire life in the community.

He was a spray painter at the International Hardware Company and had been an employee of that firm for 31 years. During the Second World War he was a member of the RCAF. Transport Division and was stationed at 6 RD for five years.

Mr. Reid was a member of Christ Church and fraternally was a life member of Moira Lodge AF & AM No. 11 and an active member of the Royal Canadian Legion.

He has no immediate survivors but his wife, the former Alice Gill, died some years ago.

Mr Reid is resting at the Grane Funeral Home. Service will be held in Christ Church on Wednesday, October 16 at two o'clock. Interment will be in Belleville cemetery. Canon R. B. Wright will officiate.

Carrying Place Child Killed in Mishap

TRENTON — A four-and-a-half-year-old Carrying Place girl, Rosemary Lynn Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Brown, was fatally injured Sunday when either kicked or trampled by a neighbor's pony.

The girl died on the operating table at Trenton Memorial Hospital as surgeons worked to save her life. The girl was said to have suffered a severed stomach injury.

Mr. and and Mrs. Brown and the family of small children had gone to the home of a neighbor, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Patrick for the Thanksgiving dinner.

The funeral for the little girl will be held Wednesday.

Colony at Turning Point

Rhodesian Dilemma: Economic Boom or Stagnation

SALISBURY (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith has returned home to Rhodesia from his unsuccessful Gibraltar talks with Britain's Harold Wilson with his breakaway African colony at a turning point.

Settlement of the three-year constitutional deadlock with Britain holds the promise of an economic boom. Continued economic sanctions against his unrecognized government point to spreading economic stagnation.

At the moment, outward signs of difficulty are few.

Shoppers complain that some favored items are missing but French wines, Dutch cigars and Scottish salmon were available. There are fewer new British cars on the road but plenty of Japanese models.

Economic sanctions have clearly failed in their declared purpose of toppling the white-minority regime, though they have caused immense economic damage to Rhodesia.

Exports were cut to little more than $280,000,000 last year from $462,000,000 in 1965.

Imports reach Rhodesia and some exports leave via South Africa and Portuguese Mozambique.

Tobacco growers are hardest hit. The number of tobacco farmers has dropped to 1,700 from about 3,000 since Smith declared independence from Britain Nov. 11, 1965, rather than submit to eventual black majority rule in the colony.

Unemployment is increasing among the 4,000,000 blacks. Rhodesian blacks loiter in the cities or return to subsistence farming in the increasingly crowded tribal trust lands.

There is gasoline rationing, but extra coupons are available if one has the money. Two auto assembly plants and a tire factory are idle. An oil refinery at Feruka is closed.

Mineral prospects are good but not likely to start paying off in a big way for two or three years.

The Johannesburg-based Anglo-American Corp. is spending $1,400,000 annually to develop nickel, copper and other base-metal deposits.

Rhodesian Chrome Mines, a subsidiary of Union Carbide, is competing with Anglo-American for chrome, nickel and platinum.

If Smith and Wilson had reached a settlement aboard the Royal Navy ship Fearless in Gibraltar, or if it is eventually achieved in the near future, the mineral boom would get added impetus. Rhodesian funds frozen in London and elsewhere would be released and unemployment would decrease dramatically.

Ontario Weather Is Tops

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Good weather prevailed over most of the country when Canadians celebrated the Thanksgiving holiday, the last long weekend before winter closes in.

Ontario had summer-like, 70-degree weather, hottest spot in the country. In other parts of Eastern Canada, the temperatures stayed near the 60s which helped Montreal close its Man and His World exhibition in grand style.

The exhibition, a miniature Expo 67, closed Monday and officials announced a total attendance for the fair of 12,500,000.

It was sunny in Saskatchewan but cool and windy over other parts of the Prairies. Alberta had fog and rain fell in British Columbia where temperatures hovered around the 40-degree mark.

By late Monday night, a survey by The Canadian Press showed that 19 Canadians had died on the highways during the three-day weekend, close to the 65-to-75 predicted by the Canadian Safety Council.

Traffic in Ontario was bumper-to-bumper on major routes during most of the holiday.

As usual, airline and bus companies reported heavy business.

Newfoundland was the warmest of the Atlantic provinces with temperatures in the 60s. The Maritimes was slightly cooler.

Arkansas Prison Incident

Guards' Shotguns Wound 24

CUMMINS PRISON, Ark. (AP) — Prison guards fired eight shotgun blasts into a group of 74 prisoners Monday, wounding 24, after the convicts refused to work in the prison fields unless some institution policies are changed.

Superintendent Victor C. Urban defended the use of gunfire as a reasonable tactic under the circumstances. Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller called for a full investigation.

All but one of the 24 prisoners who were wounded were taken to the hospital infirmary. Urban said Herman Good, 30, of Natchez, Miss., was struck in the eye by birdshot and taken to a Little Rock hospital.

Urban said about 100 prisoners refused to work Monday morning but that about 22 changed their minds and went to work.

He said Gary Haydis, an associate superintendent, fired the first shot.

"Mr. Haydis told them to go back to work," Urban said. "He fired his shotgun in the air as a warning shot, and they did not move. So he fired into them. Then they moved."

Two of the convicts who were wounded told reporters no warning shot was fired.

Urban, who said he did not witness the shooting, reported that the prisoners were wounded in the head, back and arms.

"Those who were wounded in the head were sitting down," he said. "The others were standing."

Urban said the prisoners wanted to outline about 10 grievances to the prison this way or that."

"Let me make one thing clear," he said. "No inmate is going to tell Mr. Haydis or I or the prison board that we should run the prison this way or that."

The shooting was the latest in a series of incidents in the Arkansas prison system, which has been criticized by its opponents as brutal and outmoded.

The Bank of Nova Scotia introduces the Cheque Guarantee Card.

What's it good for?

Paying by cheque, your own personal cheque, even in places where you're a complete stranger. Cashing cheques without question, delay or embarrassment.

What's so different about this card?

1. It carries your photograph. In living colour. This is proof positive that you are who you say you are. 2. It is proof positive that The Bank of Nova Scotia guarantees payment of your cheques. Anytime. Anywhere.

It's the photograph that does it. Your Scotiabank Cheque Guarantee Card introduces you with instant face-to-face identification. So there's absolutely no risk to the person who's accepting your cheque.

Another advantage. If you should happen to write a cheque for more than you have in your account, there's an automatic line of credit built right in.

What does the card cost you?

Two dollars. And that's it. There's no cost at all to the person who's accepting your cheque.

Come into The Bank of Nova Scotia. We'll photograph you with our special colour camera.

When you get your Cheque Guarantee Card, carry it at all times. Present it whenever you write a cheque. In a store. In a restaurant. Anywhere.

No delay, no embarrassment, no questions asked.

CHEQUE GUARANTEE CONDITIONS

THE BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA GUARANTEES PAYMENT OF CHEQUES DRAWN ON IT BY ITS CUSTOMER WHOSE SIGNATURE AND PHOTOGRAPH APPEAR ON THE FRONT OF THIS CARD ON THE FOLLOWING CONDITIONS.

MR. AND MRS. HARRY EDWARD CLARKE

Clarke – Larkin

St. Charles Borromeo Church, Read, was the setting on Saturday, October 12, 1968, at 11 a.m., when Mary Catherine Larkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Larkin of Plainfield became the bride of Harry Edward Clarke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clarke of Belleville. Rev. Father J. Ferguson performed the double-ring ceremony, while traditional wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Adrian Callaghan "of Corbyville who accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Jim LeSage of Tweed.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white floor-length classic rose satin brocade pencil slim gown with long lily-point sleeves and Empire waistline adorned with a self bow, with the back enhanced with a train of the same material attached at the shoulders. Her headdress of satin roses was caught to a four - tiered shoulder - length veil and she carried a cascade of Orange Delight roses mingled with stephanotis.

Attending the bride, as maid of honor was her sister Miss Colleen Larkin who wore a full-length Persian melon gown of satin brocade with matching bow headdress. She carried a bouquet of white and melon shade pom poms 'mums. Miss Rose Marie Clarke, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Jean Larkin, sister of the bride as bridesmaids were attired identically to the maid of honor and carried similar bouquets. The little flower girl Miss Lynn Clarke, sister of the bridegroom wore a floor-length gown and headdress identical to the other attendants and carried a miniature bouquet of melon and white pom pom 'mums.

Carl Thompson, brother-in-law of the bridegroom was best man, while the ushers were Francis Cosgrove, cousin of the bride and Carl Clarke, brother of the bridegroom.

For the reception at the Parish Hall, Read, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a navy crimplene dress with matching lace coat, black accessories and a corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who chose a teal blue wool dress, black and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Leaving on a wedding trip to Lake Placid, U.S.A., the bride donned a canary yellow wool dress and coat ensemble with navy accessories and a corsage of bronze and yellow 'mums.

WEDDING

MASSEY — KERR

Lt.-Col. W. T. Hawkes officiated at the October 12 wedding ceremony when he united in marriage Marjorie Lillian Kerr, daughter of Brigadier and Mrs. J. N. Kerr, of Fenelon Falls, Ontario, to Arthur Massey, of Belleville, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Massey. Rendering traditional organ music was Mrs. Grace Littlejohn, and the soloist was Mrs. Alan Dayton.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in the uniform of the Salvation Army, complemented by the bouquet of red roses and white stephanotis which she carried.

Bridesmaid, Elizabeth McArthur, of London, Ontario, also wore a Salvation Army uniform, completed by a corsage of pink carnations and roses.

Attending the bridegroom was Bert Grills; and the ushers were Harry Diamond and Alan Dayton, both of Belleville.

For the wedding reception held in the United Church in Fenelon Falls, Ontario, the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a Salvation Army uniform. Her complementing corsage was of red tea roses.

For the wedding trip to points in Northern Ontario, the bride donned a gold wool knit suit, and a light blue coat, with black accessories and an orchid corsage.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM R. B. MacLEOD

MacLeod – Baker

Baskets of pink and white carnations and white gladioli adorned the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Baker, Carrying Place recently, when their daughter Carol Roberta exchanged wedding vows with William Robert Brent MacLeod, Toronto. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. MacLeod, Trenton.

Rev.-H. G. Hedley-Smith officiated at the ceremony. The wedding music was played by the sister of the bride Mrs. Fred Rollins who accompanied the soloist Miss Kathy Reid.

The bride given in marriage by her father wore a short A-line gown of white silk shantung edged with a band of silver and mother-of-pearl at the neckline and waist. Her veil was shoulder length and she carried a cascade of pink roses with heather fern. She wore a small gold locket which was a gift of the groom.

The groom was attended by James Grosjean of Pleasant Valley.

A buffet supper was held immediately after the ceremony in the recreation room of the bride's home which was decorated with autumn flowers and candelabra.

The bride's mother received the guests. She wore a bone colored brocaded dress with matching jacket, brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. The groom's mother assisted wearing a brown silk suit with touches of aqua, matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations frosted with aqua.

For travelling the bride donned a matching white silk shantung coat with pink accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. They took up residence in Toronto.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Pineapple Slices for Dessert

By MARY MOORE

Why don't readers sign their names when they write? I have a letter signed "Thanks" giving me a recipe for Pineapple Slices after my Pineapple Slice of August 17, 1968. She recommended them so highly we tried and liked them, and want to pass the recipe on. Actually they are a dessert so do not confuse them with what we commonly call squares or bars. They should not be frozen but may be refrigerated for 24 to 48 hours by hostesses who are preparing for a large crowd such as a church banquet.

"THANKS" PINEAPPLE SLICES (a dessert)

Base:
1 cup sifted all - purpose flour
1 tsp. baking powder
3 tbsps. granulated sugar
½ tsp. salt
3 tbsps. soft butter or margarine
1 egg

Filling:
One 19-oz. can crushed pineapple
¼ cup light brown sugar
1 tbsps. cornstarch

Topping:
1 cup granulated sugar
1 egg
2 tbsps. melted butter or margarine
1 tsp. vanilla
2 cups desiccated coconut

To make base, combine flour, baking powder, sugar and salt in a bowl then rub in butter or margarine with wooden spoon and stir in egg. Press evenly into bottom of ungreased 8 x 8" pan with wet fingers.

To make Filling, in top of double boiler combine pineapple (undrained), brown sugar and cornstarch and cook over hot water, stirring until thick. While hot pour over prepared base.

To make Topping combine white sugar, egg, melted butter or margarine, vanilla and coconut. Dot over filling and coax with a fork to cover filling evenly. Bake at 350 deg. F.for 30 min. until tinged with gold. Cool in pan and if to be stored, cover carefully with plastic bag or Saran before chilling. Cut into 2½" squares to serve. For special occasions top with a little unsweetened whipped cream and a cherry.

My thanks to "Thanks".

Club Activities

VICTORIA WILLING WORKERS

The October meeting of the Victoria Willing Worker group was hosted by Mrs. Melvin Pulver.

Mrs. Roy ethercall, president, conducted opening exercises and brought several business matters to the attention of the members.

Mrs. Robert Townsend was in charge of the evening's program and told the story of a Japanese woman missionary to her own people, who chose to be called "Naomi." The group followed Naomi's life story and work with interest.

A contest on well-known proverbs was enjoyed. A social time followed with Mrs. Pulver and committee serving lunch.

Father: "Do those kids have to have that music so loud? The neighbors will be calling the police."

Mother: "I know you prefer loud music, but please turn the volume down after 10 o'clock so you won't disturb the neighbors."

Young people seem to enjoy the sheer loudness of their music, but they should consider others and set some limits to the sound.

Ann Landers

This Reader Claims Alcoholism Hereditary

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You keep insisting that alcoholism is an illness. I know for a fact you are wrong. Alcoholism is no illness, it is hereditary. The family I married into is living proof.

ANN LANDERS

I knew when I married Jim that he had a drinking problem but I didn't know he would take gin in a hot water bottle to the hospital when he had his gall bladder out. Jim's father has not drawn a sober breath since I met him 21 years ago. His mother has not uttered a coherent sentence in the last 15 years. Jim has three brothers and two sisters. The only one in the crowd who doesn't drink is a sister who is a religious nut and I think a few drinks might improve her personality a lot.

I won't go into uncles and aunts, but at every family wedding or birthday party all they do is drink. Nobody eats. They have to call the fire department to come get the food because they hate to throw it out.

This bunch is living proof that alcoholism is hereditary. It's not possible that everybody in Jim's family caught the same illness. I hope you will be big enough to admit you are wrong and I'm right. — DON'T TOUCH-THE STUFF MYSELF.

DEAR STUFF: The experts agree that a tendency toward alcoholism may be hereditary, but alcoholism is not inherited like crooked teeth or loving-cup ears. It so happens that your husband's clan is loaded with emotional problems and they all chose the same escape hatch — booze.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A bouquet of onions to you for the advice you gave to that poor kid who had a baby out of wedlock and asked if it would be all right to get married in a white wedding gown and have her 3-year-old daughter as a flower girl.

Just because Bella made a little mistake is no reason she should pay for it for the rest of her life, is it? Why should she hide her head in the sand like an ostrich? Everyone knows what happened. Bella takes her child everywhere and calls herself Miss Jones. I think this takes a lot of courage, and she is to be admired.

Now that Bella has a chance to marry a nice fellow, why should she have the dream of her life spoiled? This unfortunate girl has always wanted a lovely white wedding with orange blossoms and everything. You were mean to say no and spoil a young maiden's dream. — A CLOSE FRIEND.

DEAR CLOSE: A girl who has had a child out of wedlock is no maiden — so forget about "spoiling her dream." If she allows her child to be the flower girl at her wedding she will be the subject of richly deserved ridicule. I hope somebody can talk her into wearing a pink suit — in the pastor's study.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Before a woman marries (second time for both) does she have the right to know how much money the man earns, how much he has in the bank, how much he has in stocks, bonds and real estate, and how much insurance he carries? When a certain lady asked me these questions, I said, "Doesn't character count?" She replied, "Yes, but I can learn that from your behavior." What do you say about this matter, Anne? — WARY WALLY.

DEAR WALLY: I say a woman has the right to know the answers to those questions before she marries. The divorce courts are loaded with people who married first and asked later.

Surprise - Ending Verse from Almanac

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Readers: This sage bit of verse comes from the Farmers' Almanac, 1968:

I dreamed death came the other night
And Heaven's gate swung wide;
With kindly grace an angel
Ushered me inside.

And there to my astonishment
Stood folks I'd known on earth
— Some I'd judged and labeled as Unfit or Little Worth.

Indignant words rose to my lips.
But never were set free;
For every face showed stunned surprise;
No one expected me!
—Anon.

* * *

Dear Doris: I left my husband because he can't control his temper and constantly uses his fists as a persuader. We have a 16-month-old baby boy and I'm expecting again. My husband is being put through a trade course because he can never hold a job for long.

I simply adored my husband but now I don't feel much in love any more. I believe in my marriage vows and that you should live by them, but I don't want to die young.

He begs me to take him back but everyone else says that if I do I'm a complete fool. (This would be the second time.) I would like to trust him again for our children's sake. He adores our baby.

Is it possible to love him again like I did? He's 22 and I'm 20. — Is There Hope?

Dear Is There Hope: It will take some doing to turn this two-fisted overgrown child into a man. He still has the idea that Might is Right.

You rate a credit mark for walking out on him — twice. Some women stay until they are reduced to a grease spot. I don't think now's the time to take him back; but whether there is enough love between you to weather the years of feeding that still lie ahead will take a closer examination.

Personal counselling was made for just such situations as yours. Seek it.

Dear Doris: I have two very old china heads from old dolls and would like to fix these heads up with bodies and limbs again. Is there any place in Canada a person could buy the china hands and feet for such dolls? Or perhaps some reader would happen to have some.

I am also looking for parts to an old Eaton Beauty doll that was so popular a few years back. Can anyone help? — Doll Lover.

Dear Doll Lover: I imagine so. Well, readers? Who has been cleaning out their attics lately. If there are such locations any more?

Soviet Foreign Policy Said Bankrupt
Britain Asks Czech Withdrawal

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart rejected as repugnant Monday the Soviet concept of a socialist commonwealth whose future could be determined alone by the Kremlin, and by military subjugation if deemed necessary.

In a major policy speech to the 125-nation General Assembly, Stewart described Soviet foreign policy as bankrupt, and asked for a withdrawal of all Soviet armed forces from Czechoslovakia as the best way to repair damage to East-West relations.

The Soviet concept drew fire also from Foreign Secretary Marko Mlkezic of Yugoslavia, a Communist country which has long followed a policy independent of Moscow.

"The smaller states which do not belong to any alliance are even warned that they cannot survive outside this or that bloc," he said.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India, in an address to the assembly, said recent events in Czechoslovakia had cast "yet another dark shadow on the fragile structure for a new world order."

Stewart referred directly to the speech of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in the assembly Oct. 3 in which Gromyko used the term "socialist commonwealth" and said in effect that what happened in its confines was the sole business of Moscow and the other states allied with it.

Stewart said Gromyko had proclaimed a doctrine under which "the Soviet Union will judge for itself what the interests of certain states may be and will, if it sees fit, take military action outside its own territory in accordance with that judgment."

"This is wholly repugnant to the UN charter. Speaking as a socialist and representing a country which belongs to a real commonwealth, I regret both the doctrine and the perversion of language in which it is expressed."

He referred also to the Soviet Union's position that, under articles of the UN charter, it could intervene in West Germany if there was a revival of Nazism.

He reiterated that Britain has taken solemn commitments with its allies "to uphold the security of the Federal Republic and of West Berlin."

Humanists' First Decision Is to Condemn Pill Encyclical

TORONTO (CP) — The newly-formed Humanist Association of Canada, which defines its members as "atheists, agnostics, freethinkers, rationalists and persons not affiliated with any organized religion," has condemned Pope Paul's stand on birth control.

A policy statement issued Monday calls the recent encyclical banning artificial contraception "a retrograde and reactionary document that fails to take into account the realities of the present day world with its overpopulation and the dangers of war and famine."

The group's executive, meeting here on the weekend to draft a constitution and policy statements, declared support for birth control and voluntary sterilization and abortions.

The 11-member executive also approved the distribution of 50,000 postcards across Canada, designed to be forwarded to local members of Parliament, declaring:

"I believe that every woman should have the right to decide whether an accidental pregnancy should continue or be interrupted medically. No woman should be forced to bring undesired children into the world."

Heading the 11-member executive of the Canadian association are Dr. Henry Morgentaler of Montreal, president; Jack Gazan of Toronto and Lloyd Brereton of Victoria, vice-presidents.

Moscow Talks

Czechs, Soviets Near Agreement

MOSCOW (CP) — Czechoslovakia and Soviet leaders were reported near agreement today on a treaty legalizing the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia.

The Czechoslovak radio-television network's Moscow correspondent reported Monday that the agreement is expected to be signed today. It provides for gradual withdrawal of some Warsaw pact troops but occupation forces will remain "for a time," he said.

The report did not say how many foreign soldiers would leave and how many would stay. Western intelligence agencies estimate the total occupation force at 275,000, while Czechoslovak and Western sources in Prague say it is nearer 600,000.

Czechoslovak Premier Oldrich Cernik was reported to have negotiated the agreement into final form Monday with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin.

Cernik flew to Moscow after a mixed delegation of government and military officials from Prague had spent almost a week here in discussions laying the ground for the treaty's signing.

A report circulated Monday that Moscow was reserving the right to leave behind as many troops as it wished, refusing to fix this number by treaty. But one Czechoslovak informant said Moscow would be satisfied to leave as few as 50,000 troops if Prague grants all its demands for a return to the tight controls of Soviet-style communism.

When the troop withdrawal starts, the bulk of the troops from the other occupying powers—East Germany, Hungary, Poland and Bulgaria—are expected to pull out. Reports say some Hungarian, Bulgarian and East German staff units will remain along with token Polish combat groups.

Smallwood Plans Visit To China

CLARENVILLE, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Joseph Smallwood plans to spend three months in Communist China next year, following his retirement from office after 20 years.

"I will see if I can get myself into a little bit of trouble in Communist China," he told a gathering of about 1,200 Liberals here Saturday for a party reorganizing conference.

"I have always wanted to go but I couldn't think of any reasonable excuse. . . . I will come back after two or three months with the hope that I will not still fancy myself as premier."

The meeting here was the second of four the premier said will begin the reconstruction of the provincial party following defeat of the Liberals in Newfoundland in the June 25 federal election. The first was in Grand Falls Sept. 28 and others are scheduled this month on the south and west coasts.

Cliche Quits NDP Post

The 46-year-old St. Joseph de Beauce lawyer, who was defeated in Duvernay riding by Postmaster-General Eric Kierans, announced his resignation Saturday.

He said he was leaving the party leadership "for mainly personal reasons."

Mr. Cliche made it clear he will remain a working member of the NDP and plans to sit on a committee that will study the party's possible entry in provincial politics.

Black Writers Congress

Be Prepared to Kill, Carmichael Tells McGill Audience

MONTREAL (CP)—Black Power leader Stokely Carmichael Monday urged North American Negroes to arm themselves and join "other oppressed peoples" in the war against racism, capitalism and imperialism.

Addressing about 1,000 delegates and observers attending the Black Writers Congress at McGill University, Mr. Carmichael said true revolution won't come about "until you pick up that gun and are prepared to kill for your people."

Mr. Carmichael's 45-minute speech topped off a four-day conference marked with anti-white resentment coming both from speakers and delegates.

In an earlier session Sunday about 300 delegates stormed out of the congress in protest of white attendance. Cries of "kick all the white people out," were heard Sunday as the 300 Negroes locked themselves in a room and held all-black meetings.

Speaking without a text, Mr. Carmichael said wherever he is found the black man is at the bottom of the ladder.

"The reason for this is the racism fostered by the white society."

He warned nNegroes to learn the differences between being colonized and being exploited.

Negroes were colonized because they had been robbed of their humanity.

He urged Negroes to become familiar with "wars of liberation" being waged in other countries by the downtrodden.

"Learn this because Africa will play a key role in the Third World War which is just around the corner. Learn this and get guns. Get all the guns you can get."

Guns, like hydrogen bombs, were equalizers.

"Every country has to have them because equality is military as well as political and economic. You can't have one without the other."

"If whites can get guns, blacks can get guns," he told the cheering audience.

Once armed, Negroes must know what they were fighting.

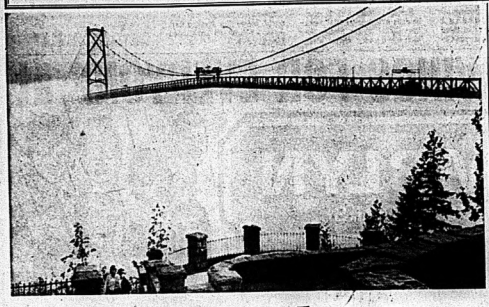
"We are against racism, capitalism and imperialism—the worst kind of capitalism."

The only way to fight was with revolutionary violence.

"Self-defence doesn't change the status quo."

But he added "you can't have revolution if you don't have power."

Power was acquired in one of three ways: Either you asked for it, begged for it, or you took it.



"You don't steal it. That makes you a coward. Canadians didn't steal Canada from the Indians—they took it."

If there ever was a black revolution, it must be world-wide.

"Black power in the U.S. alone is self-defeating."

"When a colonized people begins to move, the oppressor tries to be nice and pacify the oppressed with grants. If these fail he sends people to cause disunity within our ranks and if that fails, they move in with armed force.

"We call it the IM—the missionaries, the money and the marines."

UK Writer Blames Ottawa For Social Crisis of Eskimo

LONDON (CP) — An article in The Daily Mail says that "the Canadian government bears much of the blame for the social crisis that faces it in the Northwest Territories."

"For years, it (the Canadian government) ignored them until, just after the Second World War, it was stricken by conscience," McLachlan writes.

"The era of dole that followed helped to strip the Eskimo of his self-respect and his independence."

He mentions health and welfare programs, adult education and intensive education for young Eskimos.

"New homes are being built to replace the reeking slum shacks that scatter the shoreline, breeding grounds for the tuberculosis that plagues every Eskimo village," the article says.

Development of the area's resources made it "almost inevitable that the Eskimo's culture, his hunting and his art will disappear within a decade or two."

McLachlan quotes one veteran of life in the area as saying that "50 years from now there won't be a full-blooded Eskimo left."

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY,
Manpower Counsellor

The employment opportunities listed with the Canada Manpower Centre during the past week indicate that the local contractors were taking maximum advantage of the continuing fine autumn weather. Over 50 per cent of the job vacancies came from the construction field and its related businesses.

The demand from industry was mainly confined to the skilled worker such as qualified machinists. However there were a number of positions available for suitable unskilled plant laborers.

The response resulting from a recent newspaper article concerning several Czechoslovakian refugee families who were seeking work and accommodation in our area showed a wonderful community spirit.

The following employment opportunities are now available.

In the female division, reliable and mature women are required for the care of children. In demand are experienced dining room waitresses to work on a full or part time basis. There are requirements in the Quinte area for housekeepers with some of the positions on a live-in basis.

The motel and hotel businesses are looking for full time chambermaids. An educational centre has a requirement for a qualified librarian who possesses a university library of science degree. The provincial government of Ontario is seeking qualified typists for work in various government departments.

In the male division locally, still in short supply are licensed automobile repair mechanics. A manufacturer of pleasure sailing boats has openings for cabinet makers and mature fibre glass moulders.

A small machine shop has an opening for a second class moulder. A saddlery business still requires experienced saddle and harness makers. Excellent wages are being offered on these positions.

An industrial plant has a requirement for experienced machinists with emphasis on lathe work. A qualified baker and experienced underground mine worker are also in demand.

At the professional level, still being sought are industrial and civil engineers and a qualified accountant. In constant demand are manager trainees for various business fields.

If interested in any of these positions, seeking other employment or thinking of reentering the labor market, contact the Canada Manpower Centre at 304 Church Street, Belleville.

Four Bills at Hand

Farm Legislation Again Before House Today

OTTAWA (CP)—Farm legislation which has absorbed most of the parliamentary timetable for the last two weeks is on the agenda again for the Commons sitting at 2:30 p.m. EDT today.

Friday, before adjourning for the Thanksgiving holiday weekend, the House dealt with spending estimates for the Privy Council. Opposition MPs criticized the cost of royal commission and blasted the rotation system which limits the number of days cabinet ministers are in the House for the daily question period.

Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson, a sharp critic of federal agriculture policies during his years as a Social Credit MP, has been under steady fire as he manoeuvres his first bills through the House.

The Farm Improvement Loans Act almost passed Thursday when the Conservatives indicated they were prepared to extend the sitting time to complete committee study.

After that third reading and final passage is almost automatic. But Gilbert Rondeau (Creditiste—Shefford) refused to give the unanimous consent required for an extended sitting.

Three other farm bills have been given first reading:

—Farm Credit Act amendments to raise the capitalization of the Farm Credit Corporation to $1,040,000,000 from $40,000,000; extend the facilities of

U.S. Politician Raps Trudeau

Rarick says in a statement inserted in Saturday's Congressional Record that there are "current talks" between Canadian officials and the Peking government.

"With terrorist activity on the increase in Mexico and other Latin American countries, Americans should expect Canada to be infiltrated as a base of anti-American activity," says the statement.

Rarick includes with it what he calls a "memorandum" from Igor Gouzenko, the former Soviet embassy cipher clerk whose revelations following the Second World War touched off detection of a Soviet spy ring in Canada. The memorandum is titled: Trudeau: A Potential Castro, and includes reference to several Canadian newspaper articles.

The entire "memo" was prepared before the election last June 25 won by the Trudeau-led Liberal party.

—Changes in the Prairie Grain Advance payments Act which fulfil a Liberal election promise to increase to $3,000 from $3,000 the amount a farmer may receive as an advance payment on farm stored grain.

On Friday Government House Leader Donald S. Macdonald said the Commons would conclude debate on the Farm Improvement Loans Act and then go on to the Farm Credit Act.

Tweed

Mrs. John DeMarsh is expected home in Tweed one day this week, following a few days as a patient in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, in Kingston. Mrs. DeMarsh is on the staff of Quinn's Store, Tweed.

Birthday and attached "Get Well" wishes are extended at this time to Mrs. William Pipe, of River Street, who has been a patient in the Belleville General Hospital for four weeks.

Mr. Terry Kellar, of Plevna, has enrolled at St. Lawrence College, of Applied Arts, at Kingston, and is taking a three-year course in Administration Accounting.

Mr. Harold Perry of Ardoch, is in the Perth Hospital. It is reported he suffered a heart attack.

Did Bobby Set Brevity Record?

"I Came Back!"

Hull Skates for Hawks 79 Hours After "Retiring"

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The 29-year-old forward, who announced his retirement Thursday, was back in uniform Sunday night after coming to terms with the Black Hawks just 90 minutes before a game against New York Rangers.

Possibly inspired by a 50-second ovation from Chicago Stadium fans, Hull scored one goal to help the Black Hawks whip the Rangers 5-2 for their second victory in two starts this season.

In other action Sunday, Toronto Maple Leafs edged Detroit Red Wings 2-1, Boston Bruins nipped Philadelphia Flyers 3-2 and Los Angeles Kings and Oakland Seals played to a 4-4 tie.

Saturday, Jacques Plante turned in a shutout as St. Louis Blues blanked Los Angeles 6-0 and Pittsburgh Penguins and Montreal Canadiens fought to a 1-1 deadlock.

Hull, whose retirement lasted only 79 hours, did not receive quite the $100,000 contract he had requested. However, it is reported that the Black Hawks will pay the taxes on the amount Hull received, making the net worth of the one-year pact more than if he had been given $100,000.

"I'm very, very happy with the final settlement," Hull said Sunday in an interview.

Other scorers for the Black Hawks Sunday were Ken Wharram, Bill Orban, Jim Pappin and Stan Mikita. Bob Nevin scored both Ranger goals.

Mikita and Pappin moved into a second-place tie in NHL scoring with Ab McDonald of St. Louis, all with four points. Pappin's goal was his third in two games for the Black Hawks, who obtained him in an off-season transaction with Toronto.

Phil Esposito scored the winning goal for the Bruins who are tied for first with Chicago in the Eastern Division. Esposito banged his own rebound past Philadelphia goaltender Bernie Parent at :29 of the final period for the victory.

Other Boston scorers were Ken Hodge and Ed Westfall. Collecting both Philadelphia goals was rookie Rosaire Paiement.

Ron Ellis and Mike Walton scored for Toronto, which opened its season successfully. Gordie Howe of Detroit scored his second goal in two games and the 690th of his long career.

Walton, a 30-goal scorer last season, tallied the winning goal at 4:47 of the third period with assists going to Bob Pulford and newcomer Larry Mickey.

Before only 2,668 at Oakland, Gary Jarrett scored two third-period goals to give the Seals their tie. Bill Hicke and Bryan Watson scored the other Oakland goals. Los Angeles scorers were Brent Hughes, Bill White, Lowell MacDonald and Ed Joyal.

The tie for Los Angeles came one night after they had run up against goaltender Jacques Plante, in retirement the last two seasons.

Montreal's season opener was less than an artistic success for the defending Stanley Cup champions.

Terriers Pace Sr. "A" Pack

Orillia Terriers, who only last spring were mired deep in the cellar of the Ontario Hockey Association senior series, now hold a share of first place with Barrie Flyers.

Flyers and Terriers, who battled to a 2-2 tie Sunday in Orillia, are the only unbeaten clubs in the eight-team group, both with one win and one tie.

In other weekend action, Oakville Oaks edged Woodstock Athletics 4-3 Sunday at Burlington and Galt Hornets crushed Kingston Aces 9-1 Saturday in Galt.

At Orillia, Grant Moore and Moe Galand, both from the defunct Toronto Marlboro seniors, scored for the Terriers. John McMillan and Pete Panagabko replied for the Flyers.

Terriers led 2-0 midway in the third period. Panagabko, a former professional, ruined Terrier goaltender Gerry McNamara's shutout bid at 10:38.

In the final minute, new Barrie coach Bep Guidolin gambled by replacing goaltender Ken Payne with an extra forward. The move paid off when McMillan converted a pass from Panagabko for the tying goal at 19:22.

Flyers and Terriers shared 20 penalties, including six fighting majors.

Vance Millar and Howie Dietrich scored twice each for Galt. Ron Smith, Frank Hincks, Bob Ertel, John Beechey and Bill Hway all scored once. Smith added four assists.

Mo-Hawks Sign Trio

Belleville's senior hockey hopes got the proverbial shot in the arm over the weekend with the signing of Mo-Hawk veterans Ralph Plane, George Godson, and Greg Marchen.

Godson — a smooth-skating centre— and burly defenceman Marchen had been contract "hold-outs" and sat out Friday's season opener after making the journey from Peterborough to watch the game.

The Mo-Hawks, still smarting from their 3-1 debut loss to Orillia, can also make use of popular winger Ralph Plane's aggressive brand of hockey as they travel to Kingston tonight.

Wills to Montreal

Mauch Pleased at Expos' Draft

MONTREAL (CP) — "I never dreamed that there would be that many quality players available to us."

That was field manager Gene Mauch's instant reaction to Monday's day - long National League baseball draft which saw his Montreal Expos and San Diego Padres each choose 30 players for next seasons entry to the league from the 10 existing clubs, who each protected 15 players.

The existing clubs added three players to the protected list each time they lost a player in the draft.

The Expos went for a balance of experience and youth throughout, while the Padres stuck with youth all the way, drafting only one player—outfielder Tony Gonzalez from Philadelphia—over 30. Gonzalez is 32, while pitcher Al McBean, picked from Pittsburgh is 30.

With the stocking of the two new clubs, at a price of $10,000,000 each, the National moves to a 12-team, two-division loop for 1969.

The day didn't start well for the Expos as they lost the toss to San Diego that determined first pick in the initial round.

The Padres promptly grabbed off 24-year-old outfielder Ollie Brown, a rebellious body from San Francisco, who objected to the Giants sending him to the minors in 1968.

Jim Fanning, Expos general manager, said that while he would have liked to pick Brown, his club made up for the loss.

The move enabled the Expos to take Manny Mota, a 30-year-old outfielder from Pittsburgh Pirates, as their first choice. And then they picked 33-year-old Donn Clendenon, a first baseman, from the same team as they had first choice in the second round.

The Expos went to the Pirates again to open their third round and took again shortstop star Maury Wills, who had been in trouble with the Pirates late in the season for refusing to take a physical examination.

Wills was the National League's most valuable player in 1962 while with Los Angeles Dodgers.

Wills stole a record 104 bases in 1962 and 52 last season with the Pirates.

Jerome Won This Round

Harry Jerome (171) of Canada beats Karl-Peter Schmidtke, foreground, of West Germany and Harold Eggers, beyond Jerome, of East Germany to win the seventh heat in the 100-meter qualifying trials of the Olympic Games. But the speedy Canadian sprinter was enjoying his only Olympic success. Jerome finished a dismal seventh in Monday's 100-meter final, and afterwards, announced his retirement from competition. Ticats Suffer Ottawa Thrashing; Restic Still Optimistic About First

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Head coach Joe Restic of Hamilton Tiger-Cats still believes his team may catch up with Ottawa Rough Riders, the Eastern Football Conference leaders. His optimism may not be shared by many others.

The Rough Riders regained first place in the EFC Sunday with a convincing 36-23 thrashing of the Tiger-Cats at Hamilton. Ottawa had dropped into second temporarily after Toronto Argonauts defeated British Columbia Lions 43-29 Saturday in an interlocking Canadian Football League game.

The Rough Riders, playing before a record Hamilton crowd of 29,900, built up a 36-1 lead over the Tiger-Cats before starting to relax. Still Restic was encouraged.

"I don't think Ottawa is as strong as the first time we played them," said Restic.

The Riders won that game 53-11 at Ottawa in the season opener for both teams last August.

Sunday's victory gave Ottawa 15 points, one more than Toronto and three ahead of Hamilton.

Quarterback Russ Jackson helped Ottawa jump into its sizable lead by passing twice for touchdowns to Flanker Whit Tucker and once to end Margene Adkins. Vic Washington ran for two touchdowns while Don Sutherin kicked five converts and a single.

The Tiger-Cats picked up a first-quarter single on a field-goal attempt by Tommy Joe Coffey and a third-quarter touchdown by Dave Viti on a 17-yard pass by Joe Zuger.

In the final quarter, Zuger threw touchdown passes to Dave Fleming and Willie Bethea. Coffey added three converts to his single and Zuger also kicked a single.

"They're a long way from home," Restic said about the Rough Riders. "I thought they would run more effectively than they did. They didn't control the ball, drive it down our throats. They did make the big play. You can't give them the easy score."

The Ottawa defence deserved as much credit for the victory as Jackson. It cut off the running of Bethea and Allan Smith and intercepted four Zuger passes.

The Argonauts remained in solid contention for first place, thanks to the outstanding performance of young quarterback Wally Gabler.

Gabler threw for four touchdown passes—two to Mel Profit and one each to Al Irwin and Bobby Taylor and scored one himself.

Bill Symons scored the other Toronto touchdown on a 55-yard run while Dave Maus kicked six converts and a single. Ted Gerela kicked four field goals, two converts and a single for the Lions who received touchdowns from Jim Evenson and Lach Heron. B.C. added a safety touch.

The Argonauts appeared in command throughout most of the wide-open contest, but the Lions pulled to within seven points midway through the final quarter when Paul Brothers hit Heron with a pass which resulted in an 82-yard touchdown play.

Gerela was back in business Monday against the Alouettes, and kicked two more field goals to bring his season total to 23. The CFL record had been 22. Brothers scored the only B.C. touchdown and Gerela added a convert.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two Western Football Conference clubs had their mathematical chances of making the playoffs erased by Edmonton Eskimos in weekend action.

The double-barrelled takeout was executed at Winnipeg, where Eskimos turned both the Blue Bombers and British Columbia Lions into also-rans with a 22-8 victory Sunday.

Saskatchewan Roughriders and Calgary Stampeders, meanwhile, continued their season-long fight Monday for first place in the WFC. Gordie Barwell hauled in a touchdown pass with two minutes to go to give Roughriders a 19-15 home victory and first place in the standings for at least the fifth time this season.

Saskatchewan now has 19 points, one more than Calgary and six more than third-place Edmonton. Each team has three games to go.

Calgary led all the way, getting touchdowns from Frank Andruski on an interception and a blocked punt, until the 13:04 mark of the final quarter.

Quarterback Ron Lancaster capped a determined downfield march with the toss to Barwell and Bill Goods was on target with his convert, his second of the game. Stampeders charged back but time ran out on the Saskatchewan 25.

It was the 10th consecutive home victory for Saskatchewan, stretching back to Oct. 22, 1967, when Stampeders took a 19-11 decision. It also gave the Roughriders two of the three games between the two clubs this season. Going into the game, their record was a 23-24 victory and a 20-33 loss.

It looked like Calgary's game in the early going. Andruski picked up a loose ball after a blocked punt for his first touchdown which, with a pair of singles, gave Calgary a 9-0 first-quarter lead.

Lancaster began engineering the comeback mid-way through the second quarter with a 63-yard pass to Jim Worden who shook off Larry Robinson to make the catch and go for a touchdown. Goods converted.

But Andruski got his second break of the afternoon on the last play of the half — he intercepted a Lancaster pass a rid ran 56 yards to widen the-margin again. The third quarter was scoreless.

Edmonton came to Winnipeg determined to snuff out any glimmer of hope Bombers had of making the playoffs, a job fullback Jim Thomas did effectively in the first quarter.

He scored two touchdowns three minutes apart and, although Bombers narrowed the gap in the second quarter, Eskimos were never seriously threatened. Thermus Butler also contributed a touchdown while Peter Kempf booted three converts and Randy Kerbow chipped in with a single.

Pierre Guindon got seven of Winnipeg's points with a convert and two field goals, one a 54-yard effort. Ed Ulmer also kicked a single. The loss left Bombers mired in last place with two victories in 12 games, B.C. Lions have seven points.

The West Coast squad can tie Edmonton in points but Edmonton has a better record against B.C. this year which eliminates the Lions from the playoffs.

They played two games with one day of rest on a weekend eastern swing, taking a 43-29 loss Saturday in a game with Toronto Argonauts and then defeating Montreal Alouettes 13-4 Monday.

Picton Kinsmen Capture Ontario Softball Title

The Picton Kinsmen Intermediate "B" softball team has been playing together since 1961. And it's got plenty to show for it.

The team has two Ontario championships for the seven years together. The first came in 1964.

The second came just this weekend as Picton travelled to Sudbury to take on the Sudbury Steelworkers in the best of three provincial finals. Picton edged Sudbury 5-4 in an 11-inning thriller Saturday night, then came back to prove it was no fluke Sunday afternoon as they handed Sudbury a 5-3 licking for the title.

Ken DeMille pitched both wins with no relief for the Picton champs. He sent the Sudbury hitters away swinging in the 11 - inning contest and struck out five in the second game. He walked just one in the initial tilt and two in the final contest.

DeMille had plenty of backing in both games as the Picton crew commited only one error while tagging 12 in the first game and bobbling two in the second contest while collecting seven hits for the title.

Picton picked up the 1968 title in the second game against Sudbury's John Monaghan who struck out three and gave no free passes. Sudbury also tallied seven connections.

In the opening game, St. Dennis had started Picton off on the right foot as he slammed the second pitch of the game over the right-field wall to make it 1-0. Sudbury came back in the third with two runs, then Guernsey scored in the fifth on an error to tie it up 2-2.

Juniors in Exhibition

Morrison Realtors Topple Frontenacs

By JERRY HOFF
Staff Writer

Belleville's Morrison Realty Junior "B" hockey club took advantage of six Kingston penalties in the first period of the team's opening exhibition game Sunday to collect a 2-0 lead and held it through the final periods to win the opener 6-4.

Left winger Ted Waite picked up the opening Belleville tally in the first six minutes with the second goal of the period being scored by Greg Burrett in the closing minute of the period. Brian Coughlin, centre, and Ray Summers, right winger, assisted Waite and John McConnell helped Burrett.

Belleville did some time in the box in the opening period with five penalties being handed out to the home team, but Kingston didn't take advantage of it and had to wait until the middle stanza to open its scoring.

The penalties slowed down in the second period with the two teams sending only three payers off the ice.

The scoring remained the same with Belleville picking up the third and fourth goals from Tuddy McCormack and captain Al Ray. Mark Acquafreddo and Gerry Ryan assisted McCormack and Bill Janitich helped Ray.

Kingston opened the final period scoring with Dave Higgins going all the way unassisted for the third Frontenac tally. Belleville came back with its fifth goal off the stick of Janitich with the help of Ray. Two minutes later, in 18.29 of the final period, Ray Summers, Belleville's right wing, got some help from left wing Waite and slammed home the sixth goal.

Kingston tallied its fourth marker by Dave Ducharme, unassisted, in 18.52 of the final frame.

THE CAR BUYER'S PROBLEMS
THIS GENERATION AND TRUTH IN ADVERTISING
The publisher of the Saturday Evening Post counselled a group of automobile advertising executives recently to obey the cry of youth: "Tell it like it is."
It's good advice. Yet millions of dollars are spent annually telling it like it isn't. How effective is this advertising?
We refer to ads that claim the best deal in town when many people know that the dealer advertising that way doesn't give the best deals in town. Or ads that offer no money down, long-term, easy-payment finance schedules that turn out to be the worst terms a buyer can get.
Then there are ads that give the impression that a buyer can get a desirable new car at a price that simply isn't possible. The ad may be true in the sense that a car could be sold at the price stated. But no reasonable buyer would buy a car so required.
An auto dealer may advertise this way because his competitors do it and he is afraid his competitors may be getting the business. Is he wise to do so? Experience shows that in the long run, the chances of success are far greater for the dealer who has no credibility gap to bridge.
The potential customer his unsensational ads bring in is more apt to be tired of horse trading and value long-term satisfaction equally with a fair price. Repeat business along with customer word-of-mouth recommendation will save this dealer much future expense for advertising needed to replace a constant turn-over of new customers.

U.S. Athletes Collect Medals In Any Kind of Air

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Olympic athletes breathing rarified air set heady marks Monday as the United States surged into the lead in gold medals and points.

Six gold medals were won and several records set on the second day of competition at the 19th Olympiad. The 143-member Canadian athletic contingent was still looking for its first team point.

Starting today's events, the U.S. had two gold, one silver and one bronze medal for 35 points. Russia was right behind with 33 points for one gold, one silver and three bronze awards.

Six gold-medals were up for decision today.

Irena Pietrowski, Lithuanian-born school teacher for Vancouver, goes into the semi-finals of the women's 100-metre dash against a classy field headed by Wyomia Tyus of the U.S. The final will be run later in the day.

The other medal events are 100-kilometre team time trials in cycling; men's discus; men's 400-metre hurdles; men's 800 metres, and lightweight weightlifting.

Sprinter Jim Hines and shot-put king Randy Matson got the American track and field squad off to a dramatic start with gold-medal victories, and promptly began pondering professional sports offers.

Hines, 22-year-old Negro speedster, won the 100 metres in an Olympic-record 9.9 seconds. He shaved two-tenths of a second off the listed world record.

Hines said he will retire from amateur track after the Olympics. He is likely to join Bobby Hayes, his predecessor as world's fastest human, in football togs. Hayes is a star with Dallas in the National Football League.

"I have been drafted by Miami Dolphins of the American Football League," said Hines. "I haven't signed with them yet, but I expect to talk to them next week.

"You know what that means. It's possible I could be in a football uniform in two weeks."

Matson has a choice of two sports—football or basketball—and may pick either one.

"I want to go home and think about it awhile," said the big man.

Matson has been drafted by Atlanta Falcons of the NFL and by two basketball teams—Dallas in the American Basketball Association and Seattle in the National Association.

Harry Jerome of Vancouver, bronze medal winner at the 1964 Olympics, finished seventh in this fastest 100 in Olympic history. He was clocked at 10.1 in both the semi-final and final.

Hines' 9.9 time equalled his own pending world record, which he shares with Charlie Greene of the U.S., who took the bronze medal here, and Ronnie Ray Smith, also of the U.S.

Matson won the shot put with a toss of 67 feet 4¼ inches, well below his world record of 71-5½. He set an Olympic mark of 67-10¼ in qualifying Sunday. George Woods of the U.S. took the silver medal and Eduard Guschin of the Soviet Union the bronze.

A little-known Romanian athlete set world and Olympic records in the women's long jump, her 22 feet 4¾ inches snapping the mark of 22-8¼ set by Mary Rand of Britain in 1964. Sheila Sherwood of Britain was second and Tatjana Talyshova of Russia third.

Angela Nemeth of Hungary tossed the javelin 198 feet ¼ inch for the gold medal, beating Mihaela Penes of Romania, the 1964 Olympic champion, who grabbed the silver. Austria's Eva Janko was third.

Vladimir Golubnichiy of Russia took the 20-kilometre walk in one hour 33 minutes 58.4 seconds, beating Jose Pedrasa, the loudly-cheered Mexican entrant. Nikolai Smaga of Russia was third.

Yoshinibu Miyake, 130 pounds and five feet, 2¼ inches, came through with a gold medal for Japan in the featherweight division of weightlifting, but expressed disappointment with his performance.

"We Need Big Names"

Jerome Retires After Placing Poorly

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Harry Jerome wants to do something for track and field in Canada.

"We have to start with public relations," the Vancouver sprinter said Monday after finishing out of the medals in the final of the men's 100-metre dash at the 1968 Olympics and announcing his retirement from competition.

"The Canadian government has to find big names in track and field and send them out to the high schools, starting with junior high, to talk to the young athletes and show them how the different events are performed properly."

Jerome feels that young athletes in high school consider a physical education instructor as they do any other teacher.

"You have to have someone whose name means something. Then the boy or girl will sort of idolize them and work seriously on the events."

Jerome, considered a controversial figure for several years because of his criticism of Canadian training and Olympic preparation standards, says that anyone who gets to the top in track and field in Canada must do it on his own.

"George Puce is a perfect example. He went out and worked on his own for three years for the 1968 Olympics. He had to go to the U.S. to get competition."

Puce, a Toronto native, has a recorded throw of 211 feet, three inches in the discus, although he was off form and failed to qualify in the first round of the competition during the current games.

"Fellows like that, and there are lots of them, are sort of pulled out of a hat every four years," Jerome said.

Jerome said that the track and field events specialized in by various schools would have to fit the varied Canadian climates.

"For instance, there is no way that schools on the Prairies could specialize in track events because of the long winters," he said. "But Prairie students could work on field events. There is no reason people can't jump and throw indoors."

"Another problem is in events like the javelin. Bill Hetkkila (of Toronto) is a good example of this. He's 5-foot-10, but he's the best we have. The problem concerning javelin throwers is that the event is banned in high schools because of the safety factor.

Jackson's Sculling Advances Him to 'Semis'

Jackson, easing up towards the finish, came in second in his heat Sunday over the 2,000-metre course to advance to Thursday's semi - final in the single sculls.

For the other Canadian entries, the pairs without cox, double sculls, and the eight-oared crew, it will be necessary to survive the repechages Tuesday, second and last chance for Sunday's non-qualifiers.

In the double sculls, Daryl Sturdy and Bob Stubbs, both of Vancouver, were fourth and last in their heat.

The eights, from St. Catharines, came fourth out of six in a heat won by West Germany.

Jackson, who shared a gold medal in the 1964 Tokyo Olympics with George Hungerford of Vancouver in the coxless pairs, crossed the finish line about four seconds behind his friend Niele Secher of Denmark. They were easily the best in their six-boat heat.

The four scullers moving directly into the semi-finals are Secher, Jackson, Jochen Meissner of West Germany, Jan Wienese of Holland, Achim Hill of East Germany, and Alberto Demiddi of Argentina, the Pan-American Games champion.

For Canada's eight-oared crew, it was the first defeat in the year they have been together.

ACAPULCO (CP-AP) — A third-place finish in the Dragon class by Mia IV, skippered by Timothy Irwin of Kingston, Ont., was Canada's best showing Monday in the first of seven days of Olympic yacht races.

COMRADE FLIES COOP

BUDAPEST (AP) — The Hungarian Olympic Committee said in a statement Monday it "received with indignation" a report from Mexico that Hungarian soccer player Zoltan Varga has defected.

The committee statement said: "He became unfaithful to his country and betrayed sporting friends. . . . His act is unworthy of a Hungarian sportsman and citizen."

TRADE TRACK FOR GRID

MEXICO CITY (CP) — The American and National football leagues may be the big gainers from two gold medals at the Olympics Monday.

Jim Hines, the American who lowered the Olympic 100-metre record Monday, said he plans to retire from track after the Olympics and start playing professional football.

"I hope to be in uniform with the Miami Dolphins (American League) within two weeks," said Hines who chopped the Olympic mark to 9.9 seconds.

Shot putter Randy Matson, the U.S.'s first gold medallist at this year's Olympics, said he has been drafted by Atlanta of the National Football League.

Matson has an all-time best throw of 71-5½, the world record.

He Could Have Run . . . Not Won!

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Dave Ellis of Toronto felt he could have run another 10 miles Sunday after finishing well back in the 10,000-metre race at the 1968 Olympics.

"That's the disgusting thing about it," he said.

"You go out there and run at a certain pace forever it seems. The minute you start stepping up the pace, your legs go dead. I'm not even winded. It's a strange feeling."

Ellis said he has found training difficult in the 7,347-foot altitude of Mexico City.

"I get my cramps in my stomach when I run and I can't breathe properly. We did train at high altitude in Arizona and I'm sure we would have been dead without it."

Ellis runs in the 5,000-metre race today and says he is sure he "will do better in that."

Canada's destiny in space.

With remote, important areas of our vast country depending on good communications for economical development, we must look to outer space for the most reliable, low cost method of obtaining this vital link.
On an equatorial orbit, 22,300 miles out in space, there is a parking spot for a Canadian Domestic Satellite.
In the communications business since 1882, Northern Electric has been gathering experience helping to build one of the most advanced communications systems in the world. This Canadian-owned company, with the largest Research and Development organization in Canada, is capable of engineering and supplying the equipment to provide this new space age communications system.
Research and production development in progress today in the field of light weight electronic equipment using Northern designed and manufactured solid state integrated circuitry is directly applicable to satellite communications technology.
Northern builds better communications for all Canadians.

Maritime Union Said Only Survival

FREDERICTON (CP) — Two Maritime men involved in development of the region have taken the stand that the economic survival of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island depends on Maritime union.

Dr. A. J. Boudreau, director of the Memramcook Institute at the University of Moncton, and D. W. Gallagher, general manager of P.E.I.'s Economic Improvement Corp., spoke during the weekend at the Atlantic Canada-United States conference here.

Dr. Boudreau said union would have to be political as well as economic, while Mr. Gallagher said economic and administrative union would be sufficient. Both suggested lip service was about all that had resulted to date from attempts at joint planning and action in the Maritimes.

Dr. Boudreau said Maritime union's greatest benefit might be the gradual disappearance of an extreme form of localism in three provinces. Using the excuse of provincial or regional loyalties, Maritimers still acted and thought like 19th century villagers.

Mr. Gallagher said he feared political union might simply perpetuate separate government administrations and departments.

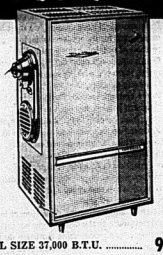
"We're either going to have some kind of union of the provinces down here or we won't have any provinces at all," he said.

A disturbing trend, he said, was that each provincial government was becoming increasingly dependent on Ottawa for money, policies and technology.

Gignac Says Anarchy Follows Unemployment

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — "Complete anarchy" could be the result if measures are not taken to reduce unemployment in Quebec, Jean-Paul Gignac, president of Sidbec, a government industrial agency, said Saturday.

Mr. Gignac, speaking at fall convocation ceremonies at the University of Sherbrooke, said unemployment is the most serious problem facing the province because it generates other social and economic difficulties.



"We cannot accept in a balanced and civilized society that an important part of the active population should be without work. The injustices that such a situation creates could eventually lead to worse things."

Unemployment on student demands for change in the educational system, Mr. Gignac said: "A new society requires new skills and the present Quebec can provide them by rethinking the very role of the formative agents of these skills: defining the role of the university, ceasing to isolate it from the rest of society, making it a practical stage where students would be in the presence of the problems they will have to face, in other words, forming a real relation between ideas and action."

However, to participate actively in society, students needed motivation "which they do not have at the present time."

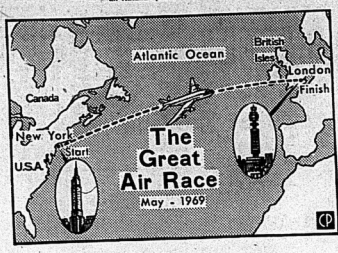
The Great Air Race to Take Place Next May

MONTREAL (CP) — Calling all Alcocks! Calling all Browns!



A hunt is on throughout Canada and the United States for 120 persons with the surnames of the famed transatlantic air pioneers to participate in the Great Air Race between New York and London next May 5, in the 50th anniversary year of the first non-stop flight across the Atlantic.

Capt. John A. Alcock and Lieut. Arthur Whitten Brown, both RAF veterans of the First World War, made the flight from Newfoundland to Ireland June 14-15, 1919. Half a century later, the race, to be carried out with co-operation of the Royal Aero Club and the United States National Aeronautic Association, is billed as the last great aviation challenge before the advent of the supersonic era.

The winner will be the person making the fastest time between the 80th floor of the Empire State Building in New York and the new Post Office Tower in London. A total of $125,000 in prize money is being offered by the London Daily Mail and a group of sponsors.

Alitalia Airlines, first commercial carrier to enter the race, will send a DC-8 jet loaded with 120 passengers all named Alcock or Brown—to London.

"They'll be selected on a first-come-first-served basis," an Alitalia spokesman in Montreal said, "but right now we're having a tough time finding Alcocks.

"There seem to be very few around, although there is an abundance of Browns."

However, those who can prove they are direct descendants of the flyers, but whose names might have been changed through marriage, will also be allowed on the first flight.

Lieut. Brown, records show, was American-born, and is believed to have a number of descendants living in upstate New York.

Expected to be the key factor in the Great Air Race of 1969 will be a problem Alcock and Brown never had to face—getting from the centre of a big city to the airport and vice versa. Some contestants already are responding by devising all kinds of ingenious plans to cut down the time on the ground.

The participants will gather on the 80th floor of the big New York building where official timekeepers will clock their departure times. Then it will be a race to the elevators. Officials at the other end will time their arrivals at the Post Office Tower, London's highest building.

Alitalia says that if its passengers are timed ahead of other contestants, the prize money will be divided among them.

Aviation's Final Fling

An air race between New York and London will be held May 5, 1969,-and the sponsors hope that most of the participants will have the surname Alcock or Brown. The race will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the first non-stop transatlantic flight by Capt. J. Alcock and Lieut. A. Whitten Brown. (CP Newsmap)

Police Report Several Breaks

Although city police had no serious weekend mishaps to report they were plagued by an outbreak of small break-ins, thefts and vandalism.

A doctor's office on Victoria Ave., that of Dr. James Noles and Dr. R. K. Patterson was entered sometime over the weekend.

So far Chief Douglas Crosbie said that all that appears to be missing is a small amount of cash.

Break-ins at a car and boat are also being investigated by police, James Lawrence of Hamilton had $255 worth of clothing stolen from his car on Friday.

Chief Crosbie said it was locked and entry was gained through forcing a door.

And Douglas Rollis of Scarborough reported that his boat had been broken into since September. A camp stove and space heater were taken.

Juveniles were responsible for breaking 10 windows at the Prince Charles School on Ritchie Ave. sometime over the long weekend.

However, Chief Crosbie said that the youths responsible have been apprehended.

WAR BROKE OUT

The Korean War started June 24, 1950, and ended with an armistice July 26, 1953—but a permanent peace was never signed.

Research Suggests End In Sight to Apple Scab

OTTAWA — Research scientists at Ottawa have made a break-through that could spell an end to apple scab.

The discovery will save apple farmers countless thousands of dollars in fungicides because trees are now sprayed 10 to 15 times a year to control the disease. An end to spraying for apple scab will reduce the hazards associated with the continued use of fungicides.

Although farmers spray orchards for other pests, apple scab is the one problem that causes the greatest expense and trouble. A scab infection can develop within nine hours, given the correct temperature and moisture conditions.

When those conditions occur, an apple farmer must begin to spray immediately even if it is a Sunday, and must have large enough equipment to cover the entire orchard before scab develops into a serious problem.

Other pests don't develop this quickly and farmers can spray for control over several days, using much smaller and less expensive equipment. That is why a scientific breakthrough that spells an end to apple scab could mean huge savings to the Canadian apple industry.

The Fruit Unit at the CDA's Research Station here, in a program initiated by Dr. L. P. S. Spangelo in 1969, has developed apple strains which have resistance to all five types of apple scab that attack Canadian apple varieties.

This year these strains are being grown on a sample of commercial farms for the first time. The scientists will evaluate their performance over a further 5- to 10-year period before releasing them generally as new varieties with names.

In the science of apple breeding, 5 to 10 years is a very short time. Most breeding programs involve at least 15 to 20 years of crossbreeding.

The life expectancy of an apple orchard is at least 30-40 years. However, a very good appreciation of the merit of an apple selection can be obtained in 5 - 10 fruiting years.

The Canadian scab-free apples are not the only ones in the world. Apple researchers in every corner of the globe co-operate in developing new varieties, and all of them are interested in the scab-resistant stocks first developed extensively in the United States. This scab-resistance is being transferred to the varieties most common in each country. In the United States, the variety is Delicious, in Canada, the McIntosh.

About a dozen Canadian Research Stations co-operate in the development and testing programs for new apple varieties, including two large federally operated orchards at Smithfield, Ontario, and St. Jean, Quebec.

Canadian breeders emphasize winterhardiness and the McIntosh variety, which currently accounts for the largest percentage of the trees being grown in Canadian commercial orchards. They also exchange stock and ideas regularly with researchers in other countries.

The Fruit Unit is also developing new rootstocks with improved winterhardiness. Apple farmers build a sound tree by grafting together different varieties. Extremely hardy varieties are needed for the roots and trunk, and good quality types (such as McIntosh) are needed for the fruiting part of the tree.

When the two are spliced together winterhardiness is combined with desirable fruit characteristics to form a tree likely to have a long profitable life.

Once researchers develop a new and hardier rootstock, it is multiplied and released to farmers for use in their orchards.

Other research is concentrating on the development of roots that will dwarf the tree. Dwarf trees are easier to handle and harvest and more can be grown on an acre of land, increasing yields. The fruit unit has six selections which show promise, but it will be 5 to 10 years before they will be released for widespread use.

These dwarf rootstocks also have winterhardiness, a characteristic that has been lacking in the commonly used East Malling dwarf rootstocks.

Breeding for these characteristics is not easy. Dr. Spangelo and Dr. Ronald Watkins, who was in charge of the apple breeding program for a while, will result from a planting of 100,000 seedlings. This selection will be made only after years of crossbreeding to produce the generation of 100,000 seedlings.

One of the problems is that it takes between 8 and 10 years to grow a plant to fruit-bearing maturity. The scientist cannot evaluate factors such as yield, taste, color and fruit texture until the tree begins to bear fruit. He must wait at least 10 years after a tree starts to bear fruit before he can get a reasonable yield prediction.

"The tree may bear fruit for a few years, then suddenly stop. These are things we must keep watching over the long term. We are continually evaluating not only the stock in our breeding programs, but the varieties released years ago," Dr. Watkins says.

"The Fruit Unit has developed some strains which I think taste better than the McIntosh, but my taste may not match the taste of consumers." Dr. Watkins says.

"On the basic level, the apple breeder, together with numerous co-operating research scientists, makes the broad selection," Dr. Spangelo adds, "but before we release a variety, we will have had in addition many taste panels of semi-experts."

Quality testing also involves the appearance of the fruit, the crispness, the processing characteristics and the ability to store well. Some varieties will not store for more than a few weeks, other varieties will store well until the next year's crop is harvested, thus making it possible to have good quality apples throughout the year.

Despite the odds against developing new and better varieties, the researchers are making remarkable progress.

Within the next 5 to 10 years Canadian farmers will likely be growing trees that are scab-resistant on rootstocks that will dwarf the tree and resist severe winter frosts.

This combination of features could open up new areas in Canada for apple orchards, particularly in Ontario and Quebec. At the consumer level housewives can expect to buy new and better tasting apples in the future, ones that will not need to be sprayed to keep them free of apple scab.

LORNE M. JOHNSTON

Lorne M. Johnston, Assistant Deputy Minister, Provincial Schools and Further Education, will deliver the main address at the official opening of Loyalist College on Saturday, October 19 at two p.m. The opening of the first temporary building to be erected on The Loyalist campus will be followed by conducted tours of the building. The first convocation of the college which serves the four-county Quinte area will follow the official opening. It will be held in the auditorium of Centennial Secondary School, Palmer Road, Belleville.

One Woman Show

Mitzi Gaynor Special Is Showcase for Talents

NEW YORK (AP) — Mitzi Gaynor came along Monday night with an NBC special that was an impressive showcase for her talents. The show was handsome, lighthearted and bouncy.

She moved from country-style comedienne to femme fatale, from singer to dancer to sketch actress.

She danced numbers that ranged from jigs to cotton dress and sunbonnet to production numbers in a swirl of chiffon and feathers. She had an album of objectionable people in one sketch and they were headed by the telephone bore who starts, "Guess who this is?"

Most amusing comedy bits bidded old movies — Rosalind Russell in her 1940 lady-executive films and Doris Day in her innocent maiden period were fiercely ribbed.

The hour was essentially a one-woman show. The sets were lavish and so were some of Miss Gaynor's costumes. The guest stars George Hamilton and Phil Harris—didn't have much to do.

The only time Miss Gaynor let the audience down was when she tried for the sad or poignant —in one sketch and one song. Neither was exactly right for her, but then she was probably just ceasing to catch her breath.

The three astronauts of Apollo 7 may not be the best television cameramen around, but those live shots seen Monday morning must be the most exciting shots of the year.

Viewers, with a little help from the control centre, were able to see the crew in their space capsule and could read Capt. Walter Schirra's little sign: "Keep those cards and letters coming in, folks." The shots taken through the capsule window of the earth were hard to make out. But the fact that such a traumatic shot was possible is thrilling.

The first CBS Playhouse drama of the new season, J. P. Miller's original The People Next Door, will be broadcast tonight and is an earnest effort to explore the motives behind youth's rebellion, the use of mind-warping drugs, and the lack of understanding between the older and younger generations.

The drama, with an excellent cast including Lloyd Bridges and Kim Hunter, has a strong point of view and probably will be controversial. It is a tragedy and it places the blame directly. It is certainly worth watching, if only for the fine performance of a young actress, Deborah Winters, as a teen-ager bent on self-destruction.

Financing A Problem

Trailer Builder Hopes to Cash in on Untapped Market

WINNIPEG (CP) — Northwest Design and Fabrication Ltd., only a year old but already established in the mobile-house field, hopes to cash in on what it believes is a virtually untapped market.

"More and more people are turning to this type of housing as the traditional cost of housing skyrockets," says J. F. Fraser, company managing director.

He says an industry and commerce department survey projects a 20-per-cent annual increase in the mobile-house market in Canada for the next five years.

In Canada, one in every six new single-family houses is on wheels.

Northwest is turning out three trailers a week and has plans for completing four a week later this month when a 7,000-square-foot expansion to its plant is finished.

Mr. Fraser says the company has orders for early 1969 and December without manufacturing anything on speculation.

The 50-man staff at the plant in neighboring Transcona turns out two basic types of trailer—a small unit and a large one that can be finished with up to three bedrooms.

The trailers are marketed in Western Canada, under the name of Tech Homes and in the east as Crestwoods.

Mr. Fraser says the biggest problem facing owners or prospective buyers is financing.

"The government has refused to change its policies on mortgages and so buyers have only five, or at most seven years to pay for their homes as opposed to the 25 years allowed a traditional home owner" he said.

"As the number of units increases, I'm sure that this policy will change and mobile units will be as mortgageable as any other home."

Another facet of trailer ownership in Canada is the parks where they are placed.

"I think the time is coming when our parks will be as attractive as those now scattered throughout the United States, with paved streets, yards, flower gardens and trees," he said.

The company, however, also is looking to other uses for its wheeled units.

"We are looking into the recreational travel trailer and have two prototypes partially finished," he said.

"We would also like to investigate the commercial field.

"Mobile units can be used for travelling laboratories with visual-audio school rooms, for offices or banknouses, or even hospitals.

"The possibilities seem almost endless."

Your Car

By RAY STAPLEY

After what I have seen recently while driving on the highway, I have concluded that even though it may be quite legal, to signal your intention to make a left turn and then completely stop while waiting for on-coming traffic to clear is simply courting disaster.

Last Spring while heading north on No 27 Highway I saw a southbound car signal a left turn, then stop and wait for a break in oncoming north bound traffic in order to cross the highway. Suddenly another south bound car came speeding around a curve and awaiting the chance to turn into the Service Station. Two following vehicles apparently didn't see him in time and after a brief scorech of brakes a three-car crash resulted. No one was badly injured, but the twisted remains of all the three vehicles were hauled away by a tow truck and holiday plans for three unhappy motorists were at an end.

My last experience with a driver who insisted on backcrashed into the rear of the standing vehicle. Only a split second prevented me from becoming involved in this accident. Both cars were demolished and several people were seriously injured. On another occasion while driving east on No 33 Highway I saw a car signal a left turn and stop ing up traffic behind him in stopping on the highway and waiting for traffic to clear prior to make a left turn, was while towing my boat home along No. 7 Highway. Traffic was a little heavy but moving well at about 60 mph, when the car ahead of me suddenly made a pause in the traffic at the gap between us closed at an alarming rate, I managed to stop with about 75 feet to spare. However, to avoid crashing into my trailer, the car to my rear had to swerve hard right into the ditch and several chain reaction grill-trunk type of collisions occurred farther back in the line of traffic. The cause of all this chaos was a motorist about had stopped and was in a hurry waiting for on-coming traffic to ease off and allow him to make a left turn.

Regardless of urgency, with the exception of main intersections and stop lights, you would I stop my car in the middle of a 60 mph plus highway lane in order to make a turn of any kind. When it is obvious that on-coming traffic would not permit a left turn I signal, pull onto the shoulder and wait as long as necessary for traffic to clear.

Occasionally, where there is no shoulder, I miss the turn and keep moving until I find a safe place to pull off the road and turn back. A few minutes may be lost by following this procedure, but it could readily prevent a lifetime of regret. Certainly, it is quite legal right if you're not on the highway when waiting to turn off, but what good are legal rights if you're not around to enjoy them? But remember once on the shoulder extreme caution must be exercised before re-entering the highway. Dispelding the speed of an approaching vehicle is a common error. Be patient and wait until you are positive there is sufficient time to safely pull of the shoulder.

A reader writes: "I have heard that putting a half pound of moth balls in the gas tank periodically practically eliminates all carbon buildup and prevents the valves from sticking. What is your opinion?"

The idea of dosing the gas tank with moth balls was floating around when I was serving my apprenticeship away back in the early thirties. I seem to recall that in those times the theory was that the camphor contained in the moth balls did the trick—just one treatment supposedly gave those low compression engines a new lease on life and increased potential horsepower to the point where they could become positively quarrelsome. In those days a plain white unleaded raw fuel was commonly used and carbon deposits in the combustion chambers resulted in violent pinging or knocking as the engine lost mild acceleration. It was said that the use of moth balls slowed down the burning of the fuel which minimized detonation, thus smoothing out the engine and increasing power. In the late twenties there was a chemical preparation known as Ethyl-Gas which was sold as a gas tank additive and the makers claimed that this magic crystal smoothed out the performance of raw white gasoline. So, you see, additives have been with us for many years. Even in the twenties chemical manufacturers were developing jet brews which they claimed were overnight cures for many of the ills.

Just what effect moth balls or "Boyce-It" may have had on those ancient chariots I cannot say. However, I telephoned a friend of mine who is a petroleum technician for a large oil company and he shot the moth ball theory right out of the sky. He claims that rather than camphor it is an ingredient known as "naphalene" contained in moth balls that supposedly creates the hocus-pocus. After checking the files of numerous ingredients that have shown up in fuel and been checked out in the laboratories he quoted this from his report: "Advantages of Naphalene — Nil."

He concluded with about the only advantage he could think of for placing moth balls in the gas tank would be to take care of a family of moths that may have set up light housekeeping therein. Even then he reasoned that just the gas fumes would take care of such a situation.

Today's modern refineries are fully conversant with all helpful additives and use them to full advantage.

TO SCRAP TANKS

TORONTO (CP) — Two impressive bumps on the Toronto skyline—cylindrical steel gas tanks with a total capacity of 18,000,000 cubic feet—are on their way to extinction. James Clark, superintendent of the Consumers' Gas Co. laboratory services, gave the order yesterday to Ingil Bros. that they will bleed the thousands of cubic feet of gas remaining. The structures will be torn down this fall.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials posted moderate losses in active mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Base metals and western oils were firm. Total gains outnumbered declines by 174 to 116.

Molson A fell ¼ to 27, Provincial ⅛ to 21¼, Inco ¾ to 41¾, Bank of Nova Scotia ¾ to 21¼, Walker-Gooderham ¾ to 38¼ and Alcan ¼ to 27.

Bow Valley was up 1¼ to 28, Cygnus B 1⅛ to 9¼ and National 1 to 12¾.

Among the heaviest traders, Bramalea gained ¾ to 12½. Seagull Capital B ½ to 12 and St. Maurice Gas 15 cents to $2.90.

Cati Malleable Iron advanced on the 15. The company plans to spend over $2,000,000 to double the capacity of its Brantford plant. White Pass and Yukon rose 1 to 45. Shareholders will be asked to approve a 2-for-1 stock split.

Among mines and western oils, United Asbestos gained $2.05 to $9.75, Canadian Superior 1½ to 62½ and Bankeno 35 cents to $6.55. Placer lost ½ to 33. Canadian Grdsol was up to 15½. The company plans to issue 200,000 convertible 6 per cent preferred shares to raise money to repay up to $1,000,000 in bank loans and to acquire additional properties.

On index, industrials fell .41 to 177.62 and golds .54 to 211.95. Base metals gained 1.13 to 114.07 and western oils 1.54 to 230.00.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 1,002,000 shares compared with 927,000 at the same time Friday.

BANS CONFETTI

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Down with confetti, says Councilman Joseph Kelly. He proposed a ban on the traditional confetti showers for visiting dignitaries. Instead of the traditional welcome places a "tremendous burden" on the street-cleaning department.

ABOUT REAL ESTATE

"What's Your Problem?" by Don G. Campbell

By DON G. CAMPBELL

The economists call it "the point of diminishing returns." And it can be defined as the level at which $5 worth of time effort or money starts bringing you something less than $5 in benefits. It's a simple principle, but one of the hardest for the would-be home seller to learn.

Dear Mr. Campbell: I suppose that we have kept our house up as well as the next person, but now that we have put it on the market we can see all sorts of things that we should have taken care of, and they stand out like a sore thumb.

Now my wife has got it in her head that we're not going to be able to sell it unless we paint the whole thing, inside and out. But that's a lot of money, and I'm not at all sure that it would pay for itself. Any opinion? — Mr. P. L.

ANSWER: Where to draw the line for fixing up and redecorating a house that is being put on the market is, admittedly, a tricky thing. With some people it's a little bit like taking that first handful of peanuts — one improvement leads to another, then to another, then to another. One day the seller looks around and discovers that he's got so much money invested in these last minute improvements that he is going to have to raise his asking price $2,500 just to break even.

The sad fact of life is that 99 times out of 100 the addition of "sales extras" won't bring the seller any more money for his home than he would have received without them. And yet all of us know of homeowners who pave driveways, build patios and enclose porches on the blithe assumption that they will more than get their money back out of such efforts.

As far as interior redecoration is concerned, the least spent the better. It replace faded kitchen curtains, for instance, with inexpensive, bright ones and hold down decorating expenditures only to those rooms that can't be brightened up any other way.

In many cases an otherwise presentable room may be blighted by a piece of furniture that is badly in need of reupholstering. Rather than go to this expense, it is frequently more practical to store the chair or give it away—a move that will also make the room look more spacious.

As far as exterior paint is concerned, it is recommended that you touch up the outside of the house before undertaking such an expense. If, in his opinion, the appearance of the house is such a mess that it may not be saleable in its present condition, then you may not have any choice but to shop for the best bid on a new coat of paint. Frequently, however, your broker will be able to find a buyer who will take the house "as is" on the grounds that the asking price is lowered accordingly. This is almost invariably the cheaper route for the seller and gives the buyer the option of picking his own colors.

By all means, though, devote as much time as possible to rectifying the little things around the house that are easily fixed but which, left undone, can kill a sale as effectively as a bad paint job — leaky faucets, sticking drawers, broken windows and missing tile in the shower stall.

To Your Good Health

Gaining Weight Is Also A Problem

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 87 years old and although I am in perfect health I wonder if you can advise me as to how I can regain weight. My normal weight was around 129 but now I weigh a little less than 100. — B. B.'

I have seen this frequently in elderly folks, and to some extent it may be nature at work. As the body and its organs grow older, some loss of weight may take some of the strain off them.

Of course, one must always suspect some illness as a cause of weight loss, but I assume that you have had a checkup as you tell me your health is perfect.

When no disease can be found as a cause, then one has to wonder whether a change in eating habits has occurred — and, indeed, it is not unusual for others to notice such changes even though the patient himself is not aware that he is eating differently, usually eating less. Less food, fewer calories, loss of weight.

Snacks between meals will help put on weight. For instance, malted milk, or any of the concentrated food supplements that can be mixed as a beverage, or the prepared liquid foods (such as are used by reducing dieters — but in this case you take the liquids in addition to your regular food instead of as a substitute for regular meals). Such things as ice cream and egg nog also can add calories.

Of course, you must try to regulate these snacks so they won't take the edge off your appetite for regular meals. Best time is a couple of hours in advance of a meal or in the evening after supper.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you tell me what acute cystitis is, its cause and symptoms? — Mrs. L. G. C.

Symptoms: frequent urination, a burning sensation, pus, albumin or bacteria in the urine, etc.

It is a complicated but common problem; I suggest that you read my booklet, Your Kidneys: Facts You Need to Know, which discusses bladder problems as well as kidney troubles, the two often being related. It and 6 like the booklet, send 30 cents in coin and a long self-addressed, unstamped envelope, plus 5 cents for postage to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: We are worried. Since my nephew, now 15, was 3 years old he has had an infected ear tube about every six months. This time his eye is so swollen he can't open it.

The doctor said it is a staph infection. Can anything be done to prevent recurrences? — H. A. B.

One method would be to have a laboratory culture made from the discharge from the eye or ear to identify the exact organism (or variety of staphylococcus germ) so a course of an appropriate antibiotic can be instituted.

There should also be a search for sites of focal infection, as in the nose, tonsils, adenoids, etc. Certainly ear and eye infections are dangerous enough so that every reasonable effort should be made to put an end to them.

Dear Dr. Molner: I did something three years ago that scares me to think about. I baked under a sun lamp because of a cold, and now I wonder whether this could have affected my reproductive organs and interfered with fertility. — J. C. L.

Prolonged, intense heat can temporarily diminish sperm production. When normal conditions resume, sperm production returns to normal, so I strongly doubt that you have harmed yourself.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Levesque Emerges as Folk Hero At Founding Convention of Party

QUEBEC (CP) — The province's new political party, Le Parti Quebecois, is an embryonic coalition rallied around Rene Levesque and his idea of a "sovereign Quebec" in preparation for the next Quebec election.

The new party founded Monday claims a membership of more than 20,000. Its four-day founding convention attracted 2,177 people, 809 delegates and 1,368 observers, including Frenchmen from France.

The founding convention was envisaged in Quebec as a union between Mr. Levesque's Mouvement souveraineté-association and Gilles Gregoire's separatist Rallisement national, but proved to be otherwise.

It was Mr. Levesque's convention and the convention of the fashionable, articulate young people from French-speaking Quebec's middle, if not upper-middle, class who idolize Mr. Levesque as a poster hero.

At times Mr. Gregoire and his handful of Rallisement national people present looked as lost as the young urbanites in up-to-date dress discussing such dragging subjects as agriculture.

The Rallisement national, established in 1966 by dissident Creditistes, and Mr. Gregoire, an MP at Ottawa between 1962 and 1968, emerged as a junior but not altogether awkward partner.

Chatting with two newspaper men on the eve of the convention, Mr. Levesque described Mr. Gregoire as "a political organizer." Unlike his ideas, Mr. Gregoire's electoral ability is unquestioned.

But with Creditiste stock high in Quebec again on the federal scene, Quebec may have difficulty finding support in the rural pockets of protest, picked in the June 25 federal election by Real Caouette.

Most fervent partisans of the new Levesque party are, like Mr. Levesque, former provincial Liberals who quit the Opposition party as much out of disgust over lack of internal democracy as out of ideology.

The small group of dissident Liberals was eventually joined by disenchanted members of the separatist Rassemblement pour l'independance nationale and nationalists fickle in their political allegiance.

At the founding meeting delegates included former partisans of the ruling Union Nationale and former federalists who had tried their political chances with the Quebec section of the New Democratic Party.

These people of varying political coloration with the common desire to elevate Quebec province to the rank of a sovereign French state have been bound together by Mr. Levesque.

The 46-year-old former Quebec cabinet minister set out with the goal of forming a party that would rally both Quebec nationalists and people known as "moderate" separatists.

He made popular a new vocabulary, speaking of "Sovereignty" instead of "independence" and advocated economic association with the rest of Canada while separatists previously sought a clear partition.

Mr. Levesque strode through the new party's founding convention like a folk hero. Frenchmen were thundering ovations from Quebec independence advocates who in the past have had to be content with second-string politicians.

Fourdly remembered is his prestige arising from his prominent role in the 1966-68 Liberal government whose quiet revolution feats included state takeover of private power companies at the urging of Mr. Levesque.

"The independence movement now is controlled by Mr. Levesque and other moderates. The extremists are on the outside. I am proud of that."

Among the observers at the four-day founding convention was Philippe Bey, director of the French government's information service based at the French consulate here.

At a news conference, Mr. Levesque forecast that his new party, which claims a membership of 20,000, would hold the balance of power after the next election. He said he expects the next election to produce a minority government with the new party balancing power between the Union Nationale and Liberal parties.

Mr. Levesque said he does not think the policies adopted at the founding convention will help bring into the new political forums Mr. Gregoire's Rassemblement pour l'independance nationale, which disagrees with Mr. Levesque's views on education rights for the English-speaking minority.

Among other policies adopted at the convention were:

—Introduction as a priority measure of a complete, universal and obligatory system of medical care insurance and a state board to control "manufacture, distribution, publicity and prices of pharmaceutical products."

—Foreign capital will be welcome, provided foreign companies include a majority of Quebecers in the local management and reinvest a part of their profit in Quebec.

—Companies would be obliged to deal with their employees in French by non-negotiable clause in labor agreements and would be obliged to establish collective agreements providing "at least the prevalent rate of wages in the sector involved."

—Film production and distribution companies, along with private radio and television stations, would have to be under majority ownership by Quebecers. A state film centre would control distribution and production of films.

Strictly Personal

One Heart for Every 50 Patients

One of the Dallas doctors involved in heart transplants was recently quoted as saying that for every 50 patients desperately in need of transplants there is only one heart available and sometimes not that.

Curiously enough, he cited as perhaps the biggest reason for the scarcity of these transplant organs the "religious feelings" of relatives of potential heart donors.

This is a deliciously ironic example of the way in which the whole concept of "religious" has become twisted around to mean exactly its opposite. I would say that "irreligious" feelings are what prevent some families from donating hearts to the transplant bank.

For I can scarcely imagine a more truly pious act than restoring or extending the life of a fellow human by permitting the use of a heart that would otherwise rot away in the ground, as all dead flesh must do. Even the strictly orthodox, who believe in the corporeal resurrection of the person, do not hold (if they are well-grounded in theology) that the flesh remains intact and inviolate until the Last Trump.

It is actually "sentimental" feelings and not religious ones that prompt such reluctance to pass along the organ of a terminal patient. And sentimentality, of course, is the enemy of religion, not its ally. Sentimentality is what allows us to drop a dollar into the collection cup each Sunday to alleviate the distress of those who wouldn't be in distress if we cared more about removing the causes of their suffering.

Donating one's heart, or a deceased relative's heart to extend the life of a child, is, in a way, a limited immortality that should appeal to the very root of the religious instinct. Most of us lead meaningless lives, viewed in any context larger than our own immediate interests — and now to be able to make a gift of one's heart seems a marvelous opportunity to broaden the significance of each life.

Indeed, many our lives could (beyond the usual squalid sublunary goals most of us strive) is the whole aim of the religious tendency in man. Most of us are not good enough or brave enough to give up our lives for someone else; but surely we ought to be willing to give up in death what will keep someone else alive — and perhaps more joyously and creatively alive than we are able to make it.

The old Romans used to say that "corruption is a corruption of the best." Nowhere is this truer than in the area of religion, where some of the greatest sins are committed in the name of the Maker.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For October 16

Your Birthday today: You will find the coming year full of opportunity for creative action, self-expression and adventure. Literary or dramatic work done this year by today's natives has strong promise of lasting fame. Today's natives usually prefer solitude.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your suggestions are most likely to be adopted today. Make sure the ideas remain identified as practical. Postpone sentimental considerations in favor of intensive planning; now is the time to make it.

TAURUS (Apr. 20—May 20): If you can keep the peace domestically, this is a favorable day. Act in a dignified manner, settle a good deal. Creative enterprises thrive now.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Make your peace with everyone! Avoid ruffled feathers from the last few weeks. Get busy early, revisit all day.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Today brings you the chance to resolve some long-standing disagreements. Your pride must not be allowed to stand in the way of making an apology. (There may be money owed you that could be collected if you ask for it quietly.)

LEO (July 23 —Aug. 22): A thorough understanding, this day, brings great benefits to yourself and those you care about. Co-operation may be developed despite barriers of factual misinterpretations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Secret work possibly exciting, is indicated for the day. Put in a full schedule, then pursue romantic interests this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Today is promising — in both romantic and material matters. Seek out clearly what is what you want. A meeting of the minds among friends is definitely indicated.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov 21): You receive good advice and now possess improved command over your emotions. Friends and family bring happiness into your life today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): The preferred condition is to keep cool despite confusion and variance in opinions. Projects thrive nicely with a forthright interest.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 —Jan. 19): Recent disappointments can be compensated. Go right after the job. Many things organized early. Celebrate the evening with your favorite friends. Reward yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Harmony is the achievement for the day. You can get exceptional results with just a quick comparison of notes. Romantic interest deepens (and please be more reserved as the evening wears longer).

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Put your work first; then turn full attention to your personal life and the people you care most about. A family conference is effective in coming to terms. Romance comes alive tonight!

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and greatly relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief was occurred in case of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H relieves and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Apollo 7 So Successful Christmas Day Moon Orbit Planned

HOUSTON (AP) — The Apollo 7 astronauts sailed toward the halfway point of their marathon mission today, their space chariot working so well that plans are being formed to send three United States astronauts around the moon Christmas Day.

On tap today for the cold-ridden astronauts is another test firing of their large spacecraft engine and episode No. 3 of the Wally, Walt and Dom television show, which has achieved a good rating after only two days on the air.

The astronauts' daily fun and games is scheduled to be televised at 10:09 a.m. EDT over U.S. networks for about 10 minutes again today. Control centre officials expect them to pull some hijinks as they did on the first two days.

Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., Maj. Donn F. Eisele and civilian Walter Cunningham reach the midway mark of their planned 11-day mission tonight.

At that time, they will have logged more than 130 hours and more than 2,000,000 miles in space.

Almost obscured by the shenanigans of the TV transmissions has been the superb performance of the Apollo 7 spaceship and the fact that the astronauts' job is to qualify it for flight to the moon.

Top officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration scheduled a meeting later this week to lay plans for sending Apollo 8 on a swing around the moon.

The Apollo 8 spacecraft already is in place atop a mighty Saturn V rocket on a Cape Kennedy launching pad. It originally had been scheduled for an earth orbit flight, but the early excellent performance of Apollo 7 has prompted officials to consider the moon test, which would be a vital step toward a U.S. manned lunar landing next year.

One drawback is that the crew of Norman, Capt. James A. Lovell and Maj. William A. Anders has had only limited training for a lunar fly-around. Sources said they would undergo extensive training to get ready.

The plan could be wiped out altogether if something serious should go wrong in the final half of the Apollo 7 mission.

But as the halfway point neared, everything was perking along fine except for the pesky colds plaguing the astronauts in their lofty sick bay.

Eisele reported Tuesday night that despite a "miserable head cold," he felt pretty good. Schirra still had the worst cold but was getting better. Cunningham was reported in reasonably good shape.

They used their limited supply of aspirin and decongestant tablets sparingly.

U.S. Vetoes Report Bomb Halt Called

Apollo Rating Climbs

HOUSTON (AP) — Bearded, rested and feeling better, the Apollo 7 astronauts presented a televised lesson in space-age cooking and plumbing on the Wally, Walt and Dom Show today and then sped on toward the halfway point of their marathon space mission.

For the third straight morning, the radiosiness of the flight was broken by the daily television. The TV show was shortened to nine minutes today from 11 minutes because of initial reception trouble at a receiving station at Corpus Christi, Tex.

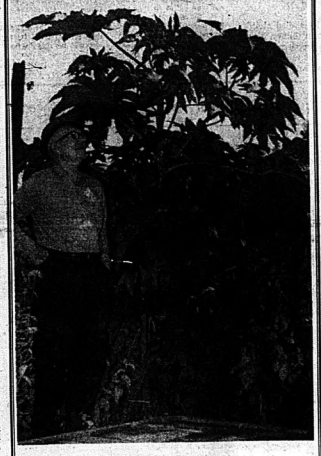
In contrast to the hi-jinks of previous days, the astronauts were more businesslike as they demonstrated some of the things they do in space.

Civilian astronaut Walter Cunningham showed how the astronauts prepare their food as he took a plastic container of breakfast fruit juice and injected cold water in it through a nozzle.

Narrator Schirra said that the dehydratable food could be made palatable with either hot or cold water. Apollo 7 meals have been the first hot meals in space.

Then U.S. Air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisle took over the camera and pointed it at a puddle of water in the lower bay of the cabin.

Demonstrating how they cope with the plumbing problem, Eisele took a small vacuum cleaner - like device and Schirra described:



"Now he's going to suck up the water with the accumulator line we have. It's a pretty good size blob of water. It takes quite a while to mop up."

Ontario PCs Lax: Minister

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario cabinet minister Tuesday night described his party's publicity literature as not worth reading and warned that the party could lose the next provincial election unless certain problems are solved.

Mines Minister Allan Lawrence, who established a reputation as a party rebel before joining the cabinet, criticized his party's organization, channels of communication and staff in a speech to the Don Mills Conservative Association.

Warning that the Conservatives are losing support in the north and urban areas, Mr. Lawrence said if the party cannot solve its problems of communication and organization "the 1970 general provincial election will not have the happy over-all result that the 1967 election had."

Thieu Version Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today there has been no breakthrough in Vietnam war negotiations, despite widespread reports of a United States proposal to halt completely the bombing of North Vietnam.

"The position of the United States with respect to Vietnam remains as set forth by the president and the secretary of state," presidential press secretary George Christian said.

"There has been no basic change in the situation: No breakthrough," he added in a mid - morning statement prompted by reporters' queries following reports of a possible major new peace move from here, Paris and Saigon.

A senior South Vietnamese political official said in Saigon earlier today the United States has proposed a full bombing halt and was discussing the proposal with the Saigon government.

In Paris South Vietnamese diplomats told reporters they understand the United States had made the proposal as an attempt to further peace negotiations.

Washington officials, although declining to say whether a final settlement has been reached, acknowledged the United States and North Vietnam have been discussing for several weeks a package plan to end the deadlocked talks in Paris.

The report from Saigon followed two meetings today between U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

The Saigon source said Thieu told top members of his regime the enemy must guarantee they will not escalate the war if a bombing halt is ordered.

The Washington officials said a key element of the package is North Vietnam's military restraint in return for a bombing halt.

Parliament Being Stifled Conservative MP Charges

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's plans to limit Opposition questions in the House of Commons could reduce Parliament to a one-party system, Eldon Woolliams said Tuesday night.

Mr. Woolliams, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Calgary North, told the annual meeting of the York West Progressive Conservative Association he will undertake a cross-Canada campaign to muster public support against the procedural changes.

"My great fear . . . is that in the guise of needed parliamentary reform, we are destroying the institution of Parliament, stifleucing the Opposition, thrusting away its effective tools and reducing this country to a one-party state," he said.

"You are going to be told that it is being done in the interest of expediting business—well, Hitler expedited a lot of business."

Earlier this season, the government set up a rotating timetable of House duty for cabinet ministers, so that only certain cabinet ministers are available for the question period on any particular day.

"The planned failure of the government to have the ministry present every day is fatal to good government," Mr. Woolliams said.

He said that while he favored a 20-minute limit on the daily question period for four days a week, all cabinet ministers should be in their seats to answer questions from Opposition members, unless they are absent on government business.

He said Mr. Trudeau's plans to turn over government spending estimates to committees for scrutiny would effectively stifle Opposition criticism.

"To give these committees this kind of responsibility is to assign to these committees the role of the Opposition—when in fact, the government controls the decisions of the committees, he said.

UK Must "Share Blame" for Biafra

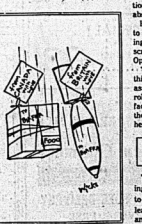
OTTAWA (CP) — The Nigerian civil war might have been averted if Britain had not given overwhelming support in arms to Nigeria, the Commons external affairs committee was told Tuesday.

Dr. E. H. Johnson, secretary for overseas missions of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, said the British people have "a very bad conscience," about this.

Romeo Maione of Montreal, director of the Canadian Catholic organization for peace and development, also told MPs the flow of arms from world powers has kept the war in progress.

"The real crucial thing is to end the war," Mr. Maione told MPs, on the committee. "It is nonsense to patch up people and blow them up the next day."

Dr. Johnson, last in Biafra in August, gave as a "very conservative" estimate a figure of 6,000 Biafrans starving daily. He said 500,000 civilians have died and another 500,000 may be dead by the end of 1968.



Both he and Mr. Maione asked for more action by the Canadian government. Dr. Johnson said Canada should press for a United Nations inquiry into the war.

He said it has been difficult for him to talk to the government, which considered him pro-Biafra. The government held that Biafra did not exist.

Mr. Maione said he hopes Canadian planes will help move food into Biafra for Caritas, the Roman Catholic relief agency, and for the World Council of Churches as well as the Red Cross.

G. G. Riddell, chief of the African division of external affairs, testified that one Canadian Hercules transport on loan to the Red Cross was on its way to the African coastal island of Fernando Poo to help fly relief supplies into Biafra.

A further report of the international observer team in Nigeria was tabled by the committee. It said a large number of persons in refugee camps are "in a state of malnutrition." Maj. Gen. W. A. Milroy, Canada's representative on the team, may testify here next week.

Picton Ratepayers Form Association

PICTON (Staff) — A small turnout at a founding meeting of a Picton Ratepayers Association has done little to discourage its enthusiasts.

Although only 30 showed up it was decided a second meeting will be held Oct. 30 to draw up the constitution of the organization and to appoint officers.

In the meantime those in attendance yesterday will speak to residents of their polling division and attempt to increase membership.

It was decided the organization will be split into seven groups each with an appointed officer and each representing a polling division in the town.

Speakers at the meeting last night included Yvonne Barron, councillor for North Marysburg who explained how a ratepayers organization there and the township council had worked together for the benefit of both.

A Kingston woman, Mrs. Lyn Elliott, chairman of the planning association there, spoke and said "the town residents could not afford to not take an interest in their government."

Mrs. Avis Head, president of the North Marysburgh Ratepayers Association, warned that if the organization was begun belligerently it was off to a bad start.

She advised that each member keep informed and offer construction criticism only.

Andrew Jarvis, Picton clerk treasurer, agreed and explained that previous ratepayers' associations in Picton have fallen by the wayside largely because of their belligerence.

Industry Told To Extend Sewer

TRENTON — Augmented arguments concerning the sewer extension for the Trenton cold storage plant could become a thing of the past. Council last night passed a resolution by which the clerk-comptroller would contact the plant informing them to extend the sewer through the new wall to open water.

This was in agreement with the stipulation of April 19, 1965, and came as a result of a recent consultation with the town solicitors.

Discussions concerning the sewer extension have had council burning the midnight oil for many previous meetings.

Robbery Nets $720

A resident of the Topp Motel on Front Street North woke up this morning to find that somebody had stolen $720 of his money.

Jack Kahler slept soundly last night while he was sleeping someone broke into his room and took the money.

Chief Douglas Crosbie of the Belleville police force said it was not known if the door to his room was locked or not.

The unusual robbery is still under investigation.

Pipeline Lake

Laying of new 24-inch natural gas pipeline is apparently stalled at this location on the Barton Hubble farm northwest of Belleville in Sidney township. Earth excavated from trench has dammed natural watercourse causing a miniature lake. Pipe sections have been welded together but remain to be lowered into trench which runs from the Trent River to Napanee.

IN MEMORIAM

CRAIGHEAD — In loving memory of a loving wife and mother, Isabella Craighead who passed away five years ago, October 16th, 1963.

Though her smile is gone forever,
And her hand we cannot touch,
Still we have so many memories,
Of the one we loved so much.
Memories of her loneliness,
With whom we'll never part,
She is in the arms of Jesus,
We have a number of the members
Lovingly remembered by husband John and daughter Dorothy.

ETHIER — In loving memory of a dear mother, Elizabeth Ann (Lizzie) Elizabeth, who passed away five years ago, October 16th, 1963.

Deep in the heart lies a picture,
Of a face one laid to rest,
In memory's frame I shall keep it,
Because she was one of the best.
Though from my eye no tears do flow,
I miss her,
And I miss her more and more.
There is never a night or a morning,
But I think of the mother I had,
And I see her in heart and soul.
Sadly missed by daughter Irene, Harry, Joan and grandsons Jack and Harry.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to thank my neighbors and friends for the cards, visits and flowers received while I was a patient in Dr. Cronkhite's and Father McGarvey and Father Carty, also the nurses and staff of the 5th floor.

County 'Gambles' on Bridge

Bloomfield, Ameliasburgh, and Athol did not accept the idea.

George Cunningham, Ameliasburg reeve, explained that Ameliasburg received no benefit from libraries of any form.

Warden Gordon DeMore agreed and commented that getting to the libraries from rural areas was a great inconvenience.

However, one of the proposals of the new system involved a mobile book trailer that would have circulated into rural areas.

Wellington Reeve, Robert Boyce, a member of the county library board, indicated that he had not given up the idea.

He was informed that new efforts could be made after 30 days, the minimum time allowed between votes on a particular issue by council.

He did say that most certainly another vote would be held within a year.

To gain acceptance for a system, approval must be granted from 75 per cent of county municipalities.

Frost Adds Height To Castor Bean Plant

A case in point is a castor bean stalk planted last spring by Mr. G. D. Lewis, 139 Pinnacle Street, which in the course of a few months has grown to a height of nine feet.

Mr. Lewis stated his castor bean in a small wooden keg but when it got frost touched decided to discard it and start another. He transplanted his frost touched bean stalk to his garden and has been simply amazed at the result.

As is the case of the Jack and the Bean Stalk fable, the bean grew and grew and only quit growing at an even nine feet. The stalk is two and a half inches in diameter at the ground.

Normally castor beans, grown for their broad leaved decorative qualities, reach only four to six feet.

What about the "second time around" bean which Mr. Lewis planted?

It remained quite sickly all summer and called it quits when it reached two and a half feet in height.

County Protests Tax Increases

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County has gone on record in protest of new Provincial taxes on food stuffs and children's clothing.

The motion was presented by Allan Anderson, reeve of Hallowell at a meeting yesterday.

A letter is to be drafted by the county clerk treasurer and will be sent to Ontario Premier John Robarts and minister of finance John White.

Appeal Reaches $85,000

The United Community Fund of Belleville and district has now reached $85,000 which is 72 per cent of the $118,600 goal.

Schools in the area are doing exceedingly well stated Robert Porter, director of UCS and campaign chairman Mrs. A. McFarlane commended the Ontario School for the Deaf for being up $1,000 over last year's gift.

Kaladar Man Injured in Mishap

TWEED — A Kaladar man, Herbert Parks, 52, was struck last night in Kaladar near the junction of highways 41 and 7.

Mr. Parks was on foot when he was hit by a car.

He was taken by ambulance to the Belleville General Hospital where he is reported in "serious" condition.

Mr. Parks sustained lacerations to the scalp, abdominal and back injuries and a fractured leg.

The driver of the car was not identified by Kaladar OPP who are still investigating.

The accident occurred at 7.45 last night.

Under New Board

County Education $12½ Million Business

Wanted: 18 executives with experience in managing multi-million dollar business, for part-time jobs as directors of a $12½ million industry, must be Hastings County residents and willing to stand for election by shareholders.

Such an advertisement will never appear in any publication, but according to one member of the Hastings County Interim School Organization committee, 18 such executives would be ideal material for the new county board of education.

MacDonald Smith, chairman of the Belleville Public School Board, said last night the first need of the county board, to go into effect Jan. 1, is competent officials to advise on the business system.

"How many of us operate a $12½ million business?" he asked his fellow trustees from several county school boards. "Executives of this type are not available to become members of the new board."

"The new board will need a lot of assistance, especially in setting up its business administration," agreed chairman James Clarke. "There is a tremendous responsibility to start with a clean slate and set up the right system.

"I would like to see this committee recommend that consideration be given to hiring outside professional organizations to advise, especially in administration," he added. "Management consultants have been through this before, and know what works and what doesn't."

Although committee members debated the topic at some length, no formal motion was made to recommend to the new board the hiring of management consultant.

The secretariat, composed of present superintendents working in the county, suggested that "consideration first be given to personnel who are already operative in the county" when selecting officials for employment by the new board.

Both Mr. Clarke and Mr. Smith remarked that such a recommendation "could backfire".

"The new board could say we're trying to ram these fellows down their throats," said Mr. Smith.

Musgrove Voices Plea

Principals Submit Report

A high school principal last night voiced a plea on behalf of his colleagues for understanding of secondary school problems.

W. J. Musgrove made his remarks in submitting a report from the secondary school principals' association to the Interim School Organization Committee. The committee is engaged in collecting information and points of view to guide the new Hastings County board of education when it goes into operation Jan. 1.

Mr. Musgrove asked the committee to recommend that a superintendent with secondary school experience and training be appointed as senior secondary school superintendent by the new board. He also asked that a similar position be created for a person with elementary school experience, who would be in charge of elementary education in the county.

"As high school principals," he said, "we need someone in charge who understands our problems. At present, we are involved in changes in types of timetables and subject promotion, and we are trying to make these changes without increasing costs excessively by getting too high a teacher-pupil ratio, for instance."

"Ultimately you will have a person at the top who is experienced in both the elementary and the secondary school fields, but not at present," he concluded.

Reports were submitted to the committee from a teachers' advisory board, the business officials, and the secretariat which is made up of all the superintendents in the county.

"This report is the main reason for this committee's existence, and you did it with a month to spare," chairman James Clarke told secretariat head Frank Tate, Tweed.

The committee plans two more meetings before it is automatically dissolved with the election of the county board in December.

The meeting in Belleville Nov. 4 will be devoted to a review of briefs and consolidation of recommendations to be handed over to the county board.

Committee Expects 23,000 to Enrol

Education in Hastings County will be a $12½ million industry next year.

That's the estimate, based on 1968 budgets, of the expenditure the new Hastings County Board of Education will make in the year after it comes into effect Jan. 1.

School superintendents and business officials submitted data to the Interim School Organizations Committee indicating probable pupil enrolment, staff size and budget for the new board.

Officials expect an enrolment of 22,700 in the county next year. The figure climbs to 23,943 if Brockover school at CFB Trenton, now run by the federal government, is included in the county system. An increase of 300 pupils over the 1968 total is expected next year.

Staff, including teachers, custodians, bus operators and secretaries will number about 1,400.

One of the biggest items on next year's school budget will be transportation. Preliminary estimates place school bus transportation costs at $1,000,000.

Parents Participate

Members of the executive of the Belleville District Home and School Council have been sitting in on meetings of Hastings County Interim School Organization Committee. Mrs. Lee Jourard and Mrs. B. Stenson, Belleville, talk things over with chairman James Clarke after last night's meeting in Trenton High School.

Government Spending

Government can be a mixed blessing. From Ottawa, as Richard Jackson points out in his column on this page today, the word is of continued extravagance in high places — and this despite the recent promises of cutbacks in government spending.

Public spending — in community and other projects from city to city — may be getting the axe all right, but when it comes to preserving the image of members of the cabinet, money is no object. Multiply this through the needs of the civil service "mandarins," as Mr. Jackson calls them, not to mention a host of minor Ottawa officials in the service of the government, and it is not difficult to understand why funds are short.

Even the warnings of the Auditor General, who keeps an eye on government spending, apparently go unheeded. Yet in Mackenzie King's day the same problem obtained and the word of "Economy Controller" — as he was called — Col. James Thompson, was law. If Col. Thompson gave some item the chop, that was it.

Today Auditor General Maxwell Henderson suffers the humiliation of having many of his recommendations ignored. He is not the only official to have been overruled. Some years ago it was the then Governor of the Bank of Canada (under a different government) — James Coyne — who resigned rather than condone the spectacle of Canadians "living grandly," as he put it, "beyond their means."

Leaving the Ottawa scene, we find a more encouraging image of government economic achievement in the resurrection in Nova Scotia of the Sydney steel mill. Condemned a year ago as uneconomic by its former operators, Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, the mill has been transformed miraculously from a losing proposition to the point where new markets have been found, defects slashed drastically and modernization plans drawn up. And this after less than a year's operation by the Sydney Steel Corporation established by the province.

It could be a success story almost without parrallel, especially in view of the downward plunge the mill was taking under its former private ownership. Now, as a union official has put it, "We've jumped right off our deathbed . . . This mill can compete with any steel plant in the world if it has the right kind of management."

Spell of the North

People who live in Canada's northern regions find civilization hard to take when they return.

Beti Owens, for instance, is a Welsh woman who with her husband Edward spent six weeks on Devon Island in the Arctic, 700 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

Back in Hamilton, Mrs. Owens confessed to being homesick for the Arctic. "I hated coming back," she said, "because everyone talks only talking about cars and holidays. Up there it's so primitive. . .

"Everything is exaggerated because of the absolute silence . . . it's like being dead and enjoying it."

Now that is an interesting simile. Eerie . . . like the Arctic stillness perhaps, but definitely out of the ordinary. And it reminds one that civilization — the "outside" as northerners call it — can be "deadly" in an entirely different manner.

Bobby Hull

Bobby Hull is not going to retire after all — and fans across the country will be glad of that fact. Indeed the 30-year-old Chicago Black Hawks ace will continue to flash across the ice and score the net-searing goals that have made his name a household word. One of the great sportsmen of our day, Bobby Hull has helped raise the game in recent years to still greater heights of excitement and athletic finesse. It looks as if the prize cattle on the hockey star has raised in his native Quebec herds will have to do without him a while longer!

Autumn Days

These mild Indian summer days are some of the most perfect of the year. It's that dream of autumn that hits its peak this week and makes for one of the greatest natural spectacles known to man. Here is the fabled, ageless scene. And nowhere is it more beautiful than amid the hill country to the north of us. Drive to Denbigh, thence by Highway 500 to Bancroft. And do it no later than this coming weekend. After that autumn goes into decline and soon we shall have the sights and sounds of winter.

Ottawa Offbeat

Government Spenders Ignore Auditor—General's Warnings

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So Energy Minister Joe Greene says he hasn't any $38 wastebaskins or $900 desks in his newly-decorated posh, 12-office suite.

But he has new wall-to-wall office - to - office green broadloom with matching green phones.

And the Public Service Commission HAS provided a cozy private bar in the new air-rie motor hotel for the comfort and convenience of its mandarins taking a special, exclusive new "college" for senior civil servants.

And Industries Minister Charles "Bud" Drury — now serving as the supposedly penny pinching president of the treasury board — did spend more than $200,000 on new furniture for his department when it moved into posh new high-rise tower offices.

So what else is new?

For hasn't far more than enough of the taxpayers' dollar always gone down the drain to pay for cabinet ministerial and departmental "image-making"?

Or, so, year after year, complains Parliament's own watch-dog of the finances, the auditor general who, insulated from any reprisals the cabinet ministers and their mandarins might take, annually raises public rain about the waste and extravagance of the big-and-careless spenders.

But there is something new.

And that is the difference in high plates to the protests of the auditor general and of Parliament itself, that has developed in the last five or six years.

Nobody seems to care.

That is not the way it used to be.

Remember when former Prime Minister King suddenly got all fired up about waste and extravagance and appointed an officially titled "economy controller"?

He was Colonel John Thompson, direct descendant of former Conservative Prime Minister Sir John Thompson.

And while he looked deeply-lively like a dear old gentleman, he was a fireball for saving a buck.

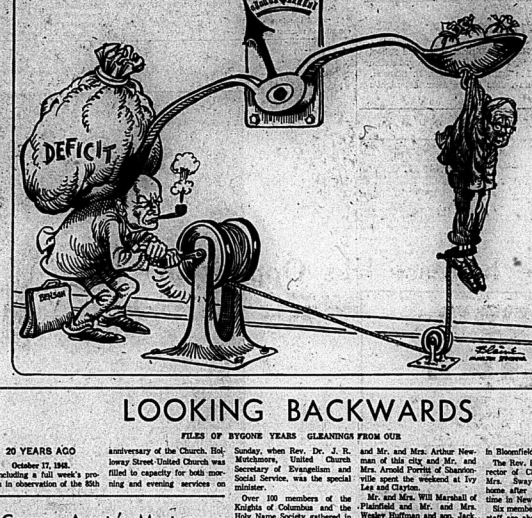
He set up shop in some vacant chambers of the Supreme Court. Plain wooden planks, covered with yesterday's newspapers and set down upon a pair of sawhorses, served as his desk. He had one phone, one secretary, one office, no rug.

He was setting, he said, an example, and with his "economy directives," issued on the authority of the prime minister, he stode through cabinet and civil service sanctums like a taxpayers' avenging angel.

At a stroke of his pencil stub he wiped out expensive embossed letterhead for cabinet and deputy ministers, abolished free government - printed Christmas cards that MPs and Senators mailed postage - free by the bushel, yanked out superfluous phones, rationed pens and paper.

Finally, he produced a list of new rugs, replete with size, design and cost — and most important of all, in whose offices they reposed.

The Ottawa Journal bannered it with something along the line of "Thompson Declares War on Luxuries," and breaking its own tradition, ran a front page editorial "describing the federal "spendthrifts" under the heading "Try Their Bugs Ye Shall Know Them."



Mackenzie King called the parliamentary Public Accounts Committee into extraordinary session, and there was an official investigation.

The effect of the axe flew then as it hasn't flown since. Successive cases of waste and extravagance or worse have marched off the pages of the auditor general's report and into the front pages — but nothing much has happened.

Remember the horses on the defence department's payroll at Camp Petawawa?

The "vanishing" of a few hundred yards of CPR tracks from the same army base and their "discovery" later in a scrap dealer's yard hundreds of miles away?

Crown Assets' Mystery

Hamilton Spectator

For those who have a little of the merchant in their bones, there is always a touch of fascination in the annual report of the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation. That for the year ending March 31, 1968 has just been published.

Crown Assets Disposal Corp. is the government's odd-jobber; it sells anything the government no longer needs. Chances are that if you buy a seaman's jumper, a gas mask, a steel picket or a prismatic compass from a "war surplus" store it found its way there via Crown Assets.

The annual report lists only those transactions which are over $5,000, such items as HMCS Granby, a minesweeper, which was sold for $18,001, or 13 Wasp engines disposed of for $16,250.

The name of the purchaser of each lot is given with the price. There are always puzzlers; they make the fun. For what purpose, for example, did the Department of Justice buy a huge job lot of undershirts and armed services' surplus — for $5,700?

Surely not to equip its Ottawa department. For inmates of federal penitentiaries?

Sale of 692 rifles .303 to an American company leaves a slightly sour taste.

And then, where did Crown Assets get the three sculptures it sold to the National Capital Commission in Ottawa for $22,500? And what were they?

There are so many intriguing questions. Did all the purchasers get bargains? Let's hope not. After all, everything was bought originally with taxpayers' money.

The Great Kitchen Debate

Ottawa Journal

The kitchen debate goes on. But the girls are losing sympathy in an age when they can bake their cake and eat it. All they need is a mix . . .

Not too long ago the kitchen was no place for a debate. It was closer to the Black Hole of Calcutta than the cool pastel room of today. Oven heat was judged by the size of the coal lumps or logs dumped into the stove. Cakes fell as often as the cook's face. A dinner for eight was a two-day ordeal.

Today the soup course is opened with a bag and stirred with water. The main dish is popped from freezer to fire and whip cream is sprayed on dessert.

If the kitchen is cool, however, the ladies are still hot.

They complain about "old-fashioned facilities" and about the troubles involved in three squares a day as they rinse out the teflon fry pan and plug in the electric can-opener.

Perhaps the greatest advantage in modern kitchens is man. He dries the dishes, takes out the garbage and listens to the harangue. He never complains that the soup is thinner than home-made variety or that the cake mix recipe only looks but tastes like shaving cream.

If he did he'd end up thickening the soup.

Vietnam Talks Still Bogged Down As Election Nears

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The current stage of the United States-North Vietnam peace talks is likely to be summed up as five months of empty chatter. And current American election campaign trends suggest the election results may bring no joy to North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh.

When the Communists agreed to peace talks, it was against a background of widespread speculation that the Vietnam war was causing United States President Johnson so much embarrassment he would be eager to reach a settlement on easy terms to remove this spectacle from the public eye before the November U.S. presidential election.

The forecasters were right that Vietnam would be a big election issue and all three presidential candidates have indicated they would be eager to settle the war once they gain power. But none has mapped out a full settlement program and in the case of one candidate, third-party leader George Wallace, there is the hint of massive military action to crush the Communists in South Vietnam if no other road is available.

While the Vietnam issue keeps buzzing at election campaign meetings, there is a feeling among observers that the Paris meetings have tended to shift the issue from the centre of public attention which now has turned more to the domestic issue of law and order.

Many voters may have comforted themselves with the notion that while the talks continue there is always the hope of a settlement. But for Hanoi there also must be the annoying conclusion that the closer the Americans get to polling day Nov. 5 the more reluctant Johnson, who is not seeking re-election, may be to undertake a major reversal of policy that would commit his successor to a drastic change in the American military position.

Undoubtedly a settlement in which Hanoi agreed to reciprocal action in return for American concessions would give the Democratic hopeful and even Johnson with praise as he leaves office. Johnson has resisted one-sided action but might suggest his costly approach to the Vietnam war may have been wrong at the start.

The North Vietnamese may have sensed that time is running out. They appear to be concentrating more of their appeals to Johnson to initiate action rather than wait patiently for possibly a more favorable successor.

One Bill Passed

Six Items of Farm Legislation Left on Commons Agenda

OTTAWA (CP)—Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson scored one point in his farm program Tuesday with passage of amendments to the Farm Improvement Loans Act, but six items of farm legislation remain on the Commons agenda.

The loans bill raises to $25,000 from $15,000 the maximum that may be borrowed under its provisions and removes the five-per-cent fixed interest rate. The bill passed after a Creditiste attempt to retain the fixed rate and an all-party opposition move to have the formula stated for fixing rates.

Opposition farm critics paid no attention to Mr. Olson's plea for quick passage of Farm Credit Act amendments and were still debating the first clause of the 13-clause bill when the House adjourned for the night.

The act, which controls Farm Credit Corp., expands the category of borrowers, raises the corporation's capitalization to $56,000,000 from $40,000,000 and replaces the five-per-cent rate for its loans with a floating rate.

Other items in the farm program awaiting parliamentary action are amendments to the Farm Machinery Syndicates Credit Act, the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act, and the Animal Contagious Diseases Act; and two items to prevent the importation of pests injurious to plants and to provide for compensation for damage from pesticide residue.

The Commons will not return to farm legislation this week. Mr. Olson is in Winnipeg today for meetings to establish a national grains council.

Debate on the farm bills Tuesday was delayed more than an hour while opposition MPs renewed their attack on the government's taxation system for cabinet ministers at the daily question period.

Donald MacInnis (PC—Cape Breton-East Richmond) reopened discussion of the plan under which cabinet ministers are required to attend only on specific days. On a question of privilege he moved that the question be discussed by a Commons committee.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux reserved his decision after hearing the views of government and opposition spokesmen.

Energy Minister J. J. Greene announced an agreement between Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., and the French atomic energy agency for an exchange of information on nuclear power reactor systems.

The main exchange relates to water-cooled, heavy-water systems in which Canada is the recognized world leader. Mr. Greene said there would be a cash commission to Canada and drew opposition criticism for not saying how much.

Later at a news conference J. L. Gray, the president of AECL, said it "was more than $700,000."

In the upper chamber, Senator David Croll called for a Senate committee to act as an "ombudsman" in protecting individuals against maladministration or error by any federal government department.

The Commons external affairs committee, continuing its study of the Biafran situation, heard two churchmen criticize the Canadian government for what they said was lack of action in the west African conflict.

Dr. E. H. Johnson, secretary for overseas missions of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and Romeo Maione, director of the Canadian Catholic organization for peace and development called for Canada to take a more active role in relief work.

In the Commons, External Affairs Minister Sharp said Canada had offered to send more observers to augment the four-man team already in Nigeria.

Defending the Farm Credit Act amendments, Mr. Olson said the new definition of farmer and farm corporation is necessary to clarify the legal status of an individual farmer and to permit several farmers to qualify for loans as a corporation when they were not blood relatives.

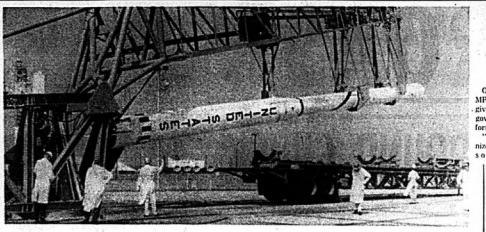
Replying to Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot), the minister denied the bill would make it easier for the corporate farm at the expense of the family farmer. On the contrary, the revisions made it possible for family groups to borrow up to the $100,000 maximum rather than the $40,000 limit allowed individuals.

Harold Danforth (PC—Kent-Essex), the Conservative farm critic, argued for retention of the five-per-cent interest rate. He said the money for the loans was provided by the government, not by the commercial banks. Since the loans were for periods up to 30 years the fluctuation of rates would probably compensate the government for any subsidization necessary now to preserve the fixed rate.

John Burton (NDP—Regina East) proposed an amendment to ensure that only operating farmers qualified for loans.

Mr. Olson said that aspect would be covered in the regulations.

Opposition Leader Stanfield asked why the assurance should not be incorporated in the act.



Mr. Olson said the issue had been left to regulation in the original act of 1959. It gave the agency flexibility of administration while it gained experience in dealing with various forms of farm corporations and co-operatives.

Government Investigates Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro told the Commons Tuesday the government is investigating a report that drugs are being dispensed to Indians by at least one non-professional person who cannot read.

Mr. Munro told questioners the health department undertook a review and started improving its Indian health services before a weekend television program dealt with the question. In some areas, he said, the health services available to Indians are superior to those available to whites.

He said the television program reporting an illiterate person is dispensing drugs was a surprise to him and the report is being investigated.

Newspaper Rate Is Issue

Postal Rate Increase Irks Opposition

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian newspapers want everyone but themselves to help put the post office on a pay-as-you-go basis, Postmaster-General Eric Kierans said in the Commons Tuesday.

He said newspapers gave almost unanimous editorial approval when he first announced that he wanted to balance the post office budget.

"Now the question is: 'Who, me?'" said Mr. Kierans.

The postmaster-general replied toughly to an opposition assault on his plans to increase the rates on second-class mail — which includes mailed newspapers — and to stop Saturday mail deliveries.

He said the present subsidy afforded publishers by the Canadian public in delivery of their publications is $37,000,000 annually.

He repeated his refusal to send rate-increasing legislation to a Commons committee for discussion before it is passed by Parliament.

But he disclosed that 35 Liberal MPs had formed a caucus group to study five-day delivery and he would listen to their arguments, not to opposition "emotion."

He also promised to make public by Thursday a series of financial statements and supporting documents prepared by his department as a basis for the decisions to change postal rates and delivery schedules.

Liberal Caucus Debates Action by Postmaster

OTTAWA (CP) — The caucus of the federal Liberal party meets today to "seek common ground between factions which have developed over recent decisions by Postmaster-General Eric Kierans.

Sources in the caucus said Tuesday that the majority of cabinet ministers were opposed to Mr. Kierans' announcement that Saturday mail delivery will be discontinued Feb. 1.

In the Commons Tuesday, Mr. Kierans replied to Opposition questioners that a 35-man committee within the caucus was formed a week ago to "study the matter and not just to raise complaints."

The sources said the committee had been formed at the instigation of Alexandre Cyr, MP for Gaspe who was executive assistant to the former Postmaster General Jean-Pierre Cote.

The committee was charged with making suggestions to Mr. Kierans concerning the projected five-day mail delivery schedule and also legislation—already past its first reading in the Commons—which proposes changes in the postal rates.

Liberal MPs complain privately that the minister failed to consult them before announcing his reform proposals for the postal service and they recall promises made by Prime Minister Trudeau concerning "participatory democracy" by prior consultation with members on bills to be put before the House.

Liberals Fight off Bill Which Would Open Files

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal MPs fought off Tuesday a bill to give the public more access to government documents and information.

"Our office files aren't scrutinized," said lawyer Colin Gibson (L—Hamilton-Wentworth) during a commons debate on the subject. "Why should theirs be?"

The files of government departments, agencies and commissions might be misused by the press, Mr. Gibson said.

Making government documents public would also be "a big distracting force in the life of the civil service."

If people really wanted information about the government, MPs were the ones who should provide it.

Quebec Students Warned Semester Might Be Invalidated

MONTREAL (CP) — Threatened reprisals by education officials against student dissenters apparently began to take effect Tuesday night as students voted to stop occupying three junior colleges in Quebec province.

Seven other colleges still were under student occupation, with sympathizers boycotting classes in other institutions.

Classes are to resume at the colleges in Ahuntsic in northend Montreal, Rosemount in east-end Montreal and Hull near Ottawa.

A statement from Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal said the protesting students could jeopardize or retard by several months the "pursuit of their studies."

The statement said it was "evident that if students do not return to classes shortly, the first semester will be entirely invalidated."

College administrators held an emergency meeting Monday. There was no collective announcement after the closed-door session.

An official of Old Montreal said his college may force students to start the year's work over again.

College officials in Chicoutimi said classes will resume next Monday and students who do not show up will lose their year's work.

Canada Signs Pact with France in Bid to Sell Reactors

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has singled a five-year agreement to share nuclear data with France, confident the exchange will help develop a broader international market for Canadian-type nuclear reactors.

The pact, which includes a cash payment by France of "more than $700,000," was announced to the Commons Tuesday by Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene and at the same time in Paris.

J. L. Gray, president of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., said later he believes France can be sold on Canada's water-cooled heavy-water moderated nuclear power reactor.

If France switches to this type, from its gas-cooled reactor, it will be a breakthrough in Canada's export prospects even if Canada has to compete with France for sales, Mr. Gray said.

The two countries will exchange both personnel and technical information on the Canadian system known as CANDU, short for Canada deuterium uranium.

No information of a military nature is involved.

Mr. Gray said he thinks France will decide within a year to switch from gas-cooled reactor systems to water-cooled installations and by the end of the five-year agreement will be contributing as much to the partnership as Canada because its over-all nuclear program is much larger.

Mr. Gray also announced at a news conference the terms of a recent plutonium sale to France.

He said Canada had received $22 per gram in a contract worth about $1,500,000, which he described as a good price under current circumstances.

WEDDING

LIPIN — O'DETTE

Cheryl Anne O'Dette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. O'Dette of Kingston, became the bride of Capt. Samuel Lipin of Ottawa in a double-ring ceremony held in St. Joseph's Church, recently.

Rt. Rev. A. J. Welsh officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Douglas Meyers, of Toronto, as matron-of-honor, Miss Bette McEwen of Lanark, Miss Mary Nagle of Perth, and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Brenda Lipin of Ottawa were bridesmaids. Leanne O'Dette was flower girl for her sister.

The bridegroom was attended by Clare Campbell of Hamilton as best man. Ushers were Malcolm Baines of Kingston, Andrew Lipin of Ottawa, brother of the bridegroom, and Brian O'Dette of Kingston, brother of the bride.

After the ceremony, an honor guard, comprised of friends and classmates of the bridegroom, formed an arch of swords under which the bride and bridegroom walked as they left the church.

Upon their return Capt. and Mrs. Lipin will reside in Petawawa, where the bridegroom is stationed. Captain Lipin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel E. Lipin of Ottawa and Deep River.

Successful Living

Less Curves Results in Bundle of Nerves

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have been on diets and followed all E. B. B. recommended in her letter (about Vim, Vigor and Vitality), plus helping my husband with outside chores, only to end up with less curves and a bundle of nerves.

After about six months of dieting I can't sleep nights, worry about little things that shouldn't bother me at all. I hurry to the doctor who prescribes sleeping pills which leave me feeling listless all the time I have to take them.

So back to eating I go, not as heavy as my husband does, but three normal meals a day. I never eat pie, cake, cookies, canned fruit, potatoes, gravy, and limit myself to three slices of bread daily. I want to lose weight, but how? — True Blue.

Dear Blue: So many things could be wrong. The nerves and restlessness suggest a deficiency in diet — not the amount of food you eat, but the kind. Even overweight people can be undernourished. When you deliberately cut down, were you making sure of getting the protective foods the proteins, vitamins, minerals, in good quantity?

You defeat your purpose if you attack the problem desperately. A slow reduction — one or two pounds a week — on a diet which heeds the food rules, is the ticket. And don't try to melt down to a mere shadow.

Dear Doris: I have a 15-year-old brother who will not do anything unless he is forced or told he will get something in return. If he does something wrong and my other brother, 12, sees him the older one threatens to beat up on him and has done so a few times already.

My father caters to almost all of the 15-year-old's wishes, but if he becomes angry, he wants to beat him up. My mother does not tell my father about the situation unless she cannot handle it, as she doesn't want to cause any more hard feeling between the two. My 15-year-old brother has told me that he considers our father a "sucker".

Could you please help me straighten this problem out as I love my family life a lot and would like to see things running on a better basis. — A Sad Gal.

Dear Gal: Makes me sad too. Saddest of all is the thought that both parents injure your brother's growing personality by not keeping him straightened out. Fifteen learns he can get away with anything in this world as long as he bullies people into giving in to him.

This situation is beyond you but often crops up in the life of a social worker. If you could get your mother to go to the child care authority where you are for a discussion you'd be doing everybody a favor.

* * *

Confidential to A User For A Boy Friend: Don't even try to win him back. You can see he isn't ready to go steady. He probably says he loves you because you ask him. Better give the other boys a chance.

* * *

Confidential to Fifty-Seven: Just because your wife now asks to come back supplies no guarantee that anything will be different. She left you for the fourth time 16 years ago; do you want to go for a fifth?

You say you care nothing for her. The feeling has been mutual for so long that hope for anything different is forlorn. She must be awfully down on her luck; yet you say she is doing O.K. Better leave well enough alone.

CLUB 4-H NOTES

(4 H CLUB NOTES)
(The Apple Corps)

The seventh meeting of the Wallbridge 111 "Apple Corps" held on October 8th at the home of Mrs. S. Haverhill.

Miss Evelyn Knight discussed the art of garnishing fruit accompaniments and fruit specialties. Mrs. B. Haverhill had an exhibit of a cheese tray, fruit table centre arrangement and fruit garnishes. Each girl made fruit garnish, and the meeting ended with everyone enjoying the cheese tray.

Ann Landers

Wife in Love With Husband's Brother

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When my husband was courting me, 18 years ago, I fell in love with his brother. It was too late to call off the wedding so I married Arnold knowing he was not the one for me. We have children, 16, 14 and 10.

My brother-in-law and I have been seeing each other secretly all those years. Nobody has the faintest idea we are in love. He, of course, has never married. Now we want a life together and this is why I'm writing.

Please don't tell me to forget him: We've tried separation but it doesn't work. I'm not asking what to do, just how to dissolve my marriage in the simplest, least hurtful way. I want to make it clear that Arnold has been a good husband — honorable, decent, faithful and hardworking, but I don't love him and I want to be free to marry the man I do love. How? How? How? — ANONYMOUS.

DEAR AN: If you want to divorce a man who has been faithful, decent, honorable and hardworking after 18 years and three children, you'll have to do it without my help.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For three years I stalled when my husband asked me if his elderly father could make his home with us. I gave in a year ago when I saw how depressed he was he was because of the poor relationship between him and his daughter with whom he was living.

Papa is over 80 now and I am a nervous wreck. I know he tries to be co-operative and not get in my way. This only adds to my guilt. Many small things about him annoy me, but his eating habits drive me crazy. His slurping, chomping and gulping can be heard three rooms away. He dunks everything in coffee even though he still has his own teeth.

I am embarrassed in front of company and I play the radio during mealtime to drown out the noise. I find myself avoiding soup, spaghetti and celery when I plan menus. It's getting ridiculous.

Is there a solution, Ann — or am I doomed forever? — DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.

DEAR D.I.L.: It's a noble thing you're doing and it's unfortunate that your kindness is bringing you anxiety and frustration instead of satisfaction and joy.

On the outside chance that your irritation with the old gentleman is rooted in hostility toward your husband, have a chat with a therapist. You can't lose and you might learn something.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You gave the right answer to the woman who wanted to know if she should change the name of her son by a former marriage so it would be the same as hers and her second husband's. In that particular case the father was a well-known criminal.

My real dad was no criminal but when he died his parents made Mom promise she wouldn't change my last name. All through school I was asked a million questions. The confusion was awful. My half-brothers and sisters hated it as much as I did.

Just keep on handing out common sense advice and tell those who disagree with you to go climb a weed. — AN ADMIRER.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

A Different Dish Using Leftover Turkey

By MARY MOORE

A reader-friend wrote: "Because turkey is so inexpensive I buy a large one every time they are on "special" but we are getting tired of it the same old way". I sent her half a dozen ways of making leftover turkey interesting — even glamorous.

I promised last week to give you a way to use up your left-over Thanksgiving turkey if you have taken advantage of the special prices and bought a large one. This was a great favorite with Rick, Shirley's 17-year-old guest who had never tasted "stroganoff" before.

TURKEY STROGANOFF
(Serves 4 or 5)

NOTE: This may be frozen.
2 tbsps. oil
½ cup minced onion (or bottled flakes)
½ lb. scrubbed sliced mushrooms (or 4-oz. can)
2 tbsps. flour
½ tsp. salt
1 cup boiling water
1 chicken Oxo cube
2 cups (or more) cut up, cooked turkey (packed)
1 tomato, peeled and chopped
6 stuffed olives, sliced
1 cup dairy sour cream

Heat oil in large frypan. Gently saute onion and mushrooms for two or three minutes. (NOTE: If canned mushrooms and bottled onion flakes are used, sauteeing step is not necessary — simple add them to warm oil.) Stir in flour and salt until blended with oil. Stir in boiling water in which you have dissolved chicken cube, until thick. Add cut-up turkey. (NOTE: If you plan to freeze this, add olives and then stop at this stage, cool pour into freezer container and freeze. Scotch tape a note to top of container saying, "Thaw and bring to boil, then add one tomato peeled and chopped and one cup dairy sour cream, heat but do not boil." This now saves searching frantically for the original recipe.) Add tomato, olives and bring just to boil. Add dairy sour cream and heat through but do not boil or cream might curdle.

Serve over boiled noodles or rice.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Jenny: "Mother wants me to be a teacher, and Dad thinks I should consider secretarial work. I can't figure out what courses to take next year. I really don't know what I want to do."

Jenny: "I can't decide what I want to do when I'm through school."

Counselor: "Your aptitude tests show you are superior in English. Do you like to write? Perhaps you would be interested in a journalism course."

Many teen-agers are not ready to choose their careers, and parents should not choose for them. It may be wise to have the school's counselor help discover what work a student is interested in and capable of doing.

College of Art Report Supports Faculty-student Involvement

TORONTO (CP) — The chairman of Ontario's committee on university affairs proposed Tuesday that the Ontario College of Art be governed by a body half the members of which would be staff and students.

Dr. Douglas Wright recommended in a 23-page report to Education Minister William Davis that the provincial statute governing operation of the college be replaced by a new act providing for creation of an 18-member council with nine members from the public at large, six from the college faculty and three from the student body.

The report was requested by Mr. Davis March 26 after an eight-day student "sit-in" ended with reinstatement of two instructors who had supported student objections to curriculum changes ordered by Principal Sydney Watson.

Dr. Wright, 40, told a news conference following release of the report that he disagrees with those who suggest colleges should be governed exclusively by students and faculty.

In the report the former president of the University of Waterloo rejected the traditional Canadian pattern for university government of a board of governors and senate in favor of a single council.

He told reporters the present college council is in effect a board of governors with the normal functions of a senate being carried out by the principal for lack of an alternative power centre.

Dr. Wright also proposed that the chief executive officer be designated "president," rather than "principal"; that each department in the college have an administrative chairman and that the fine and applied arts divisions each have an academic board.

Dr. Wright said the nine "lay" members of the council should be appointed by the provincial cabinet. The staff and student members would be an "ex-officio" member of council.

Maybe it's because they discovered Jane Parker Pies... thousands have.

But...you say, "No thanks, there is nothing like a good home-baked pie." We agree...they're great.

But would you believe it if we told you our Jane Parker Pies taste home-baked? Probably not...until you've tried one.

Then you'd discover the crust is short and flaky like your own.

You'd discover the fruit is the kind you'd use... the best...juicy, not stiff with starch.

And if you popped a Jane Parker Pie into the oven and warmed it before serving, you'd discover a pie you'd be proud to call your own.

Are Jane Parker Pies a good reason for shopping A&P? They're one of many.

Question Period Dilemma

Speaker Faces First Major Ruling

OTTAWA (CP)—Lucien Lamoureux is the man on the spot at the moment in the increasingly-raucous Ottawa debate over the new-broom methods of the Trudeau administration in Parliament.

Mr. Lamoureux, Speaker of the Commons, asked the House Tuesday for time to make up his mind on whether to allow a full-dress debate on the government's program to excuse some ministers each day from the Commons question period.

Opposition and government collided in an hour-long debate about the ministerial roster system, which the government defends as an efficiency measure and its opponents contend detracts from Parliament's rights, privileges and dignity.

Speaker Lamoureux, 48, the urbane Cornwall, Ont., lawyer who represents Stormont riding as an independent and whose office demands traditional impartiality, said after the debate he was impressed by arguments on both sides.

He added that other issues involved include whether the challenge to government practice should have been brought only after 48 hours' notice.

Mr. Lamoureux, Speaker since January, 1958, said he would examine the issue more thoroughly, "and perhaps seek the guidance of the Holy Ghost," before giving a decision. A Speaker's ruling on such matters cannot be appealed.

At issue is a ministerial roster system for question period in operation for little more than a week. The question period is at the beginning of each day's sitting and lasts from 30 minutes to an hour.

Of the 28 ministers seated in the Commons—Paul Martin, the 29th is in the Senate—11 are listed to attend Mondays, 13 Tuesday, all on Wednesdays if In Order, 18 on Thursdays and 14 Fridays.

Cernik Returns For Treaty Signing

MOSCOW (AP) — Czechoslovak Premier Oldrich Cernik returned to Prague today after two days of Kremlin talks to complete a treaty legalizing the Soviet occupation of his country.

Unofficial reports said agreement was reached Tuesday on terms of the treaty giving formal approval to the presence in Czechoslovakia of troops from the Soviet Union and other Communist countries.

Cernik and his delegation were seen off at the airport by Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, Defence Minister Andrei A. Grechko and other officials.

Informed sources said Cernik would present the treaty to government officials in Prague for their approval and a signing ceremony will be held "in the nearest future," probably in Prague.

Kosygin is expected to sign for the Soviet Union.

A brief communique Tuesday said the Czechoslovaks and the Soviets "exchanged views on . . . the question of the terms for the temporary stay of Soviet troops" in Czechoslovakia.

Details were not revealed, but reports from Prague have indicated the Soviets want to keep between 50,000 and 100,000 troops in the country. Estimates of the total occupation force range from 275,000 to 600,000.

The Russians promised to start pulling out troops as soon as liberalizing trends in Czechoslovakia were halted and the positions of the Communist party was strengthened. The absence of criticism in the Soviet press in recent days indicates progress is being made toward those goals.

Joint Meeting

City Council Asks Industrial Commission to Complete Term

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The Belleville Industrial Commission will be asked to carry on as it is until the end of the year.

This was the decision reached yesterday afternoon at a 2½ - hour informal meeting between industrial commission directors and members of city council held to discuss what had been termed as "strained relationship" between the two bodies.

Council members passed a resolution from Alderman E. A. Orr asking the present Industrial Commission to carry on until the end of the year with council support and with assurance that a special committee would be set up to discuss and iron out industrial commission policy for 1969.

Ald. Gerald Joyce, the second city council member on the Industrial Commission and that body's public relations officer, acted as chairman for the joint meeting.

Following yesterday's meeting, Mr. Fred Deacon said he would not resign from the commission.

MAYOR RUSSELL SCOTT

However, he said he would not decide whether to accept the chairmanship until after the next meeting of commission directors.

The position of commission chairman became vacant more than a week ago with the resignation of George Hume who said business pressure made it impossible for him to carry on.

But rumor had it that Mr. Hume's resignation may have been prompted by the "strained relationships" referred to by Ald. Orr when at the last council meeting he suggested a meeting between the two bodies.

Yesterday Ald. Orr said it was no secret that there had been criticism of the industrial commission. Neither was it any secret that Mayor J. R. Scott had not attended the past few industrial commission meetings.

He said there must be a reason why Mayor Scott was not attending commission meetings and suggested the resignation of Mr. Hume indicated the situation was not a happy one.

In answer to the alderman, Mayor Scott said he has "lost all confidence" in the industrial commission as it was constituted although he had full confidence in Industrial Commissioner Ray Brown.

He said he had not been informed of the latter resignation of commission director Ernest Rankin.

Council earlier in the year had wanted three representatives (mayor and two aldermen) on the commission membership yet when Ald. Arthur Keegan had been nominated to fill the vacancy council learned that the vacancy had already been filled by the appointment of Ronald Godden.

He also felt that a city hall official should handle land purchases for the industrial commission, claiming that the role of the industrial commissioner was to sell Belleville to industry, not to purchase land and office supplies.

Commission budget money should be watched just as closely as the city's money, he said.

The mayor suggested extensive changes in the industrial commission membership with an increase in the number of directors to nine from the present seven.

The mayor would like to see three council members on the commission (the mayor and two aldermen), one member from the Chamber of Commerce to be appointed by city council, the chairman of the public utilities commission and the chairman of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Committee and three members at large to be chosen by the city council members on the commission directorate.

In the past Mayor Scott said it had been customary for the past chairman of the chamber of commerce to be named to the industrial commission. This had been done all in good faith but what had happened was that these members stayed on with the result that chamber membership outweighed that of city council.

Ald. Boyle wanted to know why Mayor Scott had stopped going to commission meetings stating that he had never known a Belleville mayor to back away from responsibility.

Ald. Paul Russell said he was "very concerned" about the mayor not attending commission meetings.

"You just don't walk away from problems," he said, "at least council should have been told that the mayor had lost confidence in the commission."

The result, he said, was that industrial commission directors were at the day's meeting "with a shotgun at their heads."

Ald. Robin Jeffrey said it was unfortunate that problems between the commission and council had occurred and claimed the methods used to air them had "hurt only ourselves."

The troubles had been "blown all-out of proportion," she said.

Instead of pointing a finger at the industrial commission she placed the blame on the shoulders of city council.

To a question from Ald. Boyle, as to the reason for Mr. Hume's resignation, Mayor Scott denied that there had been any personality clash.

"Mr. Hume was a perfect gentleman, there was no loss of friendship — nothing," he said.

Ald. Donald Williams did not agree with the proposal for increased membership from city council on the industrial commission.

He said the policy in many centres, including the city of Vancouver, was to limit council membership.

But Mayor Scott said this didn't always apply and claimed some industrial heads would rather deal with the mayor than with the industrial commission.

Ald. Keegan said Trenton was an example of the success which can be gained with council members sitting on industrial commissions.

He said the Belleville public was "up in arms" demanding to know what was going on in the industrial commission. A tremendous amount of money was being spent and people wanted to know the truth.

Industrial commission vice-

chairman Fred Deacon said the commission was a product of council and admitted it was responsible to city council.

However, the commission had been set up as a separate constitution and was forced to follow its own bylaws.

Mr. Deacon listed in chronological order the relationship problems between the industrial commission and city council, suggesting that much of the trouble was due to lack of communication.

Referring to the earlier statement by Mayor Scott that he had not been informed of the resignation of director Ernest Rankel, Mr. Deacon said Mayor Scott had attended the meeting at which Mr. Rankel's resignation had been read.

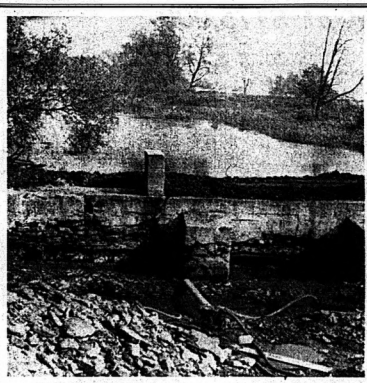
He said the commission's constitution permitted only the mayor and one alderman to represent council on the industrial commission corporate.

"If council is not prepared to uphold the integrity of its board and commission members, then this city is in a sad state," he said.

Council Gives Sidewalk Proposal Second Look

TRENTON — A petition from the residents of Sidney Street was received last night at council, and as a result, sidewalk construction on that street will receive a second look.

The petition contained the signatures of eight persons objecting to a sidewalk being constructed on the west side of Sidney Street.



The reason: they would have to pay for it.

It had been decided previously by council that a sidewalk would be built, and the residents of the street would be billed for it. In light of the petition, however, Mayor James MacDonald believes "council should take a second look at the situation."

The main purpose of the sidewalk is to protect children going to the V. P. Carswell School.

By this usage, however, the residents maintain the sidewalk would become a public facility, as it would be used by children throughout the town.

The petition represents persons who live between Edward Street and the V. P. Carswell School. The sidewalk would be constructed in this area, and a result the petition represents the majority of those that will be affected.

WORK IS PROGRESSING rapidly on a new dam at Consecon. The project is being handled by the Prince Edward County Conservation Author'ty. It will be completed in the near future.

Reconstruction Project Gets the Green Light

TRENTON — The reconstruction of the CNR subway on Trenton Street will begin in approximately two weeks.

The project has been waiting some four years for some improvement on the part of the railway company.

A letter was read at council last night, by which the CNR stated that the transfer track will be relocated this fall.

Work will begin on the actual reconstruction next spring. No completion date had been given.

The current cost is estimated at $359,000, of which the town will pay $62,000.

Trenton Company Gets Extra Work

TRENTON — Workers at Central Bridge here ended a strike at the plant about a month ago saying "we're giving back to work to give the company a chance to get back on its feet. If we stay out much longer the plant will close."

They added that Central Bridge's parent company Toronto Iron Works was "in serious financial trouble."

However, things seemed to have changed. Toronto Iron Works today announced it had been awarded the largest individual storage tank farm contract ever let for oil and petroleum products.

The order of approximately $7 - million has been placed by the Ralph M. Parsons Construction Co. of Canada Ltd.—general contractor for the mammoth new British - American Oil refinery at Point Tupper, Nova Scotia.

The $50 - million B.A. project will have a daily output of 60,000 barrels.

The Central Bridge strike lasted about a month in a bid for higher wages. Workers sought a 35-cent increase over two years, and settled for 21 cents on a two - year contract.

At Central a plant spokesman today said "very little" of the parent company's windfall contract would be processed in Trenton.

However, the project should help lift Toronto Iron Works out of receivership, he added.

Drama Training Needed: Howard

Drama training, an extension of child education, is badly needed in Belleville.

The requirement was stressed to the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club last night by Richard Howard, Belleville Theatre Guild artistic director.

Mr. Howard, who already has successfully launched a drama course for children here, said such a project releases the child's instinct into more imaginative spheres.

Getting the child out from behind the school desk has not been a disrupting experience, he emphasized.

First tried by him three years ago in Sault Ste. Marie schools, the experiment proved so successful that local educators launched it into the city's high schools.

It is something that needs to be started in places like Belleville — and needs to be started very desperately."

Labor Council Meeting

Scott Endorses Labor Bid for Seat on Industrial Commission

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

Organized labor in Belleville has a supporter in Mayor Scott in its fight against established or potential low-wage industries.

"We don't need $1.25-an-hour industries in our community," he told the Belleville and District Labor Council last night. "Because, if you do have them, all they are doing) is taking a ride on the rest of us."

The mayor went before the council as a special guest at Club Canara as it debated its recent challenge to Belleville Industrial Commission practices.

Mayor Scott, earlier embroiled over commission policy at a city hall meeting, confessed he felt right more at home among the labor representatives than some places I've been today."

"You are the people who put me in," he added, "and if I'm not a pro-labor mayor we've never had one."

The mayor himself added one oblique shot at the industrial commission.

The commission, he said, doesn't "like a majority of politicians" and had opposed the appointment of Ald. Arthur Keegan as a council representative.

"They don't like people who are responsible to the electorate," he added.

One council member challenged the fact no labor representative was a commission director — although there are three in the general membership.

The mayor said the commission felt a prospective industrialist might feel chary of confidential discussions with a group that included a union representative.

"But we have city industrialists on there . . . where it should be all phases of business," objected a council member.

"I agree with you," concurred the mayor. " . . . "If I was an industrialist looking for industry I'd want to know what labor thought."

Earlier, the council endorsed recent statements of its president, Ray Bradshaw, in which he challenged industrial committee policies.

Already, Quinte-area industries had the lowest paid work forces from Quebec City to Winnipeg, charged Mr. Bradshaw.

He faulted the commission for what he said was "strossing the desire for textile, chemical and electronic industries."

Textiles is the worst-paying industry, chemicals highly-automated, while electronics employs predominantly women, said Mr. Bradshaw.

"We can't turn any of these industries away, but we can't emphasize that we only want these industries," he said.

Council member Reg Loader noted a new industry locating in Napanee already "has moved several times in the United States. They (the industry) look for areas like the Picton-Trenton-Belleville area. It's pitiful the working people of this country have to accept this."

Gerald Cunningham took issue with Mr. Bradshaw that the city could not afford to lose industry.

"Where are some industries we shouldn't have," he asserted.

Such industries, rejoined Mr. Bradshaw, could be "encouraged to bring their wages up to par."

Mr. Cunningham also won unanimous council support for Mr. Bradshaw in his recent public clash with the commission.

Mr. Bradshaw protested he never charged "clandestine practice" by directors who also were Chamber of Commerce members.

The industrial commission is the author of its own misfortune," retorted Mr. Cunningham.

"It has been a cloak-and-dagger outfit since it came into existence — and I mean disgusting," by a strike sympathizer.

"Our police forces are charged with the responsibility of upholding the law — often under trying conditions. It's our duty to help them where and whenever possible."

Local unions could make a start by inviting police officers as guest speakers, he suggested.

"I'm concerned with this because it does make an awful lot of bad publicity — and it's really disgusting," Mr. Bradshaw added.

Police, he said, sometimes "take an awful shellacking" during labor disputes.

Council Launches Campaign Against 'Poverty Wages'

The Belleville and District Labor Council is launching an all-out campaign against what it calls "poverty wages."

The council last night:

Endorsed for wide circulation, a formal denunciation of employers paying low scale wages;

Agreed to install a business phone to more quickly process reports from victimized employees.

The moves came after council president Ray Bradshaw reported several complaints from underpaid workers, seeking council help.

One such complaint came from a married couple who, between them, took home $118 weekly. For that, said Mr. Bradshaw, the husband worked 66 hours, his wife, 35 hours.

Identity of the complainants or their employer was not revealed.

"We're getting more of these complaints all the time" said Mr. Bradshaw, who passes the reports on to government labor authorities for investigation.

Poor wages, not automation, is the main threat to economy, Gerald Cunningham, chairman of the council's minimum wage committee said as he read a formal policy statement on the issue.

"The government is to be sent to all local politicians, clergy, newspapers and community organizations.

"Some employers reap great benefits from their community through the efforts of their employees," said Mr. Cunningham. "They have a moral and social responsibility to these people."

The Chamber of Commerce is specifically cited in the statement.

"The Chamber of Commerce," said Mr. Cunningham "is another body having a large measure of community responsibility on its collective shoulders. Many members of this organization are themselves paying their employees an unfair, poverty wage."

Some charges that welfare is being abused no doubt are true, said Mr. Cunningham.

"However, it is ironical that some of the people making these charges are at the same time employing workers at poverty wages."

Politicians must enact fair minimum wage laws.

"It is also a place for employers to live up to their responsibilities. This type (low-paying) of employer is being subsidized by the taxpayers, and is contributing to the social and economic decline of our country."

The statement was unanimously endorsed by council members.

Local Leaders Concerned Over Strike Incidents

Local labor leaders are concerned over unruly public incidents during strikes — not all of them caused by strikers.

Particularly victimized are police officers and the Belleville and District Labor Council is hoping to step up public relations between local police and unions.

There's far too much "name-calling and mud-slinging" during labor disputes, cautioned council president Ray Bradshaw last night.

And the trouble doesn't come from the strikers but, "in many instances," from sympathizers, he said.

During recent problems at Picton's Proctor-Silex plant,

Mayor Wants Labor Represented on Council

So much so, he told the Belleville and District Labor Council last night to put a candidate in the next municipal elections.

What's needed, he says, is a "real, dues-paying man."

"Get behind a candidate and have a voice of labor on our council," he advised.

"I think the community needs it, and you need it."

Mo-Hawk Bid Falls Short

By MAURICE SWITZER
(Sports Editor)

KINGSTON — It would be easy to bemoan last night's Belleville Mo-Hawk 8-7 loss to the Aces here as an ill omen for Belleville's senior hockey future.

But, possibly for the first time this season, the Mo-Hawks looked better on ice than on paper . . . at times.

Hampered by injuries that kept playing-coach Davey Jones and Gary Goyer out of the lineup, and restricted Wayne "Wiener" Brown to only two shifts all night, the Mo-Hawks showed the stuff that senior hockey teams are made of, coming from behind a 5-0 defeat and scoring four straight second period goals.

And what had been a figure skate for the youthful 1968-69 version of the Aces was transformed into a seesaw tussle that wasn't decided until the final buzzer.

With the score 5-4 in Kingston's favor going into the third, the Aces and Mo-Hawks traded goals, and Belleville nearly squared matters around the eight-minute mark on a rush by linesmates "Moe" Hunter and "Shaker" Baker.

Hunter's goal at 19.40 of the final period came after goalie Larry Holmes was removed in favor of an extra Mo-Hawk attacker, but it still left the locals a goal shy of the Kingston total.

Senior hockey oldster Eddie Marineau was a Mo-Hawk to reckon with around the Kingston net, potting a pair of markers, and earning an assist on the final goal with the Belleville net empty.

Centre Bob Taylor hustled for another pair of Mo-Hawk goals, and Ralph Plane counted once and assisted on two. The other Mo-Hawk goals came from the sticks of Hunter and Baker.

The fast-skating Aces, led by Rod Graham's three-goal performance, fired 30 shots at Holmes, who again proved he is capable of carrying more than his share of the Mo-Hawk defensive load.

A standout for the locals was centre George Godson, playing his first game after ending a one-game contract holdout. Godson's skating and stick-handling made him the most consistent Mo-Hawk threat of the night.

Last night's game with the Aces served as a juicy appetizer for the main course — a return match between the Senior "A" loop's eastern Ontario rivals this Friday night at the Belleville arena.

In the meantime, coach Jones has called practice sessions for tonight and Thursday to prepare the Mo-Hawks for Friday's encounter with the Aces add a Saturday road game against a tough Galt Hornet lineup.

Belleville Mo-Hawk winger Murray "Moe" Hunter takes a tumble while Kingston Aces' Les Colligan looks on. Mo-Hawk goalie Larry Holmes, however, is more interested in the puck, which is skidding along the ice near Hunter. Action occurred in the first period of last night's Senior "A" game in Kingston, won by the Aces 8-7. The two teams stage a return match in Belleville Friday night.

Tweed Hockey Runs Aground

Minor Hockey at Tweed will take on a new mode Sunday, Oct. 27, as the players don their walking shoes instead of their skates.

As in almost anything these days, money is behind it all. The diminutive skaters are sponsoring a March for Minor Hockey Walkathon to support the community's Minor Hockey Association.

There are more than 200 registration forms for the march already in circulation as registered players in the Association program solicit sponsors for their efforts.

The ten-mile route around Stoco Lake is being surveyed and one-mile check point intervals are being established at which the distance covered by individual walkers will be recorded.

The starting point for the hockey players' march will be the Tweed - Hungerford Community Centre where entrants may sign in between noon and 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 27.

The route will be from the Centre down St. Joseph Street, over the old bridge at Bridge Street to Victoria Street, then south on Highway 37 to the Stoco turn, around the Stoco Hotel, north past the Red Barn over Woodcock's Hill, left past Greenwood Park to the Sulphide Road, back onto Highway 37, north past Tweed Village, and back over the bridge to the Centre.

Players Drafted at $175,000

BOSTON (AP) — Kansas City Royals and Seattle Pilots figure they are just about ready to enter the 1969 American League pennant race after missing age with youth in taking 30 players each at a cost of $175,000 per man in the expansion draft.

AL president Joe Cronin bustled the draft through its six hours Tuesday with the help of a computer which provided data on players in lightning fashion.

The 10 established clubs pocketed $1,050,000 each.

Boston Red Sox picked up $175,000 for third baseman Joe Foy, who was drafted from the Minnesota organization for $8,000 five years ago and has spent considerable time in the managerial doghouse.

Foy has been inconsistent both at bat and in the field with the Red Sox, but figures to play full time at Kansas City.

In a parting shot, Foy described manager Dick Williams as "a sneak who delights in hurting people" and said he was "glad to get away" from Boston.

"It's impossible to play your best ball under a man like Williams," he said.

"Some guys are front-runners, but this man is a sneak.

"This man takes pleasure in hurting people. He thinks that will make you a better ball player. Well I've got news for him: I expect to be a much better ball player with a brand new club."

Williams shrugged off Foy's blast, saying: "It's not the first guy to take a shot at me."

Kansas City went for young talent, making right-handed pitcher Roger Nelson of Baltimore the No. 1 selection and following with Foy. The Pilots went for veterans, taking first baseman Don Mincher from California and then outfielder Tommy Harper from Cleveland and shortstop Ray Oyler from Detroit.

Later, Seattle grabbed outfielder Tommy Davis, a two-time National League batting champion, from Chicago White Sox, and southpaw Steve Barber from New York before going for younger players.

The Pilots drafted seven players over 30 years old. Kansas City picked only three, including Moe Drabowsky, 33, from Baltimore and Hoyt Wilhelm, 45, from Chicago, both in the fifth round.

Seattle drafted 17 pitchers, one more than Kansas City. Each team took two catchers.

The Royals picked eight infielders and four outfielders, while Seattle chose five infielders and six outfielders.

Some Team Transfers Seem to Be None Too Soon

BOSTON (AP) — Joe Foy described Dick Williams as "a sneak who delights in flurting people" and said he was "glad to get away" from Boston after being the first Red Sox player chosen Tuesday in the American League baseball expansion draft.

"It's impossible to play your best ball under a man like Williams," the 25-year-old third baseman said when told he had been selected by Kansas City Royals in the first round.

"Some guys are front-runners, but this man is a sneak," Foy said.

"This man takes pleasure in hurting people. He thinks that will make you a better ball player. Well I've got news for him: I expect to be a much better ball player with a brand new club."

Foy, speaking from his home in New York, said he had expected to go to another club but thought he would be traded rather than exposed in the draft.

Falling Down on Job

Kingston Aces' goalie Neil Perry appears to be doing his job inside out during action in last night's Kingston - Belleville Senior "A" game. He managed to get the job done, all the same, and his teammates went on to down Belleville's Mo-Hawks by an 8-7 count.

Empire's Athletes Have Midas Touch on Track

MEXICO CITY (CP) — It may look strange to those experts who play up United States and Russian domination of the Olympic Games, but the Commonwealth is winning most of the gold in the track events here so far.

The Olympic 800-metre gold medal will remain in Commonwealth hands for another four years. And there are two new additions—the 400-metre hurdles and the 10,000 metres.

Australian, British and Kenyan runners grabbed three gold of the five awarded in track competition so far.

With 14 of the 172 events on the two-week program completed, the Canadian team still was shut out of the points column.

The Americans picked up 38 points to move well ahead of Russia in the unofficial team standing as well as the medal column.

But it was the surprising Britons and Australians who moved right up into the top 10 with their showing Tuesday.

The United States led Russia 73-35 in points and 8-5 in medals including the most gold—four.

Every one of the four track and field finals Tuesday resulted in Olympic or world records being broken.

As expected, the U.S. retained the gold in the women's 100 metres, won for the second time in a row by Wyomia Tyus, and the men's discus, where Al Oerter scored again.

But nobody figured the U.S. being shut out of the 400 hurdle medals for the first time. A Briton, Dave Hemery, captured the prize and wiped out all listed and pending world marks.

Ralph Doubell of Australia, who had the best time of the heats, won the 800-metre run, breaking one of Peter Snell's records and equalling another.

In cycling, the Dutch successfully defended their championship in the 100-kilometre (62-mile) team time trial. And in weightlifting, Poland's Waldemar Baszanowski retained his title. The gold put Poland right behind Russia in the unofficial team race.

Finals are scheduled today in the pole vault, men's javelin, men's 200 metres, the 3,000-metre steeplechase and women's 400 metres. Other gold will be awarded in men's individual foils fencing and middleweight weightlifting.

A sixth track and field gold will be decided in the women's pentathlon where the last two events in the gruelling five-event competition are to be completed today.

Jenny Wingerson Meldrum of Toronto was in eighth place in the huge field, with the long jump and 200 metres still to come.

The track records were produced Tuesday despite a thunderstorm.

Three of Canada's four boats were knocked out of the rowing competition in the second-chance heats at Acapulco, leaving sculler Roger Jackson of Toronto as the lone medal contender.

Jackson goes into the single sculls semi-finals Thursday.

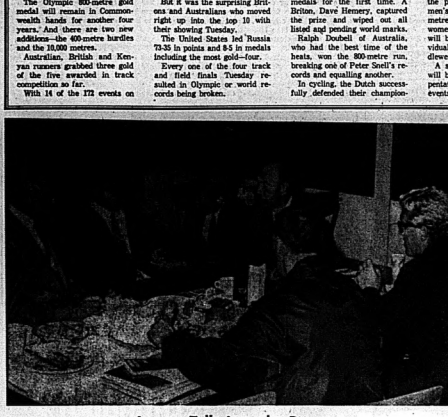
Jack Ulinder of Ladysmith, B.C., and Lyle Gatley of Vancouver missed qualifying for the semi-final in the coxless pairs by seven-tenths of a second. They placed fourth in their six-boat heat.



Darryl Sturdy and Bob Stubbs, both of Vancouver, broke in fourth and last place—and stayed there. They finished more than 15 seconds behind the heat-winning Swiss boat.

In the eights, St. Catharines Rowing Club was fourth in the six-boat heat won by Czechoslovakia.

Craig Swayze, rowing official from St. Catharines, said the noses of some oarsmen dried up, then swelled shut in the 80-degree heat, "forcing them to breath through their mouths."

"Then their mouths and throats went dry and they were choking. It's a combination of the 7,400-foot altitude and the dryness of the air."

Aftertaste of Squabbles Remains for Team Competitors

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Olympic athletes in team sports abandoned rough play for keen competition Tuesday, but the aftermath of earlier battles was still being felt.

Ghana held Hungary, the defending Olympic champion, to a 2-2 soccer tie.

It was a valiant stand by the small African country after four of its key players were suspended following a battle on opening day with Israel which Ghana lost 5-3.

And in basketball, Cuba, which has lost three games so far, said there were no hard feelings against the Mexican team which won by one point in a violence-marked clash Monday.

The Cuban delegation said the ruckus after the game was brought on by a Mexican photographer "which a Cuban player logically chased" when he tried to take a picture of a weeping Cuban.

Meanwhile, the United States won its 69th Olympic basketball contest without a defeat, crushing the Philippines team 96-75, and men's volleyball got under way with the U.S. edging Russia 3-2.

In other soccer games Tuesday Israel, tops in Group C with two wins, defeated El Salvador 3-1. France, leader in Group A, defeated Mexico 4-1 and Guinea edged Columbia 3-2.

In basketball, the U.S., Russia, Brazil and Yugoslavia all raised their records to three wins and no losses.

Yugoslavia defeated Senegal 84-65, Brazil topped Mexico 60-53, Russia defeated South Korea 89-58, Poland edged Cuba 78-75, Spain defeated Panama 88-82, Bulgaria trounced Morocco 77-59 and Italy edged Puerto Rico 68-65.

Mexico levelled Czechoslovakia 8-3 in women's basketball and Japan blanked Peru 3-0.

Japan leads the standings with Russia second and Czechoslovakia third.

Besides the U.S.-Russian engagement in men's volleyball, Belgium defeated Brazil 3-1, Japan blanked Poland 3-0, Bulgaria blanked Mexico 3-0 and Czechoslovakia edged West Germany 3-2.

In field hockey, India trounced Mexico 8-0.

India bounced back from an opening defeat by New Zealand Sunday to post a win 2-1 Monday over West Germany and Tuesday showed the style which won Olympic championships in the five previous times since 1928.

Spain defeated Belgium 2-0, West Germany won 2-0 over Japan and East Germany and New Zealand fought to a 1-1 tie.

Cuba won 9-3 over Brazil in Group A water polo and West Germany got the nod over Spain 5-3.

Japan edged Greece 8-7 in Group B. East Germany trounced Mexico 12-4 and Italy won 10-1 over Egypt.

Canadian Oarsmen Are Dunked

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Three of Canada's four boats were knocked out of Olympic rowing competition Tuesday, leaving sculler Roger Jackson of Toronto as the only medal contender.

Jackson finished a strong second in his preliminary heat of the single sculls Sunday to move directly into the semi-finals, scheduled for Thursday.

British Columbia crews in the coxless pairs and double sculls and the eight from the St. Catharines Rowing Club all bowed out in Tuesday's repechages, or last-chance heats.

Canada has won at least one rowing medal in each of the last three Olympic Games.

Rowing under a blazing sun in the rarefied air of the Mexican capital, Jack Ulinder of Ladysmith, B.C., and Lyle Gatley of Vancouver missed qualifying for the semi-final by seven-tenths of a second. They were fourth in their six-boat heat.

In the double sculls, Daryl Sturdy and Bob Stubbs, both of Vancouver, broke fourth and last and stayed there, to finish more than 15 seconds behind the heat-winning Swiss boat.

The eight, although eliminated from the medal hunt, will row again in the petit final Friday, which decides seventh through 12th places. Coach Gerry Liesert of St. Catharines said at least one substitution will probably be necessary in his crew.

He was bitter about their performance Tuesday. "That's the second heat we've rowed with seven men," he said.

The Canadian eight came fourth in a six-boat heat won by Czechoslovakia.

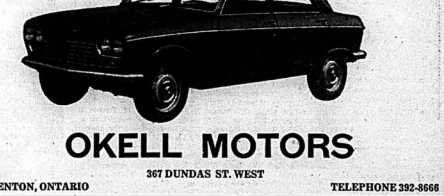
At the end of the race, John Richardson, a six-foot-four former Vancouver oarsman, was taken from the boat on a stretcher. Like half a dozen others, he suffered from exhaustion.

"I would have substituted for him before the race if all my substitutes hadn't been racing," Liesert said. "He isn't in shape. He's sick.

"We were going great in third up to the last 750 metres, then we started rowing with seven men. Richardson should have jumped overboard."

Richardson, like several oarsmen from other countries, had to be given oxygen in the boathouse area after his race.

The husky native of Leeds, England, is a powerful 2-00-pounder who was a member of the British Columbia eight that won the Royal Canadian Henley regatta this year and took a silver medal at the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg last year.



He did not make the west coast crew this year and moved to St. Catharines, where he caught a spot on the crew there.

Craig Swayze, rowing official from St. Catharines, said some oarsmen found their noses dried up, then swelled shut in the 80-degree heat, "forcing them to breathe through their mouths."

There is a car dealer in your neighborhood who is offering the toughest bargain you can drive... it's called a PEUGEOT

Recently, when considering a new franchise, Okell Motors selected Peugeot, Because a car dealer sells many automobiles to his friends and old customers, he must be especially selective when deciding on a franchise. He must choose with your interest in mind. Here is why Okell Motors selected Peugeot for you.
SAFETY
Peugeot is unquestionably one of the safest cars on the road today. Its safety brakes; rack and pinion steering for precise control; safety unit body construction; all doors have child proof locks, are just some of the more obvious safety features found in this fine automobile. There are more. Many more.
COMFORT
Reclining sofa comfort seats; noise eliminating thermostatically controlled radiator fan and Africa developed suspension, all assure the maximum in driving comfort. Some models come with sliding roof; others with positive control front wheel drive, and almost all with front and back armrests, factors which reduce driving fatigue and add to the pleasures of driving. Safety Michelin X radial ply tires, a type found elsewhere on high-priced luxury cars, completes the comfort package.
ECONOMY
Recently a Peugeot 204 won the BP gasoline economy run, registering 59.06 miles per gallon. Low gas consumption is just one measure of economy, but there are others which come with the purchase of a Peugeot. For example: Almost 250 worth of "extras" come as standard equipment with a Peugeot, one item is a unique anti-smog system called Copolair, it is found on some models. Because of its unique design, it does not rob your car of horsepower while reducing carbon monoxide fumes.
PERFORMANCE
The Peugeot people are extremely safety conscious and as a matter of policy do not enter autosport competitions. But, when individual Peugeot owners decide to enter their car in competition, they usually win. Recently, a Peugeot 404 took its third consecutive victory in the world's toughest car rally, the East African Safari. Last year, the winning 404 was backed by private entries of six 204 sedans which went on to win the first six places in class. Three dealer entries won the Manufacturer's Team Award in Canada's recent International Winter Rally. And a 204 sedan came in first over-all in Quebec's Rallye Des Neiges. It should be remembered that in all cases these were cars taken right of the showroom floor. The same as your car.
STYLING
While Peugeot concentrates its development dollars on "guts" rather than "show", they still believe that a car doesn't have to look like a tank to be tough. Peugeot's beautiful pininfarina design has won a number of styling awards over the years, the most recent of which was the Gold Medal for Design Excellence at the Grand Prix des Arts et de l'Industrie, Europe's largest show.
These are just some of the reasons why Okell Motors selected Peugeot for you. Do drop in and personally inspect these and many more features which have won Peugeot the title "Toughest Car in the World". Sedans, Convertibles, Coupes, Station-wagons, in a variety of models and colors, can be made available for your inspection.

NHL's Rookie Coaching Quartet Still Waiting for Maiden Bench Wins

By SCOTT BUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Coaching in the National Hockey League is a frustrating business, especially when you have never won a game. Just ask this season's four rookie coaches.

Still waiting for their first big-league victories and probably becoming impatient are Bill Gadsby of Detroit Red Wings, Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion of New York Rangers, Claude Ruel of Montreal Canadiens and Fred Glover of Oakland Seals.

Fortunately for this group of nail-biters, the season is less than a week old and their employers will not start to scowl for a few days yet.

Three of the anxious four get a chance tonight to record that first victory. The fourth, Gadsby, has to sweat it out until Thursday.

Tonight's schedule has Montreal meeting the Blues at St. Louis, Philadelphia Flyers visiting New York, Boston Bruins playing at Oakland, Pittsburgh Penguins facing the Maple Leafs at Toronto and Minnesota North Stars colliding with the fast-moving Black Hawks at Chicago.

Thursday, Montreal is at Minnesota, New York visits Detroit, Pittsburgh plays at Philadelphia and Boston meets the Kings at Los Angeles.

Of the four rookie coaches, Ruel may be the one with the most pressure on him. He is expected to finish first in the Eastern Division and then win the Stanley Cup.

Ruel, who succeeded Toe Blake, watched his champions struggle to a 1-1 tie Saturday at Pittsburgh in the season opener for both teams. The Penguins generally are picked to finish in the Western Division basement.

Geoffrion, who relieved former manager-coach Emile Francis of the coaching duties, lost his opener 5-2 to Chicago Sunday. But the Black Hawks, with Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita signed, are undefeated in two games this season.

Replacing Bert Olmstead at Oakland, Glover has nowhere to go but up. The Seals finished a distant last in the Western Division last season.

In two starts this year, Oakland lost 5-1 to Minnesota and tied Los Angeles 4-4. Tonight's game will be their third start at home.

Looking ahead to Thursday, Gadsby's Red Wings will be trying to break a two-game losing streak. They lost 4-2 to Boston and 2-1 to Toronto.

Harry Sinden, the youthful Boston coach, is relatively free from worry. His Bruins are undefeated in two starts and defencemen Bobby Orr and Ted Green are ready to help.

Orr, rounding into shape slowly after off-season knee surgery, has looked better than the Bruins ever dreamed he would. Green, who threatened to quit if the Bruins did not renegotiate the second year of his two-year contract, rejoined the team last week and may make his season debut tonight.

The Maple Leafs are expected to open their home season tonight with 21-year-old Al Smith, a Toronto native, in goal. Smith won the job, at least temporarily, during training camp when 44-year-old Johnny Bower was injured.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Prince Philip, dapper in a grey suit and green shirt and tie, bantered with 338 Commonwealth athletes at Olympic Village Tuesday. A special dining area was set aside for the occasion. Philip strode through the village, accompanied by officials of the various Commonwealth delegations, and then went to dining room 5-B where he was greeted by the athletes. The area was roped off and guarded by soldiers.

Marlies Shade Generals

By THE CANADIAN PRES

Frank Hamill's niche with Toronto Marlboros for the last three seasons has been primarily as a checking forward. Few would deny him this mark around the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series circuit.

But Tuesday night Hamill showed coach Gus Bodnar he also knows what the game's about—score, score, score. And score he did—six times—as Marlboros edged Oshawa Generals 9-8 before 1,225 Oshawa fans.

In the only other series game, Dennis Giannini and Bob Sheehan scored two goals each as St. Catharines Black Hawks registered their first win of the season, 5-4 over London Knights at London.

Toronto also got goals from Fred Barrett, Tom Davidson and Dave Roy. Dave Pulkkinen, Bob Kelly and Al Quintilliani notched two goals apiece for the Generals with the others going to Tom Foxcroft and Rick Kessell.

Foxcroft and Toronto's Tom Johnson engaged in a first-period brawl that brought each double fighting majors and 10-minute misconduct penalties.

At London, before 1,823 fans, Brian Chinnick got two goals for the Knights with the others going to Brian McBratney and Clyde Simon. Al McDonough also scored for St. Catharines.

League play resumes Thursday night when Peterborough Petes visit Hamilton Red Wings.

Flyers High

Jr. "A" Scoring Derby Features Falls' Fellows

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Don Tannahill, Niagara Falls captain, is finding his Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series linemates in familiar positions—atop the league scoring race.

In 1967, Tannahill was on a line with scoring champion Tom Webster and runner-up Gary Swain. Tannahill wound up 16th but the line was instrumental in helping the Flyers to the Memorial Cup as Canadian junior champions.

This year Tannahill's partners, Ross Webley and Bob Walton, are setting the early season scoring pace with 12 points each. Webley's total includes eight goals while Walton has six goals and six assists.

Tannahill is in a three-way tie for third with team-mate Phil Roberto and Rick Kessell of Oshawa Generals, each with 10 points. His seven goals gives the Webley, Walton-Tannahill unit 21 in the teams four games.

Another Flyer, Doug Brindle, is another point back along with Oshawa's Tom Foxcroft and Darryl Sittler of London Knights.

Hamilton goalie Jim Rutherford is the league leader in that department, allowing a 1.84 goals against average. Cam Newton of Toronto Marlboros and Pete Kostek of Peterborough Petes share the runner-up honors with a .300 average.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Webley, NF	8	4	12
Walton, NF	6	6	12
Tannahill, NF	7	3	10
Roberto, NF	3	7	10
Kessell, Osh	3	7	10

Paces Scorers

Coffey's Performance Is Restic's Cup of Tea

TORONTO (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-Cats are having their problems in the Eastern Football Conference, but end Tommy-Joe Coffey is rolling along atop the EFC scoring race.

Coffey has 89 points on three touchdowns, 18 converts, 15 field goals and eight singles, but the Ticats are third in the EFC, three points back of Ottawa Rough Riders.

Don Sutherin, Ottawa's kicking specialist, is second in the scoring with 77 points while his team-mate Whit Tucker had 72.

Tucker leads the East in touchdowns with 12 and Coffey's 15 field goals are tops in that department.

In rushing and pass receiving, two Toronto Argonauts hold down first place. Bill Symons has rolled up 717 yards on 110 carries for a 6.5-yard average while Bo Scott of Ottawa has 503 yards in 93 carries for the same average.

Flanker Bobby Taylor of Toronto leads in pass receiving with 44 catches for 769 yards. Coffey is second with 39 catches and 653 yards.

Ottawa's Russ Jackson is the top passer in the East with 140 completions in 246 attempts for a total gain of 2,084 yards and a .569 average.

Wally Gabler of Toronto is second with 107 completions in 285 tries, followed by Carroll Williams of Montreal Alouettes (137 for 275) and Joe Zuger of Hamilton (130 for 248).

Zuger leads the conference in punting with a 49-yard average, followed by Dave Mann of Toronto with 47 and Dave Lewis of Montreal 43.

Since 1922 Canadian Tire has, time and time again, been the first to bring to Canadian motorists,at realistically low price, the very newest in material and tire design.

Even now we introduce glass-belted,2D Polyester Cord Tires. The most revolutionary ever conceived by automobile and tire . . . manufacturers. So good a tire, it will eventually replace all others.

Hence, looking into the future, we're concerned about a rather large tire inventory and manufacturer commitment of all Nylon and Polyester (non-glass belted) tires. So here they are offered at low, low prices for quick disposal . . . first come, first served.

Humphrey Talks Bombing Halt

Nixon Says He's Driving to 'Fastest Finish in Campaign History'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Republican Richard M. Nixon claims he's leading the three-way presidential race in every major state and says he is driving for "the fastest finish in campaign history" for the Nov. 5 presidential election.

Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey elaborated on his North Vietnam bombing halt stand meanwhile Tuesday, and said he will not compromise his civil rights position regardless of the effect on his election chances.

And a Supreme Court decision putting George C. Wallace on Ohio's ballot has made him the first third-party candidate in modern U.S. political history to go on the ballot in every state.

Nixon expressed high confidence over his chances at a Miami news conference Tuesday but said he is taking steps to ward off over-confidence. He dubbed his drive between now and election day Operation Extra Effort.

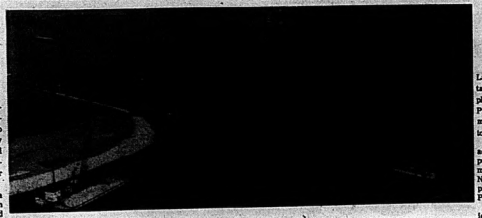
"We are going to play it safe," he said. "We are going all out on the issues, on the appearances, on the activity, between now and election."

Nixon claimed Wallace "has topped out" at about 15 per cent of the popular vote and accused Humphrey of panicking into using "tactics of fear and smear."

Humphrey told cheering students in St. Louis, meanwhile, that polls show him losing votes when he makes civil rights statements—but he'll not change his stand.

He said that a century of deprivation requires not only equal opportunity for the underprivileged but even "a little extra help."

Earlier Humphrey appeared to add emphasis to his statement he would halt the bombing of North Vietnam as president, while repeating he would "look to" any evidence Hanoi was willing to neutralize the demilitarized zone.



"I said I would stop the bombing as an acceptable risk for peace-period," he said. " . . . But I said period, not comma or semicolon.

Sniffing Major Problem

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro told the Commons Tuesday it is difficult to control juvenile glue-sniffing by law, but Solicitor-General George McIlraith said a Criminal Code amendment is under consideration.

Lloyd Francis (L—Ottawa West) referred to the death in Ottawa last week of Raymond Champagne, 10. An autopsy found he died of sniffing the kind of glue used in model airplane building.

Mr. Munro said legislation will be introduced in the broad field, but it is questionable whether it is possible to control all substances juveniles might use, including cleaning fluids and gasoline.

Port Takes Shape

The National Harbors Board $3,800,000 Robert Bank Development project located 20 miles south of Vancouver takes shape. Dredges working since July are creating a shipping basin 2,500 feet long, 1,000 feet wide and 65 feet deep. They are pumping 6,000,000 cubic yards of sand, gravel and rock to be used as construction material for a 50-acre island and three-mile causeway linking the development to the shore. (CP Photo)

Book Publishing

Judy Complaining--Again

HAMILTON (CP) — Judy LaMarsh, former state secretary, says booksellers are complaining because the Queen's Printer has refused to print more copies of a top-selling photographic book on Canada.

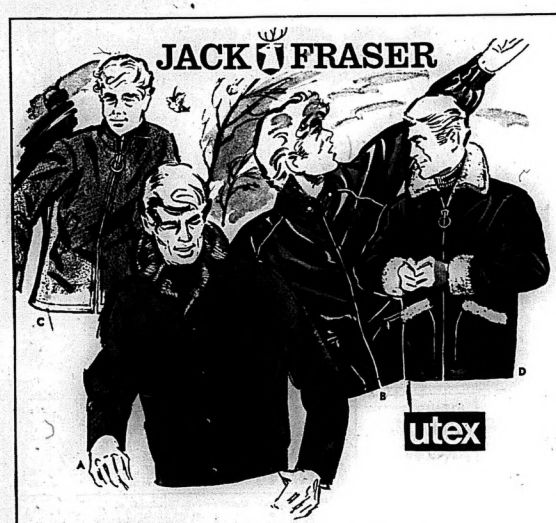
The deluxe picture book, Canada: The Year of the Land, was published a year ago with tax money. It was produced by the National Film Board and published by the Queen's Printer as a Centennial project.

All but a few of the 25,000 copies were sold by late spring this year.

A survey of booksellers by The Spectator showed determined buyers in Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and Vancouver are paying from $40 to $150 a copy. The book cost $18 to print, was sold to bookstores at $15 a copy and originally cost the customer $25.

Five thousand of the books were printed with French captions.

A spokesman for the Queen's Printer in Ottawa said a planned reprint of the book was ruled out by the treasury board's austerity program.



"When you've got something that good you don't drop it," said Miss LaMarsh in a telephone interview from Niagara Falls, Ont. She said she tried to have the book reprinted during her last months in office before the June 25 federal election but met resistance from Roger Duhamel, Queen's Printer.

"He just wouldn't print any more. He said it wasn't in his estimates."

Miss LaMarsh said the book should have been advertised in the United States, England and Japan—"the really good markets for books of this type."

STUDIES STORMS

RIDGETOWN, Ont., (CP) — The Ridgetown College of Agriculture is studying severe hailstorms which trouble western Ontario. A team of scientists is looking into the possible recovery rate and possible yield of crops damaged by ice pellets. Special plots of corn and soybeans are being cut back and severely damaged to simulate the effects of hailstorms.

QUESTION: My son is 16 years of age and has just obtained his driver's licence. We do not own a car because I don't drive. He wants to rent a car to drive in New York City. Can you supply us with information regarding the best place in Belleville for him to rent a car for this purpose?

ANSWER: We are afraid that your son's plans cannot be carried out. In the first place, although there are a number of reputable car rental agencies in Belleville, none of them, because of insurance regulations, will rent a car to any person under the age of 25. Besides this, under the laws of New York State the minimum driving age is 18, and it is illegal for anyone under that age to drive in the State regardless of the fact that he holds a valid Ontario Driving Licence.

QUESTION: We want to take a trip this winter either to San Francisco or Mexico City. Which of these is the farthest by road from Belleville?

ANSWER: Going by the best, most direct way in each case, San Francisco is 2,828 miles from Belleville; Mexico City is 2,962 miles.

QUESTION: Can you tell us the best way to drive to the city of York, Pa., and possible things of interest to see there?

ANSWER: Your best route from Belleville is by hwy. 401 to the Thousand Islands Bridge; U.S. Route 81 to Scranton, the Pa. Turnpike to Allentown: Route 22 to Harrisburg and 83 to York.

The city of York, Pa., is an important industrial centre, with large factories for the manufacture of refrigeration and air conditioning equipment, bakers' machinery; wall-paper and other paper products, and chemicals. Many visitors are intrigued by the unusual farmers' markets tended largely by Dunkards or Mennonites, who prepare and sell Pennsylvania German delicacies.

York served as the national capital from Sept., 1777, to June, 1778, while Philadelphia, the former capital, was occupied by the British forces under Gen. Howe. Here Congress received the news that France was to send aid to the colonies, issued the first National Thanksgiving Proclamation and adopted the Articles of Confederation.

Open to the public are the recently restored Golden Plough Tavern, a half-timbered brick tavern built in the 1740's, and the General Gates House at 157 W. Market St. This stone house was the scene of the meeting at which Lafayette prevented the overthrow of General Washington as head of the army.

One of the largest collections of Currier and Ives prints and lithographs may be seen daily except Sundays at the Currier and Ives and Antiques Gallery at 49 W. King St. More than 305 prints are displayed with antiques of the period.

The Weightlifters Hall of Fame at 26-52 N. Ridge Ave. displays weight-lifting awards and trophies. Open Monday through Saturday, 10-5, free. Visitors may see weightlifters in training, Mon., Wed., and Fri., at 4; Sat. at 1.

Located about 12 miles south of York, at Menges Mills, is Colonial Valley with its unusual display of the living, working and trading conditions of the 18th century. Featured are a 225-year-old sawmill, a fully equipped blacksmith shop and a general store. The Laucks Museum, containing over 4,000 items of crafts and tools used by the early settlers, also includes a country store and vehicles. A grist mill, in continuous operation since 1740, works as it did over 200 years ago. Crops of the past are raised in the surrounding fields. Open April through November, Monday through Saturday, 10-5; Sunday 11:30-5; admission $1.50; children 6-12, 75 cents; under 6, free.

Queen To Visit Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) — The Queen and Prince Philip will see six Brazilian cities, watch a Sunday football match and attend the laying of the foundation stone of a giant new bridge during their visit to Brazil next month.

The Brazilian foreign ministry said Tuesday the Queen will fly from London to Recife, Nov. 1.

Demerits Replace Dollars

Victoria's No Fine System 'Encouraging'

VICTORIA (CP) — An experimental "no fine" traffic violation system has worked well in its first two weeks, Leslie Peterson, attorney-general of British Columbia said Tuesday.

Mr. Peterson said the system, in effect in greater Victoria area since Oct. 1, has had encouraging results in the initial stages.

He said it is too early to say when the system will be expanded to cover other areas of the province.

Under the new system fines for petty traffic offences are replaced with a no-fine, demerit mark system. At six demerit points, erring motorists are sent a warning letter. A driving licence can be suspended by the superintendent of motor vehicles after nine points.

The motorists can also be instructed to take a driving course.

Point values range from two points for such offences as driving through a red light to 10 points for impaired driving.

A motorist given a violation notice by a traffic policeman may dispute the report by notifying a court clerk within seven days. The motorist can then take the dispute before a police court magistrate in the normal open court system.

HILDA'S COLUMN

I never realized before just how important meat really is. When your kids yell, "What's for dinner, Mom?" do they want to hear about the pennies and broccoli? Not in your life! It's the meat that interests them—chops, steaks, hamburgers or hot dogs.

When you stop to think of it, all good meals are built around the meat, and the best meals start with choosing the right meat.

I guess it's no wonder that when your husbands asks what's cooking at mealtime he (like the children) means what kind of meat.

No I asked Alec Agnew, the head meat man to give me a meat lesson. And this is what I learned:

Inspected meat and meat products are stamped or labeled by government inspectors with an official stamp—a crown in the centre and the words "Canada Approved" or "Canada".

There are several grades for beef. The main grades are:

	Colour of Meat Stamp
Canada Choice	Red
Canada Good	Blue
Canada Standard	Brown
Canada Commercial	Black
Canada Utility	Black

Meat is graded on:
- Conformation or proportion of meat to bone.
- Amount, quality and colour of fat covering.
- Amount and distribution of fat in the meat.
- Firmness, texture and colour of meat.
- Condition and maturity of bone.

Alec and his men spend most of their days at meat packers selecting the best for Loblaws. It takes years of experience and knowledge to match them highly skilled men.

They are also pretty good at keeping a practiced eye out for special buys in Red and Blue Brand meat so they can pass the savings along to you at your local Loblaw store. I'm glad they work for Loblaws.

Hilda Wilson

P.S. Be sure to read the October 19th issue of "The Canadian"—it contains an article about you, the Loblaw customer who is also the boss at Loblaws.

Nixon Called Agent By Ontario PCs

TORONTO (CP) —An official publication of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association has called provincial Liberal Leader Robert Nixon "an agent" for the federal government at Queen's Park.

Consensus, the association's quarterly newspaper, said in an unsigned article in an edition published Tuesday:

"The record shows that all too often he is a captive of Ottawa Liberalism and as such, appears to be a puppet in the strictest sense of the world."

The newspaper has about 80,000 subscribers.

TO DOUBLE AID

Foreign Minister Paul Hasluck announced Australia will double its aid to Indonesia in 1968-69 to a total $14,010,000.

Sweepstake Taxed $11,000 Winner Used Joint Account

OTTAWA (CP) — In a case that took four years to advance to an Exchequer Court decision, a sweepstake winner recently was ordered to pay $11,000 gift tax on his $150,000 windfall.

It was a rare instance of effectiveness for the gift tax, which the Carter royal commission on taxation has described as "almost useless."

Even in this case, as the tax-reporting authority CCH Canadian Ltd. advised this month, the individual could have beaten the tax by drafting a simple document when he put the $150,000 in the bank.

His mistake was to deposit the money in a joint account, without proving that half of it was not intended for his wife.

Lacking evidence to the contrary, the Exchequer Court deemed half the deposit to be a gift and assessed the $11,000 tax against the husband as donor.

Toronto Budgets For UK Teachers

TORONTO (CP) — A sum of $54,000 was earmarked Tuesday for a campaign to recruit British teachers for Toronto schools.

The Toronto board of education's management committee approved the expense which includes $50,000 to help cover moving costs for teachers to Canada. The remaining $4,000 will handle recruiting expenses and advertising.

Last year, the Toronto board hired 82 public and 19 secondary school teachers overseas, mostly in Australia.

"Thank You"

Four months ago I made the promise to food shoppers in general, and Loblaw customers in particular that Loblaws would give the customer what she wants. During these four months we've tried to do our homework. We've heard from over 65,000 food shoppers who told us what they want . . . "no stamps" . . . "lower food prices" . . . "more variety in the meat department" . . . These are just a few of the major things you requested. We've been busy putting in to work many of your suggestions. And there are plenty of changes to come. Your response to our "new look" program has been tremendously gratifying.

On behalf of everyone here at Loblaws I would like to say "thank you" for endorsing our efforts with your loyalty and patronage. We will do everything we can to continue to earn it.

Drama Examines Turned-on Youth

NEW YORK (AP) — Playwright J. P. Miller's message to worried and nonplussed parents of rebellious and alienated children is curt and clear: They have only themselves to blame.

Miller's message was delivered in his original drama-melodrama, called The People Next Door—in the first production of this season's CBS Playhouse on Tuesday night.

The story opened with a hectic pre-dinner martini gathering in the upper middle-class, upper middle-income home of one couple with a 16-year-old daughter and a boy a few years older.

The shabby behavior and easy morality of the elders was revealed quickly. The wife of a teacher who lives next door has had a couple of drinks too many. The husband of the house storms in from duck hunting and admits that, although the limit was three ducks, he shot a dozen.

There followed an angry scene with the son, a long-haired, guitar-playing fellow with a slightly condescending attitude. The distraught daughter rushed to her room and took off on a bad LSD trip.

Thereupon we learn that the young girl has been experimenting not only with drugs but with sex. When confronted by her frantic, handwringing mother and aggressive father, we learn the girl has seen her father with other women and is aware that her parents were intimate before their own marriage.

Both children, as the son explained, have lost respect for their parents and have left them in different ways. The boy has moved on from marijuana to be a turned-on philosophical dropout. The daughter moves on to strong drugs. East Village excesses, and winds up a patient with a bad prognosis in a mental institution.

Meanwhile, the "good boy" next door—the one with the short hair cut and the good school marks has been pushed beyond endurance by his parents. He winds up revealed as the neighborhood drug pusher.

It is interesting that the hippie son in the Miller drama is the closest there is to a hero. The parents, all four, are the inadvertent villains.

The 90-minute program lacked any kind of a resolution. Neither set of parents seemed to be any more enlightened at the end and the play closed in tragedy and without much hope.

The acting throughout was excellent. Lloyd Bridges was convincing as the tough, intransigent father. Kim Hunter fluttered pitifully as the shocked mother. The most brilliant performance was turned in by a 14-year-old, Deborah Winters, who made a drug-induced descent into a permanent hell seem real and terrible.

It is a show that will no doubt be the subject of some heated debate for some time to come.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"It can be a bit trying, being married to a former juvenile delinquent trying to relive his childhood."

Satellite Towns Said Not Housing Answer

TORONTO (CP) — A Greek urban planner Tuesday condemned the establishment of satellite towns and high rise apartments.

Constantynos Doxiadis met with Transport Minister Paul Hellyer and at a news conference later said there was no reason to believe that multi-family dwellings had contributed to solving problems around the world.

"In fact there have been only reasons to believe that they have been disastrous for children and human development," he said.

He said only the single-family house allows human values to develop and added that residents need privacy "so they can save some of their human values."

Mr. Doxiadis dismissed proposals to build satellite cities, a program advocated by Mr. Hellyer and Stanley Randall, Ontario minister of trade and development.

Mr. Randall announced last May a new program to build self-sufficient communities outside existing urban centres.

In August, the trade minister said land had been bought for the first new towns, 3,000 acres near Kitchener and Waterloo.

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE — Mr' Jack Cole is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital where he underwent surgery on Thursday.

Rev. and Mrs. W. E. G. Dovey of Montreal spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hayris before leaving to spend the winter months with their relatives in Vancouver, B.C. After 41 years in the ministry Rev. Dovey was superannuated the last of June. He was a former minister of Sidney charge and other local charges and spent the past eight years in Montreal.

Stanley Kramer Completes 'Most Difficult Picture of Career'

TIVOLI, Italy (AP) — Stanley Kramer was celebrating his 58th birthday and his 35th year in the movie business by completing "the most difficult picture of my career."

On a hillside in this ancient town outside Rome, the film-maker was finishing a sequence in a cave that dates to Roman times. Anthony Quinn, as the war-time mayor of a small Italian village, was exulting over discovery of the caves as a place to hide 1,000,000 bottles of wine from the Germans.

Kramer still has the smooth face and youthful zest that made him a boy wonder with such early productions as Champion, Home of the Brave and High Noon. He admitted he was tired after 3½ months of filming, almost entirely on locations.

"There are several reasons why this has been the toughest picture I have ever made," he remarked.

"Nearly everything has been shot outside, and we ran into some miserable weather. The life at the village we selected, Anticoli Corrado, was unbelievably primitive.

"We had a big problem because we were recording live sound. . . . It was extremely difficult to get enough quiet to record; the Italians are a very noisy people.

"But the biggest problem was the language barrier. I brought only 10 people from Hollywood; the rest of the crew is Italian."

Kramer seemed pleased with the results he has achieved with The Secret of Santa Vittoria, but he has been in the movie business too long to make any predictions. He started as a backlot worker at MGM in 1933, became a cutter and writer before turning producer in 1947. He became a director with Not as a Stranger.

"I think Santa Vittoria has some fantastic scenes," the director observed.

"The actors have been remarkable. I've worked with some great performers -- Spencer Tracy, the early Brando, Sidney Poitier, I haven't found a better actor than Tony Quinn. What a worker he is!"

"Anna Magnani is a rare personality. There is no actor or actress who can take an epithet and hurl it like a missile, the way she does.

"Their scenes have been great, but I can't really tell whether the picture will come off or not. You never can."

Prynce the Artist

Prynce Nesbitt of St. Catharines is many things to many people, depending to some extent on where you live. In Buffalo, he's a pianist. Or he's the Hamilton painter. Or the Toronto astrologer. He is also provocative, unconventional, audacious and irreverent. As the artist he is known as a portrait painter, working in charcoal and oils. His work has been labeled slick and formula, which he regards as a compliment because he says he had to work hard in the beginning so he now can work without struggle.

Manhatten Pops Group

Orchestra to Appear in City

Richard Hayman and the Manhattan Pops Orchestra will appear on Thursday, October 17 in Belleville at the Belleville Collegiate Auditorium. This occasion promises to be one of the happiest musical events in recent months. Richard Hayman is a young man with a sound of his own and definite musical tastes.

His sold - out six - weeks long tour for 1968-69 offers a program filled with music that evokes the gaiety and charm of Vienna, "The City of Dreams". The waltzes and sparkling music of the most popular operettas will set feet tapping and transform the auditorium into a Viennese music theatre.

As a pops orchestral arranger, Richard Hayman has few peers, if any. Since 1954 he has been a guest conductor and arranger for a number of orchestras, among them the famous Boston Pops. His original compositions are standards in the repertoire of that concert orchestra, as well as often - played selections of many orchestras and bands throughout the world.

His appearance here should prove an auspicious beginning to the current Belleville Community Concert Series.

Stirling

STIRLING — The Hon. J. R. Cooke, Chapter I.O.D.E., held a very successful art show and bazaar in St. John's Parish Hall. Mrs. Don McIntosh displayed over 30 of her paintings and artistic creations. During the evening, the Regent, Mrs. Art Sine and Miss Rosa Spry, welcomed the guests, and in the afternoon the receptionists were Miss Gena Spry and Mrs. Tom Prest. A dessert tea was served to all the guests.

Mr. Kenneth Ray received a special plaque at a dealers' meeting held at the Skyline Hotel in Ottawa, which was a special award for the largest volume of sales by the proprietors of Stirling, Mackie Shop. Mrs. Ray also attended the banquet.

Mrs. Joe Irish was appointed secretary of the Moira Valley District Boy Scouts of Canada. The meeting was held in Marmora.

A Tweedsmuir History Workshop is scheduled for Thursday, October 24, from 10 to 4 p.m. at the Sidney Municipal Hall. Mrs. Roy Bush, Curator of Hastings West District, will be in charge, with Mrs. R. C. Walker, provincial curator as her assistant. Anyone interested in this area are very welcome to attend and learn more of this department of work. The ladies will provide their own box lunch.

Laurel Rebekah Lodge, No. 211, held an initiation for one candidate at the I.O.O.F. lodge hall Tuesday evening. The degree team, under the direction of Sister Vera Vandervoort exemplified the work; at the close a salad plate lunch con was served by the committee in charge.

On Thursday the ladies of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, West Huntingdon served a lunch to those in attendance at the Senior Citizens' Club They also provided a wedding anniversary cake in honor of the president and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. George Heasman.

'DEFAMES BIBLE'

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (AP) — Copies of Mao Tse-tung's Thoughts bought in New Zealand have been found to have pieces of Bible covers as stiffeners in their covers, says the inter-denominational Christian weekly, Challenge. It said this could be termed the ultimate in blasphemy.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices slipped in most sections in active mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Real estate stocks were strong.

In industrials, Bow Valley fell ⅛ to 27¼, Electrohome ¼ to 15¾, Harvey's Foods ⅛ to 10½, Industrial Minerals ½ to 17½ and Federal Grain ¾ to 9½.

Leigh Instruments was up 1¼ to 42¾, Markborough Properties ⅛ to 10¾, Auto Electric ⅜ to 10¾ and Computing Devices ⅝ to 19¼.

Among the heaviest traders, Revenue Properties rose ¼ to 15½ and Consolidated Building 10 cents to $2.00. St. Maurice Gas dropped 40 cents to $2.40.

Bramalea picked up ¼ to 12¾. The company plans to build three shopping centres in the Niagara Peninsula in a joint venture with Steinberg's.

Among western oils and mines, Canadian Superior fell 1¼ to 60¼, Charter Oil ⅛ to 15 and Bankeno 40 cents to $3.40. Pine Point gained to 45 and Can-Fer 12 cents to $2.30.

Brabanam was steady at $2.85. The company said that a 51 per cent interest in Brabaman has been sold to Resources Ventures Inc. of Cheyanne, Wyoming, at $2.00 a share by Transcontinental Resources Ltd.

On index, industrials fell .24 to 177.77, golds 3.50 to 206.13 and western oils .69 to 230.48. Base metals were unchanged at 113.80. Volume by 11 a.m. was 926,000, shares compared with 1,002,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Industrials closed with little change on the Toronto exchange Tuesday after posting moderate losses earlier in the day. The industrial index slipped .02 to 178.01.

Western oils and base metals were firm, and total gains outnumbered declines 273 to 264. Trading was active.

Shell Canada fell 1 to 32¾, Clairtone 1¾ to 6¼, Robtmans 1¼ to 25, Canadian Hydrocarbons 1¼ to 35 and Bell ½ to 45.

White Pass and Yukon rose to 10¾, Cygnus B 1¼ to 9 and National Drug 1¼ to 12¼.

Real estate issues continued to surge and the new real estate sub-index closed at a record 349.67. This represents a 249 per age gain of more than 249 per cent for each of the nine stocks in the index since the beginning of this year.

Peel-Elder gained 1 to 42. Markborough Properties 1 to 10¾, Bramalea ¼ to 12¾ and Revenue Properties ¼ to 15½.

St. Maurice Gas picked up 5 cents to $2.80 in heavy trading. The company is a shareholder in a new gas-fired merchant banking firm, International Capital Corp. Ltd., in which the Royal Bank and Imperial Oil Limited Ltd. hold the major interest.

Cali Malleable Iron rose ¼ to 14¾. The company plans to spend more than $2,000,000 to double the capacity at its Richmond plant.

Patino Mining advanced 1¼ to 38¼. An official said there were no new company developments to account for the rise.

United Asbestos gained $1.30 to $9.00 on news of uranium showings on its property at 3-Nine Mile Lake, 100 miles north of Montreal.

Worldwide Energy advanced 20 cents to $6.95 after announcing the purchase of Citrus County Land Bureau, an Inverness, Fla., property company.

On index, base metals rose .86 to 113.80 and western oils 2.21 to 231.17. Golds fell 2.86 to 209.63. Volume was 3,865,000 shares compared with 3,838,000 Friday.

Court Hearing Told:

Investment Firm Can't Deliver Shares

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto investment firm of Ord, Wallington and Co. Ltd. could not pay for several thousand Guardian Growth Mutual Fund shares ordered by its clients last spring because it had not been able to collect all the money owed, the magistrate's court was told Tuesday.

Because of this, the court was told, the firm could not deliver the shares paid for by its clients if asked to do so today.

George Stowe, trust officer for the Higgins Co. Ltd., interim receivers for Ord, Wallington, made the statements in answer to questions by Magistrate Charles Drukarsh at the preliminary hearing of 20 theft charges against the company and its officers.

Charged with the firm are John E. Wallington, president; Kenneth Ord, vice-president; Paul MacNamee, secretary; and Thomas G. Duggan, treasurer.

Ord, Wallington went into receivership in May, Clients — about half from the Hamilton area — are claiming about $170,000 in securities paid for but not delivered, mainly Guardian Growth shares.

Mr. Stowe said Ord, Wallington is not bankrupt since it made a proposal to creditors for distributing assets that has been accepted and approved by the bankruptcy court.

About 6,000 American Growth Fund shares held by Ord, Wallington when its operations were frozen by the Ontario Securities Commission last April have been delivered to the trustees, Mr. Stowe said.

All creditors claiming American Growth shares are expected to get them, he said.

"Is there any provision for delivery of Guardian Growth shares?" asked Magistrate Drukarsh.

"We couldn't make delivery at present," Mr. Stowe replied. Under questioning from defence counsel David Greenwood, Mr. Stowe said Ord, Wallington's day-to-day business methods, of the time of its financial difficulties, were the same as those of other brokers he had dealt with.

He told Magistrate Drukarsh brokers commonly owe clients' money to buy shares other than those ordered.

Earlier evidence showed Ord, Wallington officers said they operated like a bank, putting all money received into one pot and using it as needed.

Ord, Wallington's trader from 1961 until last spring, Jack Moss, said the firm had enough money to meet cash to cover all orders and was "long" 2,000 shares at the time of the OSC seizure.

"What happened to the 2,000 shares?" asked Magistrate Drukarsh.

"I have no idea," said Mr. Moss. "So far as I know they are still sitting in Guardian Growth."

The hearing is continuing.

Presentation Ceremonies End Quinte Golf Season

Although there are still a few hardy souls haunting the links at the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club, the season was officially closed Saturday night.

With the Indian Summer weather the Quinte area is enjoying, it seems certain that the club's 18-hole course will see plenty of use for the remainder of the month, but Saturday night's clubhouse dinner dance saw the awarding of the year's trophies to the top local golfers.

Betty Ingram, as expected scooped up the most wins in the women's competition with awards as Club Champion, winner of the Ladies' Tendoon Trophy, and gross ringer award Betty Gregory and Alice Stuart were only one away from the blond bomber with two awards each.

Mrs. Gregory took the Club Consolation runner-up award and the Business Girls' runner-up presentation. Mrs. Stuart won the Club Consolation Event award and shared the Two-Ball Runner-up presentation with Hettie Dyble.

Laura Tackaberry was the only other two-trophy winner with her Business Girls' Trophy award and the trophy for Most Improved Golfer.

Ann Acton won the runner-up title in the Club Championship and Fran Bannon took the number two spot in the Lazier Handicap competition.

First-year golfer Betty McKelvey won the Coates Tray for 36 handicappers and Doreen Moorman was second in that competition. Helen McCorquodale and Edna Henderson shared the Molson Trophy for the Women's Two-Ball event.

The Net Ringer award went to Barbara Gowkens and the junior club champion was Margaret O'Brien. Debbie Schrieder was the runner-up in the junior girls.

The only double winner in the Men's competition was Jack Ryan. He took the runner-up spot in the Graham Trophy tournament and was top net ringer for the season.

Dave Jones proved he's as dangerous as the links as on the ice by taking the Club Championship Faulkner Cup. Bill Philp was runner-up.

Max Haggarty won the Club Consolation Walker Cup while Dan Mahoney took the Graham Trophy.

The C B. Morgan Trophy went to Don Moore, and Fred Newman was runner-up. It was a joint effort in the competition for the Jewellers Trophy for mixed foursomes.

Mr. and Mrs. Doug Bannon joined their talents for the win. Bob Melbourne was announced the winner of the Men's Two-Ball and the runner-up in the event was Bill Morton.

Dave Henderson took the Carbin Trophy for the Club's Junior Championship with Bill Probert in the number two spot. Derek Smith won the George Balazs Handicap Trophy and Hank Fitzgerald Jr. won the gross ringer award.

Dr. Frank McCue was announced the winner of the TipTop event and Hettie Dyble and Bill Gregory combined to win the Betterson Cup. Dawson Boyd took the honors in the "Silver Top" category with his winning of the Tobe Cup.

Bad Breath Not Always from Mouth

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: To put it plainly, I have a problem of bad breath. This puts me in a shell. I've tried all kinds of mouthwashes but none seems to work. I don't smoke or drink, so that's not the cause. And I brush my teeth all the time. What could be the cause? Is there anything you know, please help. — T. Y.

The big misconception about bad breath is that people think it always originates in the mouth.

Sometimes, of course, it does — but sometimes it doesn't originate there but elsewhere. You can brush your teeth 60 times a day and it won't help if, for example, diseased tonsils and adenoids are responsible for the bad breath.

You can use mouthwash by the gallon, but if the unpleasant odor is coming from some disease condition in the nose or connected passages, the odor will remain.

Various conditions of the lungs and bronchial tubes cause very bad breath, indeed. (I am not suggesting that tuberculosis should be suspected because of bad breath. Rather I have in mind, for one thing, bronchiectasis, which involves small bulges or "pouches" in the bronchial tubes. These become infected and filled with pus and phlegm).

I don't mean to imply that the mouth is always blameless when bad breath exists, but even then there are conditions which toothbrush and mouthwash can't handle correct. Gum diseases can create a most unpleasant odor and there is nothing the patient can do by himself about it. He needs a dentist.

And that does not exhaust the list of possible cause of bad breath. I have just recently completed a new booklet dealing with that problem and how to solve it. I think anyone who is having trouble combatting bad breath will find it helpful in tracing the cause and then correcting it. If you'd like a copy, send 25 cents and a long, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner, care of Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 158 Dundee, Ill. Ask for the booklet "Bad Breath Can Be Corrected."

Dear Dr. Molner: We have a 20-month-old baby with a positive TB skin test. I had a positive test 10 years ago. The entire family has been X-rayed with no evidence of tuberculosis, but I am worried sick. Should I have another skin test to see if any activity is going on? — Mrs. L. D.

There is no reason for you to have another skin test. It won't show anything you don't already know.

Although no active TB is found in the family, the baby must have come in contact with the germ from someone. This should be traced if possible — some friend, relative, or neighbor may unknowingly be scattering the germs.

Since that source of TB is still unknown, in my opinion it would be safest for the baby to be treated with one of the isoniconic acid anti-tuberculosis drugs to prevent possible danger.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it possible that my mind is playing tricks on me? Can a person suffer premenstrual tension when their is no menstruation? I had a hysterectomy a year ago, yet once a month I still get pains in the lower back, there is breast tenderness, and I suffer from headaches and nervous irritability. I am 38. — M. S.

Yes, at your age and with the ovaries intact, it is possible to have these "premenstrual symptoms" even though, with the uterus removed, there no longer is actual menstruation. The hormonal activity of the body really is on, so don't think your mind is playing tricks on you.

Big Four Foreign Ministers Receptive to Summit Talks

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Sign. pointed today to Big Four acceptance of Secretary-General U Thant's proposal that their foreign ministers meet to discuss ways of bolstering the United Nations as a peace force.

However, UN delegates generally felt no date for a meeting could be set until after the Nov. 5 U.S. presidential election, noting that President Johnson could not commit the next administration to any such parley.

Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart of Britain told a news conference Monday he did not foresee a Big Four meeting before next year.

A spokesman for Thant said he had received unofficial reactions that were "not negative" from Stewart, French Foreign Minister Michel ;Dbre, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and U.S. chief delegate J. R. Wiggins.

Thant made public Tuesday letters he had sent more than a week ago to the four foreign ministers. He talked with all four during their visits to the General Assembly for the current policy debate.

Elsewhere in the United Nations:

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Gunnar Jarring, Thant's Middle East envoy, talked at length Tuesday on Israel's nine-point plan for a Middle East settlement.

An Israeli spokesman said Eban gave Jarring a comprehensive account of Israel's views on points outlined in the foreign minister's policy statement before the assembly last week.

The head of the UN refugee agency in the Middle East said in his annual report to the assembly Tuesday that efforts to establish peace in the area will be jeopardized unless prospective contributions for refugee aid are increased 10 per cent.

Laurence Michelmore, commissioner general of the UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees (UNRWA), said his agency's financial situation remains precarious and the outlook bleak.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For October 17

Your birthday today: Productivity is promised for the coming year. Already established friends become stronger. Prominence for its own sake should be avoided. Today's natives are wary, watchful people.

ARIES (Mar. 21 —Apr. 19): Your discretion is on trial today! Emotional expressions may be misinterpreted. Your enthusiasm attracts some plain and fancy schemers, which lack reality. Sleep on them; if they are real, they'll still be there tomorrow.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Pleasures provide an earnest attraction. The path which wanders but never exceeds reason proves fruitful. Romantic excitement later . . .

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): There is a great deal, good and bad, which does not meet the eye today. Select your associates carefully. Anything you do about romance is also bound to tomorrow's community news.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Everything lets recess slip today; nearly all of them are out of context, so you can't be sure of the full story. Keep your own counsel: you will understand more later.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You do not call someeen's bluff for fear of appearing ridiculous. Find some other way. Do something nice for your loved ones this evening. Put some time on creative ventures.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 —Sept. 22): Verify the serious matters with come in your attention. Further investigation is essential, before making a judgment. Friends may put together a pleasant joke; just don't get flustered and spoil it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your natural magnetism attracts a wide range of people and experiences. But . . . glamor can lead you into unwise spending. Prudence is in order now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Men have the advantage today; since women are susceptible to stronger emotional stirrings). Material affairs for both do not involve as well as aesthetic objectives.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. .22 — Dec. 21): Rumors are a dime a dozen today. It is not your nature to be interested in gossip, but you may now be the one who is discussed. Set a good example.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your friends may lead you astray. Discretion in your choice of people and activities becomes most important, day and night. Let your organizational skills be right schedule for protection.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 —Feb. 18): Your impatience triggers today's trend. Any plan should be carefully thought out before you make or accept a promise. In any case, the matter is apt to be short-term.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): People around you are absent-minded — to the point of distraction. Take advantage of the confusion only enough for your fair share. Overdoing anything exacts heavy consequences.

Outside Minorities Dead Ducks

OTTAWA (CP) — Rene Levesque Tuesday night wrote off French-language minorities outside Quebec and New Brunswick as cultural "dead ducks."

Mr. Levesque said the minorities had appeared in other provinces as "cheap labor" imported to places like Mallardville, B.C., by priests.

They had only survived through close-knit parish groups now dissolved as result of the mobility of the Canadian labor force.

Mr. Levesque, 46, president of the new Parti Quebecois, formed during the weekend in the fight against independent state, was being interviewed on the CBC television network program Twenty Million Questions.

He said "anyone who is educated" in the groups outside Quebec and New Brunswick had told him they couldn't be French-speaking and survive. They had asked for a Quebec "immigration policy" that would draw them to the province.

Air Canada First Plane 'Grounded'

OTTAWA (CP) — A host of government and Air Canada officials bid a fond farewell Tuesday to the airline's first plane, the 31-year-old CF-TCA.

The occasion was a ceremony at which airline officials turned over the two-engine Lockheed 10A to the Museum of Science and Technology.

State Secretary Gerard Pelletier accepted the aircraft on behalf of the museum and James Richardson, minister without portfolio who has responsibility for transport matters, joined in signing the aircraft's log book.

The aircraft was the first in which many of the then Trans-Canada Air Lines pilots took their training. It cost about $75,000 and was used on the airline's first trans-continental flight from Vancouver to Montreal in April, 1939.

The aircraft saw service with the RCAF and then was owned by several parties. It made an around-the-world flight last year to commemorate the trip of aviation pioneer Amelia Earhart in 1937 in a sister ship.

MPs Not Likely To Tour Biafra

OTTAWA (CP) — An attempt by a group of freshmen Liberal MPs to send a parliamentary group to Nigeria and Biafra on a fact-finding mission seems destined to fail.

Last spring, then external affairs minister Paul Martin shot down a similar proposal with the comment that such a visit would do no good and might do harm.

Canada gives diplomatic recognition to Nigeria but not Biafra, the secessionist territory which has been engaged in civil war with Nigeria for more than a year.

Liberal members of the Commons external affairs committee proposed Wednesday that an all-party group from the committee visit Nigeria, including Biafra.

Opposition MPs poured cold water on the suggestion.

A formal motion to send some committee members to Africa was advanced by Ralph Stewart (L—Cochrane) and seconded by Norman Cafik (L—Ontario).

After debate, the motion was referred to the committee's steering committee for discussion with officials of the external affairs department who, informants said, take a dim view of the proposal.

Harold Winch (NDP—Vancouver East) said such a visit would serve no useful purpose.

He noted that the government had recently cancelled a projected trip by an all-party group of MPs to Mexico City for the Olympic Games.

"Dammit, we'll be criticized," he said.

Mr. Stewart maintained that the government "eventually will have to agree" to a group of MPs visiting Nigeria and Biafra.

Paul Yewchuk (PC—Athabasca) said what worries him most is the safety of MPs "at the scene of action."

He would not like to see some MPs go and not come back, even Liberals, he said.

Minimum Wage Going To $1.30

TORONTO (CP) — Labor Minister Dalton Bales announced today that Ontario's minimum wage in general industry will be raised Jan. 1 to $1.30 an hour from $1.

Mr. Bales said the new minimum wage in the construction industry will be $1.35 an hour, up from the present $1.25.

He said the new rates will be the highest in Canada.

Ground Action In Lull

SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers kept up their attacks on North Vietnam's southern panhandle today amid recurring reports that the United States is considering a complete halt in the bombing of the North.

U.S. warplanes continued attacking below the 19th parallel, bombing boundary set by President Johnson last spring.

Air Force and Navy planes smashed more than 30 supply boats and trucks, military spokesmen said.

Reports of an American proposal to end all air attacks on North Vietnam circulated Wednesday after U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker met with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, presumably to sound Thieu out.

Bunker had another meeting with Thieu scheduled late today.

Continuation of the lull in the ground war added to speculation that Hanoi may be de-escalating as part of a secret agreement—an agreement that would include a bombing halt.

For the second successive day, the U.S. command did not report a single ground action in its morning communique.

Quebec Teachers Go to Jail

QUEBEC (CP) — Twelve government-employed teachers were to present themselves at the Quebec City jail today to begin serving the 20-day prison terms they received two years ago.

But first, they and 1,200 delegates to the biennial convention of the Confederation of National Trade Unions were to demonstrate in front of the office of Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand.

The teachers, all officers of the Syndicat des professeurs de l'etat du Quebec, were each sentenced to 20 days in jail for contempt of court after they refused to obey an injunction granted during a strike of the 2,000-member union in February, 1966.

The Supreme Court of Canada refused to hear an appeal on behalf of the teachers Oct. 1 and the sentences became effective on that date.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Gladys, killer of at least one person in a stormy crossing of Cuba, bowled slowly northward through the Gulf of Mexico today toward the million-plus population area of Tampa, Fla. Highest winds of 90 miles an hour were confined to a small area near the centre, but during the night Gladys hurled 65 m.p.h. wind gusts clear across Florida into sleeping Miami Beach.

LBJ Ready To Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson apparently has run into difficulties in both Hanoi and Saigon in his efforts to arrange final terms for an end of the United States bombing of North Vietnam.

Before ordering a bombing halt, U.S. officials said, Johnson is determined to receive North Vietnamese assurances his action will move forward the deadlocked Paris peace talks and freeze the level of combat in South Vietnam.

There still has been no word here of those assurances.

South Vietnamese leaders are reported, meanwhile, to have refused to sign a joint declaration proposed by the United States on halting the bombing.

Johnson is believed seeking assurances from Hanoi that the lull in the fighting, the decline in troop infiltrations from the North to the South and the withdrawal of Communist troops from around South Vietnamese cities would not be reversed following an end of the bombing.

South Vietnamese leaders appear to object to Johnson accepting whatever North Vietnamese assurance he might get. They are insisting on "guarantees" that North Vietnam will not escalate the war.

An end to the bombing has been the essential north Vietnamese condition for moving the Paris peace talks into a new, second phase in which specific issues involved in ending the war would be negotiated.

In Paris, U.S. and North Vietnamese peace negotiators met for the 20th time, and the American spokesman said afterward there had been movement but "I cannot characterize it as progress."

Apollo Trip Tiring

HOUSTON (CP) — The Apollo 7 astronauts, eager to come home, took U.S. television viewers on a masterful-duet tour of their smoothrunning spaceship today as they sped on the downhill leg of their marathon space voyage.

Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., Maj. Donn F. Eisele and civilian Walter Cunningham took time from the demanding chores of checking the many complex systems of their craft to beam Episode No. 4 of the Wally, Walt and Donn show to earth as Apollo 7 swept south of the southern United States.

In contrast to the first televised shows, when there were many hijacks and funny signs, today's 12-minute episode was a sober affair.

Reception also was the worst yet, as the picture on the screen split and rolled many times.

By Wednesday night, the three had passed the half-way mark of their 11-day spin around the earth and officials said they had learned about three-quarters of the flight's objective.

Schirra said all three crew members still had varying forms of colds.

He also complained again about the food aboard. He suggested the information be passed on to Apollo 8 crew if their menus have not been selected yet.

"I had a tendency to pick out a menu with individual items listed that I kinda liked out of the sample," he said.

"If I had to do it over again I would try to make sure I had a wider variety of acceptable food."

Enemies Will Fume Kosygin Tells Czechs

PRAGUE (CP) — Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin said Wednesday night most of the occupation troops in Czechoslovakia will withdraw soon, but he did not indicate how many will stay.

Kosygin said the withdrawal will include troops of Poland, Hungary, East Germany and Bulgaria—the five nations that joined in the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia Aug. 20 to reverse the country's liberalization drive.

Kosygin spoke at the signing of a treaty with Premier Oldrich Cernik legalizing the Soviet occupation.

"The enemies of socialism will fume and rage," he said. "They will try to distort the meaning of our treaty and to aggravate international tension. The enemies of Czechoslovak-Soviet friendship want nothing more than to start a wedge of alienation and sow distrust between our peoples. Nothing different can be expected of them."

$9,869 Millions $9,076.6

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian economy has made adjustments in the last 18 months that promise reasonable growth and less inflation during 1969, says the white paper anticipating Finance Minister Benson's budget next Tuesday.

The same-setting document tabled in the Commons Wednesday says expansion has slowed to a moderate rate since mid-year.

This pace is likely to be maintained for another nine to 12 months. But Canada will still be moving ahead somewhat faster than the United States and other industrial countries.

Control of inflation will be "crucially important" in maintaining this advantage, says the white paper.

The rate of price increases continues to be "unacceptable" but it is abating. As the gross national product grows, more of the gain will take the solid form of real output.

The GNP, total value of all goods and services produced in Canada, at current prices rose last year by 6.8 per cent to $82,068,000 from $58,120,000,000 in 1966.

Price increases accounted for 3.9 per cent of the gain, real growth only 2.8 per cent.

In the first half of 1968, GNP rose another 5.4 per cent over the final three months of 1967. Prices accounted for one per cent in each quarter.

"The over-all demand and supply picture suggests a rate of increase in GNP over the next nine to 12 months not much different from that of 1968 as a whole, compared to that of 1967," says the white paper.

"However, more of the increase should be in quantity, and less in prices, than in 1967 and 1968.

"The significant easing of interest rates apparent since the exchange crisis of last spring . . . should assist in this advance."

The white paper gives no hint of Mr. Benson's budgetary intentions. He will make known Tuesday, in a speech beginning at 8 p.m. EDT, whether Canadians will pay higher taxes to cover part or all of an indicated budget deficit.

The government provided an up-to-date picture of the budget's expenditure side last month in revised 1968-69 spending estimates totalling $10,670,920,598. This was an unexpected $445,000,000 higher than forecast last spring.

Tuesday's speech will be the first estimate of budget revenues at existing tax rates since last March, when Mr. Benson's predecessor Mitchell Sharp forecast income at $10,185,000,000.

The gap between revenues and expenditures thus has widened to almost $500,000,000 and major tax increases would appear inevitable if Mr. Benson still intends to bring down a balanced budget.

The white paper repeated the previously-announced budgetary position for the last fiscal year, ended March 31: Revenues $9,076,589,447, and expenditures $9,869,991,666, leaving a budgetary deficit of $792,402,219.

This was the highest in peacetime, and an increase from the $740,000,000 deficit forecast when Mr. Sharp made the government's last full budget speech on June 1, 1967.

In its analysis of 1967, the white paper says strong exports and the effect of several other expansionary forces including Centennial and Expo 67 prevented a mild recession during the year.

But lagging investment expenditures and inventory losses now have gone through a cyclical correction. At annual rates, business spending on plant and equipment in the first half of 1968 were running 10.5 per cent ahead of the last six months of 1967.

The labor force has grown faster than employment in 1968, resulting in a mid-year unemployment rate of about five per cent. But this growth, while still higher than that of most other industrialized countries, will slow in 1969. Training and mobility programs were increasing the efficiency of Canadian workers.

The white paper says the sense of crisis in international markets has disappeared following restraints in Britain and the U.S.; creation of a two-tier gold system and steps to supplement international reserves with a new unit called special drawing rights.

Canada's January-March dollar crisis is portrayed as one temporary result of these external factors.

U.S. purchases of Canadian merchandise are expected to be scaled down substantially after running 25 per cent higher than last year through the first nine months of 1968.

Hon. John Yaremko, Minister of Social and Family Services, will officially open the new $1,400,000 Hastings Centennial Manor at Bancroft on Friday. Senior citizens' home has beds for 108 residents and provides office accommodation for other county departments serving the north part of the county.

New Bancroft Manor Opens Tomorrow

In partial use since July 12 when the first resident was admitted, the new $1,400,000 Hastings County Manor at Bancroft, will be officially opened tomorrow.

Keynote speaker for the opening scheduled for two p.m. will be Hon. John Yaremko, minister of Social and Family Services for Ontario. Lawrence Crawford, director of the Homes for the Aged Branch, will cut the ribbon. Tyendinaga Reeve Robert Harvey, as chairman of the county home committee, will preside over the ceremonies to include a civic welcome to Bancroft by village Reeve John M. Brown.

Area members of parliament, both provincial and federal, will extend greetings.

Planning for the Bancroft home was begun in 1965 with the start of construction in March of last year.

The new home will accommodate 108 senior residents, each with his or her own bed, bedside table, chair and personal clothes closet.

The building is electrically heated with individual room-by room control of temperature. The Centennial Manor building also provides office accommodation for county welfare department, county health department, and social and family services workers.

Board Discusses Space Shortage

A probable increase in high school enrolment next year is already troubling Bay of Quinte District High School Board.

Centennial Secondary School, already filled to capacity with 1,200 students this year, may have an enrolment of 1,455 next year.

The board will have to accommodate between 250 and 275 more students in its five schools in 1969. Total enrolment as of Sept. 30, 1968, was 3,223 students.

These figures were given by superintendent D. C. Sirling in his report at last night's board meeting.

"We will have to find room for these students, either by using portable classrooms or changing the school district boundaries," he told the board.

Madoc armories, rented for one year to provide class rooms for about 600 Centre Hastings High School students, will be required for two years, member Bruce Porte said.

Construction of an addition to the Madoc school has been delayed until the new county-wide board starts oversee education Jan. 1.

Sources in the armories will be used for a second year, the board approved funds to extend the classroom partitions to ceiling height.

Salaries of night school teachers were raised from $7.50 to $8 an evening on the recommendation of the advisory vocational committee.

The board also decided to rent space in Centennial Secondary School to a church group at the regular rates charged a non-profit organization.

The group's request for space in which to start a service for residents living between Avondale and Avonlough Roads had been deferred for a month while a committee pondered board policy regarding use of the schools by church groups.

Manpower Retraining Students Causing Problems at Quinte

Behavior of 290 Manpower Retraining students during evening classes at Quinte Secondary School has caused uneasy among school officials.

And the shared use of school facilities by both secondary school students and trainees "is unpleasant for them (Quinte's staff), but equally so for us," according to Manpower Retraining Director E. J. Buckley.

Bay of Quinte District High School Board at its meeting last night decided to ask Loyalist College to find other accommodation for about half the trainees.

A committee was appointed to discuss the move with Loyalist president J. K. Bradford, after the board received a written report of difficulties from Quinte's principal John Hayman.

"The differences in the ages of the secondary school and the Manpower students, and the number of trainees enrolled, causes the difficulties," he told the board.

The Manpower Retraining program is under the jurisdiction of the federal government, which purchase education and classroo maccommodation from Loyalist College and the Bay of Quinte board. The 290 students at Quinte are taught in the evening by instructors hired for the purpose.

Smoking and drinking, moving of desks and equipment and defacing of pictures on bulletin boards were some of the problems Mr. Hayman said he and his staff have encountered with Manpower trainees.

"These are petty housekeeping problems, and I mentioned list from the four years we have been at Quinte, not incidents that have happened in the last six months," Mr. Buckley said this morning. "These isolated incidents have been deak with as they arose over the years."

Other complaints from Mr. Hayman concerned the difficulty of keeping apparatus and demonstration models set up in classrooms over night and the problem of holding high school extra-curricular activities in the evening when the retraining school is in operation.

The principal remarked that the behavior of many trainees "makes it very embarrassing for our girls".

"There is a feeling on the part of many people that these million dollar structures should be used for more than day and school purposes," Mr. Buckley said. "These are some of the problems that arise from shared facilities."

"We have always operated on the basis that the secondary school came first, and therefore didn't make unreasonable demands," he added.

Among the conditions causing difficulties for the retraining staff Mr. Buckley mentioned lack of storage space, unavailability of equipment and a dearth of office space.

"We have a contradiction here," commented high school board member Bruce Portt when he heard Mr. Hayman's report last night.

"On one hand we talk of extended use of our schools, and on the other hand we want to get these people out."

Mr. Hayman told the board he understood Loyalist had accommodation for about 700 students at night, and had only about 320 enrolled in its evening extension courses.

He asked the board to request Loyalist to accommodate about half the trainees, leaving 200 or fewer at Quinte where they could be confined to one section of the school for classes.

The governing Loyalist president J. K. Bradford said the college's evening extension courses use capacity, but he will be happy to discuss the situation with the Bay of Quinte board.

Belleville Resident Holds Sweeps Ticket

At least one Bellevillian has a chance for the $130,000 first prize in the upcoming edition of the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes based on Saturday's running of the Cambridgeshire Handicap in Newmarket, England.

An unknown person in Belleville has a ticket on the horse 'Durbridge' for the race.

Ticketa were drawn on all 74 horses eligible for the race — last of the three yearly races in the international lottery in aid of hospitals in the Irish Republic.

The others are held on the Lincolnshire Handicap in March and the Irish Derby in late June or early July.

A total of 211 Canadian tickets were drawn for the race. However how many of the 74 horses will go to the post Saturday will not be determined until the callover held in London on Friday.

Only tickets held on starters have a chance for the three big prizes, $136,000, $56,000 and $28,000.

Ontario Water Body Criticized For Making 'Arbitrary Decisions'

J. H. Page of the Trenton Public Utilities, H. C. Blakely from Picton, Belleville Public Utilities chairman John Deacon and Ontario Municipal Water Association president J. R. Sinclair look through some of the information pamphlets on water provided at the OMWA's convention yesterday by the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

An Ontario Municipal Water Association questionnaire sent out to 100 member municipalities brought back some criticisms of the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

R. B. Leslie, first vice-president of the OMWA commented on the report and said the primary criticisms of the OWRC were that it was "empire building" and made many "arbitrary decisions."

That there were poor public relations between the OWRC and the public and a lack of communication between the OWRC and the OMWA was another.

Even with these criticisms Mr. Leslie said that it was apparent from the answers that most municipal water officials felt the OWRC was doing "a good job in a difficult field at a difficult time."

To improve the public relations picture the OWRC has appointed a PR man and other changes have also been made.

As for the aims of the OMWA Mr. Leslie said the municipal departments wanted to work as partners with the OWRC rather than just taking orders from them.

David S. Caverly, general manager of the OWRC, gave the commission's point of view later on in the day.

"Even with a water rich Ontario there are water short areas for one reason or another," Mr. Caverly stated.

And it is the commission's aim to see that every citizen has an adequate supply of good water no matter who owns the water system.

"The OWRC has the authority to set up regional systems arbitrarily," he said, "although it hasn't had to so far."

Our responsibility to see that every citizen gets a fair shake forces us to butt into municipal affairs at some times.

"To what extent can local autonomy be carried at the expense of the citizen's protection", he asked the 100 municipal water officials at their convention yesterday.

"As policemen," Mr. Caverly stated that "the OWRC has to make arbitrary decisions at times to protect the citizens."

He agreed with the OMWA's report that there was some times a lack of understanding and communication between the OWRC and municipal authorities but he said that steps are being taken to resolve difference and open up more channels of communication.

The OMWA's day long convention yesterday was the second since the organization was formed. R. J. Sinclair from Peterborough is president of the organization this year.

Belleville Utilities commission chairman John Deacon, E. L. Burnham who is manager of the Belleville PUC and Neil Britton, assistant manager all attended the convention.

Solutions Offered on Pollution

Charging 10 cents a gallon for water was one solution offered that would permanently resolve pollution problems.

Dr. T. W. Beak, a Montreal consultant, made the suggestion and admitted that the idea was "patently absurd" but said it did contain "a germ of truth."

It did however get the noted consultant onto the theme of his address, that people and industry could no longer consider water cheap and plentiful, nor could they treat it as a throw away item...

Dr. Beak was one of four speakers at the Ontario Municipal Water Association's second annual meeting yesterday. It was held at the Sun Valley Motel and almost 100 public utilities men and others concerned with water attended.

"The public is just as delinquent as anyone and they just have to change the way they think of water," he said.

"Cheap resources built industry in Canada," he admitted, "but those economic factors are going to change. The cheap water attitude doesn't have to be."

In many places in the U.S. Dr. Beak said that communities and industries were thinking of the re-use of water and even using two sources of water.

Other speakers on the panel involving water pollution and the problem it creates for water supply authorities were Dr. H. R. Eisenhaver from the Department of National Health and Welfare, A. B. Redekopp, supervisor of water works for the Ontario Water Resources Commission and H. A. Simmons of Gore and Storrie Ltd.

Dr. Eisenhauer discussed the eight kinds of pollution from domestic sewage, infectious agents, organic chemicals, other minerals, sediment, heat and radioactive material.

After discussing the possible effects of each type and possible solutions the doctor pointed out that the U.S. will have spent 110 billion dollars on pollution preventitives by the year 2,000.

They have now spent 40 billion dollars and are spending close to a billion more a year.

"Canada's expend itures will be just as high proportionately," he said.

"The cost is extreme but can we afford not to take it."

Mr. Redekopp discussed water treatments and supply problems in relation to pollution while Mr. Simmons went over the problems faced by the water treatment engineer.

After the four men had spoken yesterday morning the floor was open for questions and discussion before the convention adjourned for lunch.

...OWRA Growing Fast

The Ontario Municipal Water Association is a young organization but it is growing fast.

Formed two years ago by municipal water authorities in western Ontario it soon spread to the east. There are now two sections in the body which can speak collectively to the Ontario Water Resources Commission regarding policy changes and requirements.

However, there is no definite connection between the OWRC and the OMWA other than as one member put it "by shake of hand and word of mouth."

First vice-president of the eastern Ontario section of the OMWA R. B. Leslie said that there have been two liasion meetings between the two groups and another is coming up.

"We want to work together with the OWRC," he said, "work out our differences and aid each other in research-ing, advertising and promotion."

The OWRC is the provincial authority in all matters concerning water and water supply and has the last word on everything that is done.

Many public utilities officials felt that many of the commission's policies needed revision so they formed the OMWA whose executive can speak for them as a whole.

Mr. Leslie said that both organizations are getting along well and seem to be working together towards their common end — providing clean, safe water for everyone.

Postal Rates

Postal rates and Saturday delivery have suddenly become hot items for Prime Minister Trudeau's Liberal government.

And while the fuss has generated major opposition in the cities, it will be a peculiarity of today's modern living that the rural communities will be the hardest hit when it comes to an everyday staple — the newspaper. However, the fact that Postmaster-General Eric Kierans is considering six-day delivery in rural areas is welcome news.

One out of every 10 subscribers to The Intelligencer is on a rural mail route, which means his newspaper of necessity must arrive a day later at his residence.

With the institution of a five-day postal week as envisaged by Post Master General, Eric Kierans, it would mean these near 2,000 families in the Quinte area would not receive their Friday newspaper until Monday. And if weekend sorting did not clear the jam, their Saturday newspaper might possibly not arrive until Tuesday.

Projecting these figures across Canada it suggests that for some 300,000 families the daily newspaper will be ruled out as a medium of information at least one day a week.

The proposed increase in mail charges will also have a deleterious effect on the rural subscriber. Charges will climb 200 per cent or more on the new scale for second class mail, 10 times that of first class mail which will increase from five cents to six.

For The Intelligencer it will add an approximate $7 a year to the cost of mailing the newspaper to subscribers. For the Ottawa Journal it would hike it $20. The increased cost would vary accordingly for each of Canada's dailies.

Canadian newspaper executives are pessimistic that rural subscribers would be willing to pick up the increased tab. One even went so far as to state: "The government will have wiped out newspapers for the country people."

Effect of the two factors was obviously not thought out when the proposals were announced in the bid to cut deficits in the post office operation.

There is not one daily newspaper in Canada which is subsidized in its mailing operation. Rural subscriber rates are arrived at by totalling the cost of delivering the newspaper to the subscriber. Obviously if mail rates go up so will subscription rates.

It follows that hardships will result, not so much on newspapers, but on that quite considerable percentage of Canadians who by the very nature of this immense land are cut off from normal daily sources of news.

It appears an unwelcome solution where the cure is harsher than the disease.

Color Us Grey—Again !

Oh dear, but that "color us grey" image that people overseas have of Canadians is being bandied about again. It is expressed often enough that it cannot be ignored.

"You seem to me to be a staid people, rather conservative and less active than people in Trinidad." This was the comment of Mayor J. Hamilton Holder of Port of Spain while on a recent visit to St. Catharines.

Fortunately, Mr. Holder, who was visiting Canada with a "twinning" group from his own country, went away happy after three days with their counterparts in the Niagara Peninsula city. " We had a marvellous time. I don't know how we can repay you for your hospitality and kindness."

The other comment we have in mind was made by Cecilia Chan, a young lady from Hong Kong who is studying at McMaster University. Canadians, she says, are a hard working lot who don't have time to enjoy themselves. And the country seems dull because there is "absolutely no night life."

Miss Chan had other interesting comments. She does not like Canadian food, the frozen variety in particular. In Hong Kong, apparently, people go to the market twice daily to get fresh meat for both breakfast and dinner. And she is surprised by age limit with regard to drinking. In Hong Kong, "because there is no restriction, the young people just don't bother drinking." It is obvious they know human nature better in Hong Kong than do the authorities here.

On the whole, however, she likes Canada. For one thing she likes the educational system. In Hong Kong first-year university students are limited to three subjects. And, another point: "In Hong Kong degrees from American colleges are not accepted. Their standard just isn't high enough."

One other thing she likes about Canada is the friendliness of people. People here talk more openly. Well that's something. We may be dull, but we evidently have the gift of the gab!

Gene Whelan Likely to Remain True to Himself

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Be interesting to attend the Liberal caucus these days to see if Prime Minister Trudeau has managed to tame Gene Whelan, six years the MP for Southwestern Ontario's riding of Essex and the terror of the cabinet during all that time.

The prime minister has appointed the tart-tongued Whelan as parliamentary secretary to freshmen Fisheries Minister Jack Davis.

The posting — generally regarded as a step on the way to the cabinet, a sort of halfway house between the back and front benches — carries an indemnity of $4,000 over and run-of-the-Commons MP.

But unless Gene Whelan has been politically brainwashed or suffered an absolute personality reversal, $4,000 is not going to make a dime's worth of difference in the way he speaks his mind.

This all too rare quality of being strictly his own man, guided exclusively by his own heart, mind, and yes, conscience, is just about the most precious attribute any MP could possibly have.

Caucuses — especially those private Liberal councils of war — are supposed to be secret.

But such was not the Gene Whelan's brutal frankness in never hesitating to say what he thinks, that delightful tales of the way he tears great bleeding strips from the thin and sensitive hide of cabinet ministers leaked from the caucus as from a sieve.

The man himself, honoring the tradition of caucus secrecy won't talk much about storied prowess as a humbler of the high and mighty.

Except to say that yes, he did speak his mind because "I couldn't stay an MP if I didn't."

And he does concede that yes, he "blew my stack when the wind-baggery of puffed-up people got too much to take."

Rejoicing in the way Gene sounded off when more timid souls kept a self-protective silence, some of his admiring caucus colleagues don't mind at all building his legend.

First off, Gene Whelan is a plain man, plain spoken.

Where others sort of fancy it up in the way they describe themselves in the Parliamentary Guide, Gene Whelan has said simply "a farmer."

He was just as bluntly to the point in everything he said — especially in caucus — and especially about Prime Minister Pearson and External Affairs Minister Martin.

It was not that he disliked them personally, it was just that he said they were doing a rotten job.

"For gawdsake, you don't know whatinhell you're talking about," colleagues quote Gene as bawling out Mr. Pearson.

And he frequently equated some of the prime minister's statements with a certain type of fertilizer that Essex farmers scatter on the fields to encourage the corn and tomato crops.

But in quite some basic barnyard terms.

To hear some Liberal MPs tell it, Gene Whelan not only kept Mike Pearson humble, he had him frightened — t: shook up that he often wouldn't go to caucus if he knew the terrible-tongued Whelan from Essex was attending.

But it was poor Paul Martin who suffered the tearing est tellings-off.

Although they were constituency neighbors, the one in Essex South, the other in Essex East, Gene Whelan campaigned openly and vigorously against Paul Martin's bid for the Liberal leadership.

And when Paul Martin lost so shatteringly, and won the consolation prize of a senatorship, Gene Whelan wanted to know — in a voice loud and clear — whatinhell was the idea of putting Martin in the Senate.

"What else could we do with him," they (and it might even have been Prime Minister Trudeau's question) asked him.

"Drop him in Lake Erie," roared Whelan, "no, not Erie, not deep enough — make it Superior."

They say Paul Martin went to some pains to facilitate Gene Whelan's approval, even helping him on with his coat.

"Goes to show you," Whelan snorted, taking a cut at him, "that there is some use for seniors."

He was especially allergic to Lester Pearson's royal commission on bilingualism, and didn't mind showing it.

"Biculture, what breed of bull is this?!" he asked the PM. "Agriculture there is, horticulture, too, also floriculture and aviculture. But bicultural?"

It may have made Lester Pearson shudder, but it sure did a lot to keep him cut down to size. And with prime ministers, that is not always easily done.

So now the question-for-the-day: Is success going to spoil parliamentary secretary Gene Whelan?

As he himself might put it: Not bloody likely.

Indians Taught White Man How to Survive

Rastewennotah Dione In The Montreal Gazette

As a Mohawk of the Iroquois Confederacy in Kahnahawake I'm surprised that Jean Chretien, Federal Indians Affairs Minister, held a meeting on Indian affairs in Beauport in the Province of Quebec when as a federal minister he should have held it in Ottawa. The reason he held the meeting in Quebec perhaps is because he encourages the Quebec Indian Separatists, known as the Quebec Indian Association.

Chretien states: We are looking for a way in which the Indian can participate fully in Canadian life, know that we can take advantage of Canadian law. We want to trace for the Indian a philosophy for his future which will be approved by the majority of his race."

First, about knowing Canada, the minister must be kidding. He seems to forget that we are Aborigines, natives of this continent and we taught the Frenchmen and the British how to survive. In other words they did not found us or Canada but actually, they are our foundlings. As for the natives taking advantage of "Canadian law," what a farce! May I ask Mr. Chretien, when does a native get justice in Canada's pale face courts of law? About tracing a philosophy for our future. What irresponsible trashy statement coming from Her Majesty's Minister in Canada: no wonder the British are falling down. Perhaps Prime Minister Trudeau's compatriot, Chretien, will live long enough to acquire enough wisdom to know that in order to survive the two ice ages, the Paleolithic and Neolithic, we Natives had to have good laws, good self-discipline, wisdom and a rich philosophy. Our ethics were so good, that prior to the coming of the oversea hordes of squatters, we had no reform schools, jails, penitentiaries, but have all, we had no crafty priests. Our water, air and food were not polluted.

Mr. Chretien goes on to say: "that Indians and white men do not have the same manner of thinking." I may enlighten Mr. Chretien, by telling him why. It's simply because the paleface is a materialist while the native, at heart, is a naturalist.

P.M. Feels The Strain As Opposition Hits Its Stride

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—During a bristling Commons exchange the other day involving Pierre Elliott Trudeau, an opposition MP called out to the prime minister:

"Keep your cool, Pierre."

The Liberal leader managed to keep his cool in the face of the mocking shout as he has done almost all the time in the Commons since the post-election Parliament began Sept. 12.

He persists himself only an occasional testy remark despite opposition members making the best available use of the debating chamber to embarrass the government.

Since Mr. Trudeau had never faced a regular session of Parliament as prime minister, the first month of his first session has been a time of testing.

Conservatives and New Democrats particularly were finally able to have Mr. Trudeau hold still long enough to be hit. Until Parliament began he was a misty figure who had dominated the country's political headlines since he became prime minister April 20.

His words and actions were widely reported before, during and after the June 25 election which gave the Liberals a Commons majority. All other parties were on the defensive, seemingly always a step or two behind the shadowy Trudeau. Dazzled by his footwork, as they say.

But all that is changed with Parliament in session. The session gave the opposition the opportunity to challenge the government directly on issues.

Day after day it was attacked for what the opposition called its lack of initiative in sending food aid to Biafrans, starving because of the Nigerian civil war. It was also criticized sharply for lack of steps to end the war itself.

Conservative Leader Stanfield, in the eyes of many observers, finally came into his own as a national politician and leader of the Opposition.

He showed an ability to move in with series of sharp queries in the Commons question period, the daily battleground attended by Mr. Trudeau in which the opposition tries to embarrass the government with pointed questions.

Mr. Stanfield's predecessor as party leader, John Diefenbaker, has also recovered some of his old form as a partisan attacker, occasionally to Mr. Trudeau's discomfort.

To add to Mr. Trudeau's difficulties, one of his chief weapons —domination of the communications media—has been turned against him on the Biafra issue.

Two opposition MPs, who made a fact-finding trip to Biafra, added to the Commons pressure with their well-publicized account of what they saw. There is a feeling among politicians that Mr. Trudeau no longer has it all his own way.

PEI Wants New Causeway --As Well as Economic Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Prince Edward Island has amended an adage.

A whole loaf is better than half of one, says P.E.I.

The province, informants say, wants Ottawa to press on with its plan to revitalize the island's economy as well as with the nine-mile causeway linking Prince Edward Island to New Brunswick.

The causeway has been costestimated as high as $300-000,000.

The federal-provincial socio-economic plan to overhaul the province's economy will cost at least $125,000,000 in the first five years and may eventually go to $700,000,000 in 15 years.

Informants say the federal cabinet is divided on whether to go ahead with the causeway, first proposed by then prime minister Diefenbaker in 1962, or put into effect the economy-overhaul program which would involve revamping public services in Prince Edward Island and initiating a new land-use scheme.

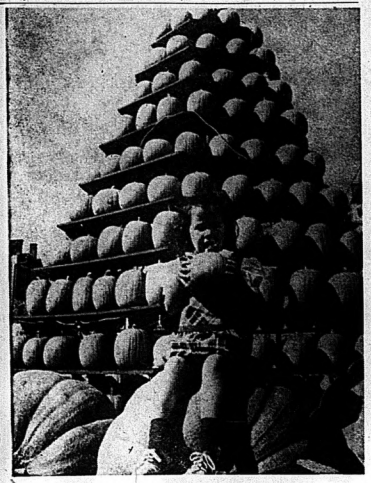
But, they say, the cabinet is not disposed to do both.

Works Minister Arthur Laing is reported to be the leader of the cabinet wing in favor of the economic development program for the province —on the same grounds.

Informants say there is no cabinet split in the ordinary sense that two factions have taken entrenched positions.

The question, they say, is purely economic: How best can P.E.I. be served by an injection of federal funds?

Spokesmen for the province say Ottawa is trying to squeeze P.E.I. into a tough choice between the causeway and redevelopment of the economy.



Well, they say, the province isn't having any of that.

Liberal Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island is seeking an appointment with the federal cabinet to put the province's case for implementation of both schemes.

His argument is reported to be, in part, that the causeway was promised by the federal government long ago—former prime minister Pearson repeated Mr. Diefenbaker's 1962 pledge—and that the island also deserves the economic plan if Prime Minister Trudeau's promise to try to eliminate regional economic disparities means anything.

However, informants say, the federal cabinet is expected to scrap the causeway next month and give P.E.I. in exchange the economic program.

One cabinet source said: "If you are lucky enough to be an island, why join the mainland?"

Ontario Milk Producers May Get Fixed Quota

TORONTO (CP) — Industrial milk processors in Ontario may have to pool their product with a fixed supply quota.

The suggestion, by Keith McKinnon of Port Elgin, Ont., was approved Wednesday by delegates at a Toronto convention of county milk committee leaders. Mr. McKinnon is an executive of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board.

At the same time, delegates rejected a move to reduce bottled milk quotas by five per cent.

Board spokesman say the move to bring industrially-processed milk into line with tin quota system on bottled fluid milk is temporary since research has not been completed and industrial milk producers have not been consulted.

Mr. McKinnon's proposal suggested different prices for industrially-produced milk, depending on its use. The main objective of the proposed pool is to balance payments to milk producers.

Mr. McKinnon also suggested a price incentive system to encourage more production of milk in the winter months and less in the summer months. He said this would reduce processing costs as much as 15 to 20 per cent.

PCs Running Scared Nixon Says in Reply

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, commenting on a charge he was a "puppet" of Ottawa, said Wednesday the charge shows that the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association, said wiously running scared."

Consensus, an official publication of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association, said in an article Tuesday Mr. Nixon was often "a captive of Ottawa Liberalism" and as such, appears to be a puppet in the strictest sense of the world."

In a statement, Mr. Nixon said Premier Robarts' government was using a devious method to attack him. He accused the government of wasteful spending and said the charge to turn aside the Liberal opposition was "futile since I am convinced that the electorate is now sophisticated enough to see through such a gimmick."

Commons Attendance by Ministers Again Disputed by Opposition

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs will have to settle for limited attendance at the daily Commons question period by cabinet ministers—for the time being at least.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux ruled Wednesday against a motion by Donald MacInnis (PC—Cape Breton-East Richmond) that would have the experimental ministerial attendance system studied by a special House committee on procedures.

Mr. MacInnis presented his motion Tuesday and the Speaker, after hearing arguments for more than an hour, reserved his decision.

In dispute is a scheme announced by Prime Minister Trudeau two weeks ago whereby cabinet ministers are only required to be in the House for question periods on certain days.

There are 29 cabinet ministers, including Senator Paul Martin, government leader in the upper chamber. All ministers from the Commons are expected to be in the House on Wednesday. Eleven are listed for Mondays, 13 for Tuesday, 18 for Thursday and 14 for Fridays. Mr. Trudeau tries to be in the chamber every day.

Mr. Lamoureux said Mr. MacInnis' motion could not be considered a question of privilege as it was not raised "at the earliest opportunity."

The system has been under fire daily since it was first announced. In addition, it was the subject of a full debate Friday.

Despite the Speaker's ruling, the rotation will probably continue to be a subject of criticism and debate. Mr. MacInnis said outside the House he has no plans for further formal moves. However, he added, it is likely it will be pursued at every opportunity during question period.

Mr. Trudeau proposed the rotation system as an efficiency measure.

Opposition members contend the system violates Canadian parliamentary tradition, the rights of MPs and the dignity of Parliament.

Mr. Lamoureux said the House rules make no specific provision for attendance of ministers on certain days and while a member has a right to ask a question he cannot insist on an answer.

MPs have resorted to ridicule to try to force the prime minister to back down.

John Diefenbaker (PC — Prince Albert) twitted the prime minister Wednesday about the absence of Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson and Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin. He had been unable to ask a question about prairie grain farmers Tuesday because that was a day off for those ministers.

Mines Minister Greene stepped in as acting agriculture minister to answer the question, noting that Mr. Olson and Mr. Pepin were in Winnipeg for talks on the establishment of a national grains council.

Later Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) asked a question of the "acting agriculture minister in his capacity as minister of mines."

Last week Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) sought assurance that Finance Minister Edgar Benson would be in the House to present the budget Oct. 22, a day off for Mr. Benson, according to the rotation roster.

Taking It Easy for A Change

David Phipps relaxes in the student lounge at Albert College. His future includes excitement, freedom and cold weather in Resolute Bay when he embarks on a career as a bush pilot.

Teenager Plans Career As Northern Bush Pilot

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

David Phipps is a father's dream, inasmuch as he's following in his father's footsteps.

David, at present a student at Albert College here in Belleville, would like to be a bush pilot in his father's business. He even intends to take over when his father decides to give up flying.

David, 17, has already earned his private flying licence, which lets him fly for his own enjoyment.

He spent all summer in Goderich, Ontario, where he piled up the necessary flying and ground school hours to obtain his licence.

Requirements for the private licence included 35 hours of daylight flying and 20 hours of ground school.

Next target for David is his commercial licence so that when he completes grade 13 (he is at present in his third year at Albert) he can join his father up north.

David's home is in Resolute Bay in the North West Territories and that's where he will commence his bush pilot career.

To qualify for a commercial licence he must obtain 10 hours of night flying and 200 hours of cross-country daylight flying. On top of that he must take instrument training.

In Goderich, David was averaging about three hours a day and that's expensive business. In Goderich, a Cessna 172 with an instructor costs $21 per hour.

David has been interested in flying since he can remember. He used to go up with his father, Welland Phipps, quite often.

Mr. Phipps' bush pilot business in Resolute Bay involves seven airplanes.

His tasks include medical evacuation, transportation of cargo and passengers and aerial photography.

David likes the idea of flying because of the excitement and freedom it offers. Already he has had some adventures with his father up north.

He remembers one night when he was almost run over by a plane coming in for a foggy landing.

What about the isolation at Resolute Bay?

David doesn't mind isolation, but "it's sure cold."

Graduation Climaxes Lives

By JUDY SCHRIEDER

Graduation, according to Webster's dictionary, is "the act of receiving a diploma testifying that the student has completed a certain course." True, that may be the bare meaning of the noun, but ask a Nicholson graduate to define the word and his description could put Webster's out of business.

October 11 marked a climax in the lives of 91 students. To those receiving their grade 12 diplomas, the evening granted official recognition and acceptance into grade 13. For those graduating from grade 13, the exercise signified not only academic achievement but also a last convocation together. Behind the calm, collected attitude which every student tried so desperately to project was that typically human characteristic of intense excitement, mixed with a slight hint of nervousness. Yet, once you have walked the length of the stage and relished the resounding applause, you can't help but feel a pang of regret, knowing thatsthat one treasured moment of your life can never come again.

Michael Marino, recipient of the Student Council award for best all-round student, and class valedictorian, expressed a bit of the same regret in his reminiscence of the "good old days" at NCC. But, he stressed the fact that it is memories-such as these that youth must build on. The successes, the-failures — every incident must be stored away for future use. A better world and a better life await all those who give a little of themselves to help others. He captured the audience with his enthusiasm and sincerity and expressed with simple eloquence, what so many graduates felt.

Webster's dictionary may give the definition, but a book can't express the emotion. To graduate is to know that you have accomplished something with diligent perseverance. To graduate is to feel proud of your achievement, and to feel the pride that others share with you.

Centennial Gets Smoking Area

By MIKE TSICITLAS

Our teaching staff, understanding the minority of those addicted to cigarettes, have set up a smoking area outside for those who receive permission from their parents to smoke.

Student council has managed to pry a late bus out of the bus company. This bus comes late every night so that those who remain for extra-curricular activities will have a ride home.

There is a very reliable rumor going around that there will be a school dance early in November featuring "The Sands Of Time."

The model club which has been established has already produced a model to be found in the showcase. It's a scratch built model of a German battleship over 36 inches long — built by one of our teachers, Mr. Muelhardt.

Our history department has enlisted the aid of a number of grade 10 students who will approach about 200 families in the area.

The students will conduct a poll to discover for whom people voted in the last election and why. The reports will be compared with the students council election.

BCI Students Visit Stratford

By LYNN ELLIOTT

Last Saturday, one very full busload of BCI students journeyed to Stratford, Ontario, for a day of culture, including attendance at the Shakespearean play Romeo and Juliet.

The trip itself was planned last spring by the English Department, and all grades (except the ninth-graders) took part. The bus left at 7 a.m., and everyone, including the psychedelic chaperone Mr. Evashkiw, had a full day to explore the beautiful city of Stratford and see the matinee performance. From what I've been told, a great time was had by all.

The Drama Club is preparing a special one - act play for a November assembly period and anyone who would like to help with props or makeup or costuming—please come and help!

Citizens of Belleville — watch for the BCI Keyettes' invitation downtown on Friday night, when all newly-chosen Keyettes earn their membership.

A first for BCI? Mr. Hildebrandt has set about organizing a computer programming club for all interested people. Math brains — meetings are during Tuesday noon hours.

And finally, — approximately 65 blood donors from our school turned out to help save a life last Thursday night — congratulations to all.

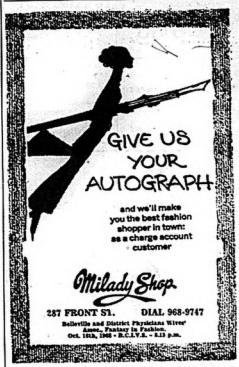
Quinte's Track Now in Use

By PENNIE HAMILL

Last Wednesday Quinte's hard-worked for track was officially opened. The first competition on our track was a piggy-back race which provided great entertainment for the spectators and even more fun for the participants. Afterwards, the first of many track meets was held here.



Friday proved to be quite a day with the new Keyettes being initiated. The girls received many weird looks as they walked down the hall eating their onions or bowing to their sister Keyettes. These girls finished their initiation at the dance held that evening. Many students showed up to hear The Sands of Time and I'm sure all had a great time.

We have a new technical club organized in our school, and this is another thing that the technical students have done to show their strength. Under Stuart Pescod as staff advisor, and Jerry Bower as president, this club is trying to promote the interests of and interest in the technical wing, to provide projects that the club can perform to better the school and to bring together the different tech students to help them to work together in technical aspects and in all other school activities. I'm sure we will hear a lot from the tech club this year so I think we should all support them and their activities.

I'm sure everyone is anxious to get his pictures back. Just hold on for a while longer. They are in, but a meeting must be held to decide how they will be distributed.

I certainly hope everyone will bring his $1 down payment for their yearbook. Your class representative is now taking orders but you do not have to pay the full $3 until the end of November, so start saving your pennies.

In closing, I will remind you that Susan Boardman will be back next week.

High Fashion Holds the Stage At Show Held By Medical Wives

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

The audience was filled to capacity with ladies who all wanted to do their "fashion thing" just a little bit better. Stating simply that woman "have always loved beautiful things," commentator, Mrs. H. F. Williamson, set the mood for the Fantasy in Fashion show, presented by the Belleville and District Physicians' Wives Association at BCI auditorium last night.

Convener and co-convener of the event were Mrs. J. R. Scott and Mrs. R. S. Morphy. President Mrs. F. G. Loder greeted the enthusiastic audience, and thanked them warmly for their support — which will help to finance many charitable projects.

"Let us take off to a fantasy in fashions", prompted the commentator. And so we did. To an evening of unending elegance. Mrs. Williamson's deft handling of the commentary, added immeasurably to the charm of each ensemble. Backed by the lovely stage decor designed by the members, each of the models seemed completely at ease. Those included: Miss Patty Bateman; Mrs. J. Dolan; Mrs. R. Fox; Mrs. G. W. Gist; Mrs. J. Hartt; Mrs. R. S. Morphy; Mrs. H. A. Mustard and Mrs. J. R. Sisson

This Fantasy of Fashion was made possible by clothes from Milady's and D'Arcels. Complimenting the various ensembles was jewellery by Avon, hair styles by the French Salon and Elizabeth Arden make - up by Kelly's Drug Store. The lovely furs and hats were courtesy of Woodley's, while the luggage and handbags were by Leslie's Shoe Store and floral arrangements were by Weese's.

A wide range of fashions were displayed — in colors and styles to please everyone's fashion taste. Bright, solid colors in sportswear, dominated by the ever - popular mock - turtle neck sweater. Pant suits, walking suits, slim sets — there was variety plus.

The afternoon and street-wear fashions featured bold colors, chic coat and dress combinations, and of course the "in" leather look. Double knit dresses and the "basic dress that you will take anywhere", were all a part of the show.

The hat show, accomplished so well by Mrs. Helen Laynes and Mrs. Birchard, was a complete success. Right from the "flirty thirty look" (very "in" this year) to the ultimate in luxury — a soft brimmed hat of pastel mink — the audience loved them all.

At the cocktail hour, the world of fantasy ushered in true-high fashion. The "tiffany suit" that carries you anywhere, with its sequin - trimmed neckline, and heavily beaded sleeve and pocket detail. A hostess hit anywhere— a beautiful ice blue lame lounge set with elephant sleeved tunic dress, and slims with wide elephant bottoms. These are just two of the beautiful outfits which composed the show.

Each ensemble seemed to outdo the previous in beauty, color and style.

However, the real highlight of the evening was the "wedding party".

The "bride," was truly serene, in a floor-length gown of silk organza, with a yoke effect of chantilly lace. Her attendants and guests equalled her grace and poise with dresses ranging from green velvet to French brocade.

Providing the appropriate background music was pianist Mrs. V. L. Lewis. Models garbed in a variety of fur coats, everything from mink to brown persian lamb, aided in giving the door prizes, donated by local merchants.

Modelling the furs were Mrs. R. Bateman, Mrs. S. D. Howe, Mrs. E. Green, Mrs. J. E. Nelles and Mrs. R. L. Vaughan.

The Association is particularly grateful for the support they received, especially to the local merchants — and to everyone who made the show such a success. And the success was not fantasy, but reality.

Fashions . . . fashions . . . and more fashions, but not all in fantasy. These four lovely models epitomize just some of the beautiful creations on display at the Fantasy in Fashion Show, held under the auspices of the Belleville and District Physicians' Wives' Association at BCI Collegiate auditorium last night. In preparation for the show, one of the models is shown getting "the full treatment" — to add the finishing touch to the many charming ensembles she will wear.

University Women To Hold Meeting

The University Women's Club meeting, to be held Thursday evening, October 17, at the Corby Public Library, will be highlighted by a most interesting speaker.

Mrs. Mulindwa, of Uganda, will speak about her country and the contribution of its women to development. She is currently on a speaking-study tour to various CFUW clubs, made possible by the organization known as UNESCO.

A graduate in economics of Makere University in Kampala of East Africa, Mrs. Mulindwa has also taught for six years in upper primary and secondary schools. She is presently in administration in the ministry of education, and is also the secretary of the Central Disciplinary Committee of Teachers.

Community Tenders Double Shower Party

Friends and neighbors recently honored Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brose (Joan Emerson) with a community shower held at the Omematy United Church hall. After a few remarks the chairman John Best opened the program. An accordion solo was given by Freddy Meens. Mrs. Byron Harder gave a humorous reading. A clarinet and saxaphone duet, was rendered by Janet and Paul Aikens.

Mr. and Mrs. John Emerson, Mr. and Mrs. John Sager, Mr. and Mrs. Art. Brose and Mr. and Mrs. John Best were called to the front where they were introduced as contestants to play TV's popular The Newlywed Game. This proved to be quite humorous as each couple tried to match their own questions. The winners were John and Bea Bert. All couples were presented with a little gift.

Mrs. Roy Nobes read the address and Joan and Art were presented with a bridge set from the community and a lovely cup and saucer from the Hi C.

The honored guests expressed thanks to everyone.

Lunch was served and a social hour enjoyed.

CHURCH GROUPS

(St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church)

The Fall Thankoffering meeting of the Afternoon Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held on Tuesday, October 8.

Mrs. D. Elvidge, the president, opened the meeting, and extended a welcome to all visitors. Following the reading of the minutes, and roll call, reports were given by the treasurer and the department-al secretaries. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. C. A. Adams and the prayer by Mrs. Hubert Scott. A solo was given by Mrs. W. M. Barlow.

The speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. W. R. Leatherdale, Presbyterian Hospital Visitor for the city of Montreal.

Mrs. Leatherdale spoke of the many experiences she had during her 18 years of visiting in nursing homes as well as in hospitals. She stressed the fact that many of the elderly folk, particularly in nursing homes, are in great need of some one to take a friendly interest in them — that the visitor can do much to make them realize they are not forgotten.

She spoke in glowing terms of the wonderful results of operations and therapeutic treatments which crippled children receive at the Shriners' Hospital.

Mrs. Vernon Weir expressed the appreciation of the auxiliary for the fine address given by Mrs. Leatherdale. The members of the program committee for the afternoon were Mrs. C. A. Adams, Mrs. E. Pizden, Mrs. G. Scott, Mrs. D. Elvidge and Miss F. Matthews.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a weak moment I took LSD. I am a college student, male, 20 years of age. Since that time I've heard LSD alters the chromosomes of the body and one can expect deformed children. I am now steering clear of serious romantic involvements because I dare not risk such unhappiness for any girl.

ANN LANDERS

Do you know of any tests to determine if the chromosomes have been damaged to the extent that the children would be deformed? Kindly answer through your column as it would seriously upset my parents if they knew the burden I carry. My anxiety is enough for the entire family. — MICHIGANDER.

DEAR MICHIGANDER: I asked Nobel Prize winner Joshua Lederberg, of the Stanford University School of Medicine, one of the foremost authorities on genetics, to answer your question. Here is his reply:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is in response to your query about the possibility of LSD producing deformed babies.

Several investigators have reported such effects, for example Dr. William F. Geber of the Department of Pharmacology, Medical College of Georgia at Augusta.

It is difficult to pin down the facts precisely and I regard the matter as still controversial in spite of the circumstantial evidence.

There is, however, one possible hazard of LSD, which I would like to mention. We know humans can show long delayed reactions to doses of LSD. We must now learn to what extent LSD enters the fetus across the placental barrier. So far as I know, there has been no investigation on this vital point.

If Congress continues to slash the budgets for medical research, we may never know the answer. — JOSHUA LEDERBERG, PROFESSOR OF GENETICS.

DEAR DR. LEDERBERG: I'm writing my congressman in Washington today. My message: Any decrease in government support of medical research would be disastrous. I urge my readers to do likewise.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A while back you wrote: "Any woman can have an affair— if she sets her standards low enough." Say it again, I think my daughter missed it.

Eldora, age 37, has been seeing a married man for five years. She calls it love. I call it back-alley monkey business with no future. Eldora hasn't had a real date since she started to sneak around with this rat. He picks her up in bars, on street corners, anything but come to the front door like a man. Eldora's father has been dead ten years so this man can't be afraid of getting his face punched in.

I've tried to tell my daughter she is throwing away her youth and if she doesn't wake up soon no decent man will have her. Her stock answer: "It's my life. Get off my back."

Why would a smart, attractive girl who could have nice, respectable dates settle for such a shabby relationship? — HEARTSICK MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: Attractive maybe, but smart she isn't. Girls who get involved with married men are stupid and often self destructive. Professional help may be the answer — provided she wants an answer.

Reader Questions Invitation Formalities

— By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: The daughter of our closest friends is being married shortly and I would like your expert opinion on a point.

The invitations may be formal, and I know the precedure in answering formal wedding invitations. However, since these are close friends, whom we see almost every weekend, I wondered if the same form of ability in replying would apply under the circumstances, or if a friendly note of acceptance would suffice? This is something I have many times wondered about, but so far haven't found an answer to it in any etiquette books I have consulted. — What's Correct?

Dear Correct: In form and formality, your reply must match the invitation.

The bride's mother honors you with this personal, engraved notification of one of the great events in her life. You acknowledge its importance with a note which takes the same form, even though you write it in longhand.

No reason why you shouldn't, in conversation, bubble over with delight about getting the impressive document and say how much you look forward to being there.

* * *

Dear Doris: I have a sweet little girl of five who is still a bedwetter. Our family doctor says this is from nerves and cannot help her; that she will grow out of it.

She was in hospital for treatment and since then she is even worse and wetting herself in the daytime. Even then all the doctor does is shrug his shoulders and say she will be o.k.

What will I do if she does this in school, where she will soon start? You are my only hope. — Still Hoping.

Dear Hoping: It just could be "nerves", you know. And if it is, your little girl is not sufficiently relaxed. This is where you come in. Perhaps she is just too, too anxious to please you.

Ask yourself just how serene your home is. You are a New Canadian: Have you had things tough, so that not only your girl, but you and your husband live in an atmosphere of tension? Our little ones are far more aware of feeling tones around them than they are given credit for.

I'd suggest consultation with a child guidance authority or child care agency. If it isn't physical it has to be something else.

* * *

Confidential to Ambitious Boy: You may be sure there's a spot for you in some go-ahead Canadian industry; but it would be well worth while for you to learn more about your own aptitudes and about the actual work being done in the business and manufacturing concerns where you are.

Public-minded men who are interested in boys have told me they wouldn't mind a bit taking some time to talk to boys like you and tell you the kind of young men they look for as well as what education and training you need to start with.

Get your Dad to make a phone call to the president of your local Rotary or other service club to ask for an interview.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Now that I'm working, I find it impossible to get everybody to eat a good hot breakfast. I'm too rushed in the morning to do much cooking."

It takes less than five minutes to cook eggs, hot cereal or French toast if some planning and preparations are done the night before. Don't let a job be an excuse for neglecting a family's real needs.

Mother: "We'll set the table and get things ready for breakfast, so we'll all have time to sit down and eat before we leave for work or school."

Delicious Gala Chicken Casserole

By MARY MOORE

At 2:30 p.m. the chicken was cooked. At 4:00 p.m. the casserole below was ready to go in the oven for 30 min. for dinner for Shirley's guests arriving at 6:30. At 5:00 p.m. Shirley's 3½-year-old daughter swallowed a small bottleful of pink detergent. Shirley gave her a full glass of milk. Shirley phoned the doctor. Doctor said fine about the milk but take her to Emergency Ward by taxi. Neighbor put casserole in oven at 6:00 p.m. Resident intern said test negative for toxicity of detergent. Shirley and Sharon returned home at 6:25. Dinner ready. Casserole wonderful. Dinner fine.

GALA CHICKEN CASSEROLE. Serves 4 to 6 — A LIFE SAVER!

2 cups cooked rice (see below)
One 12-oz. can asparagus pieces (or fresh frozen peas or fresh cooked asparagus in season)
⅓ cup chopped pimiento or salad olives
2 to 2½ cups cooked chicken pieces — 1 or 1½"
One can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1-3 cup milk
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
2-3 cup grated sharp or process cheese
Simmer a 2½-3 lb. chicken — in water not quite to cover with one small onion sliced and 1 tsp. salt, until meat will fall from bones. Carefully remove chicken to tray or platter and as soon as it cools enough remove meat from bones and cut up. Strain broth and measure 2 cups. Cook one cup rice in this broth ½ hr.

Butter a 13 x 9" casserole and turn in rice and smooth it to cover bottom. Add layer of the asparagus and pimiento or salad olives. Cover these with the chicken pieces. Mix together soup, milk, salt and pepper and pour over chicken. Sprinkle grated or shredded cheese over top. (If prepared in advance chill in refrigerator until 30 or 40 min. before mealtime.) Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 30 min. or until cheese bubbles and is golden and casserole is heated through.

Clip this recipe now. It may be a life saver to you too.

Read Catholic Women's League Meets

TWEED — The recent meeting of Read Catholic Women's League was held at St. Mary's School following Mass. Reverend Father Ferguson opened the meeting with president Mrs. William Buckley in charge. The minutes of the executive meeting were read and all letters were acknowledged.

It was decided to give a member of long standing, who is leaving the Parish, a gift. A note of thanks was also given to Mrs. J. Hartigan for her work this past summer at the soft drink booth. It was decided to give Read Club a sum of money.

The Read Council has been invited to the bazaar at Marysville. And also to the one to be held in Desoronto dates were given for both.

Each convener read her directive and Mrs. J. Shannon, Diocesan convener, of Radio and TV, outlined part of her program to be carried out during the winter months.

Mrs. J. Shannon introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Arnold Monger, Diocesan 1st vice-president, who spoke on 'Christian in the Community.'

Mrs. T. V. Corrigan thanked the guest speaker for taking time out from her busy schedule to come from Brewers Mills.

Tea and cakes were served by the women of the 9th concession and Richmond.

Sister Mary Florette of Nicholson College, Belleville, will be the guest speaker for the next meeting. A film will be shown at that time.

Hastings Manor Anniversary Tea and Bazaar Provides Pleasant Afternoon of Unique Handicrafts

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

The anniversary tea and bazaar held at Hastings Manor Wednesday afternoon, October 16, was a tremendous success.

The event, held annually, is made possible by the Ladies Auxiliary of Hastings Manor, the residents as well as the staff. Each contributed in a very important and special way, to make the venture the most successful it has ever been.

Inviting guests to have a relaxing cup of tea, and enjoy the lovely handicrafts were: Mr. and Mrs. C. White, Warden, Hastings County; Mrs. P. Davidson, auxiliary president, Hastings Manor; Mr. and Mrs. D. Harvey, board chairman, Hastings Manor; Mr. and Mrs. K. H. York, administrator, Hastings Manor.

A lovely tea room it was too. At the entrance were large white wicker baskets of yellow 'mums and gold shasta daisies. Inside, the room was gaily decorated with softly - colored streamers and various appropriate autumn decor.

The main tea table was centred by a lovely three - tier cake, in recognition of the anniversary of the Manor. Covered by a white linen cloth, the table was flanked at either end by a silver tea service. Small bowls of yellow and brown 'mums on each side of the cake, were further enhanced by attractive plates of hors d'oeuvres.

Each tea table, covered in white linen, was also centred by a small bowl of yellow and brown 'mums, and a smaller plate of hors d' oeuvre.

The convener of the tea was Mrs. H. Ketchenon, of Belleville, and the tea room convener was Mrs. Pearl Holmes, also of Belleville. Pianist for the afternoon was Mrs. J. M. Parrott, Belleville.

Convener of handicraft, was Mrs. A. Bottgard, who is also the craft supervisor for the Manor. Mrs. Bongard explained that all the crafts on sale were done by the residents. She described them as "very enthusiastic" in their labors and "a real happy gang."

All proceeds for the tea go back into Hastings Manor to serve wherever the need arises.

The variety of handicrafts that were on sale defied the imagination. Anything from Christmas candles to cleverly made pyjama dolls. Crocheted handiwork of all description- leather work, evergreen -paper flowers — these and many more.

Convener of the bake table was Mrs. O. Bertrand of Belleville. Here, the usual fine array of cakes, pies and other pastry delicacies to warm the heart of the "dessert-enfended" were on sale.

Convener of the door prizes were Mrs. N. Wemeds, of Belleville, The winners were: Walter Pigden, Manor resident; Mrs. Carol Cobourgh, Belleville and Mrs. G. Elliot, also of Belleville.

Residents assisting with ticket sales were Harry Abbitt and Stillman Guy. Resident information was available from Mrs. Mable Greene.

Goods for sale, good goods for sale. All this and more were available at the Anniversary tea and bazaar at Hastings Manor, held Wednesday afternoon. Handicrafts were made by the residents. Things to delight a child's heart — especially the heart of Rhonda Caverly, age 4, who could not resist wanting to shake hands with the keeper of pyjamas. She was just a little shy, though.

Guild Hears Topic Dealing With 'Women'

Thanksgiving was the theme of the worship service at the October meeting of the Albert College Women's Guild.

Mrs. J. A. Dills was in charge of this service and told two stories concerning the hymn "Count Your Many Blessings". They both pointed to the fact that "we must count our blessings no matter how little we have."

Mrs. F. Wilson who was in charge of the program introduced Mrs. Dills, Mrs. W. Lamb, who sang an inspirational solo and Rev. Fred Love of Trenton, who was the guest speaker for the afternoon.

Mr. Love chose for his topic the changes in woman's role in the church during the centuries. At first women were allowed no participation in church services. This was partly because women did not have the education or the background to take part in the services. Later they were given inferior roles and even subjugated. Now women have a different role to play. Men are more concerned with things and women are more concerned with people. Hence men and women have special jobs. Men tend to become engineers, scientists, while women become nurses, teachers, and social workers.

Men set their eyes on a goal and push forward to achieve it. Women often have to make decisions and adjustments to achieve their goal. Mr. Love said that women were not wanting to be equal with men but just able to use their abilities to the fullest. Some of the qualities of men will be replaced by computers and they must learn to take over some of the qualities formerly applied to women. Women have always had qualities of love and concern for others. Men must adopt them. The business of the meeting was conducted by Mrs. H. McKay the president.

Mrs. F. Wilson thanked the participants in the program.

Community Honors Couple

The Mount Pleasant community tendered recently married couples, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Wrightman and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Smith, a shower party on Friday evening in the church hall. Llodsay McKeown was master of ceremonies.

Rebert H. Hoard and Mrs. Garth Joslin were in charge of the sing song. Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave two readings; and Lynn Joslin sang, while piano solos were later given by Mrs. Mac Sharp and Jeannette Hoard. Harvey Couch and son Kenneth rendered accordion and harmonica music.

Janet Cousens and Mrs. R. H Hoard read selections. Mrs. Milford Wrightman showed movies. Addresses were read by Miss Barbara Williams and David Potts.

Each couple received a purse of money from the community and the local U.C.W. The recipients voiced thanks and invited the group to visit them in their new homes.

Concorde on View

The British version of the Anglo-French Concorde supersonic jet airliner, with an acoustic blanket of aluminium sheeting over its tail for protection during static engine runs, made its public debut recently. So far airlines have placed options on 74 Concordes. The first Concorde should fly in November, 1968, and the British version early in 1969. It is due in airline service by 1972.

Canadian and U.S. Economies Diverged When Expansion Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — A "pronounced and prolonged parting of the ways" of the Canadian and U.S. economies occurred in 1967, says the pre-budget white paper tabled in the Commons Wednesday by Finance Minister Benson.

Federal economists came to this conclusion after analysing a puzzling loss of short-term funds from Canada during the year.

They now believe that corporate investments in expansion, which normally run about parallel in the two countries, changed course first in Canada and began to decline.

U. S. parent corporations stopped their normally continuous supply of working capital to Canadian subsidiaries, and reversed their advances.

More than $300,000,000 appears to have been returned to the U.S. in the first quarter of 1967, making up most of a flow of $500,000,000 that confounded analysts when it first appeared.

The same factors were at work in the flow of direct investment funds, although the total supply of long-term funds to Canada remained high for a number of special reasons.

The review recorded the curious item almost as a footnote against the serious account of international monetary developments in 1967 and early 1968.

An underlying concern about future growth of international reserves to finance world trade was reflected in major developments: Devaluation of the pound sterling, high interest rates, U.S. capital restraints, a run on gold and creation of a two-tier gold system.

Canada endured a brief currency crisis of its own in between January and mid-March, due almost entirely to these external factors although the budget papers say "pessimism about Canada's competitive position in international markets" contributed.

Three developments are credited with removing a sense of crisis in financial markets:

—International co-operation, including an agreement on the new supplemental reserve asset in the International Monetary Fund known as special drawing rights.

—Beginning of talks on peace in Vietnam.

Despite the crisis and tight monetary policy that went with it, more funds have been raised by borrowers in Canadian financial markets during the 12 months to mid-1968 than in the previous year.

"Mortgage approvals, the trend in bank loans and the new climate of cautious convalescence in bond markets indicate that through 1968 the rate of total loanable funds disbursed is being maintained at a high level."

Excise Revenue Clarified

OTTAWA (CP) — The 1967 pre-budget white paper indicated an unprecedented increase in the fiscal year ended March 31 last year in excise duty revenue from spirits and beer. It showed just as spectacular a decline in the take from tobacco products.

It all turned out to be a sort of bookkeeping mirage. Final figures for that year came out in this year's pre-budget white paper tabled in the Commons Wednesday. Comparison with the preliminary set issued 16½ months ago indicates that maybe $75,000,000 to $80,000,000 in tobacco revenue got credited to alcohol in error.

At the time, excise experts were baffled and unbelieving as they contemplated the figures: $112,100,004 in excise duties on tobacco, down $75,000,000 from the previous year; $305,400,000 in excise on alcohol, up $91,100,000.

In the annual white paper, figures for the last fiscal year are preliminary and incomplete but they rarely turn out a year later to have been so wide of the mark.

The tobacco take, from both excise taxes and excise duties, in the fiscal year ended last March 31 totalled $401,300,000

Excise duties on spirits and beer plus excise taxes on wine amounted to $206,000,000 compared with $276,300,000.

Bloom Off Boom In Export Sales

OTTAWA (CP) — The bloom is off the boom in Canada's export sales to the U.S. this year, says the pre-budget white paper tabled in the Commons Wednesday by Finance Minister Benson.

The U.S. can be expected to scale down its purchases "substantially" from the first half of 1968 now that tax increases and government spending cuts are taking effect there.

The remarkable increase in sales to the U.S. — 25 per cent in the first half — more than compensated for declining sales to Italy, Japan and some other major buyers.

But the budget papers are not pessimistic about the trade balance for the year despite the expected slack in American buying.

Canada's merchandise trade surplus for the first half ran at an annual rate of more than $1,000,000,000, double the level of the same period last year.

Lower exports at year-end will offset only to an extent other favorable developments in the Canadian economy, such as easing price and cost pressures, inventory buildup, and rising business and housing investment.

Casting back to the 1967 export performance, the review says a recovery of sales in the fourth quarter was "extraordinary."

Wheat exports were in a slump and automotive sales affected by strikes. Other exports, however, rose about 13 per cent in the quarter as foreign demand increased, especially in Europe and the U.S. Sales of copper, iron and steel increased, reflecting strikes and potential strikes.

Debt Now $809 Each

OTTAWA (CP) — The net national debt rose by $792,400,000 last Year to $18,737,400,000—or $809 for each of the 20,700,000 people in the country at March 31, 1968.

The net debt a year previous was $15,944,900,000 or $785 per capita.

The pre-budget white paper tabled in the Commons Wednesday by Finance Minister Benson shows the net debt as the difference between the gross public debt and the government's net recorded assets.

Labor Outgrows Market

OTTAWA (CP) — A labor picture as bright as a five-per-cent unemployment rate will allow was drawn by Finance Minister Benson Wednesday in his pre-budget white paper tabled in the Commons.

Output has increased and employment has continued to grow, but not as quickly as the labor force, says the review.

Most recently, thousands of young people leaving school have been seeking work.

The white paper says enlarged technical and vocational training facilities for students, as well as retraining and mobility programs for older workers, will contribute to the efficiency of the labor force by 1970.

Canada might be past its most rapid period of acceleration in labor force growth, but next year it would continue to have one of the highest growth rates among industrial countries.

Canada's unemployment rate rose from an average of 3.6 per cent in 1965 to 4.1 per cent in 1967 and 4.8 per cent in the first half of 1968. At mid-year it was about five per cent.

Employment increased by 227,000 in 1967 and a further 117,000 in the first eight months of 1968, or by 344,000 in the 20-month period. Over the same 20 months, however, the labor force grew by 468,000, adding 124,000 persons to unemployment rolls.

Output Per Employee Up

Price Gain Spiral Moderates

OTTAWA (CP) — The strong rise in prices in the last two years now has moderated, and there have been productivity gains in manufacturing industry, says the pre-budget white paper tabled in the Commons Wednesday by Finance Minister Benson.

The white paper studies price changes from the point of view of the whole economy, rather than the consumer retail prices surveyed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics every month.

On the basis of the price factor involved in the national income and expenditure accounts, the white paper says prices rose by 3.9 per cent last year, compared with 4.5 per cent in 1966.

In the first half of 1968, the price rise was 3.3 per cent from the first half of 1967.

"The forces principally bearing upon price changes in 1967 were a continued but much more moderate upward movement of food prices, a rise in the price of services as higher wage and other costs worked through the service sectors, a rapidly developing shortage of serviced land and of housing, and higher indirect taxes at both the federal and provincial levels," the economic review said.

It added that during the last two years, increases in indirect taxes, including retail sales taxes levied by provincial governments, accounted for about one-fifth of the increase in prices of goods and services measured by the DBS consumer price index.

The DBS consumer price index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, stood at 156.4 last month, up 3.8 per cent from September last year.

Acknowledging that government figures on the productivity of works are far from adequate, the white paper said there have been signs of renewed growth after a period of little change.

Output per employee in manufacturing during the second quarter of 1968 was estimated at 1.9 per cent more than in the first quarter, and about 4.5 per featuring during the second quarter of 1967.

Productivity gains in durable goods manufacturing, and in construction have been healthier in the second quarter of this year — 4.3 and 3.9 per cent respectively.

"Message to America"

Negro Medal Winners Shock Games With Protest Salutes

MEXICO CITY (CP) — A symbolic racial protest by two American Negro medal winners added another controversy to the 19th Olympic Games today.

The actions by Tommie Smith and John Carlos, while receiving gold and bronze medals respectively in the men's 200-metre sprint, brought both expressions of shock and praise from white athletes.

As the band played the Star Spangled Banner, Smith thrust his gloved right hand and Carlos his black-sheathed left toward the sky in a Nazi-like salute.

Both glued their eyes on the ground and refused to look at the American flag as it was being hoisted to the top of the staff at one end of the huge saucer, holding some 70,000 fans.

Asked later about the significance of the black glove and clinched fist, Carlos replied:

"It is a message to America," he said. "The white people won't understand. The black people will. The reason for the closed fist was to show that black men in America are united."

Spectators also saw a fantastic pole vault duel that lasted more than seven hours before American Bob Seagren emerged the winner.

For the first time in Olympic history, man soared more than 17 feet. Gennady Blizntesov of Russia was the first and eight others followed.

The Russian wasn't around at the finish as the bar kept up its climb to 17 feet 8¼ inches. Seagren and two German vaulters cleared the bar at that height but Seagren won because he had fewer misses in the over-all competition.

The height is a world record but Seagren this year went a half-inch higher, and that mark is awaiting recognition.

The Olympic record book is virtually being rewritten in track and field.

Amos Kipwabok Biwott of Kenya swept past his countryman, Pte. Benjamin Kogo, to win the 3,000-metre steeplechase in a respectable 8:51.0. George Young of the United States was third.

In other track finals, Colette Besson of France beat Britain's Lillian Board by inches to take the women's 400-metre gold and Smith broke his own world record in the 200.

Yanis Lusis of Russia, bronze winner four years ago, came up with an Olympic record toss of 295 feet 7¼ inches that gave him the javelin gold medal.

Canada still is looking for its first point of the Games, and may get something in the 5,000 metres today when Bob Finlay of Toronto goes into the final race.

After the black-glove protest, Carlos let loose with a tirade at a news conference.

Critical of the white social structure and Mexican fans who had jeered the protest, he said:

"They look upon us as nothing but animals, low animals, roaches and ants. . . .

"We are sort of show horses out there for the white people.

"What do they think? It's us black athletes, and the black athletes of Africa, who are winning the medals."

Three Britons praised their courage. "We all thought it was a bloody good show," said John Wetton, entered in the 1,500 metres.

Elaine Tanner Girl to Beat

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Canada plunged into Olympic swimming action today with its best talents in half a century.

Although the United States figures to dominate the swimming and diving events as never before, the Canadians have every expectation of winning their first swimming medals since 1928 and a quietly-hopeful of the first gold since 1912.

Even the Americans acknowledge that Elaine Tanner, who recently moved to Winnipeg but calls Vancouver home, is the gal to beat in the two backstroke races.

Qualifying heats in the men's 400-metre freestyle relay and the women's 400-metre medley relay are being held in the 10,000-seat indoor Olympic pool.

The confident, formidable Americans are naturally favored. Behind them, however, the race appears to be wide open.

Canada's medal chances are regarded as better than ever before in all the men's and women's relay races.

The Soivet Union, Australia are top contenders in the men's and women's relays, and the Dutch women are also a medal threat.

He Knew He Won

Water Polo Ends in Brawl

The 4-4 contest was a first-round match in the 15-nation tournament. Both teams got one point for the draw which will count towards playoff positions in the semi-finals.

In other pool action, Hungary dunked West Germany 6-4, U.S. drowned Spain 10-7, Holland swamped Mexico 8-1 and Greece swam by Egypt 7-6.

The U.S., which has never lost an Olympic basketball game, triumphed 73-58 against Yugoslavia in its first big test of the tournament. The United States now has a record 70 victories.

Brazil, bronze medal winner in the last two Olympics, trounced Poland 88-51 and Russia, considered the U.S.'s chief competitor, demoralized Bulgaria 81-56.

Spain defeated Puerto Rico 86-62. Panama edged the Philippines 95-92, Italy trounced Senegal 81-55, Cuba defeated South Korea 80-71 and Mexico knocked out Morocco 86-38.

In soccer action, Guatemala won 4-1 over Thailand and joined France and Israel in the quarter-finals, Spain posted a 3-0 victory over Nigeria, Brazil and Japan battled 1-1 and Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia played to a 2-2 draw.

The other teams to qualify for the quarter-finals will be known when round robin play in the four groups have been completed.

The Russian women's volleyball team downed South Korea 15-9, 15-6 and 15-2 and Poland blanked last-place U.S. 3-0. Russia and Japan lead with 3-0 records.

In men's volleyball, Czechoslovakia outplayed the U.S. 3-1 while the Russians won by the same score over Brazil. Bulgaria blanked Belgium 3-0, Poland won 3-1 over Mexico, and Japan blanked East Germany 3-0.

All the field hockey action Wednesday was in the Group B division, with Pakistan winning 3-2 over Australia to earn first place. Malaysia and Argentina played to a 1-1 draw, Kenya blanked France 2-0 and Holland upset Britain 2-1.

Relay Team Slowed By Domansky Injury

MEXICO CITY (CP — Ross MacKenzie, of Stonewall, Man., qualified but Dom Domansky of Port Arthur, pulled a high muscle and was eliminated Wednesday in the opening heats of the Olympic 400 metres.

Domansky was one of Canada's fast dwindling chances for a medal in track and field. He has covered the distance in 45.8 seconds.

"I hurt it about a week ago when another runner crashed into me on the practice track," Domansky said. "It seemed to be all right, but I felt it pop with about 100 metres to go.

Domansky, bronze medallist at the 1967 Pan-American Games in Winnipeg, finished fifth in his heat. He would not have been able to compete if he had qualified.

Yachters Are Finding Competition Is Tough

ACAPULCO (CP-AP) — A Dragon-class yacht from the United States, skippered by Buddy Friedrichs, finished first Wednesday in the third race of the seven-race Olympic yachting regatta.

But first place in the Dragon standings still was held by the East German entry of Paul Borowski, who finished third behind Aage Birch of Denmark.

Stephen Tupper of Vancouver, who sailed Mai IV to a third-place finish in the initial race of the series, 12th this time, but clung to fifth place over-all.

The East Germans have 8.7 Olympic points and the Canadians 38.7 in this competition in which the lowest total in six races means a gold medal. Each competitor's poorest effort is dropped in considering the final standing.

In the Flying Dutchmen class, Rodney Pattison and Iain MacDonald-Smith of Britain finished first for the third consecutive time in a race sailed in light but steadily rising winds.

Dr. Roger Green and Stewart Green of Toronto finished fifth and are eighth over-all. The Canadian entry's protest brought the disqualification of the British entry on opening day, but the Britons go right on cressing the finish line ahead of everyone else. Naturally they will drop from consideration the race in which they were disqualified.

Ulf Sundelin of Sweden, winner of Wednesday's 5.5-metre race, leads his class with only eight Olympic points. Luis Noverraz of Switzerland, second Wednesday, has 13 points. In 12th place is Staedtler Leibel's Toronto entry, which finished 12th in the third race.

Britain Too Broke For Games

MEXICO CITY (Reuters) — Britain is too broke to stage the Olympic Games in the near future, Prince Philip was quoted Wednesday as saying here.

"We're broke already, and wait until you have to start paying the bills for this affair," the Queen's husband told Mexican reporters, says the English-language newspaper The News.

Prince Philip, here to attend the Olympic Games, was replying to a question on whether Britain has ambitions to host the Games in the near future.

The Olympics have already been held in London twice, in 1908 and 1948.

According to the paper, Prince Philip said his son Prince Charles was "...." pointed he would not come to Mexico but had to stay and study at Cambridge.

"There are some places where they still study, you know," he was quoted as saying.

Jackson Last Hope In Sculls

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Roger Jackson of Toronto drew the easier of the two semi-final heats for the single sculls competition today on the Olympic rowing course.

He is up against Jan Wienese of Holland, but the other top contenders, Niels Secher of Denmark, Achim Hill of East Germany, Jochen Meissner of West Germany and Manfred Krausbar of Austria, are all in the other heat.

Individual sabres: John Andru, Toronto, fifth in first-round pool with two wins, four losses.

Jenny Finishes 11th Plans Time Out for Baby

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Jenny Wingerson Meldrum of Toronto wants to take a year off to have a baby before pursuing her ambitions in track and field.

"I definitely want a baby," the attractive blonde private secretary said Wednesday after finishing 11th in the women's pentathlon with 4,774 points—a personal high.

"It wasn't good enough," she said. "I was going for 4,900 but I bombed out in the shot put."

Mrs. Meldrum, whose husband Bob remained in Toronto to work on a home he has just purchased, put the shot 40 feet eight inches. It was almost five feet short of her personal best.

"Bob will be so disappointed," she said. "He was confident I could end up with 4,900 points."

Although Mrs. Meldrum improved her standing from a 13th place finish at the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo, she was below her personal best in four of the five pentathlon events.

Besides being off form in the shot put, she ran the 80-metre hurdles in 11 seconds, four-tenths of a second off her Canadian native record, got 19-4 as opposed to her 19-5 in the long jump and clocked 24.3 seconds, three-tenths of a second off her top mark in the 200 metres.

"I was disappointed in everything but the high jump," she said.

"That has always been my weak event and I got 5-3 this time. I had been jumping four years at 4-11 and I didn't think I was ever going to make five feet."

Mrs. Meldrum, 25, who is coached by her husband, says she sees no reason why she cannot take a year off to have a baby and return to track and field.

"Mary Rand of England did it and improved her performance so why shouldn't I have the same results."

She says she has entered the women's 80-metre hurdles today "just for a lark."

After that, win or lose, Mrs. Meldrum plans to stay in Mexico until the closing ceremonies Oct. 27.

Pappin Three-Goal Scorer In 10-4 Bombing of Stars

By SCOTT BUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal Canadiens ended the 1967-68 National Hockey League season by taking four consecutive games from St. Louis Blues in the Stanley Cup finals, Wednesday night, they were at it again.

The Canadiens scored three third-period goals to overcome a one-goal deficit and defeat the Blues 4-2 before 12,502 fans at St. Louis.

The victory was the first in the NHL for rookie Montreal coach Claude Ruel who replaced retired Toe Blake.

In other NHL action, Chicago Black Hawks bombed Minnesota North Stars 10-4, Boston Bruins edged Oakland Seals 2-1, New York Rangers shaded Philadelphia Flyers 3-1 and Pittsburgh Penguins and Toronto Maple Leafs played to a 2-2 tie.

The Canadiens, held to a 1-1 tie in their season opener at Pittsburgh last Saturday night, started slowly again Wednesday. The Blues broke in front at 5:58 of the second period when Tim Ecclestone scored the game's first goal.

John Bellivau tied the score at 10:36 of the period, but St. Louis pulled ahead again on Ron Schock's 18:31 tally.

The Canadiens, however, came back strongly in the final period at the expense of a former team-mate, St. Louis goaltender Jacques Plante.

John Ferguson, Jacques Lemaire and Yvan Cournoyer scored final-period goals for the Canadiens. Cournoyer's goal on a pass from Beliveau at 13:06 proved to be the winner.

The Black Hawks put on the young season's most potent display of scoring, before 16,606 at Chicago, to win their third consecutive game. The victory left Chicago in a first place tie with Boston in the Eastern Division.

Jim Pappin scored three goals for Chicago to bring his season total to six. Dennis Hull added a pair and single goals came from Bobby Hull, Stan Mikita, Ken Wharram, Pat Stapleton and Bob Schmautz.

Danny O'Shea, Milan Marcetta, Bill Collins and Ray Cullen tallied for the North Stars, tied for first in the Western Division with St. Louis and Pittsburgh.

Stapleton picked up four assists in addition to his goal and now has 10 points.

The first five Chicago goals were scored against Cesare Maniago. Minnesota manager-coach Wren Blair pulled Maniago out at the end of the first period and let rookie Tom Rivard face the Chicago attack.

Pittsburgh, picked by many to finish last in the Western Division, pulled off their second upset in as many starts this season.

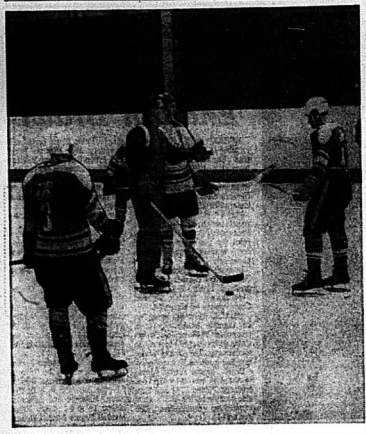
The Penguins held a 2-1 margin midway through the final period, before 16,221 Toronto fans, when Mike Walton collected the tying goal.

Larry Mickey, who drew an assist on Walton's goal, scored the first Toronto tally. Billy Dea and Wally Boyer scored for Pittsburgh which has two ties in two games.

Rookie defenceman Jim Dorey of Toronto was the main culprit during a brawl late in the second period and was given a minor, two majors, a misconduct and game misconduct by referee Art Skov.

Dorey, 21, who also received three minor penalties earlier in the game, set NHL records for the most penalties in a game, eight, and the most penalty minutes, 38.

George Boucher of Ottawa Senators and Ted Green of Boston had held the record for most penalties, seven. Reg Fleming, then a Chicago Black Hawk, set the record for most penalty minutes when he received 37 against New York Rangers Oct. 19, 1960.



Rod Gilbert, Bob Nevin and Jean Ratelle scored for New York in its victory against Philadelphia before 15,906 at New York. Simon Nolet picked up the only Philadelphia goal.

The triumph was the first NHL victory as a coach for Bernie Geoffrion of New York.

The Bruins, undefeated in three games this season, received goals from John Bucyk and Eddie Shack to defeat Oakland before 4,270 in the California city.

The Bruins held a 2-0 lead until Ted Hampson scored for the Seals in the final minute of the second period.

Tonight, Montreal is at Minnesota, New York plays against the Red Wings at Detroit, Boston meet the Kings at Los Angeles and Pittsburgh is at Philadelphia.

Coach Crawford Straightens Out His Lines

Junior Coach Surprised, Pleased and Optimistic

By JERRY HOFF
(Staff Reporter)

Floyd Crawford is a man who received some pleasant surprises last Sunday. And he hopes the happy circumstances continue this Sunday.

The coach of the Morrison Realty Junior "B" hockey club got his first intimation this may be a surprising season for his young club last Sunday when the local juniors ran over the Kingston Frontenacs 6-4 on the Belleville ice.

"I wasn't surprised we beat them," explained the coach. "I was surprised at the ability of the boys. It was simply unexpected. They blossomed on the ice. I saw a lot more hockey players that afternoon than I'd seen during two weeks of practice."

That surprise has been uppermost in the coach's mind since last week. He has high hopes it will be repeated this Sunday when the juniors meet the Trenton Golden Hawks in the first game of the regular season for both teams.

"I can't say anything about the Trenton team except that playing them is a good way to open the season. Trenton's so close to Belleville there's a natural rivalry. And the Trenton team will bring a good sized group with them. So the boys will have the added incentive of the rival crowds, plus the fact these boys have played against Trenton in high school and city sports since they started, so there's a lot of personal rivalry.

"It'll be a good hard-fighting game."

The Belleville juniors are in trim for the coming contest. More than 50 boys showed up for the opening practice two weeks ago and between drop-outs and parting by Crawford, the 1968 squad now stands at 20 players.

"We're a young club," the coach said. "Most of these boys have three years of junior eligibility left. But that doesn't mean we're making excuses. And we're not building for tomorrow at the expense of this season.

"We want to win. If anyone doesn't believe it, they should take a look at the score sheet from the Frontenac game. My biggest problem is in holding these kids back. We're not aiming for the stars this year, however," the coach smiled. "We're just heading for the playoffs."

The tools Crawford is using to get to the playoffs look capable of the job. Singling out players, he had nothing but praise for his offence and defence.

Ron Fuller, 1967's most valuable player in the local juniors, sparks the offensive at right wing. Ray Summers, also a veteran at right wing, adds depth. Brian Coughlin, a rookie has impressed the coach. "The kid's got the tools to be a top player," Crawford said.

Ted Waite also drew praise for his work at left wing. "That boy's really improved over last year. He's out there to play and shows it — in practice and in the game."

The defence is practically a rookie lineup with the coach singling out Phil Kirby — "just up from the Bantams, but going to be good. He has all the assets; goalie Paul Hopkins — "young, but learning fast." Wayne Brown Jr. and Greg Burkitt — "they should do well in the juniors. Both are young, aggressive, and full of energy. I have to hold them down."

"I was especially pleased with the positional play against Kingston considering the length of time we've practiced together," said Crawford.

There is a kind of man who tries.

You have seen him. He limps a little when it's damp. Everything he does, he gives it the full shot. 100 per cent. My friend, there is a whisky like that. The full shot. Gold Stripe.

It will put 100 per cent full, laughing taste in your mouth with every sip. And quietly leave. Without biting. If you're not afraid of a little honest taste, maybe you should try Gold Stripe. And get the full shot.

Sport Briefs

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos of the National League Wednesday purchased outfielder Don Bosch from New York Mets. The 26-year-old Bosch, a switch hitter, is described by Jim Fanning, Expos general manager, as a "good defensive outfielder."

* * *

CALGARY (CP) — Halfback Frank Andruski of Calgary Stampeders will miss Sunday's Western Football Conference game in Edmonton against the Eskimos because of a "severe neck sprain," Calgary general manager Ropers Jabaw said Tuesday. Andruski suffered a neck injury when tackled by Saskatchewan Roughriders' Gordie Barwell late in Monday's game at Regina. He is still in hospital in Regina.

* * *

LONDON (AP) — Jim Standen, who played goal for Detroit Cougars of the North American Soccer League in 1968, signed Wednesday with Millwall of the English League.

* * *

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — Scotland beat Denmark 3-0 in an international soccer game Wednesday night. The goal was scored in the 70th minute by outside left Bobby Kiennox.

* * *

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Red Schoendienst signed Wednesday to manage the National League champion St. Louis Cardinals baseball club again next season and expressed satisfaction with his one-year contract. Salary terms were not disclosed. Informed sources said he got a raise of about $10,000 a year which put him in the $55,000 range in his fifth year as manager.

MANCHESTER (AP) — Estudiantes of Argentina drew 1-1 with Manchester United of England Wednesday night and won the world club soccer title on a 2-1 goals aggregate. The tension-packed game, watched by a sellout crowd of 60,000 at Manchester's Old Trafford Stadium, erupted into violence two minutes from the end. George Best of Manchester and Hugo Medina of Estudiantes came to blows and were sent off the field. Best was seat sprawling, and as he got up he aimed a blow at Medina. The two players swung more punches at each other as they walked off to the dressing room.

Golf Pros Tee Off At Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Four of golf's current top money winners, headed by defending champion Jack Nicklaus, were set to tee off today in the first round of the $100,000 Sahara invitational tournament. With the 36-hole pro-amateur sideshow completed, and Kenny Still of Tacoma, Wash., the individual winner, a field of 159 was entered in the main tournament.

Play is at the 7,109-yard, par-72 Paradise Valley Country Club where a year ago Nicklaus put together rounds of 68-69-62-71—270.

The total beat out young Steve Spray of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, by one stroke. Spray is back for another crack at the $200,000 purse.

The leading PGA money winners here start with Billy Casper, Nicklaus and Nos. 4 and 5—Julius Boros and George Archer. The No. 3 man, Tom Weiskopf did not enter, nor did Arnold Palmer, No. 6.

Three to Go

Gerela Chases NFL Field Goal Record

TORONTO (CP) — Ted Gerela of British Columbia Lions did not expected last week in the Canadian Football League—he set a field goal record.

And with three games left to play in the regular schedule, the Western Conference kicking star could establish a record for professional football.

Statistics released Wednesday by the CFL show Gerela kicked six field goals in the last week to boost his 1968 season total to 25. The total eclipses the previous record of 22 shared by Peter Kempf of Edmonton Eskimos and Larry Robinson of Calgary Stampeders.

The professional football record is 28, set in the 1966 season by Bruce Gossett of Los Angeles Rams and shared by Pete Gogolak of Buffalo Bills.

Rudy Linterman of Calgary was the other big man in the Western Conference last week, increasing his punt return record to 90. The total surpasses the former high of 93 returns by Leigh McMillan of Edmonton Eskimos in 1958.

Linterman's total is also a professional football record since there has never been a player in the National or American Leagues returning more than 50 punts in a single season.

Gerela, meanwhile, enjoys a 15-point lead over Robinson in the WFC scoring race. Gerela has 94 points on 12 converts, 25 field goals and seven singles. Bill Goods of Saskatchewan Roughriders is third with 71 points and Kempf has 57.

In the rushing department, George Reed of Saskatchewan has a 4.6-yard average, rolling up 936 yards in 202 carries. Jim Evenson of the Lions has a five-yard average with 893 yards in 178 carries.

Terry Evanshen of Calgary leads in pass receiving with 55 catches for 864 yards and a 15.7-yard average. Herman Harrison, Evanshen's team-mate, is second with 53 catches for 1,056 yards.

Quarterback Peter Liske of Calgary is top passer in the conference with 217 completions in 361 attempts for 3,549 yards. Lancaster of Saskatchewan has 158 for 310 and John Schneider of Winnipeg Blue Bombers has 152 completions in 343 tries.

Dancer Moving To U.S.

TORONTO (CP) — Northern Dancer, the only Canadian horse to win the Kentucky Derby, is moving to the United States.

E. P. Taylor's seven-year-old thoroughbred will stand as a stud at Taylor-owned Windfields Farm in Chesapeake City, Md.

Joe Thomas, vice-president of operations at the Toronto Windfields Farm, said Wednesday Northern Dancer will be shipped south "in a couple of weeks."

Thomas said 40 mares are booked for the Canadian horse at a service fee of $15,000 each. The fee was $10,000 in 1965 when Northern Dancer became a stud.

The fee boost follows first-year successes from Northern Dancer's offspring.

They include American C. V. Whitney's True North, who set a track record in his first race at Santa Anita, Calif.; Jitterbug, a filly that won her first race at Belmont, N.Y., and Canadian-owned Viceregal.

Viceregal, owned by Taylor, won seven straight stakes races at Ontario tracks this summer before retiring for the season with a foot injury.

Northern Dancer, who won the Kentucky Derby in 1964, will join a number of successful sires at the Maryland farm, including Nearctic and former Preakness winner Royal Orbit.

OTTAWA, Ontario — Modern science treatment methods for saving hair and improving its growth will be demonstrated in Belleville at the Hotel Quinte on Friday, 18 October, 1968.

Specialists J. Alberti will be in charge of representing the famous Roberts Hair and Scalp Specialists organization. He will personally examine hair-worried men and women between 1 p.m. and 8 p.m.

This new treatment is neither mail-order nor cure-all. It is adapted to the individual after a personal examination and progress is checked at regular intervals by a Roberts' specialist.

WHO CAN BE HELPED?

Will the new Roberts' treatment cure baldness? No! We cannot help men and women who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss. But if you still have fuzz and your scalp is still covered by hair you can at least save and thicken what you have. So one conditions such as spot baldness usually show complete coverage, if caught in time.

If you've been too busy lately to take stock of your hair, better do so at once! Take time to look all around your head—top, too.

See too much forehead? Too little hair? Too little hair? Then you're being robbed by a kind of hair loss that preys on the busy men and women of this modern age.

"Creeping baldness" the Roberts' team calls it.

And we've seen a lot of it in our years of work with bashful people. Thousands of "creeping baldness" victims have gained treatment from the Roberts' team.

Typically, the victims of "creeping baldness" are so absorbed in the hectic pace of modern life that they fail to notice the deteriorating condition of their hair until one morning they have a look at themselves and there it isn't!

HEALTHY SCALP, HEALTHY HAIR

Our new methods of home treatment are very successful in so much cases if we start in time.

Where human hair is concerned the Roberts' specialists reason in this direct cause-and-effect approach. As long as your scalp is in healthy condition, it will regrow as much hair as is naturally shed. 2. If your scalp is not healthy it's because of neglect or improper care not "fate". 3. Through treatment and home care directed by a Roberts' expert, you can put your scalp in healthy, hair-growing condition . . . and keep it that way.

As proof of the success of their methods, Roberts' specialists say: "Of the thousands of clients that have started treatment with the money back guarantee, less than 5% have asked for refunds." In any thing more beyond reasonable doubt that our methods do at the least, They're practical. They work.

WHAT CAUSES BALDNESS?

Actually the two most common causes of baldness are neglect and mistreatment of the hair. Baldness in its common forms does not come suddenly. It is a gradual starvation and shrinking of the hair follicles until no hair-growing ability remains.

Hair loss begins with its warning signs of dandruff, itchy or tender scalp, falling hair or unhealthy dull or dry scalp. Once these symptoms are noticed immediate steps should be taken to check the growth destroying conditions before fatal follicle shrinkage rules all hope for hair replacement.

DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE

Baldness won't wait for doubters to be convinced. You are going to keep right on losing hair, until you act, unless you get your scalp in healthy hair growing condition again. This week I want to personally invite any man or woman who is concerned to grow as much hair as is humanly possible. 2. If your scalp is not healthy it's because of neglect or improper care not "fate". 3. Through treatment and home care directed by a Roberts' expert, you can put your scalp in healthy, hair-growing condition . . . and keep it that way.

Recommendation on Art College Draws Mixed Reaction

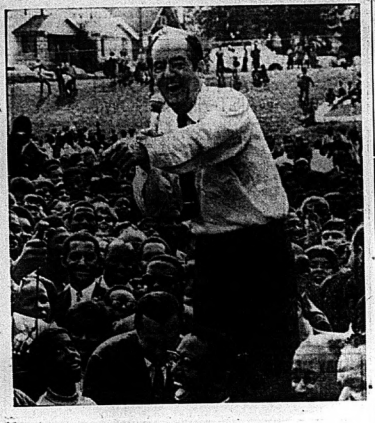
By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A recommendation that students be given a strong voice in running the Ontario College of Art in Toronto has drawn mixed reaction from university administrators and student representatives across the province.

Dr. Douglas Wright, special investigator and chairman of the committee on university affairs, Tuesday recommended to Education Minister William Davis a major shake-up of the college structure. It would give teachers and students a place on an all-powerful 19-member council which would determine almost every phase of college policy, including the power to hire or fire the college president.

The council would include nine members from the public at large, six from the faculty and three students.

Sydney Watson, OCA president, termed the report a "truly democratic distribution of responsibility" and said he would start immediately to introduce some reforms which do not need approval.



D. Carlton Williams, president of the University of Western Ontario, said Wednesday the art college through this experiment "can make a really genuine contribution to higher education in the province."

But Brian Iler, president of the Student Federation at the University of Waterloo, said: "The power will primarily be in the same place. . . . To have an effective voice students must have an effective vote. It's going to take a long time and confrontation between groups, before the students get concessions."

Jeffery Fear, 22, president of the OCA Students Administrative Council, said Dr. Wright seemed to agree that students should participate in decision making but, in a stalemate, the recommendation would still give the deciding vote to the president.

One university president, who declined to be identified, lashed out at the recommendation and said it would be like having the "asylums run by the inmates."

Dr. Basil Healey, acting vice-president at Waterloo Lutheran University, said he could see "nothing wrong with trying such a system."

Judge Describes Seven As 'Cowardly Animals'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Seven men described as cowardly animals deserving a whipping were sentenced Wednesday to jail terms ranging from five to eight years for the confinement and beating of James Canaan, 21.

"I would wager that individually each of the accused is a coward but collectively they acted like a pack of animals," Mr. Justice Thomas Dohm said in the Supreme Court of British Columbia. "But I would doubt if animals would treat their victims the way the victim was treated in this case."

Police identified the seven as members of the Satan's Angels Motorcycle Club.

The seven were convicted following a six-week trial on charges of confining Mr. Canaan against his will, assaulting him with intent to wound, disfigure or cause bodily harm, indecent assault and assault causing bodily harm.

Davie Black, 24, Laverne Schmidt, 25, Albert Spivey, 22, and Charles Dumont, 27, all of Vancouver, were sentenced to concurrent terms of five years on the first count, seven on the second and third counts and two years on the fourth count.

John Gregory, 23, of Vancouver was sentenced to five years on the first count, eight on the second, seven on the third count and two on the fourth.

Gary Clayton Wilbur, 22, of Red Deer, Alta., and Aubrey Leighton Baker, 24, of Edmonton were sentenced to five years on the first count, two years on a reduced charge of causing bodily harm on count two, five years on count three and two years on count four.

Board Finds Captain Guilty of Negligence

VICTORIA (CP) — A five-man court martial board Wednesday found Cmdr. Norman F. Jackson, captain of HMCS Saskatchewan, guilty of negligence in the grounding of his ship Sept. 8 in the Gulf of Georgia.

The court ruled Cmdr. Jackson "negligently hazarded one of Her Majesty's Canadian ships" while approaching Active Pass in the Gulf of Georgia.

The captain was found not guilty of negligently performing a military duty imposed on him as captain.

The board passed a sentence of "severe reprimand" on Cmdr. Jackson, the second least severe punishment possible. Canadian military courts can pass sentences involving 13 alternative punishments, ranging from death or dismissal with disgrace down to a simple reprimand.

The court returned its verdict after deliberating 2½ hours.

It ordered proceedings stayed in a third charge that Cmdr. Jackson "negligently suffered to be hazarded" his ship.

During the five-day hearing, the military court heard testimony from 20 witnesses.

Cmdr. Jackson, 42, a veteran of the Korean War who served with the Royal Navy during the Second World War, had pleaded not guilty to all three charges.

He was in command of the 2,900-ton destroyer-escort when the vessel struck a rock.

Before retiring, the military court heard a 70-minute direction from the judge advocate, Cmdr. H. C. Ferne of Ottawa.

Cmdr. Ferne emphasized to the court, headed by Capt. Frederick C. Frewer, that the standard required of officers under Queen's Regulations "is not one of perfection."

He said the alleged negligence "must go beyond an error in judgment," and must include a lack of zeal, a measure of indifference or an intentional failure to take proper precautions.

In summing up the defence case, Cmdr. J. L. Henderson said Tuesday Cmdr. Jackson, as captain of the ship, had been powerless to avert the collision.

He said the incident resulted from "sheer coincidence."

The last court-martial here was in March, 1963, when Cmdr. Richard H. Levy, then captain of the HMCS Skeena, was reprimanded for contravening standing orders in the accidental shelling by the Canadian warship of the Washington state community of Clallam Bay during exercises.

Cardinal Takes Steps To End Student Revolt

MONTREAL (CP) — Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal took more concrete steps Wednesday to end a province-wide student revolt, urging junior college administrators to get tough with the students.

In a telegram to the administrators, Mr. Cardinal suggested they "contemplate the annulment of the current term" if students occupying colleges do not resume classes "after a reasonable delay."

Mr. Cardinal also proposed to give students a better line of communication with college officials and the education department.

He said the proposal could be implemented this year.

Meanwhile, classes resumed in two of Quebec's 23 new junior colleges—in the northern Abantic- and northwestern Rosemont districts of Montreal.

Still entirely or partially in student hands were three other Montreal colleges and one each in Ste. Therese de Blainville, St. Jerome, Valleyfield, Chicoutimi and St. Jolans.

Hull students voted Wednesday to return to the classes.

At the peak of protest Tuesday, 11 colleges were occupied while sympathisers boycotted university lectures and high school classes.

But at least four colleges have informed students that their work this term will be wiped out unless they agree to resume studies.

The revolt began Oct. 8 when teen-agers took over the junior colleges at Ste. Therese de Blainville, 20 miles north of Montreal.

Their main complaints are a lack of university facilities and a revised student aid plan that includes a cut in scholarship funds and higher interest rates on student loans.

Students Want to Be Treated as Individuals: Nixon

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Nixon, Ontario Liberal leader, told teachers Wednesday that a basic drive behind student unrest is the student's desire to be treated as an individual.

"So the need to individualize education is imperative," he told the Eastern Ontario Secondary School Headmasters' Council fall conference.

A former teacher himself, Mr. Nixon said educationists must reach out to all students and not limit their efforts to special or idea cases.

Strictly Personal

Private Schools Suggested

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

Perhaps the only way to change our rotten educational system for the better is to convert all schools, into private schools, giving families allotments to pay for education, and letting them freely choose where they want to send their children, among schools that are competing to provide the best education, as other institutions must compete for customers and clients.

The fierce toothache often subsides the moment we sit down in the dentist's waiting-room; what this means is that a part of us does not want to be cured, fears and resists the cure almost as much as it dislikes the pain of the ailment — and so it is with society as well, which would rather bear social ills than face any expensive, prolonged and profound therapy.

• • •

When a man says, "Of course, I'm just a small-town boy," he is indulging in reverse snobbery, and his apparent diffidence is really a brag that he has a native shrewdness that can outsmart any city slicker; rural arrogance in this respect is far greater than urban condescension.

Having spent much of the summer on the lake, I appreciate the plaque a friend has hung on the cabin wall of his boathouse: "A boat is a hole in the water with wood around it, through which you pour money."

When people suggest that the Negroes themselves are much to blame for their economic plight, because of certain racial traits, they forget that the other submerged segment of American society consists of the Appalachian whites, who live in the same sort of desperate poverty — and who represent the "purest" Anglo-Saxon stock in the U.S.

There is a difference between fighting when there is a principle at stake, and using the stake to burn the opponents of the principle.

Petitioners Support Woman Officer

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — A group supporting policewoman Lois Beckett in her charges of discrimination by the Sault Ste. Marie police department said Wednesday night they have gathered 1,000 signatures on a petition demand a public hearing into the charges.

The group decided at a meeting to send copies of the petition to Attorney-General Wishart, MPP for Sault Ste. Marie, and C. S. Ferguson of Toronto, chairman of an arbitration board appointed to decide Miss Beckett's claims for salary and benefits given male members of the police force.

Miss Beckett was a policewoman with the Tarentorus Township police department before the township was amalgamated with the city in 1965. She was demoted to clerk-typist and said she was refused membership in the all-male Sault Ste. Marie Police Association.

The arbitration board, ordered by the Ontario Appeal Court, opens hearings Oct. 23 to consider Miss Beckett's claims.

Virus Related To Cancer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — A virus that almost everyone gets may be directly related to some forms of cancer, a specialist said Wednesday.

If wider studies confirm this, an anti-cancer vaccine would be simple, said Dr. James T. Grace Jr. of Buffalo, N.Y.

The preliminary findings suggest, Grace said, that an extremely rare reaction to the "E-B virus" infection may be cell changes "resembling in frank malignant disease such as Hodgkin's disease, lympho-sarcoma, or leukemia."

Grace discussed the findings in a committee on cancer at the 54th clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons.

He emphasized that studies so far suggest—but don't prove—this.

One uncommon response to the virus—which eventually may offer a clue to fighting leukemia—is infectious mononucleosis.

The evidence that these developments occur "is quite good," Grace said. But the hypothesis that the virus can lead to cancer still is not established, he said. For this reason the original study at Roswell Park Memorial Institute, Buffalo, which included blood samples from 475 persons, will be expanded to 10,000 persons.

Thomson Doesn't Want Newspaper

LONDON (CP) — A 45-year-old publisher shook Fleet Street —newspaper row—Wednesday with his offer of more than £20,000,000 (about $57,000,000) for The News of the World. Britain's naughty Sunday newspaper with a circulation of more than 6,000,000.

The familiar saying along Fleet Street is that the News of the World doesn't leave an adultery case uncovered. But it is as much an English institution as Big Ben.

Robert Maxwell, who launched a "Back Britain" campaign last year, startled the press barons with his offer for the Sunday paper, which also controls a string of provincial newspapers and has interests in betting offices, trucking, a golf club and an engineering company.

The News of the World shares jumped on the London stock market.

Maxwell, a Labor member of Parliament, heads the Oxford-based Pergamon Press which publishes scientific and education books.

Lord Thomson, whose own successful bid for The Times caused a big Fleet Street splash in 1966, said he knew Maxwell's bid for The News of the World was coming.

"But we're not interested," the Canadian-born publisher said. "The News of the World doesn't fit into our picture."

Diabetic Coma and Insulin Reaction

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband is diabetic and takes insulin, pills, and seems to have it under control, but now he has neuritis. The doctor is giving him vitamin B-12 — he has had two shots a week for three weeks — but they don't seem to help. Do pain or what?

Do you think neuritis is caused by the diabetes? Is there any other medication for it? — Mrs. H. C.

Yes, there certainly is such a thing as diabetic neuritis, and it is one of many good reasons why diabetes should be kept under as good control as possible.

In addition, large doses of vitamin B complex as well as B-12 alone tend to help correct the neuritis, but three weeks of treatment is not likely to be long enough. Give it time.

Symptoms of neuritis can also occur if the blood sugar is too low. Hence, the doctor may have to see whether the insulin dosage should be reduced.

Remember, of course, that neuritis can occur from other factors unrelated to the diabetes, principally infections, and infections involving the teeth particularly should be eliminated.

Frankly, diabetic neuritis can be a miserable and relentless condition and can progress to a serious degree. On the other hand, I have seen near-cripples from neuritis and return to normal activities and comfort.

Proper control of the diabetes is basic.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son has had a long siege with acne. The doctor gave him two kinds of pills, vitamin A and another which, I believe, was for hormone balance.

They were quite expensive, my husband has discouraged the boy from refilling the prescriptions and decided to prescribe himself by telling him to cut out milk.

The boy has been in excellent health all his life and has averaged a quart of milk a day. At my husband's suggestion, he is now drinking no milk at all, just ea. I feel that since tea has no fod value he is losing valuable proteins etc. Do you think milk causes or advances acne? — M. V.

I think the chance of milk being involved in the acne is so remote as to be what you might call far-fetched. To keep peace in the family, maybe if the no-milk notion doesn't show any results in say a month your husband will give up on that kick.

Certainly the protein, as well as the calcium content, is important in the diet. If your husband is going on the theory that fat has anything to do with the matter, at least get him to permit low-fat or skim milk, so the boy will still get his calcium.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: The doctor says I have an umbilical hernia. Can you explain something about this? He said it would have to be fixed surgically after I stopped having children, but the best thing for me now would be to wear a girdle.

The muscles have pulled so far apart that I feel as if I have a hole in my abdomen. I have been exercising. Would this harm the hernia? — Mrs. M. K.

The umbilicus (or "belly button") can be a weak spot in the abdominal wall and hence develop a hernia or rupture. It occurs rather frequently in infants but often corrects itself.

In adults, it will not correct itself, and closing it by surgical means is the only recourse. Ordinarily, it does not give as much discomfort as the more common hernia in the groin, but it can be unsightly. Until you decide to have surgery, a firmly fitting girdle is all you can do about it. Ordinary exercise should not harm it.

Base Reform Sought

Tax Reform Said International Need

WASHINGTON (CP) — International interest in tax reform will continue for some time and so will the need for government role in the economy, Kenneth Carter, chairman of Canada's recent royal commission on taxes, said Tuesday.

Social needs point to "ever-rising" government spending and this has to be taken into account.

Governments have a choice of continuing to use existing tax bases at rising rates or reforming the tax base and reducing the rates, Carter told the annual meeting of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

The tax-reform package proposed in February last year has yet to be accepted or rejected by the Canadian government, Carter said.

Recommendations dealing with greater Canadian participation in financing business enterprise were "not intended to dry up foreign investment in Canada but rather to encourage Canadian investment to move more toward ownership."

Carter said his "most serious error" as chairman had been forecasting a two-year life for what actually took 4½ years to complete.

"We found it took almost two years to cleanse our minds of our predispositions and at the same time absorb the views of our witnesses."

Carter envisaged "many social reforms ahead which only can be accomplished by governments . . . eradication of poverty, more universal education raising the standards of impoverished nations, improving the health standards of our own country and others."

Expanding economies would consider more of the added cost, but "I feel sure that the future holds higher taxes."

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market posted a wide range of small gains in active mid-morning trading Tuesday. However, the advance did not equal the rapid early surge in prices.

Gains outnumbered losses by 177 to 130.

In industrials, General Motors Corp. rose 2¼ to 93, Bow Valley 1 to 28, Seaway Hotels ¾ to 12, Dofasco Sections ¾ to 13¾ and Toronto-Dominion Bank ¼ to 18.

Among the heaviest traders, Neon Products was up 1¾ to 34. Unex Investments ¼ to 16¾ and West Canadian Plantations ¼ to 6¼.

Iron lost ¾ to 42¼, Union Acceptance ¾ to 5¾ and Thomson nickel in Western Australia.

Stelco gained ¼ to a 1968 high at 26. The company said that capacity at its proposed steel making plant at Nanticoke, Ont., will eventually exceed 10,000,000 ingot tons of steel a year.

Great Lakes Power slipped ¼ to 20 after reporting lower profits for the latest nine-month period.

Among western oils and golds, Canadian Superior rose 1¼ to 62, Patino ¾ to 39¼ and Campbell Chibougamau 60 cents to 28.05.

Sherritt Gordon gained 20 cents to 15.95. The company has concluded an agreement with Western Mining Corp. of Australia to explore jointly for nickel deposits and make feasibility studies.

Bank Profit Could Increase

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian banks are not operating as profitably as they could, John H. Coleman, vice-president and chief general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, said Wednesday.

Mr. Coleman said in a speech to the Toronto Society of Security Analysts that it was difficult to evaluate efforts in Canada to think of enterprise as a goods-producing institution in the U.S. and other countries "because of substantial differences in our respective services and variances in accounting practices and income tax regulations.

Mr. Coleman said the Royal Bank of Canada had its roots in the business philosophy which says the most fruitful way of looking at a business is not to look at its assets but to look at its earnings."

Housing Inquiry Told

Taxes Choke Off Building

TORONTO (CP) — Mounting school costs and the back-breaking taxes to pay for them are choking off home-building in a large number of Ontario municipalities, the federal housing inquiry was told Wednesday.

On a one-day return visit to Toronto, the inquiry heard 14 briefs from builders, developers, municipalities and individuals. Most centred on education costs.

Only four members of the seven-man committee were present: C. E. Pratt, who acted as chairman, Robert Campeau, Peter Carter and James Gillies.

Transport Minister Hellyer, inquiry chairman, was called to Ottawa late Tuesday. Dr. Doris Boyle and Dr. Pierre Dansereau also were absent.

The inquiry began hearings on Canada's housing problems in September. It will hold hearings in Montreal Oct. 21 and 22 and will be in Winnipeg, Regina and Esterhazy, Sask., the following week. The hearings are expected to wind up early in December.

A group of MPs, MPPs and other elected officials from Scarborough borough suggested that the school tax burden be relieved by the province taking over 30 per cent of education costs, leaving 20 per cent to be financed from municipal taxes, instead of up to 65 per cent now.

But they resisted suggestions of inquiry members that the province assume 100 per cent of school costs, saying they wanted to retain some local autonomy.

The Toronto Real Estate Board suggested municipalities issue tax-free bonds to pay for schools and other services.

Developer Samuel Kehner suggested schools and high-rise apartments be built on the same sites with the builder paying ground rent to the school board for the land under the apartment, thus yielding to it a continuing source of revenue.

Stephen Otto, Liberal MP for York East, said builders would be "delighted" to build schools and lease the land to boards of education in return for by-passing the "90 or 100 meetings" needed to get subdivision clearances.

Olson Discusses New Council With Group from Grain Industry

WINNIPEG (CP) — The formation of another organization designed to help Canadian grain farmers solve their economic problems advanced from the idea of reality stage Wednesday.

It's the National Grains Council, the brainchild of Prime Minister Trudeau, which will examine grain situations and offer suggestions on ways to bolster the country's sagging international grain trade.

Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson and Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin discussed the council with more than 100 representatives of the industry in a closed all-day meeting.

They indicated the council would be formally set up soon and it was understood the first meeting would be held in Ottawa in six weeks.

"There was unanimous agreement for the need of the grains council as a forum for interested parties to meet on a regular basis to discuss production, marketing and research," Mr. Olson said at a news conference.

The preliminary discussions examined the scope of the council's membership, organization, administration and terms of reference.

While final terms of reference were not completed, Mr. Olson said the council will have about 25 or 30 members representing the industry and an executive committee would be formed of not more than 12 members.

The council's relationship to the government remained an unanswered question, but most representatives agreed it should be an independent body. However, it would work in close liaison with existing government agencies such as the wheat board and transportation committee.

Also unresolved was the question of finances—a question that evoked scepticism on the part of the National Farmers' Union.

Roy Atkinson of Saskatoon, NFU president, said he proposed that public funds support the council, but received the impression that more of the "industry representatives wanted the producers to assume the costs."

Ken Singleton, Manitoba Farmers' Union president, echoed concern that grain farmers, already overburdened with economic problems, would be the council's main financial source.

Square Deal for Poor

Justice Parliamentary Concern

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice and fair play—or their absence—concerned Parliament at its brief Wednesday sitting.

In 3½ hours, the Commons considered judicial appointments and political patronage, inequities in land expropriation, internal parliamentary legalities and fair play for Prairie farmers. Saturday letter-readers and opponents of blue movies.

The Senate was on the same tack, demanding a square deal for the poor and debating changes in Supreme Court procedures.

The link between naming new judges and pork-barrel politics was a natural one in opposition eyes when the Commons passed a bill to provide for 11 new judges to Quebec Superior Court and three to Ontario county and district courts.

Despite Justice Minister John Turner's assertion that political background is becoming "less relevant" in choosing judges, opposition members were unconvinced.

New Democrat Frank Howard (Skeena) checked off a list of retired or defeated Liberal MPs with high-pay jobs and concluded Prime Minister Trudeau hasn't been all that vigorous in resisting the political-payoff appointment.

Mr. Turner himself was a beneficiary of the system, Mr. Howard suggested, because his present Ottawa seat was vacated by the retirement of Paul Tardif, who was quickly appointed to the citizenship court.

Meantime, the bill for Quebec judges at salaries of $26,000 a year each and the $19,000-a-year Ontario judges went through second reading, debate and third reading. Only Senate approval and royal assent are needed now to make it law.

The additional Quebec judges are needed to handle divorce cases newly under Quebec Superior Court jurisdiction after being handled by a special Senate commissioner. The extra Ontario judges—in Lincoln, Essex and Middlesex counties —were necessary because legal-aid cases are on the increase.

After fielding a criticism that two of three recent appointments to Nova Scotia's Supreme Court were old school chums of Mr. Turner, the justice minister listed judicial qualities as competence, integrity, honesty, moral courage and decisiveness among other things.

But he wasn't ruling out politicians as judges, he replied in answer to Martial Asselin (PC —Charlevoix).

Later, during the hour devoted to private members' motions, Mr. Turner promised to bring in an amended version of the 82-year-old Expropriation Act "around the end of the year, perhaps sooner, perhaps later."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For October 18

Your birthday today: During the coming year you gather the resolve to do some major task you have postponed for several years. It is unlikely that anything will stop you as you need no serious outside help. Today's natives tend to seek political or technical leadership.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your fellowmen are just liable to take you up on any bluff to see whether you can accomplish what you've boasted you could do. Hasty actions create trouble. Take it easy!

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Keep things going as normally as possible. Self-awareness will help smooth over personal tensions. Passive tact is essential later in the day.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Exertion is not favored. Take no chances with electrical equipment or with fire. Take care that your home has the most sensible of safety rules. Your intimates pick up the vibrations from you and require your attention.

CANCER (June 21 —July 22): Gruff attitudes in yourself and others breed trouble. Total awareness while travelling and using tools is essential. Tactfully avert squabbles. It may even be better to sulk alone.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Wasteful spending and rash speculations fall flat; exempt yourself by not going along with such schemes; show off your discretion and personal ability instead.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): You are faced with responsibility of others as well as yourself. Take a steady pace. If in the proper order, matters take care of themselves.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Organized institutions react in complex ways. There is not much chance of winding up the week neatly. Where you've tried to keep matters secret, you have attracted resistance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 — Nov. 21): You are tempted to take chances (and really shouldn't at this time). Some friends are aggressive today; others oversensitive. Either way you probably can't win.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Some people are unhappy over not getting a miracle from you. Right! Haste can trigger quite an upset. Remember that your own belligerence might be an expression of insecurity, so calm down.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Emotional tensions build and may result in too much of a slowdown later. Measure your efforts, allowing time for meditation. It's worth the inconvenience, tenfold.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your wish to close out the week in a systematic manner brings you on a collision course with people who don't see it your way. Know you will eventually have to pick up the pieces — again. Make no extra purchases today if you can help it.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Dissension threatens to become serious if you respond to balling. Let an unreasonable statement fall of its own error. You don't need to shout down every balloon that crosses your sights.

Jackie Flies To Onassis

ATHENS (CP) — Jacqueline Kennedy arrived in Greece today to marry one of the world's richest men, Aristotle Onassis, ending five years of speculation about the future of the glamorous presidential widow.

A special Greek airliner brought the bride-to-be and her family to a military airport at Andravida, in southern Greece. As Mrs. Kennedy stepped from the plane and walked down the steps, she was greeted by Onassis, who had flown from Athens to take his bride-to-be on to Skorpios, the small scorpion-shaped island he owns south of Corfu.

Airport police confiscated all cameras and locked reporters in the airport's waiting room about 200 yards away just before Mrs. Kennedy's jet landed.

They will be married there Saturday "or within three days at the latest," Onassis told reporters in Athens.

Mrs. Kennedy left New York Thursday night shortly after the surprise announcement of her plans to marry Onassis.

Onassis said they would spend their honeymoon on Skorpios "unless Jackie wants to make a tour of the Mediterranean."

Mrs. Kennedy, wearing a short-sleeved green woollen dress, crocodile skin shoes and ornate sunglasses, was kissed on the cheek by Onassis as he gave her a welcoming embrace. Then Onassis bent to kiss the two Kennedy children.

Airport employees said Mrs. Kennedy was smiling as she stepped from the airplane. She took a deep breath, looked at the warm sun, and then took her children for a brief walk along the runway to stretch their legs.

Then the group boarded a helicopter for the wedding date on Skorpious.

Onassis, 62, was divorced in 1960 after 14 years of marriage to the former Tina Livaros, daughter of another multi-millionaire Greek shipowner. They had two children, and she later married England's Marquis of Blandford, the Duke of Marlborough's heir.

Mrs. Kennedy's plans to wed were announced Thursday in New York by her mother, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss.

A few hours after the announcement, Mrs. Kennedy, her two children, Caroline, 10, and John Jr., 7, and a party of eight bumped 90 passengers from an Olympic Airways jetliner and took off from New York's Kennedy Airport for Greece. Onassis owns the airline.

The party included Mrs. Auchincloss and her husband; two of President Kennedy's sisters, Mrs. Stephen Smith and Mrs. Peter Lawford; Mrs. Lawford's daughter; a Secret Service agent and lan maids.

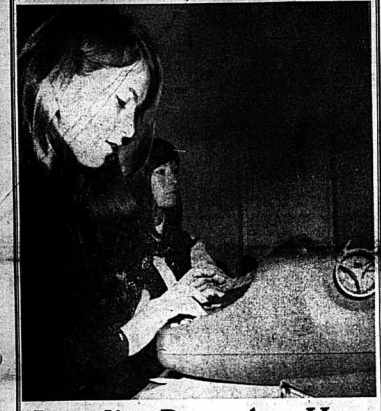
A spokesman for the airline said the plane's 90 passengers were put on a plane that left three hours later.

The courtship ranked as one of the international jet set's best-kept secrets.

Although Mrs. Kennedy was known to have been a friend of Onassis for some time, few had believed this friendship would blossom into marriage.



Throughout last summer, the favorite in the wedding stakes

Loyalist Days Are Here

By HARRY MULHALL Staff Reporter

Work isn't just where you find it. Not any more it isn't.

These days of sophisticated technology put a premium on job vacancies.

The demand is only for the skilled, the trained — like the young people in these pictures.

Not yet in business, they're gainfully employed, however. At Loyalist College they are mastering the techniques demanded in electronic age industry.

Loyalist is finally sited on its own campus. Tomorrow, the Quinte community college is at home to its public.

Marking the event The Intelligencer takes a look at the new arts-technology project in a special tabloid supplement and on Page 5.

Hanoi Hangup Stalls Halt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Disagreement between "hawks" and "doves" in Hanoi may be delaying a response to proposals by the United States for ending all bombing of North Vietnam, diplomatic authorities here believe.

These authorities suggest a debate has been going on within the North Vietnamese leadership over the issue of giving assurances of limiting the war on their side if President Johnson halts attacks on the North.

The North Vietnamese, diplomats in Paris say, have a choice of actions to assure Washington they would not take advantage of a bombing halt.

Church Sanction In Doubt

NEW YORK (AP) — The matrimonial rules of their different churches present a complicated situation in regard to the planned marriage of Jacqueline Kennedy and shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis.

She is Roman Catholic, widowed by the death of the late President John F. Kenedy. He is Greek Orthodox and divorced from his first wife, who is still living.

Roman Catholicism will not sanction the second marriage of a divorced person unless the prior union is found to have been invalid.

However, a matrimonial tribunal of the Greek Orthodox Church in North and South America in 1961 granted ecclesiastical approval to the 1959 civil divorce obtained by the first wife of Onassis, Tina, opening the door for remarriage in the Orthodox church.

At the Vatican, a theologian expressed the opinion that Mrs. Kennedy will automatically excommunicate herself from Roman Catholicism if she marries Onassis.

"It would not be a valid marriage in the eyes of the Catholic Church," he said.

However, a Vatican source quoted by Reuters news agency said the Roman Catholic Church would have no objection to the marriage providing the dissolution of Onassis's last marriage is recognized by his church.

News Briefs

MONTREAL (CP) — Because of what it describes as student unrest, the University of Montreal says it will not hold its traditional fall convocation this year. The French-language university said in a statement Thursday that because of the climate of student unrest, its 814 graduates will be awarded degrees and diplomas by mail this week.

Vietnam Re-enters Campaign

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Reports of a possible development in the Paris peace talks have revived emphasis on Vietnam in the United States presidential campaign.

Republican Richard M. Nixon says he's willing to let President Johnson make a decision on any bombing halt over North Vietnam, while Senator Strom Thurmond—Nixon's ally in the South—warns Americans not to be deluded into thinking the war will end before election day.

Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey hasn't mentioned the bombing halt rumors, and his vice-presidential running mate, Senator Edmund S. Muskie, refused to discuss what he knows about the Paris peace talks.

Moon-return Engine Fired

HOUSTON (AP) — With a jolting burst of energy, the Apollo 7 astronauts fired their steering engine today in the most powerful manoeuvre ever made by a manned spaceship.

The huge engine flashed to life and spurted a steady tail of flame for 60 seconds as Apollo 7 raced 120 miles above the Gulf of Mexico.

"That was a real nice to-do, the machine performed beautifully," spacecraft commander Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. reported at the completion of the vital test of the engine that one day will guide American astronauts to the moon.

When the burn started, it was under the automatic control of the spacecraft guidance and navigation system. Schirra took control manually the last 30 seconds to demonstrate the ability of the pilot to take over in case the automatic system failed.

He reported that momentarily during the firing, the astronauts were jolted out of their weightless world and that the gravity reading in the cabin was one G —equal to the force of gravity at ground level.

The 66-second firing today burned two tons of fuel, reducing the weight of the spaceship from about 29,000 to 25,000-pounds.

The Apollo engine, the most powerful ever carried by a manned space vehicle, will be critical to a man-to-the-moon mission because it must guide the ship to the moon, kick it into lunar orbit, fire it out of orbit and steer it back to earth.

Schirra was in a good mood when he awakened today and, referring to Apollo 7's four live telecasts earlier this week, said he'd like "to try for an Emmy for the best TV series."

Olympic Tinder Box

Black Power Medallists Suspended by U.S. Committee

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The U.S. Olympic Committee suspended Negro sprinters Tommie Smith and John Carlos early today for "untypical exhibitionism" during an Olympic victory ceremony Wednesday.

The decision followed a complaint by the International Olympic Committee regarding the conduct of Smith when he received the gold medal for winning the 200-metre finals and Carlos when he was presented the bronze for finishing third.

Two members of the U.S. Olympic Committee's board of consultants—John Sayre, a rower in the 1960 Olympics, and Billy Mills, the 10,000-metre winner in 1964—went to the Olympic Village after midnight to tell Smith and Carlos to leave.

A statement from the U.S. Olympic Committee said that any repetition of "such incidents by other members of the U.S. team can only be considered a wilful disregard of Olympic principles that would warrant the imposition of the severest penalties at the disposal of the U.S. Olympic Committee."

It expressed "profound regrets" to the IOC, the Mexican Organizing Committee and to the people of Mexico "for the discourtesy displayed by two members of this team in departing from tradition during a victory ceremony at the Olympic Stadium Oct. 16."

"The untypical exhibitionism of these athletes also violates the basic standards of sportsmanship and good manners which are so highly regarded in the United States, and therefore the two men involved are suspended forthwith from the team and ordered to remove themselves from the Olympic Village."

"This action is taken in the belief such immature behavior is an isolated incident. However, if further investigation or subsequent events do not bear out this view, the entire matter will be re-evaluated."

The rebellion started to build up when Jim Hines and Charlie Greene of the U.S. track team indicated prior to receiving medals for their 1-2 finish in the 100 metres Tuesday they would not accept medals at the victory ceremony from Avery Brundage of Chicago, 81, president of the IOC. Brundage has been called a racist by some U.S. Negro athletes.

Nicholson Students Join 'Show of Strength'

Three students and a teacher from Nicholson Catholic College will be among delegates from Roman Catholic high schools across Ontario who will meet in Toronto this weekend.

The students, seeking full financial support from the government for their schools, will meet in a united show of strength Saturday and Sunday.

NCC delegates are Wayne Storms, student council president, Judith Schreiber, Brenda Walsh and Sister Anne Morand, a teacher who will attend as an adult observer and moderator.

"It'll be mainly a get-together to set up policy, form a constitution and elect a board of officers," says Joseph Redican, 16-year-old Grade 12 student at Michael Power high school where the meetings are to be held Saturday and Sunday.

"However, we're hoping for the same solid support we drew at St. Catharines in May," he said in an interview.

The delegates, represented by 31,000 students in 76 Roman Catholic high schools in the province, plan to call their organization the Ontario Catholic Student Federation. About 150 delegates are expected to attend.

The group's aim is to convince the provincial government that students in Grades 11, 12 and 13 in Roman Catholic schools should not have to pay for their education through tuition fees.

At present, only Grades 1 to 10 in Roman Catholic schools are financed almost entirely by provincial grants.

Mr. Redican said the student organization was the idea of the students, "and although we got co-operation from the teachers they have stayed out of it."

He said representation is expected from the office of William Davis, Ontario education minister, at Saturday's meeting.

After the St. Catharines' meeting, the group sent delegates to Mr. Davis to discuss the organization.

"They weren't too encouraging at Mr. Davis' office, but they didn't discourage us either," Mr. Redican said.

Behind The Glass

The members of the Quinte Curling Club will find their favorite sport more enjoyable this winter. During the summer four gas heaters have been placed around the playing service and this will alleviate the cold temperatures and also make the ice faster by keeping it at an even temperature.

At the first meeting of the club held in the clubhouse on Wednesday evening the new board of directors which consists of president, David "Goldie" Livingstone, past president, William Riley, vice president, Art Bannon, secretary-treasurer Cliff Neill, two club chairman Bruce Parsons, bonspiels Robert Byrne, House chairman Wilbur Gault. Publicity chairman William McPherson and Canteen "Pete" Acton reported to the meeting and all showed that the directors have had a busy summer and everything was in readiness for a successful season.

Bruce Parsons reported that a new ice scraping machine had been purchased and the ice will be kept at a constant level during the winter. New plastic cups of red and white have been purchased for the curling stones which will add a little more color.

There will be three draws for the men and two for the women during the season and the first draw for the year will be based on draws by the skips. A number of bonspiels will be held during the winter with the Quinte tri-spiel being held from February 26 to March 2nd and the Quinte mixed spiel from January 22 to 26 inclusive. It was also announced that there will be a party at the clubhouse at least once a month.

Junior curling will be given a prominent place in the schedule during the season.

The club membership will be increased by 17 and among the new members are a few who are coming back after being out for a couple of years.

During the evening the president presented shields to the past presidents of the club who included William Riley, Fred Maund, Ken Pinder, Robert Lamont, Cliff Houston, Ev Gowsell and William Gault. Gil Wambold was absent and Everett Black is deceased. The members will proudly wear their shields on their curling jackets.

William Gault, one of the founders of the club and a stalwart during the formative years was presented with a life membership and he was taken entirely by surprise with the gift. In his quiet way he thanked the members for the honor bestowed and promised continued effort to make this club one of the best in Eastern Ontario.

The financial report showed the club in sound condition. The evening closed with a social hour.

Cadets Top Competition

The corps received the Navy League Shield awarded for marksmanship in this year's Dominion of Canada Rifle Association Competition.

Eight local sea cadets placed first in the second division of the competition with a team average of 89 per cent.

Three boys received first class marksmanship badges for averages over 90 per cent for three shots. Four of the remaining cadets received second class badges for averages over 80 per cent.

Kingston Meeting

Higgins Addresses Agents

Value analysis was the theme for the October meeting of the Canadian Association of Purchasing Agents.

The meeting, held at the 401 Inn at Kingston, was attended by a number of company representatives from the Belleville area.

Members were addressed by A. A. Higgins, manager of purchasing programs, Canadian Westinghouse, Hamilton and by F. W. Wallace, purchasing manager for the town of Burlington.

The speakers noted that value analysis was being forced on manufacturers out of sheer necessity but is today's competitive market the job called for men skilled in measuring use, cost and value.

Simply stated, value analysis is an organized approach to the business economics problem of getting and giving more for less. It involves a thorough study of any product with the ultimate object of removing unnecessary cost, and at the same time enhancing customer acceptance by improving quality, performance and reliability.

The Canadian Association of Purchasing Agents for some time has conducted value analysis contests and Eastern Ontario firms have been successful at the national level in obtaining certificates for their achievements.

Among area firms winning certificates are Stephens - Adamson Mfg. of Belleville, Dupont of Canada at Kingston and Queen's University.

To close out the evening, Peter Stalker, purchasing agent of Stephens - Adamson, and representatives from Dupont and Queens spoke briefly on achievements which won them awards.

Number of the ticket is B7L6135 with the non-deplume Hopeful.

Only other ticket drawn in the Quinte district is under the non-de-plume Duchess.

Reeves Attend Highway Meeting

Hastings county reeves have been invited to attend an in-camera meeting in Belleville next week, called by the Ontario Highways Department for the presentation of a 20-year blueprint for King's Highways in the Kingston area.

The planning branch of the Highways Department will explain all phases of its highway needs study with the setting of field data to the development of plan recommendations.

Areas affected by the plan include the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington, Frontenac, Northumberland and Durham, Carleton and Leeds and Grenville.

One of the major plans to be unveiled is Highway 416, the proposed four lane highway linking Ottawa and 401 highway.

Attendance at the meeting will be by invitation only.

Hastings county road engineer Peter Anderson said all members of the county road committee had been invited to attend but because the camp is a dining hall — without electricity.

Now, local scouts are hopeful of building six bunkhouses on the site to accommodate youngsters.

Scout rules make it mandatory that cubs, aged 8 - 11, must be accommodated in cabins or bunk houses.

Work on the buildings will commence shortly so that the camp may be used in winter by the 900 cubs in Belleville packs.

Hasty Pees Attend Camp

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will be off on another training weekend tomorrow — in Camp Barriefield near Kingston.

First and second year Mobile Command training Rifle Company Personnel will be carrying out the first of their new exercises to make them combat trained by the time Summer Camp rolls around in June.

In an attempt to encourage new recruits for the regiment, Lt. Col. F. R. Allan, commanding officer, has offered a prize of $15 to the enlisted man who brings the most new recruits to the regiment by Nov. 30.

Weekend training has been only about 70 or 80 men in attendance. This weekend Col. Allan is aiming for 100 militiamen.

The troops leave for Camp Barriefield tomorrow at 8.30 a.m. in Trenton and at 8.45 a.m. in Belleville.

Jackie Flies to Onassis For Wedding This Weekend

had been Britain's Lord Harewood, a widower who has been a close friend of the Kennedys since his days as British ambassador to Washington.

In March and April, Mrs. Kennedy cruised aboard Onassis' yacht Christina in the Bahamas, in May off the Virgin Islands and then with Onassis and her brother-in-law, Edward Kennedy, in the Mediterranean later in the summer.

In the last two months, Onassis was reported to have spent weekends in Hyannis Port, Mass., the family home of the Kennedy clan.

One source in Athens declined to name the wedding day, but said: "It might be next week or even this weekend."

Because the wedding will be in Greece, Greek law requires a Greek-Orthodox ceremony. It seemed most unlikely that there would be a companion ceremony in Mrs. Kennedy's Roman Catholic faith because Onassis is divorced and the Roman Church prohibits such a marriage.

Onassis is a member of the national church of Greece, which approved his divorce by ecclesiastical decree in 1961 and thus made his remarriage in the church possible.

Jacqueline Lee Bouvier married John F. Kennedy Sept. 12, 1953. The assassin's bullets that struck down President Kennedy Nov. 22, 1963, left her a widow at 34.

Five-Day Mail Protested As Curtailing Right to Know

OTTAWA (CP) — Citizens in a democracy "have the right to be informed" and it is the role of the press — "particularly, the print media" — to gather and distribute news, says the Quebec Daily Newspapers' Association.

In a brief presented Thursday to Postmaster-General Eric Kierans, the body says the laws the minister has proposed — curtailing mail delivery to five days a week and changing certain postal categories — will have the effect of depriving citizens of news and the freedom of the press to distribute it."

"We submit that the changes sought should be postponed pending a full study of the problems involved and to allow for the terms and conditions of the Bill's application to be fair, useful and proper."

Mr. Kierans' bill to limit mail delivery to five days a week, excluding Saturday mail deliveries after Feb. 1, has passed first reading in the Commons. Second reading is due Monday.

Heading the delegation was A-F. Mercier, vice-president and adviser to Le Soleil Limitee, publishers of the daily newspaper Le Soleil in Quebec City.

The brief says that "to limit the usefulness of the press in its function as a disseminator of news by turning over control to the electronic media, would have the effect of allowing for the monopolizing of news by the state, in some areas."

Scouts Apple Day On the Weekend

Offering 23,000 apples, Belleville scouts put the big on local citizens Saturday in a good cause.

This year, Boy Scout Apple Day is hopefully aimed at raising $1,500 for a capital works project crucial to city scouts.

The cash crop from apple sales goes to improving Camp Sagonaska in Col. Sam Lake Water Park at Thomasburg, off Highway 37.

Only existing structure at the camp is a dining hall — without electricity.

Scout rules make it mandatory that cubs, aged 8 - 11, must be accommodated in cabins or bunk houses.

Work on the buildings will commence shortly so that the camp may be used in winter by the 900 cubs in Belleville packs.

YMCA Expands Youth Program

For the last four years the Belleville YMCA has made programs available to girls and boys in the community finding it difficult to take part in activities at the "Y".

Groups were active last year in Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Prince Charles and Hillcrest public schools.

"This year arrangements are being made to have additional "Y" community workers with groups in Queen Alexandra and Park Dale schools as well as a downtown location," said Glen Manthorne, men's and boys' program director at the "Y".

Programs will include special interest events, basketball, volleyball, soccer, floor hockey, ice hockey, punch and scoop ball, tumbling, some gymnastics and instructional and recreational swim periods in the "Y" pool on Saturday afternoons.

This program is open to girls and boys eight to 14 years and begins Monday, Oct. 21 at Queen Alexandra and Wednesday, Oct. 23 at Hillcrest and Prince Charles Schools.

Children are invited to watch the bulletin boards at their schools and then come along with a friend to initial enrolment sessions.

IN MEMORIAM

GREEN — In loving memory of Kenneth G. Green who passed away October 18th, 1963.
So many things have happened dear,
Since you were called away,
Memories we have left with you,
Well you've been left to stay.
Sadly missed by wife and days
Your hand we cannot touch,
Your face we cannot see,
Memories,
Of the one we loved so much.
You have left a space in our love
That no love can fill,
Nor have you travelled far,
Just around the corner,
Sadly missed by wife Vivian and family.

SILLS — In loving memory of my mother, Mrs. Ethel Sills, who passed away Oct. 18, 1965.
More and more each day we miss her,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
Which is still concealed.
—Sadly missed by her daughter Dorothy, sons Jack, Bruce and family.

WAY — In loving memory of our beloved husband, Lawrence A. Way who passed away as a result of a car accident 2 years ago, Oct. 18, 1961.
Wonderful memories woven in gold,
This is the picture we tenderly hold,
Deep in our hearts your memory is kept,
To love and to cherish and never forget,
No tear can darken, nor sadness part,
The loving memories we have of you dear heart.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by his sisters, Lois, Dolly, Ruth and Helen, brother-in-law Carl and families.

County Wants Weed Inspector

Hastings county is looking for a noxious weed inspector to succeed the man who has been doing the job for the past 14 years.

County Clerk - Treasurer and Administrator C. E. Bateman said reports that Harry M. Coulter who has been the county weed inspector since 1954 has indicated that he wants to give up the job at the end of the year.

Accordingly advertisements for the part time position are appearing this week in county newspapers.

Driver Training Popular At District Schools

Student driver training is a popular course of study at Bay of Quinte district high schools.

Driver training courses are offered at four of the district's five high schools and also at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

The courses are offered at Quinte, Moira and Centennial Secondary Schools in Belleville and at the Centre Hastings High School in Madoc where two cars for each school have been provided by area auto dealers.

In Belleville two Fords are being used at Quinte. At Centennial there is a Ford and a Pontiac, at Moira two Chevrolets and at Madoc, a Plymouth and a Pontiac.

And the Ontario School for the Deaf a Ford and a Pontiac is being used.

Yesterday Roy Stevenson of Stevenson Ford Sales in Belleville officially presented the Ford being used at Centennial Secondary School.

In addition to the public relations value, Mr. Stevenson said he felt it was preferable for young students to learn to drive on new cars in top mechanical condition.

This is the first year for student driver training at Centennial School and the initial class is already filled.

Instructors John Sherry and Monty Emmerson explained that 16 students was the class limit. Students taking the course receive 25 hours classroom study, 13 hours observing and six hours driving experience.

It costs $20 to enroll in the driver training course but it pays off in correct driving technique and also in dollars.

Students completing the course receive a 10 per cent reduction in automobile insurance and this can save them up to $180 after deducting their enrolment fee.

Rezoning Applications

Planning Board Disagrees with Staff

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board last night disagreed with the advice of its professional staff in re-zoning nine acres west of Herchimer Ave. for town houses.

At a special meeting called to hear re-zoning applications, assistant planning director Frank Stokmans told the board only part of the land was suitable for residential development and should be re-zoned. He suggested that the northern part of the property, now vacant, might eventually be used as an extension of the industrial park south of the CNR yard.

In addition, a pre-engineering study is now under way to consider the feasibility of locating the southern approach to a new overpass over the CNR tracks across the northern part of the property.

The re-zoning approved last night now permits the owner, Maurice Rollins to build town houses in the section below Herchimer hill.

However, Mr. Rollins said he plans to develop only the area on both sides of the proposed extension of Pine St. at the southern end of the property. He told the board he could submit a draft plan of the proposed subdivision in a month's time.

Heard at the same time as the Rollins' re-zoning application was a similar request from Mario Basilone and Salvitere Marino, who own a one and one-quarter acre strip of land at the south of the Rollins property.

In his written report to the board, Mr. Stokmans said the re-zoning to permit construction of town houses was long overdue.

"This type of residential accommodation appears to be one of the few types left which would be within the financial capabilities of a large segment of our population," he added.

"The area for which no development proposals are made should be left in their present zone category until such time as the land use proposals for that area are known," the report concluded.

During discussion of the re-zoning, board members were chiefly concerned with the fate of Pine Street, which now ends at the southern boundary of the Rollins property.

"If we dead-end this street we're in trouble," warned Ald. E. A. Orr. "We must make provision for Pine Street to come out on Herchimer Ave.

Both the land-owners and Mr. Stokmans assured the board that future development plans for the area will propose that Pine Street swing south and east to intersect with Herchimer Ave. in the vicinity of Symington Dr.

Man Taken to Kingston

Inquest Interrupted by Attempted Hanging

A coroner's inquest was just getting under way last night when a policeman burst into the room yelling for a doctor.

Quickly adjourning the court Coroner Dr. John Stock was led by Inspector Ralph Blatchford of the Belleville City police to the cell block, where a prisoner had attempted to hang himself.

The suicide attempt with an undershirt failed and the man was later remanded to the Ontario Hospital in Kingston for a mental examination.

He had been arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of dangerous driving after an incident at Wilson Concrete in Belleville.

Officers making a routine check of the cells discovered the man and got Dr. Stock to the scene immediately.

Around 20 minutes later the court resumed and the coroner's jury ruled a month-old infant died Sept. 20 of natural causes.

The infant, Michael Kenneth Jones, child of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jones of 71 Herchimer Ave., died of pneumonia in both lungs testified Dr. A. M. LaFarge, Trenton Memorial Hospital pathologist.

The child's father had told the court he was feeding the baby around one o'clock in the morning on the chesterfield when he dozed.

Awakening around five a.m., he said the infant was then lying under his arm.

Coroner John Stock told the jury that so called crib deaths are frequent occurrences and that no method of prevention is known.

He said it was his opinion that the baby could have died in its crib just as easily as in its fathers arms.

Murray Township Residents Ready to Take Action

TRENTON — "We've got a few tricks up our sleeve, but we can't say what, they are.

This was all Dr. Douglas Bunt, vice-president of the newly reactivated Pine Acres Association, would say today when asked what action the residents of Pine Acres would be taking against Murray Township council.

A meeting, limited to the residents of Pine Acres and invited guests, was held last night at the home of Dr. Bunt.

The reason for the meeting had been given by Dr. Bunt previously as "something must be done about the incompetent council."

He had also said that the "whole situation demands a board of inquiry and we should take legal action to get it to Queen's Park."

But if any such action was initiated last night no one was prepared to say so.

The old Pine Acres Association was brought back to life as a result of the meeting with Willian Ellis as president and Dr. Bunt as vice-president.

Mr. Ellis said, "I do not feel at liberty to say anything yet, the time is not right."

"The less the enemy knows the better," was the reason Dr. Bunt gave for the cloak and dagger secrecy.

The "enemy", Murray Township council, received verbal lashings from Pine Acres delegation at their last council meeting.

At the heart of the problem is the Riverview Speedway. Residents of Pine Acres claim the track is too close to their homes and as a result living has become intolerable because of the noise and dust."

"It is up to council to protect us from situations such as this — it is their job — obviously they are incapable of it," Mr. Ellis had said at the council meeting.

There will be another delegation at the next council meeting — but what will be discussed is not being said by either Dr. Bunt or Mr. Ellis.

Present at last night's meeting, which numbered about 50, was Russell Rowe, MLA for Northumberland.

Mr. Rowe said today that he went to the meeting as an interested spectator.

"I told them the track was operating legally as there is no by-law at present to stop it," said Mr. Rowe.

"The only hope for the residents of Pine Acres now is to pass controlling by-laws," he explained.

Concerning the previously-proposed board of inquiry, Mr. Rowe had some statements. "Accusations of poor management do not carry enough weight to initiate an inquiry."

He said that in this area only the "power of ballot was the answer to the situation. "If you don't want a person in public office don't vote for him."

"Only in the misuse of spending public funds could a board of inquiry be initiated," he explained.

PUC Chairman Named Director

Chairman of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission, John Deacon, has been elected a director of the governing body of the Ontario Municipal Water Association.

His election took place at the group's annual convention on Wednesday held at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel.

Yesterday at the utilities commission meeting no new business of real import was brought up.

It was decided by the commissioners to go ahead with their decorative lighting contest again this year.

Other community involvements to be gone into by the PUC commission are the purchase of a wreath for Poppy Day and the award of $25 to go to the winner of the upcoming Public Speaking contest.

Nothing further was done about the five year budget forecast that was submitted at last months meeting.

However, PUC manager F. Burnham listed expenditures made by the commission during the last few years.

The request for a summary of past debentures was made by the commissioners at last month's meeting so that they would have an idea of expenses past, present and future.

On the project of acquiring the necessary land for the water plant expansions nothing binding has yet been done.

However, work is progressing on the project and reports on the land have been coming in. It is expected that the purchases will be settled in the near future.

Negotiations Continue In Proctor-Silex Strike

It was explained that the department of labor had requested that both Proctor-Silex and the union put a clamp on all news related to the strike.

The meeting in Toronto is a continuation of talks held Thursday and Friday.

The extension of the talks has given rise to hope among many in this community.

Prior to the meetings Proctor Silex officials stated unequivocably that they had made their final offer. The union made it just as clear that that offer could be accepted.

Many now hope that the extension indicates that some kind of progress has been made. The meetings are being held under the guidance of W. J. Dickey, chief conciliation officer for the department of labor.

Union representatives at the meeting are George Hutcheon, Canadian IUE president, Glenn Pattinson, district vice-president, Norman Miller, vice-president and Norman Tustin, a member of the local negotiating committee.

Obituaries and Funerals

WESLEY EDGERTON BADGLEY (Tweed)

TWEED — Mr. Wesley Badgley, of R. R. No. 2, Tweed, passed away in Hospital, Kingston, after being a patient there for only one day, on October 10th, 1968. Previous to being a patient in Kingston, he was a patient in the Belleville General Hospital, for quite some time, following an illness that extended over the past few years.

Mr. Badgley was born in Cerford Township, 91 years ago, to the late Allen and his wife the Abbie Ann Jones. He had lived all the Tweed District and was well-known and respected by a host of friends.

He is survived by his wife, Bessie Bennett; two sons, Frank (Iva) of Tweed, Mrs. Wilbert (Mrs. W.) of Tweed, two sisters, Mrs. Ella Mills and Mrs. Minnie Casemore, both of Tweed, until Saturday, October 12th, when the service was conducted in the Funeral Chapel by the Reverend Howard V. Kennedy, of St. John's United Church, bearers: Douglas Badgley, Samuel Shaw, Joseph Mumby, William Byers, Donald Parker and John Nichol.

Mr. Badgley was a member of the United Church.

STEPHEN FLOWER

TWEED — Long - held hopes of an Algonquin College graduate to teach in Africa achieved just three months ago, have been suddenly snuffed out in a road accident.

Stephen Flower, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Haley Flower, of Renfrew, Ontario, was reported killed earlier this month, in Dar Es Salam, Tanzania, after his motorcycle collided with a truck.

Stephen's mother was the former Betty Vance of Tweed.

He was the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. William Vance of Perth, and formerly of Tweed.

Stephen had been posted by Canadian University Services Overseas to Tanzania for two years, after graduating in May of this year, from the course in business administration. He had been assigned to teach commercial subjects to a 600 student girls' school.

Funeral arrangements were made later, by McPhail and Perkins Funeral Home, Renfrew.

WILLIAM JOHN PAUL ELLIOTT

The funeral for William John Paul Elliott was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Thursday afternoon,

Canon R. B. Wright conducted the service in the chapel and the committal rites at Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were William Kokesh, George Empson, Peter and Gerald Hewitt, Morris Sararas and John Skinner.

Students on the March

Newspapers are as anxious as any to offer some positive solution to the almost worldwide breakdown of youthful discipline. On that account we cannot subscribe to Angus Duffy's criticism that newspapers present "negative thinking" on this issue.

Does Mr. Duffy have any answers? The Emergency Measures Director and former commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment would have the universities engage in a general crackdown on student activists, but he does not say how the authorities might go about such an operation. He hits out at draft dodgers from the United States and suggests they should not be admitted to Canada. But such a move by itself cannot solve what essentially is a much larger problem. Draft dodgers are only a small minority anyway in the midst of a growing mass of student activists.

Still, Mr. Duffy (who was speaking to Hasty Pudding veterans), along with people everywhere concerned about the future of our youth, and society as a whole, must view with alarm the current trend toward anarchy in the universities and even at the secondary school level.

Education authorities have never faced such a problem before. Students in the past would attend school and university and while conforming for the most part to whatever discipline was enforced would quietly get on with their studies.

Today the trend is otherwise. Young people are no longer under any real bond of discipline. They no longer appear answerable to the strictures of other days. Parents do not seem to be even in the picture at all. As for any sort of moral code, respect for the human race at large, for people as people, that too has undergone drastic revision in recent times.

A Globe and Mail feature on the young people of Montreal is all too revealing in that respect. This sort of thing — with quotes by young Montrealers: "Acid? Who's he? . . . Eight out of ten people I know turn on . . . If the cops hassle us, we hassle them; ask them stupid questions like where is St. Catherines Street . . . I don't see the need for marriage nowadays, it's much easier to simply live with someone. . ."

And so on. One young person was quoted as saying: "Most of us leave school early, because they're run like a bloody Fascist state." And this from someone who is too young to have any personal experience of Fascism or Nazism.

What does seem certain is that the young people themselves know what they want, and whether society will be the better or worse for it we can only wait and see. They want to go their own way. It is the traditional rebelliousness of youth. Some of it is admirable, but much of it today is not.

Perhaps Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said it best. Speaking in Vancouver the other day on the subject of student violence, he said: "One looks to the universities for reason and perspective rather than a resort to violence."

Olympic Hurdle

Rowing is one of the most taxing of sports. The exhaustion that is written over every fibre of the oarsman's being at the conclusion of a race is clear evidence of this — even those who are in the peak of physical condition.

Certainly rowing is no sport for weaklings. On the other hand the rarefied air of Mexico City — some 7,000 feet above sea level — is proving too much for some Olympic athletes. Several track stars from a number of countries, both men and women, have fallen by the wayside. And speaking of rowing, Canada's John Richardson of St. Catharines, a member of the Canadian eights crew, required oxygen after collapsing at the finish of a race because of continuing illness he was subsequently replaced on the Olympic crew.

It was tough luck on the young oarsman — but then, as we have noted, Mexico City is not agreeing with everyone.

Uncommon Cold

Dr. John Zieglschmid, the Apollo astronauts' flight surgeon, has contributed the latest gibberish on that old problem, the common cold. It seems that the entire moon crew has all caught the cold in varying degrees. Dr. Zieglschmid, however, dresses it up a bit. "It appears that at least Eisele and Schirra have bona fide colds. And there's a slight question in my mind as to whether Cunningham just has a few symptoms such as a little bit of sniffles and maybe a slight nasal discharge or whether he has a full blown cold syndrome." That common cold is certainly moving up in the world — in more ways than one. Soon we shall hardly recognize it!

Focus on Peking

Chairman Mao Has Sights on "China's Khrushchev"

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Peking Radio's latest claim of victory in Communist China's cultural revolution indicates that party Chairman Mao Tse-tung is just about ready to formally denounce President Liu Shao-chi and turn his attention to restoring stability in the nation of 760,000,000.

According to an unofficial translation of a broadcast editorial from Red Flag, Peking's main theoretical journal, "China's Khrushchev" has been stripped of party and government positions in a "complete victory" for Mao's forces.

The editorial did not mention Liu by name, an indication that Mao's men were somewhat short of "complete victory." But the rest may be mere technicality, though it may take some time to accomplish.

When the cultural revolution exploded more than two years ago, one of its rules was that no ranking party or government leader could be assailed by name. Others who fell were denounced by name. But Liu, who has been chairman of the government and vice-chairman of the party, still is called only "China's Khrushchev," a reference to his alleged revisionism.

The editorial, however, reflected confidence that Liu's end is at hand. His final overthrow may await the calling of a Communist party congress, but for this reason Liu may still not be denounced by name even though in fact he may be thoroughly defeated.

The signs now are that China is in the hands of a group of 13 leaders under Mao, with Defence Minister Lin Piao wielding the real power in the name of "Mao Tse-tung's thinking." Lin has been designated Mao's heir apparent.

Final victory for the Maoist forces could end China into bloody military rule under Lin Piao, who leans heavily on the support of the armed forces.

There are no signs, however, that a restoration of some measure of stability would do anything to heal the wide breach between Peking and Moscow. China, on a go-it-alone policy, is further away from the Soviet party now than it was two years ago, when the cultural revolution began. But the open, What China-watchers look for with a return of some stability is a careful policy avoiding risks abroad while building strength at home.

Priced Out of Market

Housing Beyond Reach of Majority

Windsor Star

Paul Hellyer, the federal Cabinet minister responsible for housing, deserves marks for facing across the country in a personal survey of the housing shortage. This is so even if what he finds is common knowledge to most citizens.

This exercise in discovery can be valuable if it impresses on Ottawa the seriousness of the situation. It is just a shortage of housing. It is a lack of housing at costs which can be afforded by those most in need.

Housing is no problem to the rich or even to the more than ordinarily well-to-do. They can afford, either in purchase price or in rents, the accommodation they desire.

The principal plight is of those who earn $5,000 or less. These comprise the great majority. They simply are being priced out of the market for decent housing, unless it be subsidized in one way or another.

Costs have risen their ability to pay. These comprise wages and materials; serviced land and money.

All are factors but the consensus now is that the price of land and the cost of money have become the principal obstacles. Both have been boosted by the housing shortage and the shortage perpetuates both at high levels.

In the Toronto area, for instance, some serviced lots alone now cost more than project homes did 20 years ago. The higher the cost of the land and the home built on it the larger the financial burden. Higher down payments are required, and the carrying charges on mortgages are increased.

This is apart from but associated with the exorbitant interest rates. Every increase of one per cent in interest adds $10 monthly on the carrying charge of a large mortgage or on rental payments. The home buyer now probably pays 5% times the original cost of a home by the time he pays off a long-term mortgage.

One basic trouble is that too much of the investment money is not going where it is needed most. It is going into huge office buildings, shopping centres etc., which are less urged.

Students State Their Views

Peterborough Examiner

It is always nice to know that students like school — or, if they don't exactly like it, they at least care about it. Thus Dr. Eldon Ray, director of education was pleased and "pleasantly surprised" by the results of the student opinion survey completed by secondary school students last May. According to Dr. Ray who personally summarized and analyzed the students' suggestions, the vast majority exhibited an intelligent interest in school affairs and only five per cent were critical in the negative sense.

The survey program, which involved some 4,000 Peterborough students, was undertaken to some maintain, in an effort to defuse an attempt by some Trustees, student activists to organize the high school students. Whether or not this was the motivation, the fact remains that such surveys can do much to assist the administrators to shape the educational process along more effective lines. There are a number of matters on which the students know best. Indeed, some of the recommendations have already been put into effect and Dr. Ray promises that others are under consideration.

While not all the recommendations are capable of being realized, the survey at least provides educators with an idea of which programs are meeting with the most success and which require strengthening or re-direction. For example, there was a strong expression of opinion that more individual counselling time should be sought available even if this means eliminating group counselling periods. There was evidence too, that more emphasis should be placed early in secondary school on explaining the later significance of options and in helping the student plan his education more intelligently.

As might have been expected some displeasure was evident over obligatory subjects. However, student suggestions as to which subjects should be removed included every subject being taught.

Corrupt . . . Undemocratic

Mexico—The Other Side of the Picture

Bob Hunter in the Vancouver Sun

Riots in Mexico City. I'm not exactly flabbergasted.

I spent a month down there last year with my family. We had only $700 to lash us a total of three months, two of them spent in the States, and we covered 10,000 miles living in our Volkswagen van the whole time.

The Mexicans we met were far more typical than those you are liable to meet in nightclubs or hotels.

We liked most of them. And certainly we liked the country.

We did not, however, like Mexican police. We did not like what we saw of Mexican "justice." And we did not enjoy the discrimination, corruption, lack of true democracy and above all the deep, almost-bottomless poverty so evident at every turn.

We had planned to go to a beautiful spot called San Blas, just south of Mazatlan on the west coast. But there was a hitch. At the border we had been told we had to buy Mexican car insurance.

You have to buy Mexican car insurance because it is a crime to be involved in an accident in Mexico, regardless of whether the accident was your fault or not. The "insurance" means that if you do happen to get involved in an accident, an agent for the insurance company will go down to the police station and bail you out.

He bails you out by bribing the local cops.

This is not the official explanation, obviously. But in practice this is how it works.

Anyway, we had refused to buy the insurance on such grounds. When we mentioned in Mazatlan that we were planning to go to San Blas, we were told by Mexicans we had got to know and by seasoned Americans travellers to avoid the place like the plague.

The police in San Blas that summer had been making extra pin money by deliberately crashing — not too hard — into cars of gringos who did not have insurance stickers on their cars.

One you have been rammed by a police car, you are "guilty" of being in an accident. The San Blas police would then take you down to the police station and hold you there until you coughed up with enough cash to buy their way out.

More difficult to get used to were the frankly terrifying techniques the Mexican government uses in the schools, where kids spend much of their time marching about in uniforms, waving little flags and singing songs in praise to Mexican President Ordes's PRI Party.

Afterall, I would say that Mexico was ripe for open student revolt even last year. Although the thinking person we met was angry because millions of pesos were being poured into preparations for the Olympics and very little was done about poverty, slums, rampant malaria, disintegrated roads, inflation and so on.

If I was a Mexican, I would be angry too.

Youth Problem Is Close at Hand: The youth of Belleville along with their fellows around the world face complexities far beyond their abilities to solve unaided. They may find a solution and have some share in it in all probability they will find an answer of a sort. The YMCA is dedicated to that very purpose, to the service of youth. As an organization it is equipped to help young people in the home, the church and the school. The YMCA provides supervised recreation, swimming pool, playground and camping experience for physical, social and recreational training. In the informal educational field, it provides lectures and discussion groups where youth has a chance to express their own ideas, to see what the other fellow is thinking, and to use leisure time for the purpose of self-improvement.

Influenza Sufferers Need Help: In compliance with the request of Arthur McGie, chairman of the Health Board of Health, an emergency meeting was held last night in the parlors of the YMCA, to consider ways and means of organizing residents as volunteers in nursing those suffering from grippe and in combating the influenza epidemic. The meeting was well attended and it was decided to call for volunteer workers. The need is great. The following officers were elected to superintend the organizing of the city: president Arthur McGie; secretary P. F. Bruchell; assistant secretary Madeline Fralick; executive committee, D. V. Today in History

Oct. 18, 1963 . . .

The electorate of Britain was decided at one stroke 101 years ago today—in 1867 —with the passage of the Second Reform Bill, giving the vote to householders and tenants paying £10 yearly. The bill gave power to the rising middle class at the expense of the landed gentry.

School Garb—Who Decides?

Peterborough Examiner

Across the continent the battle rages between school officials and students. How long — if at all — should sideburns be? What is the minimum length above the knee for miniskirts? Two inches? Four inches? The sky's the limit? And what about T-shirts? Are they proper outerwear, or, as one U.S. high school insists, underwear? Should a girl wear a Nehru jacket with nothing underneath but panties? Should Nehru?

It has become something of a tradition this battle between the students and the school officials. For the students, it should be pursuing their losses through the courts and recovering only a fraction of them.

It is stupid and it is callous, and it is not insurance. In real insurance, such as life and fire, one insures against loss, and blame — except for deliberate criminality like arson — is not a factor in determining compensation. Ontario should have made the réform when it had the facts — three years ago.

On the same day the British Columbia find their Government has less lead in its boots.

said that they should be permitted to wear their clothes or hair in whatever style is generally permitted for adults. For the administration, it should be stupid not kids have a delightful habit of carrying good intentions far — and, on occasion, should be shot down.

While the annual bey-rube continues, there will be those of a certain age who will ask the question: what ever happened to parents? A long time ago it was parents — and not school officials — who decided what kids should wear and what not. What happened to them, those parents?

Board of Governors

Dozen Personalities Operate Loyalist

Community is the big word in the Loyalist terms of reference.

And the burgeoning campus is directly linked to the area it serves by its board of governors — a round dozen of local personalities responsible for the local look given the college.

They were at work when the campus still didn't even have a name, was still only a segment of a revolutionary educational scheme for Ontario.

When first assembled by provincial - government appointment, the governors represented an area from Napanee to Peterborough.

Their biggest decision likely was to establish two separate colleges — at Peterborough and Belleville — thus providing a more flexible campus system in the region.

The institution of Loyalist as an autonomous unit changed some faces on the original board, giving it — for the Quinte district — even more of a local touch.

The makeup of the new board now administering the college counts personalities from across Quinte, well-known in various phases of community enterprise in their own home towns.

These are the present Loyalist policymakers:

Judge J. C. Anderson — Chairman of the present board and one of the founding governors. Headed the original sub-committee responsible for the initial decisions that brought Loyalist to Belleville area. Hastings County judge, he also is distinguished natural labor conciliator whose experience is in demand by top industry, government.

Rev. H. J. Maloney—Bancroft parish priest, chairman of first board of governors which broke ground for community college movement in Peterborough - Quinte area. This group took the initiative in locating campus in both Belleville, Peterborough, later working toward autonomy for each institution. Member of family active in Ontario public affairs — he is brother of Arthur Maloney, leading Toronto barrister and distinguished Conservative politician.

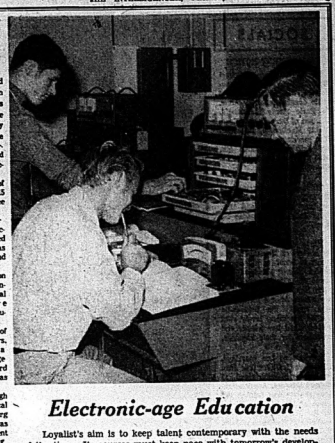
Mrs. G. S. Wonnacott—Long active in various spheres of Belleville community work, Mrs. Wonnacott is the only woman on the 12 - member board of governors. It's a post she's held from the start as one of the original board which established Loyalist.

W. C. Down — Represents Northumberland County. Active in education, is in third term as high school board chairman in his area and 1968 president, Ontario Urban and Rural Trustees' Association. A former Ontario Junior Farmers president, he is a rural land appraiser for Department of Food and Agriculture.

R. J. Colliver — Prominent Picton figure, is Prince Edward county sheriff, supreme court registrar, surrogate registrar. Has much knowledge of educational matters as high school board member for 12 years and director of Urban and Rural Trustees' Association.

Donald E. Hodgins — Speaks for Tweed area on board of governors. Local businessman, he is a 1964 arts graduate of Carleton. Is an active member of Eastern Ontario Food Dealers' Association.

R. A. Loader — Is organized labor's spokesman. A Trenton silversmith for the past 40 years he is Canadian representative of the International Jewellery Workers (CLC, AFL, CIO). He also headed LIW's Local 44, bargaining unit for jewellery and plating firms in Trenton-Belleville area.



J. E. Morrison — Publisher of Napanee Beaver for past 15 years, who represents Napanee area along with

J. Dundon — Technical director at Napanee District Secondary School. Both men served on the former joint board as representatives of Lennox and Addington County.

W. J. Wilkinson — Trenton chartered accountant, and member of the town's industrial commission. He served five years on Trenton board of education.

Frank Rabel — A member of the original board of governors, representing Frankford area. Bata Shoe Company management engineer, he has record of community service, served as reeve of Trumpkard council.

G. W. Cunningham — High school teacher active in local politics. Reeve of Ameliasburg township, Mr. Cunningham was Liberal candidate in the recent federal election challenging leading Conservative George Hees in Prince Edward - Hastings constituency.

Electronic-age Education

Loyalist's aim is to keep talent contemporary with the needs of the times. Its courses must keep pace with tomorrow's developments, in content and equipment — like this work bench where students practice electronic assembly.

Crash Program Successful

What does a crash program look like?

The Quinte community tomorrow may view the results at first glance as Loyalist College holds open house at its new Wallbridge Road campus.

The campus, a temporary building, was designed to meet specific needs by an early deadline.

The results brought into play innovation in building technology and construction, new ideas in classroom design.

Visitors will see:

- A one - storey, pre - engineered building, with 55,000 square feet of floor space — brought from the planning board to reality in a matter of months.
- Laboratories and workshops equipped with the latest mechanical, chemical and electronic apparatus.
- Moveable-wall classrooms designed for flexibility, where floor space can readily be altered depending on the number of students.
- Library - resource centre which someday, with its books, audio-visual aids, microfilm records, will be available for public reference.
- Student-lounge bufeteria where installation of newest automatic machines serves the most with the least problem.

The building, incidentally, has a high recovery value. After the Loyalist has become campus, the present structure comes apart in three units, each a complete building unit.

YMCA Membership at All Time High

YMCA membership at the end of September was the highest ever at that time of the year.

According to a "Y" bulletin the trend is to family memberships and income from the family enlistments surpasses the Y's income from all other categories.

The total of girls' and women's memberships is higher than those of the boys and men the bulletin stated.

In order to keep the memberships rolling in any "Y" member who recruits a new family will get the old rate in effect before Oct. 1.

At that time rates in all categories of memberships at the YMCA were increased.

After the first new member is recruited any other following recruit will extend the membership of the sponsor by one month.

Sunday swims will begin again Oct. 20 from 1.30 to 3 p.m. for family members — husband and wife or parent and child if all are "Y" members.

Following the family swim the pool will be open to the general public who are not members of the YMCA from 3.10 to 4.45 p.m.

Other activities beginning again for the winter season will be the women's fitness groups which have already started.

Both the two classes in the afternoon and morning are filled but third group was started Oct. 15 and there is still room for those women and girls interested.

Operation Community under the direction of Glen Manthorne also began Oct. 15. Arrangements had been made for the use of playrooms in Queen Alexandra, Prince Charles, Parkdale and Hillcrest schools.

Girls judo classes are already off to a good start on Wednesday evenings and Oct. 19 will see the boys and girls crafts group beginning.

Inability to Pay Isn't Any Barrier

The United Community Fund drive has brought YMCA membership privileges int the spotlight.

From questions asked during meetings with United Community Fund canvassers in industry it appears that not everybody understands the Y's stand on membership.

A statent from the YMCA said that the directors thought it was generally understood that a person's inability to pay a "Y" membership need never be a barrier to participation as a member.

However, from the questions asked it appears that this is not generally understood.

From time to time the general secretary or program directors receive direct requests or referrals from agencies for memberships to be supplied to persons or families who are unable to pay the fee.

Supporting their statement that inability to pay does not mean inability to play, the YMCA pointed out that there were 78 children in day camp this summer whose parents did not pay a fee.

Many participators in last season's community programs were also on a free basis and there are boys and girls and some families who are "Y" members without paying a fee or paying only a portion of the fee.

The bulletin asked members if they know of individuals or families who would like to take part in "Y" activities and do not because they can't afford the fee to let the membership committee know of them so arrangements can be made.

Value of Dairy Farms Shows Rapid Increase

It's no secret to the man engaged in the business and it possibly won't surprise urban people to learn that the capital value of commercial dairy farms in Ontario is seeing a rapid increase.

According to the 1966 agricultural census date the average capital value of commercial dairy farms grew from $34,817 in 1961 to $53,528 in 1966 — an increase of almost 54 per cent.

In the same period the number of commercial dairy farms declined from 36,346 to 21,159 or by 19 per cent. However, the proportion of dairy farms to the total number of commercial farms rose slightly.

Some of the increase in the average capital value of commercial dairy farms is due to rising production costs but much of it is the result of enlargement in farm operations.

The average farm size, on an improved land basis, went up from 126. 7 acres to 152.4 and over the same five year period the number of milk cows and heifers per farm increased from 21.7 to 28 head, or by 29 per cent.

Investment in machinery and equipment was higher by 20.3 per cent during the period.

The trend towards fewer, bigger and more mechanized commercial dairy farms with large herds is reflected in the volume of sales. Between 1961 and 1966, the total value of farm products sold by all commercial dairy farms in the province increased from $174.1 million to $221.7 million, an increase of 27.3 per cent over the five year period.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hylaway, Vancouver, announce the engagement of their daughter, Shirley Anne, to Earle Manly MacDonald, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Earle Manly MacDonald, Belleville. The marriage will take place on Friday, November 8th, 1968 at 7 p.m. in St. Matthias Church, Vancouver.

• • •

William Kelly, formerly of Belleville, spent the holiday weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Juby, 1648 Dundas St. East.

• • •

Miss Cathi MacDonald, bride-elect of November, was guest of honor at a surprise bridal shower held at the home of Mrs. Gerald Rep with Mrs. Austin White as co-hostess. After a social time was spent the bride-to-be opened her many lovely gifts and thanked her friends and neighbors for their kindness.

• • •

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Jack H. Oliver (nee Jean Sharpe) was entertained at several showers. A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. George Hick, R. R. No 1 Campbellford; and also at the home of Mrs. T. Gunter, Campbellford, with Mrs. Mel McKeown and Mrs. Earle Nelson assisting. A luncheon was given by her aunt, Mrs. James Milne at the Y.W.C.A. in Oshawa. A crystal shower was held at the home of Mrs. Paul Jeffs assisted by Mrs. William McAdam and Mrs. Leslie Nelson, while a miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Miss Vickie Hay, Stirling. A kitchen shower was held at the home of Mrs. Ted Reid of Belleville, and the bridal party was entertained following the rehearsal at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Oliver, R. R. No. 1, Campbellford.

• • •

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Paul Kennedy (nee Anne Chambers) was entertained at several showers. A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. B. R. Waters, Belleville, with Misses Linda Waters and Barbara Lang as co-hostesses; a second miscellaneous shower was given in her honor by Mrs. John Reynolds, Corbyville, with guests present being fellow employees of City Hall, and a cup and saucer and linen shower was held at the home of Mrs. Russell Jones, Belleville, for the bride.

Local squaredancers were present at a surprise shower held in honour of the bride-groom at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Waite, Belleville.

A party was given following the rehearsal by the parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Laurison Kennedy, Thomasburg.

• • •

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. B. Williams (nee Joan Elliot) was entertained at several events. A cup and saucer shower at the home of Mrs. L. Reilly, Stockdale, Ontario. A miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Twila Lucas, also a presentation by her co-workers at Northern Electric.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Adams, Ameliasburg, aunt and uncle of the groom, held a shower for the couple, when they received numerous gifts, after which a delicious lunch was served.

A pot-luck supper was held in Centenary Church hall by relatives of the bride for the couple, after which they were presented with wedding gifts.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN S. NOBLE

Oliver – Sharpe

Rev. W. C. Cox officiated at the October 5 ceremony at Mt. Pleasant United Church when Edna Jean Sharpe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Sharpe, of Stirling became the bride of Jack Hay Oliver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Oliver, of Campbellford. Traditional wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Craig Watson; and the soloist was Miss Roseanne McAvoy.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an A-line floor-length gown of chiffon velvet. The gown featured long sleeves and a round neckline trimmed with Guipure lace. The long detachable train fell from the waistline, also edged in Guipure lace, and enhanced by a tailored bow in the bodiced front of the dress. The four tiered scalloped tulle veil was caught to a floral arrangement trimmed with iridescent rhinestones and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of talisman roses and trailing ivy.

Maid of honour, and sister of the bride, was Miss Carol Sharpe. Her empire gown featured a scoop neckline with a self-flowered trim at the bodice of sheerbet pink crepe, topped with cherry velvet, featuring a full length panel, held with a velvet bow. The other bridesmaids were Mrs. Ted Reid, Belleville; Miss Vickie Hay, cousin of the groom, Stirling; and junior bridesmaid was Miss Kathy Sharpe, sister of the bride. All of the bridesmaids were attired identically to the maid of honour.

Attending the bridegroom was Robert Burgis, of Campbellford. The ushers for the ceremony were: Ted Reid, Belleville; Ralph Parr, Campbellford; Ronald Nelson, cousin of the bride, Warkworth, Ontario.

For the wedding reception at Mt. Pleasant Church hall, the mother of the bride received the guests in a fuchsia silk and worsted ensemble, featuring an A-line dress fashioned with a Victorian beaded collar enhanced with a seven-eighths matching coat, and was completed by a white gardenia corsage. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom chose a crushed raspberry ensemble of imported silk worsted beaded in matching color completed by a feather petalled turban of blended shades. Matching accessories and a corsage of white orchids completed her outfit.

For the wedding trip, the bride donned a blended striped double knit dress, in shades of russet, black and oyster worn with a solid russet coat buttoned at the neckline. Her accessories were of black patent. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Peterborough.

Kennedy – Chambers

Holloway Street United Church was the scene of the October wedding when Anne Elizabeth Chambers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Keith Chambers of Belleville was united in marriage to Paul Everett Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Laurison E. Kennedy of Thomasburg. Rev. J. W. Lamb officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by guest organist S. Alec Gordon.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length A-line gown of re-embroidered Chantilly lace over peau de soie with empire waist. Pearl beadings enhanced the bodice and elbow length sleeves and a scallop of lace bordered the hem and chapel train which extended from the waist. A wedding ring headdress of pearl beaded lace over peau de soie was raught to a full length silk illusion veil. She carried a crescent shaped bouquet of snow white gardenias.

Miss Barbara Lang as maid of honor wore a floor length A line gown of mustard shade crepe with empire waist and short sleeves. She carried a colonial bouquet of white mums and fern with deep loops of gold ribbon. The bridesmaids were Miss Linda Waters and Miss Eileen Vance, cousin of the bridegroom, were both attired identically to the maid of honor and carried similar bouquets.

Burton Sherry attended the bridegroom and Allen Chambers, brother of the bride and Donald Kennedy, brother of the bridegroom were the ushers.

At the reception in the church hall the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a dress and jacket ensemble of ginger shade boucle crepe with toast shade hand draped turban of chenille, brown and beige accessories and a corsage of palie yellow carnations. Assisting, the bride-groom's mother wore a two-piece ensemble of pearl grey knit, muted deep blue feather hat, navy accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations.

On return the couple will live at 20 Highland Ave. Belleville.

Noble – Morrow

St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, was the scene of the October wedding when Rev. Michael Caswell united in marriage Barbara Anne Morrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Morrow of Stirling, to John Shurie Noble, son of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Noble, of Stirling. Rendering the traditional wedding music was James Morrow; while the soloist was William McArton.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length gown of crystal peau de soie, of princess styling. The gown featured leg of mutton sleeves with deep cuffs of re-embroidered Swiss lace appliqued with seed pearl trim. The yoke and the stand up collar were the same as the cuffs. Her headpiece featured clustered leaves outlined with seed pearls centred with Borralis stamins. Double tear drops on her forehead were enhanced with a four-tiered illusion veil. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and white stephanotis.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Andrew Faulkner, sister of the bride, was attired in a velvet peacock blue gown. It was of the Elizabethan style, with long sleeves and a high neckline. The A-line skirt was enhanced by the sleeves and the high collar, which was trimmed with dainty beautiful lace. Her matching headpiece was of chiffon and velvet ribbon down the back.

Bridesmaids, Mrs. Ross Sayles; Miss Elaine Vanderwart and Miss Brenda Whiting wore dresses identical to that of the matron of honor. All carried bouquets of white carnations with sweetheart roses.

Attending the bridegroom was Robert Noble, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Robert Morrow, brother of the bride, Robert McArton and Ross Sayles.

For the reception held at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, the mother of the bride wore a two-piece powder blue ensemble of imported French ribbon knit, with a matching feather hat, and a corsage of pink and white rosebuds. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom was attired in an imported ensemble of silvertone and utrillo grey in metallic wool, with a matching feather hat and a corsage of red carnations.

For the wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains, Penn., the bride chose a brown wool tweed princess styled coat-dress; with brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses and bronze mums. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Toronto.

Ann Landers

Daughter Blames Mom For Father's Illness

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband has been in and out of a mental hospital for the last four years. He has tried to commit suicide five times. He has also tried to kill me.

Our youngest daughter is 20. She continually berates me for "not letting Papa come home." She insists I am putting him in his grave by keeping him locked up away from his family. She keeps telling me it is my fault because Papa is sick — that I nagged him into insanity. When she talks this way I get so depressed I can't eat or sleep.

My two older daughters understand. This girl does not. I have asked her to speak to the doctors but she refuses. What can I do? — BUFFALO.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR BUFF: You can ask the doctor to write a short letter to your 20-year-old explaining the necessity of keeping her father hospitalized. It is not her love for her father but her hostility toward you that makes her behave this way. When you understand this you will no longer permit her to make you feel guilty, which is, of course, her prime motivation.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What does a woman do after 20 years of marriage when her 43-year-old husband comes to her and asks for a divorce? I am 39 and have four wonderful children. I love my husband and was shocked when he told me he has fallen out of love and wants to be free so he can recapture that old feeling.

I suggested counseling and he said it would be useless. He wants out. I feel lost and frightened. Two of our children are quite young and I'm afraid I cannot raise them alone. I am panic stricken and bewildered and can't figure out what happened. What should I do? — ST. LOUIS.

DEAR S.L.: It sounds as if your husband has already "recaptured that old feeling" — with somebody else. Tell him he is free to move out, but no divorce.

After 20 years of marriage and four children, a man has no right to flake off just because he's found a little more excitement elsewhere. He has an obligation to stick with his family — and make the best of whatever feeling there is.

Sometimes these lover boys get their fill of fooling around when the glamor of stolen moments and secret rendezvous has worn off. They miss their kids and regain their sanity and go back home where they belong.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a practical nurse (age 31) and am working on a case which has been driving me nuts. The patient is a man 58 who was injured in an industrial accident.

He was quite ill and severely incapacitated when I took on the case four months ago, but in the past three weeks he has become so well he's too darned frisky for his own good. If my husband knew how this "cripple" chases me around the house he'd make me quit this job.

The insurance company is paying for the patient's care, which means he's in no hurry to go back to his job. In the meantime, I am worn out. He has given me four raises and the money looks awfully good. What should I do? — J.L.

DEAR J.L.: Any guy who is well enough to chase the nurse is well enough to go to work. Tell him you're leaving next week. No money is that good.

Church Groups

ST. MICHAEL'S C.W.L.

The October meeting of St. Michael's Parish C.W.L. was held on Tuesday, October 15.

At the close of the business session the guest speaker, Mrs. Robin Jeffrey was introduced by Mrs. Herbert Brown.

Mrs. Jeffrey spoke on "The Christian Woman in Her Community". She called on christian women to take a more active part in the affairs concerning her church, the school boards, the administration of government at all levels.

The only way this can be accomplished, she maintained, is by taking an active interest and being involved with organizations and institutions which are working to make changes.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. George O'Brien and the meeting was closed. Refreshments were served by Mrs. K. Black and her committee.

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY COUNCIL

FRANKFORD — Frankford Women's Missionary Council of Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle met on Wednesday evening, October 9 at the home of Mrs. Don Irish at Oak Lake.

Mrs. Irish welcomed the group who enjoyed a dessert lunch.

President Mrs. E. Strome was in charge of the meeting and thanked hostess, Mrs. J. Knechtel, guest from Kitchener opened the worship service.

Mrs. Trudy Veerman sang a number and Mrs. Don Irish read a poem, on "Friendship."

A time of prayer was spent on behalf of needs and for the missionaries in the field.

The president read a thank-you note from missionary Mrs. Keith Morrison and the monthly bulletin was read.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Mary Patrick.

A letter was read from Missionary Mrs. C. Barker of the West Indies and the meeting closed with a time of fellowship.

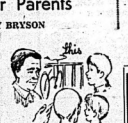
C.A. MEETING

Frankford Full Gospel C.A.'s met at 7.45 p.m. on Thursday evening in the church. Richard Patrick was in charge of the service, opening in the usual manner, with a prayer by Ricky Reilly. After the singing of several hymns, Rev. James Dunlop, minister, led in prayer.

The scripture reading was given by Richard Patrick. Mrs. Edna Sines, with her sister, Miss Dorcas Grant, sang a duet. The C.A. offering was received by Barry Reilly. Announcements were made by Pastor Dunlop.

A congregation hymn game was enjoyed with the young women defeating the young women, by a score of 13 to 11. The game was conducted by Ricky Reilly. Testimonies were given, and a duet was sung by Mr. and Mrs. Glen Post.

Speaker for the evening was Mrs. E. Strome. Following the singing of a hymn, the service closed with prayer.



'What, No Sex!'

LONDON (AP)—Former actress Jackie Collins, who has just completed a new book titled The Stud, said she was astonished when Australia banned her previous book, The World is Full of Married Men. "Funny people, these Australians," she said. "Don't they have men and women there!"

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "Get those bikes and trikes off the driveway so I can put the car away. They're always in my way when I come home. How can you be so inconsiderate?"

Provide stalls for children's equipment. A parking spot will be used if it's almost as handy as the driveway, and if children are trained to use it.

Father: "Please park your bikes here even if it's just for a few minutes. Then I can drive into the garage without having to get out of the car and move them."

Successful Living

Advice for Separated Women

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Please publish some do's and don'ts for separated females.

When a girl marries and starts her own home, that is hers and what she does there is up to her. But if she wants to break it up and is fortunate enough to have her own family home to go back to, she should be very grateful, with no back talk.

Furthermore, this one has her own friends visit her until the morning hours in her rooms. Would this make it harder for her to get a divorce?

There are too many bossy daughters taking over. — Just An In-Law.

Dear In-Law: It takes a pretty level-headed, grown-up girl to eat humble pie with good grace — I'm sure there are some.

Certainly the young lady who runs home to mother is expected to be grateful. No back talk. No midnight callers — which only serve to suggest just who was in the wrong in her particular marriage tangle.

DORIS CLARK

As for making divorce more complicated or harder to get, a lawyer would have to say, If there is a child, the girl would be well advised to protect her reputation lest a judge would term her an unfit mother.

* * *

Dear Doris: This is a true story. Up until six months ago I had a hair growth on my face that any guy would've been proud of. A doctor suggested electrolysis.

I am a new person. I no longer hide or turn my face when talked to or race through the halls at school so as not to be seen. Electrolysis is wonderful and rewarding when applied correctly. I am lucky to have the best electrologist there is.

So I recommend it to everyone who is embarrassed by unwanted hair. It does wonders for your appearance as well as your self-confidence. Grateful.

Dear Grateful: Good news! In the hands of an expert, this up-to-date method of hair removal can work a miracle.

Confidential to Mommy: Who'd blame a mother for fuming inwardly when her child stalls over food? Just be sure to keep it inward.

Privately allow 10 to 15 minutes for action and then make him free to leave the table. (Not as a punishment but just to let him off the hook with no fuss.)

Plenty of active play outdoors and enough sleep — these will both do wonders for a small boy's appetite. When these measures fail, or when a healthy child goes off his food, it is time to see a doctor.

* * *

(Doris can help you with that puzzling decision. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Homemade Crescent Rolls

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I buy crescent rolls in a tube from the dairy case and my family could eat two packages every time. Could you tell me how I could make them myself to save the expense? Is it hard? — Marjorie McCall.

ANSWER: No it is not hard. This old fireborne rises to yeast baking requests with alacrity.

CRESCENT ROLLS (24)

½ cup scalded milk
1 package granular yeast
2 teaspoons sugar
½ cup lukewarm water
6 tablespoons sugar (second amount)
5 tablespoons shortening
1 tablespoon salt
4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 eggs (one for dough — one for brushing tops)

Scald milk first — let low heat to prevent it boiling over. (Or better still, in double boiler.) Into large mixing bowl tip yeast, add the 2 teaspoons sugar and lukewarm water, give them one stir and let soak 10 minutes. Remove scalded milk from heat and to it add the shortening and salt and stir and cool to lukewarm. Add to risen yeast mixture with 2 cups of the sifted flour and one egg and stir and beat to mix as well as you can. Then add remaining one cup sifted flour and stir in until all loose flour is incorporated, and longer if you are strong enough. Scrape down sides of bowl, cover with foil or plate and let rise. At 70 deg. Fahr. in my kitchen this took 4 hours. (NOTE: This is refrigerator dough and may be tightly covered and refrigerated as long as two or three days.) Punch down dough and kneed on generously floured board 50 to 100 times. Divide into three equal portions.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Tuna Loaf; Caper Sauce; Fried Green Tomatoes; Corn on the Cob; Vegetable Slaw; Dutch Plum Cake; Foamy Sauce; Coffee.

Shape each into ball and roll out each to 9" circle. Brush lightly with butter. Cut into eight pie-shaped wedges: Roll up each triangle beginning at outside edge. Place on buttered cookie sheets points down. Curve ends in to make a crescent. Let this stage (not later) brush with one egg mixed with 1 tablespoon cold water. Let dough rise again and puffy-looking — about 1 to 1½ hours. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 12 to 15 minutes. Serve warm if possible. Freeze any leftover in double plastic bags. Frozen crescents should be thawed and reheated in heavy paper bag.

Be A Beauty Behind the Wheel

By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

Whether you're leading a victory parade or simply toddling along the highway, be a beauty behind the wheel. Give the same care to yourself as to your car by keeping your own grooming "emergency kit." Then, while waiting for a friend or during a stop-off, instant rescue can go to work. For instance, a plastic bottle of skin freshener provides a quick, facial perk-up, while a pack of anti-perspirant pads make hands cool, not clammy. With an estimated 70,000,000 licences issued to women, cosmeticians are determined to put a beauty in the driver's seat.

Storing your portable makeup kit need not be a problem. Actress Barbara Sanford has her own curbside vanity. She clamps a mirror onto a visor on the passenger's side Then, she inserts three "pockets" for holding lipstick, brow pencil and container of double-tipped cotton swabs. The latter are convenient for removing mascara smudges, smoothing a perspiring brow or blending streaked eyeliner. Such a visor vanity is always at your fingertips.

Of course, there are moments when direct action is required. Have you ever parked, and suddenly caught a glance of your face in the rear-view or side mirror? What if you've eaten off your lipstick, or it's coated on your teeth, or feathered over the mouth outline? Reapply color, then reach for a compact of sterilized swabs, and trace a neat border around lips. Also, easily remove any tell-tale color from teeth. The idea is to select portable items that take little space but perform double duty.

* * *

P.S.: Here are 50 "quick tips" to make you prettier and better groomed. Our 12-page, fully illustrated booklet offers instant remedies for those everyday beauty and promises "emergencies." For a copy enclose 30c and a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Reba and Bonnie Churchill, Quick Tips, c-o The Intelligencer, Room 1310, 60 King St. W., Toronto Ontario.

Hike in Minimum Wage Benefits 190,000 Workers

TORONTO (CP) — A new minimum wage for general industry of $1.50 an hour announced Thursday by Labor Minister Dalton Bales will give Ontario a higher minimum than current rates in the other nine provinces.

The new rate represents a 30-per-cent increase over the present minimum of $1 an hour and Mr. Bales also announced that the minimum in the construction industry will be raised to $1.55 from $1.35 an hour.

He said the new rates will affect about 190,000 workers, most of whom are not in unions and have little bargaining power.

Mr. Bales said a new Employment Standards Act assuring the basic rights of workers will also become effective Jan. 1.

The act, passed last spring, included provisions that employees be paid time-and-a-half for work beyond 48 hours a week or performed on seven statutory holidays, and equal pay for men and women doing the same work.

The new legislation will also empower the government to collect unpaid wages for employees up to $1,000 per claim.

The new act does not apply to farm employees and industries under federal jurisdiction such as banks, railways and airlines.

The new rates mean a person in general industry working 40 hours a week will have to be paid at least $53 a week and a construction worker will get at least $62.

Union leaders immediately labelled the increases unrealistic and inadequate.

Morden Lazarus, political education director of the 500,000-member Ontario Federation of Labor, said his organization wanted a $2 an hour minimum last year. He said since that time living costs have again risen sharply, including a 35-per-cent increase in the cost of housing in the Toronto area.

George C. Weaver, executive member of the Canadian Labor Congress, said he was "bitterly disappointed."

"It's nothing more than a handout," he said. "This is too small a wage to maintain a decent standard of living."

Said Mac Makarchuk, NDP member of the legislature for Brantford:

"The increase in minimum wages means that low-paid Ontario workers will no longer be getting starvation wages—they will be getting poverty wages."

The largest increase will be for workers in the fruit and vegetable processing industries where the minimum will rise to $1.30 an hour from 90 cents.

Present minimum wages in Alberta and British Columbia are $1.25 an hour and Manitoba will increase its minimum to $1.25 from $1.20 Dec. 1.

In Quebec, the minimum wage in the Montreal area will be $1.25 an hour after Nov. 1 for persons over 18. In the rest of the province, the minimum will be $1.15 an hour.

Heart Donors Sought

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Pierre Grondin of the Montreal Heart Institute, who headed a surgical team that has carried out Canada's five heart transplants, Thursday issued a countrywide appeal for heart donors.

Dr. Grondin urged medical centres throughout Canada to refer possible donors to the institute.

"At the moment we have a long list of recipients waiting for transplants and two of them are in near critical condition."

Gaetan Paris, 49, the second transplant recipient, received his new heart June 28 and is convalescing.

Edouard Desrivieres, 51, and Rosaire Brien, 58, the institute's fourth and fifth transplant patients, were reported in excellent condition.

Jamaica Bans Professor; Ottawa Protest Planned

MONTREAL (CP) — A group of black students and workers announced Thursday they plan a "serious" demonstration in Ottawa Monday at the Jamaican High Commission to protest the Jamaican government's treatment of Prof. Walter Rodney.

"This will not be the ordinary demonstration," said Rosie Douglas, one of the protest leaders.

"We will be peaceful unless we are forced to use other methods, but we are going to see the Jamaican High Commissioner—and we will see him one way or the other."

The group will hold a preliminary protest here tonight at Sir George Williams University.

Prof. Rodney, 26, a professor of African history at the University of the West Indies, Kingston, was barred from re-entering Jamaica after attending a Black Writers' Congress in Montreal earlier this week.

The government ban touched off student demonstrations in Kingston in which three demonstrators were killed.

The protests in Montreal and Ottawa are being co-ordinated by the Black Writers' Congress Committee, headed by Mr. Douglas, and by the West Indian Societies of McGill and Sir George Williams universities.

At a news conference here Thursday, Prof. Rodney said the Jamaican restriction on him was the final straw, and that the Kingston demonstrations have far deeper causes.

"Those blacks in Jamica did not go out in the streets to get killed because of me or any individual—they did it for themselves.

"I have only been in Kingston for nine months, so the extent of their reaction indicates the depth of the problem."

He said that despite official "myths," Jamaica is a seething pot of racism and economic inequity, and that this latest incident had merely brought the problem to the surface.

"The myth says that Jamaicans are happy people in the sun, and that the Jamaican government is democratic—this just isn't true."

An armed revolution was the only answer because the situation had reached such intolerable proportions, he said.

He said the ban on his re-entry was simply an attempt by the Jamaican government to quietly remove a person who spoke out about these problems.

GEORGETOWN (CP) — Twelve members of the staff association of the University of Guyana picketed the office of Attorney-General Sonny Ramphal Thursday to demonstrate about the way the Jamaican government has treated Prof. Rodney, a native of Guyana.

A spokesman for the association, biology professor Harold Drayton, said the ban is another of a series of infringements of human rights perpetrated against academics and other people of the Caribbean by the Jamaican government.

Advertised Petition Adequate Notice

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Court of Appeal Thursday gave a Toronto woman permission to advertise her divorce petition in a newspaper and ruled such advertising is adequate notification for the husband she says she cannot locate.

Under Canada's new divorce legislation, which went into effect July 1, many orders have been granted for substitutional service—advertising of divorce petitions when the spouse cannot be found.

Aniela Satt, 53, of Toronto, started divorce proceedings Sept. 17 and applied earlier this month for an order allowing her to advertise the divorce petition in a newspaper rather than serving legal papers on the husband she says she cannot locate. Mr. Justice W. D. Parker of Ontario Supreme Court had referred the case to Court of Appeal.

Mrs. Satt said she married her husband John, 52, by proxy when she was in Poland in 1964. She said he deserted her two weeks after she arrived in Canada Aug. 23, 1965.

Last Sept. 20, an application for substitutional service by a Chatham woman was indefinitely adjourned by Mr. Justice C. D. Stewart. The woman, Irene Bessie McAdams, said she had not been able to locate her husband since 1949.

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mr. and Mrs. William Yateman were Sunday visitors of Mr. Yateman's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Yateman at Trenton and also called on Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hurd and Ray of Trenton.

Mrs. George Cotten opened her home this past week for Bible study.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Lee of Bournemouth, England were Saturday visitors of their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Michael and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Anderson, Mrs. George Bilham and Master Larry Paul Bilham were Friday visitors in Peterborough.

Miss Debra Jones accompanied her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Stoneburg of Bethany to Bancroft on Sunday to visit the former's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Stoneburg.

Mr. and Mrs. George Arthur entertained last weekend their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Arthur of Oshawa and Mr. and Mrs. Eric Walker of Camp Borden.

Mr. and Mrs. William Yateman attended the funeral of Mrs. Yateman's aunt, Mrs. George Wesley Rutter of Belleville at the Bush Funeral Home on Wednesday.

International Black Power On the Way

HALIFAX (CP) — Stokely Carmichael, a leader of the militant Black Power movement, said Thursday the movement is being internationalized and co-ordinated.

He made the comments at the airport just before taking off on a flight for Boston, ending an 18-hour visit to Halifax.

Rocky Jones, a student at Dalhousie University here and a local Black Power leader, said earlier that Mr. Carmichael was in Halifax on vacation. However, Mr. Carmichael said at the airport that he and Mr. Jones met early Thursday with "a number of people and a number of groups."

Jackie Flies To Onassis

ATHENS (CP) — Jacqueline Kennedy arrived in Greece today to marry one of the world's richest men, Aristotle Onassis, ending five years of speculation about the future of the glamorous presidential widow.

A special Greek airliner brought the bride-to-be and her family to a military airport at Andravida, in southern Greece. As Mrs. Kennedy stepped from the plane and walked down the steps, she was greeted by Onassis, who had flown from Athens to take his bride-to-be on to Skorpios, the small scorpion-shaped island he owns south of Corfu.

They will be married there Saturday "or within three days at the latest," Onassis told reporters in Athens.

Onassis said they would spend their honeymoon on Skorpios "unless Jackie wants to make a tour of the Mediterranean."

Airport police confiscated all cameras and locked reporters in the airport's waiting room about 300 yards away just before Mrs. Kennedy's jet landed.

Mrs. Kennedy left New York Thursday night shortly after the surprise announcement of her plans to marry Onassis.

Mrs. Kennedy, wearing a short-sleeved green woollen dress, crocodile skin shoes and ornate sunglasses, was kissed on the cheek by Onassis as he gave her a welcoming embrace. Then Onassis bent to kiss the two Kennedy children.

Airport employees said Mrs. Kennedy was smiling as she stepped from the airplane. She took a deep breath, looked at the warm sun, and then took her children for a brief walk along the runway to stretch their legs.

Then the group boarded a helicopter for the wedding date on Skorpious.

Onassis, 62, was divorced in 1960 after 14 years of marriage to the former Tina Livanos, daughter of another multi-millionaire Greek shipowner. They had two children, and she later married England's Marquis of Blandford, the Duke of Marlborough's heir.

Mrs. Kennedy's plans to wed were announced Thursday in New York by her mother, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss.

A few hours after the announcement, Mrs. Kennedy, her two children, Caroline, 10, and John Jr., 7, and a party of eight bumped 90 passengers from an Olympic Airways jetliner and took off from New York's Kennedy Airport for Greece. Onassis owns the airline.

The party included Mrs. Auchincloss and her husband; two of President Kennedy's sisters, Mrs. Stephen Smith and Mrs. Peter Lawford; Mrs. Lawford's daughter; a Secret Service agent and two maids.

A spokesman for the airline said the plane's 90 passengers were put on a plane that left three hours later.

The courtship ranked as one of the international jet set's best-kept secrets.

Although Mrs. Kennedy was known to have been a friend of Onassis for some time, few had believed this friendship would blossom into marriage.

Loyalist Days Are Here

Church Sanction In Doubt

NEW YORK (AP) — The matrimonial rules of their different churches present a complicated situation in regard to the planned marriage of Jacqueline Kennedy and shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis.

She is Roman Catholic, widowed by the death of the late President John F. Kenedy. He is Greek Orthodox and divorced from his first wife, who is still living.

Roman Catholicism will not sanction the second marriage of a divorced person unless the prior union is found to have been invalid.

However, a matrimonial tribunal of the Greek Orthodox Church in North and South America in 1961 granted ecclesiastical approval to the 1960 civil divorce obtained by the first wife of Onassis, Tina, opening the door for remarriage in the Orthodox church.

At the Vatican, a theologian expressed the opinion that Mrs. Kennedy will automatically excommunicate herself from Roman Catholicism if she marries Onassis.

"It would not be a valid marriage in the eyes of the Catholic Church," he said.

However, a Vatican source quoted by Reuters news agency said the Roman Catholic Church would have no objection to the marriage providing the dissolution of Onassis's last marriage is recognized by his church.

Hanoi Hangup Stalls Halt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Disagreement between "hawks" and "doves" in Hanoi may be delaying a response to proposals by the United States for ending all bombing of North Vietnam, diplomatic authorities here believe.

These authorities suggest a debate has been going on within the North Vietnamese leadership over the issue of giving assurances of limiting the war on their side if President Johnson halts attacks on the North.

The North Vietnamese, diplomats in Paris say, have a choice of actions to assure Washington they would not take advantage of a bombing halt.

News Briefs

MONTREAL (CP) — Because of what it describes as student unrest, the University of Montreal says it will not hold its traditional fall convocation this year. The French-language university said in a statement Thursday that because of the climate of student unrest, its 814 graduates will be awarded degrees and diplomas by mail this week.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — An early-morning blast shattered the front of an Air Canada ticket office today. George Kennedy, Air Canada sales manager, said Canada's diplomatic relations with Cuba could be the reason. He estimated damage to the office at $5,000.

Moon-return Engine Fired

HOUSTON (AP) — With a jolting burst of energy, the Apollo 7 astronauts fired their steering engine today in the most powerful manoeuvre ever made by a manned spaceship.

The huge engine flashed to life and spurted a steady tail of flame for 66 seconds as Apollo 7 raced 120 miles above the Gulf of Mexico.

"That was a real nice to-do, the machine performed beautifully," spacecraft commander Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. reported at the completion of the vital test of the engine that one day will guide American astronauts to the moon.

When the burn started, it was under the automatic control of the spacecraft guidance and navigation system. Schirra took control manually the last 30 seconds to demonstrate the ability of the pilot to take over in case the automatic system failed.

He reported that momentarily during the firing, the astronauts were jolted out of their weightless world and that the gravity reading in the cabin was one G —equal to the force of gravity at ground level.

The 66-second firing today burned two tons of fuel, reducing the weight of the spaceship from about 29,000 to 25,000 pounds.

The Apollo engine, the most powerful ever carried by a manned space vehicle, will be critical to a man-to-the-moon mission because it must guide the ship to the moon, kick it into lunar orbit, fire it out of orbit and steer it back to earth.

Schirra was in a good mood when he awakened today and, referring to Apollo 7's four live telecasts earlier this week, said he'd like "to try for an Emmy for the best TV series."

Vietnam Re-enters Campaign

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Reports of a possible development in the Paris peace talks have revived emphasis on Vietnam in the United States presidential campaign.

Republican Richard M. Nixon says he's willing to let President Johnson make a decision on any bombing halt over North Vietnam, while Senator Strom Thurmond—Nixon's ally in the South—warns Americans not to be deluded into thinking the war will end before election day.

Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey hasn't mentioned the bombing halt rumors and his vice-presidential running mate, Senator Edmund S. Muskie, refused to discuss what he knows about the Paris peace talks.

Olympic Tinder Box

Black Power Medallists Suspended by U.S. Committee

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The U.S. Olympic Committee suspended Negro sprinters Tommie Smith and John Carlos early today for "untypical exhibitionism" during an Olympic victory ceremony Wednesday.

The decision followed a complaint by the International Olympic Committee regarding the conduct of Smith when he received the gold medal for winning the 200-metre finals and Carlos when he was presented the bronze for finishing third.

Two members of the U.S. Olympic Committee's board of consultants—John Sayre, a rower in the 1960 Olympics, and Billy Mills, the 10,000-metre winner in 1964—went to the Olympic Village after midnight to tell Smith and Carlos to leave.

A statement from the U.S. Olympic Committee said that any repetition of "such incidents by other members of the U.S. team can only be considered a willful disregard of Olympic principles that would warrant the imposition of the severest penalties at the disposal of the U.S. Olympic Committee."

It expressed "profound regrets" to the IOC, the Mexican Organizing Committee and to the people of Mexico "for the discourtesy displayed by two members of this team in departing from tradition during a victory ceremony at the Olympic Stadium Oct. 16."

"The untypical exhibitionism of these athletes also violates the basic standards of sportsmanship and good manners which are so highly regarded in the United States, and therefore the two men involved are suspended forthwith from the team and ordered to remove themselves from the Olympic Village."

"This action is taken in the belief such immature behavior is an isolated incident. However, if further investigation or subsequent events do not bear out this view, the entire matter will be re-evaluated."

The rebellion started to build up when Jim Hines and Charlie Greene of the U.S. track team indicated prior to receiving medals for their 1-3 finish in the 100 metres Tuesday they would not accept medals at the victory ceremony from Avery Brundage of Chicago, 81, president of the IOC. Brundage has been called a racist by some U.S. Negro athletes.

Reports of a possible development in the Paris peace talks has revived emphasis on Vietnam in the United States presidential campaign.

Republican Richard M. Nixon says he's willing to let President Johnson make a decision on any bombing halt over North Vietnam, while Senator Strom Thurmond—Nixon's ally in the South—warns Americans not to be deluded into thinking the war will end before election day.

Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey hasn't mentioned the bombing halt rumors, and his vice-presidential running mate, Senator Edmund S. Muskie, refused to discuss what he knows about the Paris peace talks.

Moon-return Engine Fired

HOUSTON (AP) — With a jolting burst of energy, the Apollo 7 astronauts fired their steering engine today in the most powerful manoeuvre ever made by a manned spaceship.

The huge engine flashed to life and sparted a steady tail of flame for 66 seconds as Apollo 7 raced 120 miles above the Gulf of Mexico.

"That was a real nice to-do, the machine performed beautifully," spacecraft commander Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. reported at the completion of the vital test of the engine that one day will guide American astronauts to the moon.

When the burn started, it was under the automatic control of the spacecraft guidance and navigation system. Schirra took control manually the last 20 seconds to demonstrate the ability of the pilot to take over in case the automatic system failed.

He reported that momentarily during the firing, the astronauts were jolted out of their weightless world and that the gravity reading in the cabin was one G — equal to the force of gravity at ground level.

The 65-second firing today turned two tons of fuel, reducing the weight of the spaceship from about 29,000 to 25,000 pounds.

The Apollo engine, the most powerful ever carried by a manned space vehicle, will be critical to a man-to-the-moon mission because it must guide the ship to the moon, kick it into lunar orbit, fire it out of orbit and steer it back to earth.

Schirra was in a good mood when he awakened today and, referring to Apollo 7's four live telecasts earlier this week, said he'd like "to try for an Emmy for the best TV series."

Olympic Tinder Box

Black Power Medallists Suspended by U.S. Committee

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The U.S. Olympic Committee, suspended Negro sprinters Tommie Smith ahd John Carlos early today for "untypical exhibitionism" during an Olympic victory ceremony Wednesday.

The decision followed a complaint by the International Olympic Committee regarding the conduct of Smith when he received the gold medal for winning the 200-metre finals and Carlos when he was presented the bronze for finishing third.

Two members of the U.S. Olympic Committee's board of consultants—John Sayre, a rower in the 1960 Olympics, and Billy Mills, the 10,000-metre winner in 1964—went to the Olympic Village after midnight to tell Smith and Carlos to leave.

A statement from the U.S. Olympic Committee said that any repetition of "such incidents by other members of the U.S. team can only be considered a willful disregard of Olympic principles that would warrant the imposition of the severest penalties at the disposal of the U.S. Olympic Committee."

It expressed "profound regrets" to the IOC, the Mexican Organizing Committee and to the people of Mexico "for the discourtesy displayed by two members of this team in departing from tradition during a victory ceremony at the Olympic Stadium Oct. 16."

"The untypical exhibitionism of these athletes also violates the basic standards of sportsmanship and good manners which are so highly regarded in the United States, and therefore the two men involved are suspended forthwith from the team and ordered to remove themselves from the Olympic Village."

"This action is taken in the belief such immature behavior is an isolated incident. However, if further investigation or subsequent events do not bear out this view, the entire matter will be re-evaluated."

The rebellion started to build up when Jim Hines and Charlie Greene of the U.S. track team indicated prior to receiving medals for their 4-3 finish in the 100 metres Tuesday they would not accept medals at the victory ceremony from Avery Brundage of Chicago, 81, president of the IOC. Brundage has been called a racist by some U.S. Negro athletes.

Nicholson Students Join 'Show of Strength'

Three students and a teacher from Nicholson Catholic College will be among delegates from Roman Catholic high schools across Ontario who will meet in Toronto this weekend.

The students, seeking full financial support from the government for their schools, will meet in a united show of strength Saturday and Sunday.

NCC delegates are Wayne Storms, student council president, Judith Schreiber, Dennis Walsh and Sister Anna Morand, a teacher who will attend as an adult observer and moderator.

"We'll be mainly a get-together to set up policy, form a constitution and elect a board of officers," says Joseph Redican, 16-year-old Grade 12 student at Michael Power high school where the meetings are to be held Saturday and Sunday.

"However, we're hoping for the same solid support we drew at St. Catharines in May," he said in an interview.

The delegates, representing 31,000 students in 76 Roman Catholic high schools in the province, plan to call their organization the Ontario Catholic Student Federation. About 150 delegates are expected to attend.

The group's aim is to convince the provincial government that students in Grades 11, 12 and 13 in Roman Catholic schools should not have to pay for their education through tuition fees.

At present, only Grades 1 to 10 in Roman Catholic schools are financed almost entirely by provincial grants.

Mr. Redican said the student organization was the idea of the students, "and although we got co-operation from the teachers they have stayed out of it."

He said representation is expected from the office of William Davis, Ontario education minister, at Saturday's meeting.

After the St. Catherines' meeting, the group next delegates to Mr. Davis to discuss the organization.

"They weren't too encouraging at Mr. Davis' office, but they didn't discourage us either," Mr. Redican said.

The members of the Quinte Curling Club will find their favorite sport more enjoyable this winter. During the summer months, heaters have been placed around the playing service and this will alleviate the cold temperature and also make the ice faster by keeping it at an even temperature.

At the fall meeting of the club, held in the clubhouse on Wednesday evening the new board of directors which consists of president, David Goldie; Allan Ingston, past president, William Riley, vice president, Art Bateman, secretary-treasurer Cliff Neill, vice chairman Bruce Parsons, publicity chairman William McPherson and Canteen "Pete" Acton reported to the meeting and all showed that the directors have had a busy summer and everything was in readiness for a successful season.

Bruce Parsons reported that a new ice scraping machine had been purchased and the ice will be kept at a constant level during the winter. New plastic cups of red and white have been purchased for the curling stones which will add a little more color.

There will be three draws for the men and two for the women during the season and the first draw for the men will be based on draws by the skips. A number of ladies' events will be held during the winter with the Quinte tri-pixel being held from February 26 to March 2nd and the Quinte mixed spiel from January 22 to 26 inclusive. It was also announced there will be a party at the clubhouse at least once a month.

Junior curling will be given a prominent place in the schedule during the winter.

The club membership will be increased by 17 and among the new members are a few who are coming back after being out for a couple of years.

During the evening the president presented shields to the past presidents of the club who included William Riley, Fred Mason, Ken Thomson, Robert Lanning, "Pat" Hourie, Ev Gowsell and William Gault. Gil Wannholm was absent and Everett Black is deceased. The members will proudly wear their shields on their curling sweaters.

William Gault, one of the founders of the club and a stalwart during the formative years was presented with his life membership and he was taken entirely by surprise with the gift. In his quiet way he thanked the members for the honor bestowed and promised continued effort to make this club one of the best in Eastern Ontario.

The financial report showed the club in sound condition. The evening closed with a social hour.

Hans Bikker, Pierre Mercier and Dean Stockwell who were part of team of eight Quinte Royal Canadian Sea Cadets that topped the second division of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association Competition.

Cadets Top Competition

The corps received the Navy League Shield award ed for marksmanship in this year's Dominion of Canada Rifle Association Competition.

Eight local sea cadets placed first in the second division of the competition with a team average of 89 per cent.

Three boys received first class marksmanship badges for averages over 90 per cent for three shots. Four of the remaining cadets received second class badges for averages over 80 per cent.

Kingston Meeting

Higgins Addresses Agents

Value analysis was the theme for the October meeting of the Canadian Association of Purchasing Agents.

The meeting, held at the 401 Inn at Kingston, was attended by a number of company representatives from the Belleville area.

Members were addressed by R. A. Higgins, manager of purchasing programs, Canadian Westinghouse, Hamilton and by R. W. Wallace, purchasing manager for the town of Burlington.

The speakers noted that value analysis was being forced on manufacturers out of sheer necessity but in today's competitive market the job called for men skilled in measuring, use, cost and value.

Simply stated, value analysis is an organized approach to the business economics problem of getting and giving more for less. It involves a thorough study of any product with the ultimate object of removing unnecessary cost, and at the same time enhancing customer acceptance by improving quality, performance and reliability.

The Canadian Association of Purchasing Agents for some time has conducted value analysis contests and Eastern Ontario firms have been successful at the national level in obtaining certificates for their achievements.

Among area firms winning certificates are Stephens - Adamson Mfg. of Belleville, Dupont of Canada at Kingston and Queen's University.

To close out the evening, Peter Stalker, purchasing agent of Stephens - Adamson, and representative from Dupont and Queens spoke briefly on achievements which won them awards.

Area Resident Holds Ticket

STIRLING — An area resident has drawn a ticket in the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes running of the Cambridgeshire.

The horse is Horned Moon, although the ticket holder, a resident of Springbrook, 10 miles north of here, remains anonymous.

Number of the ticket is EFL46135 with the non-de-plume Hopeful.

Only other ticket drawn in the Quinte district is under the non-de-plume Dutchess.

Reeves Attend Highway Meeting

Hastings county reeves have been invited to attend an in-camera meeting in Belleville next week, called by the Ontario Highways Department for the presentation of a 20-year blueprint for King's Highways in the Kingston area.

The planning branch of the Highways Department will explain all phases of its highway needs study from the collection of field data to the development of plan recommendations.

Areas affected by the plan include the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington, Frontenac, Northumberland and Durham, Carleton and Leeds and Grenville.

One of the major plans to be unveiled is Highway 416, the proposed four lane highway linking Ottawa and 401 highway.

Attendance at the meeting will be by invitation only.

Hastings county road engineer Peter Anderson said all members of the county road committee had been invited although not because of their committee membership.

He expected that at least all reeves in the southern part of the county had been invited to attend.

Hasty Pees Attend Camp

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will be off on active training weekend tomorrow — in Camp Barriefield near Kingston.

First and second year Mobile Command training Rifle Company personnel will be carrying out the first of their new exercises to make them combat trained by the time Summer Camp rolls around in June.

In an attempt to encourage new recruits for the regiment, Lt. Col. F. B. Ketcheson, commanding officer, has offered a prize of $15 to the enlisted man who brings the most new recruits to the regiment by Nov. 30.

Weekend training has seen only about 70 or 80 men in attendance. This weekend Cpl. Allan is aiming for 100 milliamen.

The troops leave for Camp Barriefield tomorrow at 8.30 a.m. in Trenton and at 8.45 a.m. in Belleville.

had been Britain's Lord Harlech, a widower who has been a close friend of the Kennedys since his days as British ambassador to Washington.

In March and April, Mrs. Kennedy cruised aboard Onassis' yacht Christina in the Bahamas, in May off the Virgin Islands and then with Onassis and her brother-in-law, Senator Edward Kennedy, in the Mediterranean later in the summer.

In the last two months, Onassis was reported to have spent weekends in Hyannis Port, Mass., the family home of the Kennedy clan.

One source in Athens declined to name the wedding day, but said: "It might be next week or even this weekend."

Because the wedding will be in Greece, Greek law requires a Greek-Orthodox ceremony. It seemed most unlikely that there would be a companion ceremony in Mrs. Kennedy's Roman Catholic faith because Onassis is divorced and the Roman Church prohibits such a marriage.

Onassis is a member of the national church of Greece, which approved his divorce by ecclesiastical decree in 1961 and thus made his remarriage in the church possible.

Jacqueline Lee Bouvier married John F. Kennedy Sept. 12, 1953. The assassin's bullets that struck down President Kennedy Nov. 22, 1963, left her a widow at 34.

Five-Day Mail Protested As Curtailing Right to Know

OTTAWA (CP) — Citizens in a democracy "have the right to be informed" and it is the role of the press "particularly the daily print media"—to gather and distribute news, says the Quebec Daily Newspapers' Association.

In a brief presented Thursday to Postmaster-General Eric Kierans, the body says the laws the minister has proposed—curtailing mail delivery to five days a week and changing certain postal categories—"will have the effect of depriving citizens of news and the freedom of the press to distribute it."

"We submit that the changes sought should be postponed pending a full study of the problems involved and to allow for the terms and conditions of the law's application to be fair, useful and proper."

Mr. Kierans' bill to limit mail delivery to five days a week, excluding Saturday mail deliveries after Feb. 1, has passed first reading in the Commons. Second reading is due Monday.

Heading the delegation was A.-F. Mercier, vice-president and adviser to Le Soleil Limitee, publishers of the daily newspaper Le Soleil in Quebec City.

The brief said the curtailing of Saturday delivery would eventually "discourage subscribers, reduce the numbers of papers printed and consequently the paper's value as an advertising medium and deprive the reader of his right to news."

The brief says that "to limit the usefulness of the press in its function as a disseminator of news by turning over control to the electronic media, would have the effect of allowing for the monopolizing of news by the state, in some areas."

Scouts Apple Day On the Weekend

Offering 23,000 apples, Belleville scouts put the big ou local citizens Saturday — in a good cause.

The cash crop from apple sales goes to improving Camp Sagonaska in Col. Vanderwater Park at Thomasburg, off Highway 37.

Only existing structure at the camp is a dining hall — without electricity.

Now, local scouts are hopeful of building six bunk houses on the site to accommodate younger cub groups.

Scout rules make it mandatory that cubs, aged 8 to 11, must be accommodated in cabins or bunk houses.

Work on the buildings will commence shortly so that the camp may be used in winter by the 900 cubs in Belleville packs.

YMCA Expands Youth Program

For the last four years the Belleville YMCA has made programs available to girls and boys in the community finding it difficult to take part in activities at the "Y".

Groups were active last year in Sir MacKenzie Bowell, Prince Charles and Hillcrest public schools.

"This year arrangements are being made to have additional "Y" community workers with groups in Queen Alexandra and Park Dale schools as well as a downtown location," said Glen Mawhorter, men's and boys' program director at the "Y".

Programs will include special interest events, basketball, volleyball, soccer, floor hockey, ice hockey, push ball, scoop ball, tumbling, some gymnastics and instructional and recreational swim periods in the "Y" pool on Saturday afternoons.

This program is open to girls and boys eight to 14 years and begins Monday, Oct. 21 at Queen Alexandra and Wednesday, Oct. 23 at Hillcrest and Prince Charles Schools.

Children are invited to watch the bulletin boards at their schools and then come along with a friend to initial enrolment sessions.

County Wants Weed Inspector

Hastings county is looking for a new weed inspector to succeed Mr. Cooper who has been doing the job for the past 14 years.

County Clerk - Treasurer and Administrator Carl E. Bateman said reports that Harry M. Coulter who has been the county weed inspector since 1954 has indicated that he wants to give up the job at the end of the year.

Accordingly advertisements for the part time position will be appearing this week in county newspapers.

IN MEMORIAM

GREEN — In loving memory of Norman Green, who passed away October 18th, 1953.
So many things have happened dear,
Since you were called away,
So many things to share with you,
So many years to live apart from you,
But we cannot live with you
Nor bring you back.
Your kind we cannot touch,
But we still have the memories,
Of the one we loved so much.
You have not left the one you loved
behind,
So have you travelled far,
Just entered God's most lovely realm,
And left the door ajar.
Sadly missed by his wife Vivian and family.

ELLIS — In loving memory of my mother, Mrs. Minnie C. Ellis, who passed away Oct. 18, 1966.
More and more each day we miss her,
Dear mother we think of you,
Each thought we think she is near,
But that we know she sorrow,
Lies within our hearts concealed.
Sadly missed by her daughter Barbara and son-in-law Bert Jeffery, Jack, Jeff and Vivian.

WAY — In loving memory of our beloved brother, Lawrence A. Way who passed away on Oct. 18, 1967, almost seven years ago. Oct. 18, 1961.
Wonderful memories in print,
This is the picture we tenderly hold,
Deep in our hearts your memory is kept,
To be kept so cherish and never forget,
No love can darken, nor sadness dim,
The bright memories we have of him.
Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by his sisters, Lois, Dolores, Sharon, Rhonda, brother-in-law Carl and families.

IN MEMORIAM

GREEN — In loving memory of Kathleen Green who passed away October 18th, 1953.
Sadly we miss her more these days dear,
Since you were called away,
So many things to share with you,
We find so much to say.
Your memory is our keepsake dear,
With which we cannot touch,
But we still have the memories,
Of the one we love so much.
You have not left the one you loved,
You have
Just entered God's most lovely room,
—Sadly missed by wife Vivian and family.

MILLS — In loving memory of my mother, Mrs. Minnie C. Silm, who passed away Oct. 18, 1967.
More and more each day we miss her,
Time does not heal the sorrow,
But that little knows the sorrow,
Lies within our hearts concealed.
—Sadly missed by daughter Barbara and son-in-law Earl Hamilton and grandchildren and family.

MAY — In loving memory of our beloved brother, Lawrence A. May who passed away as a result of an accident seven years ago, Oct. 18, 1961.
A wonderful memory we have got,
This is the picture we tenderly hold,
Deep in our hearts your memory is kept,
To love, to hold to cherish and never forget.
No tear can darken, nor sadness dim,
The loving memories we have of him.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by his sisters, Lois, Doreen, Sharon, Rhonda, brother-in-law Carl and families.

County Wants Weed Inspector

Hastings county is looking for a new weed inspector to succeed the man who has been doing the job for the past 14 years.

County Clerk - Treasurer and Administrator Carl E. Bateman said reports that Harry M. Coulter who has been the county weed inspector since 1954 has indicated that he wants to give up the job at the end of the year.

Accordingly advertisements for the part time position are appearing this week in county newspapers.

had been Britain's Lord Harlech, a widower who has been a close friend of the Kennedys since his days as British ambassador to Washington.

In March and April, Mrs. Kennedy cruised aboard Onassis' yacht Christina in the Bahamas, in May off the Virgin Islands and then with Onassis and her brother-in-law, Senator Edward Kennedy, in the Mediterranean later in the summer.

In the last two months, Onassis was reported to have spent weekends in Hyannis Port, Mass., the family home of the Kennedy clan.

One source in Athens declined to name the wedding day, but said: "It might be next week or even this weekend."

Because the wedding will be in Greece, Greek law requires a Greek-Orthodox ceremony. It seemed most unlikely that there would be a companion ceremony in Mrs. Kennedy's Roman Catholic faith because Onassis is divorced and the Roman church prohibits such a marriage.

Onassis is a member of the national church of Greece, which approved his divorce by ecclesiastical decree in 1961 and thus made his remarriage in the church possible.

Jacqueline Lee Boulvar married John F. Kennedy Sept. 12, 1953. The assassin's bullets that struck down President Kennedy Nov. 22, 1963, left her a widow at 34.

Five-Day Mail Protested As Curtailing Right to Know

OTTAWA (CP) — Citizens in a democracy "have the right to be informed" and it is the role of the press — particularly, the print media"—to gather and distribute news, says the Quebec Daily Newspapers Association.

In a brief presented Thursday to Postmaster-General Eric Kierans, the body says the laws the minister has proposed—curtailing mail delivery to five days a week and changing certain postal categories—"will have the effect of depriving citizens of news and the freedom of the press to distribute it."

"We submit that the changes sought should be postponed pending a full study of the problems involved and to allow for the terms and conditions of the law's application to be fair, useful and proper."

Mr. Kierans' bill to limit mail delivery to five days a week, excluding Saturday mail deliveries after Feb. 1, has passed first reading in the Commons. Second reading is due Monday.

Heading the delegation was A. F. Mercier, vice-president and adviser to Le Soleil Limitee, publishers of the daily newspaper Le Soleil in Quebec City.

The brief said the curtailing of Saturday delivery would "discourage subscribers, reduce the numbers of papers printed and consequently revenues, and the paper's worth as an advertising medium and deprive the reader of his right to news."

The brief says that "to limit the usefulness of the press in its function as a disseminator of news by turning over control to the electronic media, would have the effect of allowing for the monopolizing of news by the state, in some areas."

Driver Training Popular At District Schools

Student driver training is a popular course of study at Bay of Quinte district high schools.

Driver training courses are offered at four of the district's five high schools and also at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

The courses are offered at Quinte, Moira and Centennial Secondary Schools in Belleville and at the Centre Hastings High School in Madoc where two cars for each school have been provided by area auto dealers.

In Belleville two Fords are being used at Quinte. At Centennial there is a Ford and a Pontiac, at Moira two Chevrolets and at Madoc, a Plymouth and a Pontiac.

And the Ontario School for the Deaf a Ford and a Pontiac is being used.

Yesterday Roy Stevenson of Stevenson Ford Sales in Belleville officially presented the Ford being used at Centennial Secondary School.

In addition to the public relations value, Mr. Stevenson said he felt it was preferable for young students to learn to drive on new cars in top mechanical condition.

This is the first year for student driver training at Centennial School and the initial class is already filled.

Instructors John Sherry and Monty Emmerson explained that 16 students was the class limit. Students taking the course receive 25 hours classroom study, 12 hours observing and six hours driving experience.

It costs $20 to enroll in the driver training course but it pays off in correct driving technique and also in dollars.

Students completing the course receive a 10 per cent reduction in automobile insurance and this can save them up to $180 after deducting their enrolment fee.

Rezoning Applications

Planning Board Disagrees with Staff

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board last night disagreed with the advice of its professional staff in re-zoning nine acres west of Herchimer Ave. for town houses.

At a special meeting called to hear re-zoning applications, assistant planning director Frank Stokmans told the board only part of the land was suitable for residential development and should be re-zoned. He suggested that the northern part of the property, now vacant, might eventually be used as an extension of the industrial park south of the CNR yard.

In addition, a pre-engineering study is now under way to consider the feasibility of locating the southern approach to a new overpass over the CNR tracks across the northern part of the property.

The re-zoning approved last night now permits the owner, Maurice Rollins to build town houses in the section below Herchimer hill.

However, Mr. Rollins said he plans to develop only the area on both sides of the proposed extension of Pine St. at the southern end of his property. He told the board he could submit a draft plan of the proposed subdivision in a month's time.

Heard at the same time as the Rollins' re-zoning application was a similar request from Mario Basilone and Salvitore Marino, who own a one and one-quarter acre strip of land at the south of the Rollins property.

In his written report to the board, Mr. Stokmans said the re-zoning to permit construction of town houses was long overdue.

"This type of residential accommodation appears to be one of the few types left which would be within the financial capabilities of a large segment of our population," he added.

"The area for which no development proposals are made should be left in their present zone category until such time as the land use proposals for that area are known," the report concluded.

During discussion of the re-zoning, board members were chiefly concerned with the fate of Pine Street, which now ends at the western boundary of the Rollins property.

"If we dead-end this street we're in trouble," warned Ald. E. A. Orr. "We must make provision for Pine Street to come out on Herchimer Ave.

Both the land-owners and Mr. Stokmans assured the board that future development plans for the area will propose that Pine Street swing south and east to intersect with Herchimer Ave. in the vicinity of Symington Dr.

Man Taken to Kingston

Inquest Interrupted by Attempted Hanging

A coroner's inquest was just getting under way last night when a policeman burst into the room yelling for a doctor.

Quickly adjourning the court Coroner Dr. John Stock was led by Inspector Ralph Blatchford of the Belleville City police to the cell block, where a prisoner had attempted to hang himself.

The suicide attempt with an undershirt failed and the man was later remanded to the Ontario Hospital in Kingston for a mental examination.

He had been arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of dangerous driving after an incident at Wilson Concrete in Belleville.

Officers making a routine check of the cells discovered the man and got Dr. Stock to the scene immediately.

Around 20 minutes later the court resumed and the coroner's jury ruled a month-old infant died Sept. 20 of natural causes.

The infant, Michael Kenneth Jones, child of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jones of 71 Herchimer Ave., died of pneumonia in both lungs testified Dr. A. M. LaFarge, Trenton Memorial Hospital pathologist.

The child's father had told the court he was feeding the baby around one o'clock in the morning on the chesterfield when he dozed off.

Awakening around five a.m., he said the infant was then lying under his arm.

Coroner John Stock told the jury that so called crib deaths are frequent occurrences and that no method of prevention is known.

He said it was his opinion that the baby could have died in its crib just as easily as in its fathers arms.

Murray Township Residents Ready to Take Action

TRENTON — "We've got a few tricks up our sleeve, we can't say what they are.

This was all Dr. Douglas Bunt, vice-president of the newly reactivated Pine Acres Association, would say today when asked what action the residents of Pine Acres would be taking against Murray Township council.

A meeting, limited to the residents of Pine Acres and their solicitors, met last night at the home of Dr. Bunt.

The reason for the meeting had been given by Dr. Bunt previously as "something must be done about the incompetent council."

He had also said that the "whole situation demands a board of enquiry and we should take legal action to get it to Queen's Park."

That if any such action was initiated last night no one was prepared to say so.

The old Pine Acres Association was brought back to life as a result of the meeting with William Ellis as president and Dr. Bunt as vice-president.

Mr. Ellis said, "I do not feel at liberty to say anything yet, the time is not right."

"The less the enemy knows the better," was the reason Dr. Bunt gave for the cloak and dagger secrecy.

The "enemy", Murray Township council, received verbal indications from a Pine Acres delegation at their last council meeting.

At the heart of the problem is the Riverview Speedway. Residents of Pine Acres claim the track is too close to their homes and as a result living has become "unbearable because of the noise and dust."

"It is up to council to protect us from situations such as this — it is their job — obviously they are incapable of it", Mr. Ellis had said at the council meeting.

There will be another delegation at the next council meeting — but what will be discussed is not being said by either Dr. Bunt or Mr. Ellis.

Present at last night's meeting, which numbered about 50, was Russell Rowe, MLA, for Northumberland.

Mr. Rowe said today that he went to the meeting as an interested spectator.

"I told them the track was operating legally as there is no by-law at present to stop it," said Mr. Rowe.

"The only hope for the residents of Pine Acres now is to pass controlling by-laws," he explained.

Concerning the previously-proposed board of inquiry, Mr. Rowe had some statements. "Accusations of poor management do not carry enough weight to initiate an inquiry."

He said that in this area only the "power of ballot was the answer to the situation. "If you don't want a person in public office don't vote for him."

"Only in the misuse of spending public funds could a board of inquiry be initiated," he explained.

PUC Chairman Named Director

Chairman of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission, John Deacon, has been elected a director of the governing body of the Ontario Municipal Water Association.

His election took place at the group's annual convention on Wednesday held at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel.

Yesterday at the utilities commission meeting no new business of real import was brought up.

It was decided by the commissioners to go ahead with their decorative lighting contest again this year.

Other community involvements to be gone ahead with by the PUC commission are the purchase of a wreath for Poppy Day and the award of $25 to go to the winner of the upcoming Public Speaking contest.

Nothing further was done about the five year budget forecast that was submitted at last months meeting.

However, PUC manager E. Burnham listed expenditures made by the commission during the last few years.

The request for a summary of past debentures was made by the commissioners at last month's meeting so that they would have an idea of expenses, past, present and future.

On the project of acquiring the necessary land for the water plant expansions nothing binding has yet been done.

However, work is progressing on the project and reports on the land have been coming in. It is expected that the purchases will be settled in the near future.

Negotiations Continue In Proctor-Silex Strike

Union members say that 33 strike-breaking workers entered the plant today but this figure cannot be confirmed by officials at the plant.

It was explained that the department of labor had requested that both Proctor-Silex and the union put a clamp on all news related to the strike.

The meeting in Toronto is a continuation of talks held last Thursday and Friday.

The extension of the talks has given rise to hope among many in this community.

Prior to the meetings Proctor Silex officials stated unequivocably that they had made their final offer. The union made it just as clear that that offer cannot be accepted.

Many now hope that the extension indicates that some kind of progress has been made. The meetings are being held under the guidance of W. J. Dickey, chief conciliation officer for the department of labor.

Union representatives at the meeting are George Hutchens, Canadian IUE president, Glenn Pattisson, district vice-president, William Miller, union representative, George LeBlanc, local 585 president, Fred Blower, local vice-president and Norman Tustin, a member of the local negotiating committee.

Obituaries and Funerals

WESLEY EDGERTON BADGLEY (Tweed)

TWEED — Mr. Wesley Badgley, of R. R. No. 2, Tweed, passed away in Hospital, Kingston, after being a patient there for only one day, on October 10th, 1968. Previous to being a patient in Kingston, he was a patient in the Belleville General Hospital, for quite some time, following an illness that extended over the past few years.

Mr. Badgley was born in Hungerford Township, 91 years ago, to the late Allen Badgley and his wife the former Abbie Ann Jones. The deceased had lived all his life in the Tweed District, and was well-known and highly respected by a wide circle of friends.

He is survived by his wife, the former Annie Benn; two daughters, Mrs. Frank (Iva) Doran, at home; Mrs. W. A. (Lillian) Byers, of Toronto; and by two sisters, Mrs. Harry (Emma) Kennedy of Tweed Village and Mrs. William (Ethel) Grier, of Trenton.

Mr. Badgley rested at the Cassidy Funeral Home, Tweed, until Saturday, October 12th, when the service was conducted in the Funeral Chapel by the Reverend Howard V. Kennedy, of St. John's United Church, bearers: Douglas Badgley, Samuel Shaw, Joseph Mumby, William Byers, Donald Parker and John Nichol.

Mr. Badgley was a member of the United Church.

STEPHEN FLOWER

TWEED — Long - held hopes of an Algonquin College graduate to teach in Africa achieved just three months ago, have been suddenly snuffed out in a road accident.

Stephen Flower, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiley Flower, of Renfrew, Ontario, was reported killed earlier this month, in Dar Es Salam, Tanzania when his motorcycle collided with a truck.

Stephen's mother was the former Betty Vance of Tweed. He was the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. William Vance of Tweed, and formerly of Tweed.

Stephen had been posted by Canadian University Services Overseas to Tanzania for two years, after graduating in May of this year, from the Course in business administration. He had been assigned to teach commercial subjects to a 600 student girls' school.

Funeral arrangements were made later, by McPhail and Perkins Funeral Home, Renfrew.

WILLIAM JOHN PAUL ELLIOTT

The funeral for William John Paul Elliott was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Thursday afternoon.

Canon R. B. Wright conducted the service in the chapel and the committal rites at Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were William Kokesh, George Empson, Peter and Gerald Hewitt, Morris Sararas and John Skinner.

Students on the March

Newspapers are as anxious as any to offer some positive solution to the almost worldwide breakdown of youthful discipline. On that account we cannot subscribe to Angus Duffy's criticism that newspapers present "negative thinking" on this issue.

Does Mr. Duffy have any answers? The Emergency Measures Director and former commanding officer of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment would have the universities engage in a general crackdown on student activists, but he does not say how the authorities might go about such an operation. He hits out at draft dodgers from the United States and suggests they should not be admitted to Canada. But such a move by itself cannot solve what essentially is a much larger problem. Draft dodgers are only a small minority anyway in the midst of a growing mass of student activists.

Still, Mr. Duffy (who was speaking to Hasty Pees' veterans), along with people everywhere concerned about the future of our youth, and society as a whole, must view with alarm the current trend toward anarchy in the universities and even at the secondary school level.

Education authorities have never faced such a problem before. Students in the past would attend school and university and while conforming for the most part to whatever discipline was enforced would quietly get on with their studies.

Today the trend is otherwise. Young people are no longer under any real bond of discipline. They no longer appear answerable to the strictures of other days. Parents do not seem to be even in the picture at all. As for any sort of moral code, respect for the human race at large, for people as people, that too has undergone drastic revision in recent times.

A Globe and Mail feature on the young people of Montreal is all too revealing in that respect. This sort of thing — from quotes by young Montrealers: "God? Who's he? . . . Eight out of ten people I know turn on . . . If the cops hassle us, we hassle them; ask them stupid questions like where is St. Catherines Street . . . I don't see the need for marriage nowadays, it's much easier to simply live with someone . . ."

And so on. One young person was quoted as saying: "Most of us leave school early, because they're run like a bloody Fascist state." And this from someone who is too young to have any personal experience of Fascism or Nazism.

What does seem certain is that the young people themselves know what they want, and whether society will be the better or worse for it we can wait and see. They want to go their own way. It is the traditional rebellious-ness of youth. Some of it is admirable, but much of it today is not.

Perhaps Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said it best. Speaking in Vancouver the other day on the subject of student violence, he said: "One looks to the universities for reason and perspective rather than a resort to violence."

Olympic Hurdle

Rowing is one of the most taxing of sports. The exhaustion that is written over every fibre of the oarsman's being at the conclusion of a race is clear evidence of this — even those who are in the peak of physical condition.

Certainly rowing is no sport for weaklings. On the other hand the rarefied air of Mexico City — some 7,000 feet above sea level — is proving too much for some Olympic athletes. Several track stars from a number of countries, both men and women, have fallen by the wayside. And speaking of rowing, Canada's John Richardson of St. Catharines, a member of the Canadian eights crew, required oxygen after collapsing at the finish of a heat. Because of continuing illness he was subsequently replaced on the Olympic crew.

It was tough luck on the young oarsman — but then, as we have noted, Mexico City is not agreeing with everyone.

Uncommon Cold

Dr. John Zieglschmid, the Apollo astronauts' flight surgeon, has contributed the latest gibberish on that old problem, the common cold. It seems the Apollo's three-man crew have all caught the cold in varying degrees. Dr. Zieglschmid, however, dreams it up a bit. "It appears that at least Eisele and Schirra have bona fide colds. And there's a slight question in my mind as to whether Cunningham just has a few symptoms such as a little bit of sniffles and maybe a slight nasal discharge or whether he has a full blown cold syndrome." That common cold is certainly moving up in the world — in more ways than one. Soon we shall hardly recognize it!

Focus on Peking

Chairman Mao Has Sights on "China's Khrushchev"

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Peking Radio's latest claim of victory in Communist China's cultural revolution indicates that party Chairman Mao Tse-tung is just about ready to formally denounce President Liu Shao-chi and turn his attention to restoring stability in the nation of 700,000,000.

According to an unofficial translation of a broadcast editorial from Red Flag, Peking's main theoretical journal, "China's Khrushchev" has been stripped of party and government positions in a "complete victory" for Mao's forces.

The editorial did not mention Liu by name, an indication that Mao's men were somewhat short of "complete victory." But the real may be mere technicality, though it may take some time to accomplish.

When the cultural revolution exploded more than two years ago, one of its rules was that no ranking party or government leader could be assailed by name. Others who fell were denounced by name. But Liu, who has been chairman of the government and vice-chairman of the party, still is called only "China's Khrushchev," a reference to his alleged revisionism.

The editorial, however, reflected confidence that Liu's end is at hand. His final overthrow may await the Eighth Party Congress, and for this reason Liu may still not be denounced by name even though in fact he may be thoroughly defeated.

The signs now are that China is in the hands of a group of 13 leaders under Mao, with Defence Minister Lin Piao wielding the real power in the name of "Mao Tse-tung's thinking." Lin has been designated Mao's heir apparent.

Final victory for the Maoist forces could head China into thinly-veiled military rule under Lin Piao, who leans heavily on the support of the armed forces.

There are no signs, however, that restoration of some measure of stability would do anything to heal the wide breach between Peking and Moscow. China, as a go-it-alone policy, is further away from the Soviet party now than it was two years ago, when the cultural revolution broke into the open. What Chairman Mao took for with a return of some stability is a careful policy avoiding risks abroad while building strength at home.

Priced Out of Market

Housing Beyond Reach of Majority

By Windsor Star

Paul Hellyer, the federal Cabinet minister responsible for housing, deserves marks for going across the country in a personal survey of the housing shortage. This is so even if what he finds is common knowledge to most citizens.

This exercise in discovery can be valuable if it impresses on Ottawa the seriousness of the situation. It isn't just a shortage of housing. It is a lack of housing at costs which can be afforded by those most in need.

Housing is no problem to the rich or even to the more than ordinarily well-to-do. They can afford, either in purchase price or in rents, the accommodation they desire.

The critical plight is of those who earn $6,000 or less. These comprise the great majority. They simply are being priced out of the market for decent housing, unless it be subsidized in one way or another.

Costs have outrun their ability to pay. The increases in wages and materials; serviced land and money.

All are factors but the consensus now is that the price of land and the cost of money have become the principal obstacles. Both have been boosted by the housing shortage and the shortage perpetuates both at high levels.

In the Toronto area, for instance, since land and labor alone now cost more than project homes did 20 years ago. The higher the cost of the land and the home built on it the larger the financial burden. Higher down payments are required, and the carrying charges on mortgages are increased.

This is apart from but associated with the exorbitant interest rates. Every increase of one per cent in interest adds $10 monthly on the carrying charge of a large mortgage or on rental payments. The home buyer now probably pays 5½ times the original cost of a home by the time he pays off a long-term mortgage.

One basic trouble is that too much of the investment money is not going where it is needed most. It is going into hope office buildings, shopping centres etc., which are less urgent.

Students State Their Views

Peterborough Examiner

It is always nice to know that students like school — or, if they don't exactly like it, they at least care about it. Thus Dr. Eldon Ray, director of education was pleased and 'pleasantly surprised' by the results of the student opinion survey completed by secondary school students last May. According to Dr. Ray who personally summarized and analyzed the students' suggestions, the majority were of a fairly enlightened interest in school affairs and only five per cent were critical in the constructive sense.

The survey program, which involved some 4,000 Peterborough students, was undertaken some maintain,[in an effort to define an attempt by the new Trent University student activists to organize the high school students. Whether or not this was the motivation, the fact remains that such surveys can do much to assist the administration to shape the educational courses along more effective lines. There are a number of matters on which the students know best. Indeed, some of the recommendations have already been put into effect and Dr. Ray promises that others are under consideration.

While not all the recommendations are capable of being realized, the survey at least provides educators with an idea of which programs are meeting with the most success and which require strengthening or redirection. For example, there was a strong expression of opinion that more individual counselling time should be made available even if this means eliminating group counselling periods. There was evidence too, that more emphasis should be placed early in secondary school on explaining the later significance of options and in helping the student plan his education more intelligently.

As might have been expected some dissatisfaction was evident over obligatory subjects. However, student suggestions as to which subjects should be removed included every subject being taught.

Corrupt . . . Undemocratic

Mexico—The Other Side of the Picture

Bob Hunter in the Vancouver Sun

Riots in Mexico City. I'm not exactly flabbergasted.

I spent a month down there last year with my family. We had only $700 to last us a total of three months, two of them spent in the States, and we covered 10,000 miles living in our Volkswagen van the whole time.

The Mexicans we met were far more typical than those you are liable to meet in nightclubs or hotels.

We liked most of them. And certainly we liked the country.

We did not, however, like Mexican police. We did not like what we saw of Mexican "justice." And we did not enjoy the discrimination, corruption, lack of true democracy and above all the deep, almost-bottomless poverty so evident at every turn.

We had planned to go to a beautiful spot called San Blas, just south of Mazatlan on the west coast. But there was a hitch. At the border we had been told we had to buy Mexican car insurance.

There is no buy Mexican car insurance because it is a crime to be involved in an accident in Mexico, regardless of whether the accident was your fault or not. The "insurance" means that if you do happen to get involved in an accident, an agent for the insurance company will go down to the police station and bail you out.

He bails you out by bribing the local cops.

This is not the official explanation, obviously. But in practice this is how it works.

Anyway, we had refused to buy the insurance on such grounds. When we mentioned in Mazatlan that we were planning to go to San Blas, we were told by Mexicans we had got to know and by seasoned American travellers to avoid the place like the plague.

The police in San Blas that summer had been making extra money by deliberately crashing — not too hard — into the cars of gringos who did not have insurance stickers on their cars.

Once you have been rammed by a police car, you are "guilty" of being in an accident. The San Blas police would then take you down to the police station and hold you there until you coughed up with enough cash to buy your way out.

It is difficult to get used to were the frantic brain-washing techniques the Mexican government uses in the schools, where kids spend much of their time marching about in uniforms, waving little flags and singing songs of praise to Mexican President Ordea's PRI Party.

Offhand, I would say that Mexico was ripe for some stiff riots. Rumors last year. Although there were many things done about poverty, slums, crummy sanitation, disintegrated roads, inflation and so on.

If I was a Mexican, I would be angry too.

Board of Governors

Dozen Personalities Operate Loyalist

Community is the big word in the Loyalist terms of reference.

And the burgeoning campus is directly linked to the area it serves by its board of governors — a round dozen of local personalities responsible for the local look given the college.

They were at work when the campus still didn't even have a name, was still only a segment of a revolutionary educational scheme for Ontario.

When first assembled by provincial - government appointment, the governors represented an area from Napanee to Peterborough.

Their biggest decision likely was to establish two separate colleges — at Peterborough and Belleville — thus providing a more flexible campus system in the region.

The institution of Loyalist as an autonomous unit changed some faces on the original board, giving it — for the Quinte district — even more of a local touch.

The makeup of the new board now administering the college presents personalities from across Quinte, well-known in various phases of community enterprise in their own home towns.

These are the present Loyalist policymakers:

Judge J. C. Anderson — Chairman of the present board and one of the founding governors. Headed the original sub-committee responsible for the initial decisions that brought Loyalist to Belleville area. Hastings County judge, he also is distinguished national labor conciliator whose experience is in demand by top industry, government.

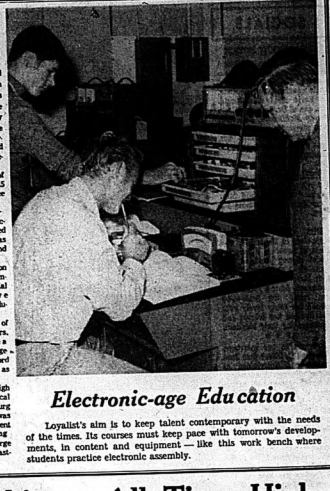
Rev. H. J. Maloney—Bancroft parish priest, chairman of first board of governors which broke ground for community colleges movement in Peterborough - Quinte area. This group took the initiative in locating campus in both Belleville, Peterborough, later working toward autonomy for each institution. Member of family active in Ontario public affairs — he is brother of Arthur Maloney, leading Toronto barrister and distinguished Conservative politician.

Mrs. G. S. Wormcott—Long active in various spheres of Belleville community work, Mrs. Wormcott is the only woman on the 12 - member board of governors. It's a post she's held from the start as one of the original board which established Loyalist.

W. C. Down — Represents Northumberland County. Active in education, is in third term as high school board chairman in his area and 1968 president, Ontario Urban and Rural Trustees' Association. A former Ontario Junior Farmers president, he is a rural land appraiser for Department of Food and Agriculture.

H. J. Colliver — Prominent Picton figure, is Prince Edward county sheriff, supreme court registrar, surrogate registrar. Has much knowledge of educational matters as high school board member for 12 years and director of Urban and Rural Trustees' Association.

Donald E. Hodgins — Speaks for Tweed area on board of governors. Local businessman, he is a 1964 arts graduate of Carleton. Is an active member of Eastern Ontario Feed Dealers' Association.



R. A. Loader — Is organized labor's spokesman. A Trenton silversmith for the past 40 years he is Canadian representative of the International Jewellery workers (CLC, AFL, CIO). He also headed IJW's Local 44, bargaining unit for jewellery and plating firms in Trenton-Belleville area.

J. E. Morrison — Publisher of Napanee Beaver for past 15 years, who represents Napanee area along with

J. Donelon — Technical director at Napanee District Secondary School. Both men served on the former joint board as representatives of Lennox and Addington County.

W. J. Wilkinson — Trenton chartered accountant, and member of the town's industrial commission. He served five years on Trenton board of education.

Frank Rabel — A member of the original board of governors, Liberal candidate in the recent federal election challenging leading Conservative George Hees in Prince Edward - Hastings constituency.

Electronic-age Education

Loyalist's aim is to keep talent contemporary with the needs of the times. Its courses must keep pace with tomorrow's developments, in content and equipment — like this work bench where students practice electronic assembly.

Crash Program Successful

What does a crash program look like?

The Quinte community to borrow may view the results at first glance as Loyalist College holds open house at its new Wallbridge Road campus.

The campus, a temporary building, was designed to meet specific needs by an early deadline.

The results brought into play innovations in building technology and construction, new ideas in classroom design.

Visitors will see:

- A one - storey, pre - engineered building, with 53,000 square feet of floor space, brought from the planning board to reality in a matter of months.
- Laboratories and workshops equipped with the latest mechanical, chemical and electronic apparatus.
- Moveable-wall classrooms designed for flexibility, where floor space can readily be altered depending on the number of students.
- Library - resource centre which someday, with its books, audio-visual aids, microfilm records, will be available for public reference.
- Student-lounge bufeteria where installation of newest automatic machines serves the most with the least problem.

The building, inclidentally, has a high inverted value. After Loyalist has its permanent campus, the present structure comes apart in three units, each a complete building unit.

YMCA Membership at All Time High

YMCA membership at the end of September was the highest ever at that time of the year.

According to a "Y" bulletin the trend is to family memberships and income from the family enlitments surpasses the Y's income from all other categories.

The total of girls' and women's memberships is higher than those of the boys and men the bulletin stated.

In order to keep the membership rolling in any "Y" member who recruits a new member fully paid up before his membership expires may renew his own membership at the old rate in effect before Oct. 1.

At that time rates in all categories of memberships at the YMCA were increased.

After the first new member is recruited any other following recruit will extend the membership of the sponsor by one month.

Sunday swims will begin again Oct. 20 from 1.30 to 3 p.m. for family members — husband and wife or parent and child if all are "Y" members.

Following the family swim the pool will be open to the general public who are not members of the YMCA from 3.10 to 4.45 p.m.

Other activities beginning again for the winter season will be the women's fitness groups which have already started.

Both the two classes in the afternoon and morning are filled but a third group was started Oct. 15 and there is still room for those women and girls interested.

Operation Community under the direction of Glen Manthorne also began Oct. 15. Arrangements had been made for the use of playrooms in Queen Alexandra, Prince Charles, Parkdale and Hillcrest schools.

Girls judo classes are already off to a good start on Wednesday evenings and Oct. 19 will see the boys and girls crafts group beginning.

Inability to Pay Isn't Any Barrier

The United Community Fund drive has brought YMCA membership privileges int the spotlight.

From questions asked during meetings with United Community Fund canvassers in industry it appears that not everybody understands the Y's stand on memberships.

A statement from the YMCA said that the directors thought it was generally understood that a genuine inability to pay a "Y" membership need never be a barrier to participation as a member.

However, from the questions asked it appears that this is not generally understood.

From time to time the general secretary or program directors receive direct requests or referrals from agencies for memberships to be supplied to persons or families who are unable to pay the fee.

Supporting their statement that inability to pay does not mean inability to play, the YMCA pointed out that there were 78 children in day camp this summer whose parents did not pay a fee.

Many participants in last season's community programs were also on a free basis and there are boys and girls and some families who are "Y" members without paying a fee or paying only a portion of the fee.

The bulletin asked members if they know of individuals or families who would like to take part in "Y" activities and do not because they can't afford the fee to let the membership committee know of them so arrangements can be made.

Value of Dairy Farms Shows Rapid Increase

It's no secret to the man engaged in the business and it possibly won't surprise urban people to learn that the capital value of commercial dairy farms in Ontario is seeing a rapid increase.

According to the 1966 agricultural census date the average capital value of commercial dairy farms grew from $34,817 in 1961 to $53,538 in 1966 — an increase of almost $4 per cent.

In the same period the number of commercial dairy farms declined from 36,246 to 21,158 or by 19 per cent. However, the proportion of dairy farms to the total number of commercial farms rose slightly.

Some of the increase in the average capital value of commercial dairy farms is due to rising production costs but much of it is the result of enlargement in farm operations.

The average farm size, on an improved land basis, went up from 136. 7 acres to 152.4 and over the same five year period the number of milk cows and heifers per farm increased from 21.7 to 28 head, or by 29 per cent.

Investment in machinery and equipment was higher by 20.3 per cent during the period.

The trend towards fewer, bigger and more mechanized commercial dairy farms with large herds is reflected in the volume of sales. Between 1961 and 1966, the total value of farm products sold by all commercial dairy farms in the province increased by $174.1 million to $221.7 million, an increase of 27.3 per cent over the five year period.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN S. NOBLE

Oliver – Sharpe

Rev. W. C. Cox officiated at the October 5 ceremony at Mt. Pleasant United Church when Edna Jean Sharpe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benson Sharpe, of Stirling became the bride of Jack Hay Oliver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Oliver, of Campbellford. Traditional wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Craig Watson; and the soloist was Miss Roseanne McAvoy.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an A-line floor-length gown of chiffon velvet. The gown featured long sleeves and a round neckline trimmed with Guipure lace. The long detachable train fell from the waistline; also edged in Guipure lace, and enhanced by a tailored bow in the bodiced front of the dress. The four tiered scalloped tulle veil was caught to a floral arrangement trimmed with bridesmaid rhinestones and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of talisman roses and trailing ivy.

Maid of honor, and sister of the bride, was Miss Carol Sharpe. Her empire gown featured a scoop neckline with a self-flowered trim at the bodice of sheerbet pink crepe, topped with cherry velvet, featuring a full length panel, held with a velvet bow. The other bridesmaids were Mrs. Ted Reid, Belleville; Miss Vickie Hay, cousin of the groom, Stirling; and junior bridesmaids Miss Linda Waters and Miss Eileen Vance, cousin of the bridegroom, were both attired identically to the maid of honor.

Attending the bridegroom was Robert Burgis, of Campbellford. The ushers for the ceremony were: Ted Reid, Belleville; Ralph Parr, Campbellford; Ronald Nelson, cousin of the bride, Warkworth, Ontario.

For the wedding reception at Mt. Pleasant Church hall, the mother of the bride received the guests in a fuchsia silk and worsted ensemble, featuring an A-line dress fashioned with a Victorian beaded collar enhanced with a seven-eighths matching coat, and was completed by a white gardenia corsage. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom chose a crushed raspberry ensemble of imported silk worsted beaded in matching color completed by a feather pestalled turban of blended shades. Matching accessories and a corsage of white orchids completed her outfit.

For the wedding trip, the bride donned a blended stripped double knit dress, in shades of russet, black and oyster worn with a solid russet coat buttoned at the neckline. Her accessories were of black patent. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Peterborough.

Kennedy – Chambers

Holloway Street United Church was the scene of the October wedding when Anne Elizabeth Chambers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Keith Chambers of Belleville was united in marriage to Paul Everett Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Laurison E. Kennedy of Thomasburg. Rev. J. M. Lamb officiated at the ceremony and wedding music was rendered by guest organist S. Alec Gordon.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length A-line gown of re-embroidered Chantilly lace over peau de soie with empire waist. Pearl beading enhanced the bodice and elbow length sleeves and a scallop of lace bordered the hem and chapel train which extended from the waist. A wedding veil of bead dress of pearl beaded lace over peau de soie was caught to a full fresh silk illusion veil. She carried a crescent shaped bouquet of snow white gardenias.

Miss Barbara Lang as maid of honor wore a floor-length A-line gown of mustard shade crepe with empire waist and short sleeves. She carried a colonial bouquet of white 'mums and fern with deep loops of gold ribbon. The bridesmaids Miss Linda Waters and Miss Eileen Vance, cousin of the bridegroom, were both attired identically in the maid of honor and carried similar bouquets.

Burton Sherry attended the bridegroom and Allen Chambers, brother of the bride and Donald Kennedy, brother of the bridegroom were the ushers.

At the reception in the church hall the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a dress and jacket ensemble of ginger shade boucle crepe with toast shade hand draped turban of chenille. Sweet pea beige accessories and a corsage of pale yellow carnations. Assisting the bridegroom's mother wore a two-piece ensemble of pearl-grey knit, muted deep blue feather hat, navy accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations.

On return the couple will live at 20 Highland Ave. Belleville.

Family Reunions

FILE FAMILY REUNION

Mr. and Mrs. Harold File of Toronto gathered members of their families together last Sunday for the annual Thanksgiving reunion at their summer home on Beaver Lake.

Present at the reunion was their son, Dr. Denis File and his wife, and their daughter, Miss Betty Jean of Toronto; members of Mrs. File's family, including her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Denison of Centre St., Napanee; her sister, Mrs. Benny Woods of Roblin, with Mr. Woods and their sons, Barry of Seneca College, Toronto and John of the University of Waterloo; and Miss Ada Plumbe, a fellow student.

Also attending were members of Mr. File's family. His father, Edwin File of the Switzerville Road, with his daughter, Miss Jean and her friend, Miss Brenda Powles of Toronto. As well, son James, with Mrs. File; Jamie and John of Kingston and his cousin, Mrs. Samuel Anderson of the Palace Road and sister-in-law, Mrs. H. C. File of Napier St. were present.

Interesting to note is the fact that six of the 22 present were former pupils of Mrs. H. C. File in the Napanee Collegiate Institute and Collegiate School, predecessor of the present Napanee District Secondary School between 1931 and 1941.

Noble – Morrow

St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, was the scene of the October wedding when Rev. Michael Caswell united in marriage Barbara Anne Morrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Morrow of Stirling, to John Shurie Noble, son of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Noble, of Stirling. Rendering the traditional wedding music was James Morrow, while the soloist was William McArton.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length gown of crystal peau de soie, of princess styling. The gown featured leg of mutton sleeves with deep cuffs of re-embroidered Guipure lace appliqued with seed pearl trim. The yoke and the stand up collar were the same as the cuffs. Her headpiece featured clustered leaves outlined with seed pearls centred with Swarovski stamins. Double tear drops on her forehead were enhanced with a four-tiered illusion veil. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and white stephanotis.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Andrew Faulkner, sister of the bride, was attired in a velvet peacock blue gown. It was of the Elizabethan style, with long sleeves and a high neckline. The A-line skirt was enhanced by the sleeves and the high collar, which was trimmed with dainty chantilly lace. Her matching headpiece was of chiffon and velvet ribbon down the back.

Bridesmaids, Mrs. Ross Sachet; Miss Elaine Vanderoort and Miss Brenda Whiting wore dresses identical to that of the matron of honor. All carried nosegays of white carnations with sweetheart roses.

Attending the bridegroom was Robert Noble, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Robert Morrow, brother of the bride, Robert McArton and Ross Sachet.

For the reception held at the Sun Valley Motor Inn, the mother of the bride wore a two-piece powder blue ensemble of imported French ribbon knit, with a matching fauxbie hat, and a corsage of pink and white rosebuds. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom was attired in an imported ensemble of silver-tone and strille grey in metallic wool, with a matching feather hat and a corsage of red carnations.

For the wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains, Penn., the bride chose a brown wool tweed princess styled coat-dress; with brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses and bronze 'mums. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Toronto.

Ann Landers

Daughter Blames Mom For Father's Illness

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband has been in and out of a mental hospital for the last four years. He has tried to commit suicide five times. He has also tried to kill me.

Our youngest daughter is 20. She continually berates me for "not letting Papa come home." She insists I am putting him in his grave by keeping him locked up away from his family. She keeps telling me it is my fault because Papa is sick — that I nagged him into insanity. When she talks this way I get so depressed I can't eat or sleep.

My two older daughters understand. This girl does not. I have asked her to speak to the doctors but she refuses. What can I do? — BUFFALO.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR BUFF: You can ask the doctor to write a short letter to your 20-year-old explaining the necessity of keeping her father hospitalized. It is not her love for her father but her hostility toward you that makes her behave this way. When you understand this you will no longer permit her to make you feel guilty, which is, of course, her prime motivation.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What does a woman do after 20 years of marriage when her 43-year-old husband comes to her and asks for a divorce? I am 39 and have four wonderful children. I love my husband and was shocked when he told me he has fallen out of love and wants to be free so he can recapture that old feeling.

I suggested counseling and he said it would be useless. He wants out. I feel lost and frightened. Two of our children are quite young and I'm afraid I cannot raise them alone. I am quite stricken and bewildered and can't figure out what happened. What should I do? — ST. LOUIS.

DEAR S.L.: It sounds as if your husband has already "recaptured that old feeling" — with somebody else. Tell him he is free to move out, but no divorce.

After 20 years of marriage, and four children, a man has no right to flake off just because he's found a little more excitement elsewhere. He has an obligation to stick with his family — and make the best of whatever feeling there is.

Sometimes these lover boys get their fill of fooling around when the glamor of stolen moments and secret rendezvous has worn off. They miss their kids and regain their sanity and go back home where they belong.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a practical nurse (age 31) and am working on a case which has been quite a challenge. The patient is a man 54 who was injured in an industrial accident.

He was quite ill and severely incapacitated when I took on the case four months ago, but the last three weeks he seems fully recovered. In fact, he's too darned frisky for his own good. If my husband knew how this "cripple" chases me around the house he'd make me quit the job.

The insurance company is paying for the patient's care, which means he's in no hurry to go back to his job. In the meantime, I am worn out. He has given me four raises and the money looks awfully good. What should I do? — J.L.

DEAR J.L.: Any guy who is well enough to chase the nurse is well enough to go to work. Tell him you're leaving next week. No money is that good.

Church Groups

ST. MICHAEL'S C.W.L.

The October meeting of St. Michael's Parish C.W.L. was held on Tuesday, October 15.

At the close of the business session the guest speaker, Mrs. Robin Jeffrey was introduced by Mrs. Herbert Brown.

Mrs. Jeffrey spoke on "The Christian Woman in Her Community". She called on christian women to take a more active part in the affairs concerning her church, the school boards, the administration of government at all levels.

The only way this can be accomplished, she maintained, is by taking an active interest and being involved with organizations and institutions which are working to make changes.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. George O'Brien and the meeting was closed, refreshments were served by Mrs. K. Black and her committee.

WOMEN'S MISSIONARY COUNCIL

FRANKFORD — Frankford Women's Missionary Council of Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle met on Wednesday evening, October 9 at the home of Mrs. Don Irish at Oak Lake.

Mrs. Irish welcomed the group who enjoyed a dessert lunch.

President Mrs. E. Strome was in charge of the meeting and thanked the hostess.

Mrs. J. Knechtel, guest from Kitchener opened the worship service.

Mrs. Trudy Yeerman sang a number and Mrs. Don Irish read a poem, on "Friendship."

A time of prayer was spent on behalf of needs and for the missionaries in the field.

The president read a thank-you note from missionary Mrs. Keith Morrison and the monthly bulletin was read.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Mary Patrick.

A letter was read from Missionary Mrs. C. Barker of the West Indies and the meeting closed with a time of fellowship.

C.A. MEETING

Frankford Full Gospel C.A.'s met at 7.45 p.m. on Thursday evening in the church. Richard Patrick was in charge of the service, opening in the usual manner, with the prayer by Ricky Reilly. After the singing of several hymns, Rev. James Dunlop, leader, led in prayer.

The scripture reading was given by Richard Patrick. Cheryl Clark, with her sister, Miss Dorcas Grant, sang a duet, The C.A. offering was received by Barry Reilly. Announcements were made by Pastor Dunlop.

A competition hymn game was enjoyed with the young men defeating the young women, by a score of 13 to 11. The game was conducted by Ricky Reilly. Testimonies were given, and a duet was sung by Mr. and Mrs. Glen Post.

Speaker for the evening was Mrs E. Strome. Following the singing of a hymn, the service closed with prayer.

'What, No Sex!'

LONDON (AP)—Former actress Jackie Collins, who has just completed a new book titled The Stud, said she was astonished when Australia banned her previous book, The World is Full of Married Men. "Funny people, these Australians," she said. "Don't they have men and women there?"

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "Get those bikes and trikes off the driveway so I can put the car away. They're always in my way when I come home. How can you be so inconsiderate?"

Provide stalls for children's equipment. A parking spot will be used if it's almost as handy as the driveway and if children are trained to use it.

Father: "Please park your bikes here even if it's just for a few minutes. Then I can drive into the garage without having to get out of the car and move them."

Successful Living

Advice for Separated Women

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Please publish some of's and don't's for separated females.

When a girl marries and starts her own home, that is hers and what she does there is up to her. But if she wants to break it up and is fortunate enough to have her own family home to go back to, she should be very grateful, with no back talk.

Furthermore, this one has her men friends visit her until the morning hours in her rooms. Would this make it harder for her to get a divorce?

There are too many bossy daughters taking over. — Just An In-Law.

Dear In-Law: It takes a pretty level-headed, grown-up girl to eat bumble pie with good grace — I'm sure there are some.

Certainly the young lady who runs home to mother is expected to be grateful. No back talk. No midnight callers — which only serve to suggest just who was in the wrong in her particular marriage tangle.

As for making divorce more complicated or harder to get, a lawyer would have to say. If there is a child, the girl would be well advised to protect her reputation lest a judge would term her an unfit mother.

* * *

Dear Doris: This is a true story. Up until six months ago I had a hair growth on my face that any guy would've been proud of. A doctor suggested electrolysis.

I am a new person. I no longer hide or turn my face when I talked to or race through the halls at school so as not to be seen. Electrolysis is wonderful and rewarding when applied correctly. I am lucky to have the best electrologist there is.

So I recommend it to everyone who is embarrassed by unwanted hair. It does wonders for your appearance as well as your self-confidence. Grateful.

Dear Grateful: Good news! In the hands of an expert, this up-to-date method of hair removal can work a miracle. — Doris.

Confidential to Mommy: Who'd blame a mother for fuming inwardly when her child stalls over food? Just be sure to keep it inward.

Privately allow 10 to 15 minutes for action and then make him fix to leave the table. (Not as a punishment but just to let him off the hook with no fuss.)

Plenty of active play outdoors and enough sleep — these will both do wonders for a small boy's appetite. When these measures fail, or when a healthy child goes off his food, it is time to see a doctor.

(Doris can help you with that puzzling decision. Write to her, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Homemade Crescent Rolls

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I buy crescent rolls in a tube from the dairy case and my family could eat two packages every time. Could you tell me how I could make them myself to save the expense? Is it hard? — Marjorie McM.

ANSWER: No it is not hard. This old fashioned recipe is yeast baking requests with alacrity.

CRESCENT ROLLS (24)

½ cup scalded milk
1 package granular yeast
2 teaspoons sugar
½ cup lukewarm water
6 tablespoons sugar (second amount)
5 tablespoons shortening
1 tablespoon salt
4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 eggs (one for dough — one for brushing tops)

Scald milk first — on low heat to prevent it boiling over. Or heat in still, in double boiler. Into large mixing bowl tip yeast, add the 2 teaspoons sugar and lukewarm water, give them one stir and let soak 10 minutes. Remove scalded milk from heat and to it add the shortening and salt and stir and cool to lukewarm. Add to risen yeast liquid. Add 3 cups of the sifted flour and one egg and stir and beat to mix as well as you can. Then add remaining one cup sifted flour and stir in until all loose flour is incorporated, and longer if you are strong enough. Scrape down sides of bowl, cover with foil or plate and let rise. At 70 deg. Fahr. in my kitchen this took 4 hours. (NOTE: This is refrigerator dough and may be tightly covered and refrigerated as long as two or three days.) Punch down dough and knead on floured board. Shape each into ball and roll out each to 9" circle. Brush lightly with melted butter. Cut into eight pie-shaped wedges. Roll up each triangle beginning at outside edge. Place on buttered cookie sheets points down. Curve ends in to make a crescent. At this stage (not later) brush with one egg mixed with 1 tablespoon cold water. Let rise until risen and puffy-looking — about 1 to 1½ hours. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 12 to 15 minutes. Serve warm if possible. Freeze any leftover in double plastic bags. Frozen Crescents should be thawed and reheated in heavy paper bag.

Be A Beauty Behind the Wheel

By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

Whether you're leading a victory parade or simply toddling along the highway, be a beauty behind the wheel. Give the same care to yourself as to your car by keeping your own grooming "emergency kit." Then, while waiting for a friend or during a stop-off, instant rescue can go to work. For instance, a plastic bottle of skin freshener provides a quick, facial perk-up, while a pack of anti-perspirant pads make hands cool, not clammy. With an estimated 70,000,000 licences issued to women, cosmeticians are determined to put a beauty in the driver's seat.

Storing your portable make-up kit need not be a problem. Actress Barbara Sanford has her own curbside vanity. She clamps a mirror onto a visor on the passenger's side. Then, she inserts three "pockets" for holding lipstick, brow pencil and container of double-tipped cotton swabs. The latter are convenient for removing mascara smudges, smoothing a perspiring brow or blending streaked eyeliner. Such a visor vanity is always at your fingertips.

Actress Barbara Sanford shows how to be a beauty behind the wheel. Keep your own "emergency kit" for those instant rescues. Skin freshener provides a quick facial perk-up, and a pack of anti-perspirant pads make hands cool, not clammy. You can be sure — cosmeticians are determined to put a beauty in the driver's seat.

Of course, there are moments when direct action is required. Have you ever parked, and suddenly caught a glance of your face in the rear-view or side mirror? What if you've eaten off your lipstick, or it's coated on your teeth, or feathered over the mouth outline? Ready color, then reach for a compact of sterilized swabs, and trace a neat border around lips. Also, easily remove any tell-tale color from teeth. The idea is to select portable items that take little space but perform double duty.

P.S.: Here are 50 "quick tips" to make you prettier and better groomed. Our 12 page, fully illustrated booklet offers instant remedies for those everyday beauty and grooming "emergencies." Hike in Minimum Wage Benefits 190,000 Workers

TORONTO (CP) — A new minimum wage for general industry of $1.30 an hour announced Thursday by Labor Minister Dalton Bales will give Ontario a higher minimum than current rates in the other nine provinces.

The new rate represents a 30-per-cent increase over the present minimum of $1 an hour and Mr. Bales also announced that the minimum in the construction industry will be raised to $1.35 from $1.25 an hour.

He said the new rates will affect about 190,000 workers, most of whom are not in unions and have little bargaining power.

Mr. Bales said a new Employment Standards Act assuring the basic rights of workers will also become effective Jan. 1.

The act, passed last spring, included provisions that employees be paid time-and-a-half for work beyond 48 hours a week or performed on seven statutory holidays, and equal pay for men and women doing the same work.

The new legislation will also empower the labor department to collect unpaid wages for employees up to $1,000 per claim.

The new act does not apply to farm employees and industries under federal jurisdiction such as banks, railways and airlines.

The new rates mean a person in general industry working 40 hours a week will have to be paid at least $52 a week and a construction worker will get at least $52.

Union leaders immediately labelled the increases unrealistic and inadequate.

Morden Lazarus, political education director of the 500,000-member Ontario Federation of Labor, said his organization wanted a $2 an hour minimum last year. He said since that time living costs have again risen sharply, including a 35-per-cent increase in the cost of housing in the Toronto area.

George C. Watson, executive member of the Canadian Labor Congress, said he was "bitterly disappointed."

"It's nothing more than a handout," he said. "This is too small a wage to maintain a decent standard of living."

Said Mac Makarchuk, NDP member of the legislature for Brantford:

"The increase in minimum wages means that low-paid Ontario workers will no longer be getting starvation wages—they will be getting poverty wages."

The largest increase will be for workers in the fruit and vegetable processing industries where the minimum will rise to $1.30 an hour from 90 cents.

Present minimum wages in Alberta and British Columbia are $1.25 an hour and Manitoba will increase its minimum to $1.25 from $1.20 Dec. 1.

In Quebec, the minimum wage in the Montreal area will be $1.25 an hour after Nov. 1 for persons over 18. In the rest of the province, the minimum will be $1.15 an hour.

Heart Donors Sought

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Pierre Grondin of the Montreal Heart Institute, who headed a surgical team that has carried out Canada's five heart transplants, Thursday issued a country-wide appeal for heart donors.

Dr. Grondin urged medical centres throughout Canada to refer possible donors to the institute.

"At the moment we have a long list of recipients waiting for transplants and two of them are in near critical condition."

Gaetan Paris, 49, the second transplant recipient, received his new heart June 28 and is convalescing.

Edouard Desrivieres, 51, and Rosaire Brien, 58, the institute's fourth and fifth transplant patients, were reported in excellent condition.

Jamaica Bans Professor; Ottawa Protest Planned

MONTREAL (CP) — A group of black students and workers announced Thursday they plan a "serious" demonstration in Ottawa Monday at the Jamaican High Commission to protest the Jamaican government's treatment of Prof. Walter Rodney.

"This will not be the ordinary demonstration," said Rosie Douglas, one of the protest leaders.

"We will be peaceful unless we are forced to use other methods, but we are going to see the Jamaican High Commissioner—and we will see him one way or the other."

The group will hold a preliminary protest here tonight at Sir George Williams University.

Prof. Rodney, 26, a professor of African history at the University of the West Indies, Kingston, was barred from re-entering Jamaica after attending a Black Writers' Congress in Montreal earlier this week.

The government ban touched off student demonstrations in Kingston in which three demonstrators were killed.

The protests in Montreal and Ottawa are being co-ordinated by the Black Writers' Congress Committee, headed by Mr. Douglas, and by the West Indian Societies of McGill and Sir George Williams universities.

At a news conference here Thursday, Prof. Rodney said the Jamaican restriction on him was the final straw, and that the Kingston demonstrations have far deeper causes.

"These blacks in Jamica did not go out in the streets to get killed because of me or any individual—they did it for themselves.

"I have only been in Kingston for nine months, so the extent of their reaction indicates the depth of the problem."

He said that despite official "myths," Jamaica is a seething pot of racism and economic inequity, and that this latest incident had merely brought the problem to the surface.

"The myth says that Jamaicans are happy people in the sun, and that the Jamaican government is democratic—this just isn't true."

An armed revolution was the only answer because the situation had reached such intolerable proportions, he said.

He said the ban on his re-entry was simply an attempt by the Jamaican government to quietly remove a person who spoke out about these problems.

GEORGETOWN (CP)

Twelve members of the staff association of the University of Guyana picketed the office of Attorney-General Sonny Ramphal Thursday to demonstrate about the way the Jamaican government has treated Prof. Rodney, a native of Guyana.

A spokesman for the association, biology professor Harold Drayton, said the ban is another of a series of infringements of human rights perpetrated against academics and other people of the Caribbean by the Jamaican government.

Advertised Petition Adequate Notice

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Court of Appeal Thursday gave a Toronto woman permission to advertise her divorce petition in a newspaper and ruled such advertising is adequate notification for the husband she says she cannot locate.

Under Canada's new divorce legislation, which went into effect July 1, many orders have been granted for substitutional service—advertising of divorce petitions when the spouse cannot be found.

Amiela Satt, 29, of Toronto, started divorce proceedings Sept. 17 and applied earlier this month for an order allowing her to advertise the divorce petition in a newspaper rather than serving legal papers on the husband she says she cannot locate. Mr. Justice W. D. Parker of Ontario Supreme Court had referred the case to Court of Appeal.

Mrs. Satt said she married her husband John, 32, by proxy when she was in Poland in 1964. She said he deserted her two weeks after she arrived in Canada Aug. 23, 1965.

Last Sept. 20, an application for substitutional service by a Chatham woman was indefinitely adjourned by Mr. Justice C. D. Stewart. The woman, Irene Beasle McAdams, said she had not been able to locate her husband since 1949.

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Mr. and Mrs. William Yateman were Sunday visitors of Mr. Yateman's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Yeteman of Trenton and also called on Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hurl and Ray of Trenton.

Mrs. George Cotten opened her home this past week for Bible study.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Lee of Bournemouth, England were Saturday visitors of their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Michaud and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Anderson, Mrs. George Bilham and Master Larry Paul Bilham were Friday visitors in Peterborough.

Miss Debra Jones accompanied her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Stoneburg of Belleville to Bancroft on Sunday to visit the former's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Stoneburg.

Mr. and Mrs. George Arthur entertained last weekend their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Arthur of Oshawa and Mr. and Mrs. Eric Walker of Camp Borden.

Mr. and Mrs. William Yateman attended the funeral of Mrs. Yateman's sister, Mrs. George Wesley Rutter of Belleville at the Bush Funeral Home on Wednesday.

International Black Power On the Way

HALIFAX (CP) — Stokely Carmichael, a leader of the militant Black Power movement, said Thursday the movement is being internationalized and co-ordinated.

He made the comments at the airport just before taking off on a flight for Boston, ending an 18-hour visit to Halifax.

Rocky Jones, a student at Dalhousie University here and a local Black Power leader, said earlier that Mr. Carmichael was in Halifax on vacation. However, Mr. Carmichael said at the airport that he and Mr. Jones met Thursday with only "a number of people and a number of groups."

Astronauts Irritable Under Strain

HOUSTON (AP) — Sailing along without a problem, Apollo 7 today became history's second-longest manned space flight shortly after the three astronauts beamed a live comedy telecast from space.

At 9:58 a.m. EDT, the log of Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., Maj. Donn F. Eisele and civilian Walter Cunningham read 196 hours 55 minutes of flight time. This surpassed by a minute the time recorded by Gemini 5 in 1965.

"You are now history's second longest manned space flight," the Mission control center radioed to the speeding spaceship.

Asked if he would like to go for Gemini 7's record of 14 days, commander Schirra replied firmly: "Negative, negative."

The longest Soviet flight was five days.

Two hours before exceeding Gemini 5's mark, Schirra turned drill sergeant and directed his fellow astronauts in the humorous telecast.

"Hup, two, three four," Schirra shouted as Eisele and Cunningham brisky went through military marching manoeuvres — about face, left face, forward march."

In their weightless world, they looked comical as they floated free in their roomy cabin.

The nine-minute telecast was a return to the fun and games of the first two Apollo telecasts Monday and Tuesday. It also marked a break in a period of aggravation expressed by all three astronauts, who have become increasingly irritable and impatient as their space flight drones on.

Today, they pass the three-quarter mark of their marathon 11-day mission.

With 30 per cent of their mission objectives achieved and only routine engineering tests planned the last three days, the astronauts are eager to come home.

The spacemen still have a good sense of humor. But their annoyance was evident throughout Friday when they argued with flight controllers, complained about equipment and criticized some "Mickey Mouse" procedures.

Officials on the ground said the irritability of the impatience probably could be traced to the fact there are no more major flight plan highlights to break the monotony of engineering checks. They said the colds that have plagued all three most of the eight days have been no help.

Except for Tuesday's re-entry, the last major milestone occurred Friday when Schirra successfully fired the big Apollo 7 engine for 66 seconds in a vital test of the powerplant that will steer U.S. astronauts to the moon.

Right after the test, an argument began between ship and ground.

Schirra allowed the automatic guidance system to shut down the big engine and said he had been informed to do by the ground.

He said that because of the automatic shutoff, the engine burned with slightly more power than planned.

"That's your big mistake in changing the rules in real time," Schirra said testily. "I hope you learned a lesson from that."

Flight Director Glynn Lunney disagreed, and told reporters later: "In all the planning the engine was to be cut off manually. Either Wally forgot or he apparently didn't understand it."

After receiving a directive from the ground to reservice a cabin water evaporator, Cunningham became angry and said:

"We'll go on record here as saying, people that dream up procedures like this after liftoff have somebody or other been dropping the ball for the last three years. I'll do this Mickey Mouse procedure if necessary."

He performed the exercise.

Eisele complained of "Mickey Mouse wiring" in a sensor used to monitor the astronaut's heartbeat. He said it "is not up to the standards as far as durability is concerned for seven or eight days."

When informed the television show today had been originally set for 8:42 a.m., Eisele complained that he was supposed to be sleeping at that time.

"I don't care to have those guys arching around while I'm trying to sleep," he said.

Surtax Hike Likely As Budget Balancer

Heart Switch No. 6

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's sixth heart transplant operation began at 9:42 a.m. today in Toronto Western Hospital. The recipient was a 42-year-old man and the donor a 29-year-old stroke victim.

Names of both men were not released.

Dr. D. R. Wilson, chief of surgery at the hospital, was heading an operating-room team of 15 including nurses.

Boyd McCauley, associate executive director at the hospital, said the recipient had been in hospital two weeks.

The operation took place in the cardio-vascular surgery section of the hospital where routine open-heart operations are performed.

Canada's five previous heart transplants were performed at the Montreal Heart Institute by a surgical team headed by Dr. Pierre Grondin. Three of the recipients survive.

Of 62 transplants performed in the world 41 patients are still alive.

The world's longest surviving recipient is 55-year-old Dr. Philip Blaiberg of Cape Town, South Africa, who underwent the transplant Jan. 2.

The world's first transplant was performed last Dec. 3 by Dr. Christiaan Barnard who also operated on Dr. Blaiberg. The first recipient, 55-year-old Louis Washkansky, died 18 days later.

Gaeta Paris, 49-year-old Montreal electrical engineer, was Canada's second recipient and is the country's longest surviving recipient of a heart of a 23-year-old victim of a motor-cycle accident June 28 and went home from hospital Sept. 7.

Preparations for a Toronto transplant began in January when the University of Toronto set up a four-hospital committee of heart surgeons under the chairmanship of Dr. Wilfred Bigelow of Toronto General.

Other members, heads of heart-surgery units at their own hospitals, are Dr. D. R. Wilson of Toronto Western, Dr. W. T. Mustard of the Hospital for Sick Children, and Dr. C. B. Baker of Toronto St. Michael's.

A committee policy statement said research had been continuing for more than two years at Toronto's Banting Institute into heart-transplant techniques and that information would be made available to all four hospitals so that any one of them could plan surgery.

Benson Copies Sharp

OTTAWA (CP)—An increase in last spring's special surtax to five per cent from three is one plan Finance Minister Benson might adopt to raise federal revenues in next Tuesday's budget.

The three-per-cent surtax was levied on personal income and corporation profits taxes last March, when former finance minister Mitchell Sharp estimated it would yield $290,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

Mr. Sharp was then basing his budget outlook on holding expenditures to $10,225,000,000, and having total revenues of $10,185,000,000, leaving a $40,000,000 deficit.

But despite efforts to hold down spending, the government's appropriation estimates now run to $10,670,000,598, and in addition $138,000,000 must be written off as the federal government's share of the Expo 67 deficit.

The five per cent levy was first proposed by Sharp last February and in a surprise vote was defeated by the combined opposition. The then finance minister subsequently brought in a revised bill at three per cent.

Mr. Benson has been trying to bring the budget into balance, and said last summer it could be done with a few small adjustments to existing tax rules.

What is not known now—but will be revealed as part of the budget speech Tuesday—is the government's current estimate of its deficit, and whether it plans in fact to balance the budget with tax increases.

Because of the natural growth of the country and the way personal income tax rates have an escalator effect on tax yields, an increase to five per cent from three in the surtax might yield as much as is needed to balance the budget.

Raising the rate of the surtax rather than basic income and corporation tax rates also has an advantage, from the federal government's point of view, in that all the additional money comes to the federal treasury.

The basic taxes now are shared with the provinces, and an increase in the base rates means only part of the additional money comes to Ottawa, while large amounts go to the provinces.

Belleville Man Killed In East End Accident

A Belleville youth, Robert R. Hewton, 23, was struck down and killed late last night while walking along an east end street with his girl friend.

Police said that the heavy rain, fog, and lights from a car set the stage for the mishap occurring on Herchimer Ave. shortly before 11:30 last night.

The couple was walking north along Herchimer on the east side of the road when they decided to cross the street.

According to a witness, they crossed in front of a northbound car which slowed down for them. After it passed them they stepped out from the centre of the road into the path of a south-bound vehicle driven by Louis Donald Schell of Marysville.

Hewton was struck and killed. His girl friend was not injured by the vehicle.

Sgt. Ralph Petrie said that according to a witness there was no speed involved in the accident.

"It appears that the couple was in that blind spot formed from the headlights of the two cars," said Sgt. Petrie, "and all of a sudden they were in front of the southbound car."

The fatality is still under investigation. The accident was reported by one of the residents on Herchimer who did not give his name.

Two City Girls Injured In Hit, Run Accident

Two 15-year-old girls were left helpless on Bridge Street West last night after being struck down by a hit and run driver.

Linda Oliver and Madelaine Bates, both of 73 Highland Ave., were admitted to Belleville General Hospital after a passing Central Taxi driver relayed the girls' plight to his office.

The girls were walking up Bridge St. West near the new concrete that has been poured on the hill when the hit and run occurred.

City police have issued an appeal to all citizens to help find the vehicle and driver described only as a blue station wagon by the girls.

No make or licence number were available from the girls and so far no witnesses to the hit and run have turned up.

Pair in Island Seclusion

Religious Question Still Clouds Wedding

SKORPIOS ISLAND (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy told reporters today on this tiny Greek island haven where she will marry Aristotle Onassis that "Tellis and I are very happy."

The Greek Orthodox wedding is expected Sunday.

Tellis is apparently Mrs. Kennedy's nickname for Onassis.

This was the first time the prospective bride had spoken to reporters since her arrival on the closely-guarded island.

She looked radiantly happy as she posed for photographers on the quayside of Skorpios' tiny harbor. She was accompanied by her children, Caroline and John, and her sisters-in-law, Mrs. Stephen Smith and Patrician Kennedy.

Onassis, however, stayed aboard his luxury yacht Christina, moored in the harbor.

Mrs. Kennedy agreed to pose for photographers only after they refused to leave the island following a row with crew members of the yacht.

Mrs. Kennedy, her children and her sisters-in-law came down the Christina's gang-plank to take a ride around the island in waiting mini-jeeps. They all agreed to go over to a group of about 100 reporters and photographers to pose for pictures.

Mrs. Kennedy wore white slacks, a black turtleneck blouse and big sun glasses.

She refused to answer questions about the date or time of her wedding. An officer of the Christina, however, told reporters that the wedding would take place between noon and 2 p.m. Sunday.

Later, Onassis took Mrs. Kennedy and the children on a motorboat cruise of Lefkas Bay.

Earlier in the day the couple had a swim and lazed in the sun.

A flotilla of speedboats manned by Onassis' private police made sure no unauthorized guests broke into the couple's pre-nuptial privacy, but occupants of a fishing boat reported that the couple sunbathed, had a swim and went for a motor boat ride.

Although Onassis, 62, has not confirmed it, a woman spokesman for the magnate said the wedding to the 39-year-old widow of President John F. Kennedy would be Sunday.

The wedding ends a five-year widowhood for Mrs. Kennedy that began Nov. 22, 1963, when an assassin's bullet struck down her husband in Dallas, Tex. For Onassis, whose Midas touch ran a $50 stake into a fortune estimated at $500,000,000, it is another step in a spectacular life.

The wedding also poses yet unresolved religious problems.

Onassis was divorced in 1960 after 14 years of marriage to the former Athina Livanos, daughter of another Greek shipping magnate. He is a Greek Orthodox, and his church gives him permission to remarry by approving the divorce in a 1961 ecclesiastical decree.

But Mrs. Kennedy is a Roman Catholic, and her faith does not permit marriage to a divorced man unless his prior union is found to be invalid.

Romping through the pine and olive groves of Skorpios are the two Kennedy children.

They arrived with their mother Friday, by jet and helicopter, and have been exploring the millionaire's playground in open, thatch-topped beach cars.

Vatican Opposes Marriage

VATICAN CITY (AP) — When Mrs. John F. Kennedy marries Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis, who is divorced, the marriage will be invalid in the eyes of the Roman Catholic Church, Vatican theologians say.

In Athens, the Catholic archbishop, Most. Rev. Benedictus Printesis, said he opposed the marriage.

"No second marriage is allowed of a Catholic to a divorced person," he said. "I cannot understand how a good Catholic like Mrs. Kennedy can contract a second marriage with a divorced man like Mr. Onassis."

The couple are to be wed this weekend in a Greek Orthodox ceremony, Onassis' religion. His church has approved his 1960 di-

Hastings Centennial Manor Officially Opened at Bancroft

Yesterday's official opening for the new Hastings Centennial Manor at Bancroft was a historic day for North Hastings, according to village reeve Jack M. Brown.

Extending a civic welcome to the overflow crowd who attended the official opening ceremonies for the new $1,400,000 structure, Mr. Brown said elderly people from the area would now have less reluctance in becoming manor residents.

Previously, he said, people from North Hastings had to go to Hastings Manor at Belleville and although they received the best of care they missed the regular visits of relatives and friends.

Now with the new home at Bancroft offering the prospect of regular visits by family members, he felt that many senior citizens would change their mind about entering the home.

Tyendinaga Reeve Delbert Harvey, chairman of the county homes for the aged board of management, agreed that the new Bancroft home would fill a great need in the northern part of the county.

"The home will provide additional services for the care of our senior citizens," he said, adding that no sector of the population was more deserving of good care.

Hon. John Yaremko, Ontario Minister of Social and Family Services, said the new Centennial Manor at Bancroft was indicative of the tremendous change in the care of senior citizens which had taken place in the past one and a half decades.

He said there were now 140 homes for the aged in Ontario which were wholly or in part supported by public funds.

Noting that the Ontario government contributed $650,000 toward the construction of the 108 bed home, the minister used a biblical analogy to describe who gets what in apportioning welfare spending.

"I might say that allocating my department's expenditure is something like portioning out the loaves and fishes without divine intervention," he said.

He said that many categories of social need could well receive more assistance but, "we in government must pause to consider that the money required of us for these expenditures is public funds."

County Warden Calvin White said the official opening of the second county home for the aged "brings to reality the dreams of the people of Hastings and particularly those who saw the great need for lodging such as this for the senior citizens of the area."

Following the official ribbon cutting by Lawrence Crawford, director, homes for the aged branch of the Social and Family Services, visitors were taken on a tour of the new building.

The Manor chapel was dedicated at a special ceremony under the chairmanship of Rev. Peter Test. Rev. H. J. Maloney, Bancroft parish priest was unable to attend the official opening ceremonies due to illness.

The Manor facilities provide accommodation for 108 senior citizens and include a fully equipped laundry room, modern kitchen and auditorium, lounges and sitting rooms, barber shop add beauty salon.

Proctor-Silex Talks 'Gone Down the Drain'

PICTON — Negotiations in Toronto between striking union members and Proctor-Silex have "gone down the drain."

The two parties spoke yesterday in an all day session but apparently no change of view point was reached.

George Hutchens, Canadian president of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers and head of the union team, said his union had requested "voluntary arbitration" with a single arbitrator.

He recommended Judge Wilfred S. Lane, Prince Edward county judge or Judge J. A. Anderson of Belleville.

Response on the suggestion from Proctor-Silex management is expected on Monday or Tuesday.

Mr. Hutchens said if the two parties agree to an arbitrator the resulting decision would be final and binding. He said that both judges have broad backgrounds of labor negotiations in the Prince Edward area.

Added what plans the union had if Proctor-Silex did not agree, he said "we have a lot up our sleeves."

Appeals to labor councils across the province will be made requesting boycotts of all Proctor-Silex products, he said. Support of the labor councils is probable.

Cars Hit Cows

Woman Injured in Accident

TWEED — Two dead cows, two damaged cars and one injured lady were the results of two animal-car accidents occurring within minutes of each other last evening.

Highway 62 was the scene of the worst accident when a $300 cow owned by William Donnan of Stirling was struck by a vehicle driven by 36 year-old Robert Mallorey of Cooksville.

The cow was killed instantly and estimated damage to Mulloney's car was $1,000.

A passenger in the car, Mrs. Helen Stoklaar, 76, was taken to Belleville General Hospital with lacerations and a knee injury.

Only minutes before the Stirling accident another cow was hit at Stoco. The $400 animal owned by Patrick Rush had to be destroyed after it was struck by a car driven by Vincent Lynch, 39, of Tweed.

Damage to the car was estimated at $250.

In the Stirling accident, OPP officers said that about three of the animals had escaped their pasture and were on the road.

However, in the Tweed accident OPP officers said that apparently the herd was being driven down the road in the dark when the mishap occurred.

Six-week road tour for Ireland's Abbey Tavern Singers ended in Belleville last night — but they're not yet off to more weeks in Toronto, enroute they played to packed houses at Centennial Secondary. Awaiting Belleville curtain time are four balladeers—(from left) Brian O'Rourke, Mary Sheehan, John and Ann Byrne.

Singers Thrill Packed Houses

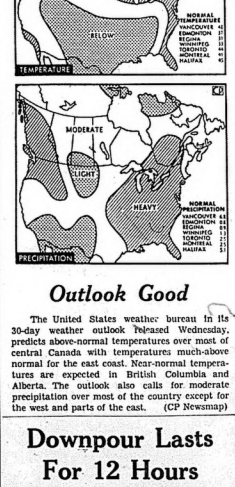
A bunch of the Irish buzzed into Belleville last night — and — predictably — brought the house down.

Not in the tradition of uproar that sentiment in this part of the world fondly, if wrongly, associates with sons of the ould sod. But in sheer audience reaction to the music of a group that has become one of the newer traditions of the Irish scene: "The Abbey Tavern Singers.

The Singers, first introduced to North America by way of a brewery commercial, ended a six-week tour of one-night stands here. For several hours they were the toast of as much as the town as two packed houses at Centennial School holds.

For their audiences, the singers provided a rousing evening of Irish music, in the inimitable style which first captured public imagination on this side of the Atlantic.

The octet of balladeers and musicians playing and singing traditional airs in relaxed sing-along style, were preceded by their reputation for zestful entertainment.



And, to reassure their fans that there's only one Abbey Singers, the eight of them cracked out their most famous lyric for curtain music: It's off to Dublin in the green . . ."

This was the piece that brought them international recognition when recorded as a commercial plug for Carling Brewery.

Local brewery representatives worked with Belleville Kinsmen in sponsoring the Singers' two show appearance here last night.

With the crowded response, some of the local organizers were lamenting the engagement could not be extended. (The Singers now are headed for a two-week stand at the Royal York.)

However, local brewery representatives Ken Lawson says he is probing possibilities of one more show in the Quinte district — maybe in Trenton.

Outlook Good

The United States weather bureau in its 30-day weather outlook released Wednesday, predicts above-normal temperatures over most of central Canada with temperatures much-above normal for the east coast. Near-normal temperatures are expected in British Columbia and Alberta. The outlook also calls for moderate precipitation over most of the country except for the west and parts of the east. OPP Seek 'Missing Boy

TRENTON — Brighton OPP are still searching for a youth who has been missing since October 17. Mike Hobbins, 13 years of age, was last reported in the Salem area.

A police spokesman said today "we have no word on him yet." When last seen Mike was wearing a blue-green plaid shirt with black pants and black shoes.

The youth, reported missing by his mother, is 5 foot 3 inches in height and weighs 135 pounds.

Thieu Reiterates Position

SAIGON (Reuters) — President Nguyen Van Thieu today reiterated South Vietnamese opposition to a complete bombing halt of North Vietnam unless Hanoi offered some reciprocal gesture of goodwill that could lead to peace.

He said the position of his government remained unchanged on a complete bombing halt.

"That is—first we would consider a bombing halt as a new de-escalation and move of good will. We demand of the enemy a similar response.

Downpour Lasts For 12 Hours

Fall's falling leaves fell faster during the night — fetched down by an inch of rain in the Belleville area.

The downpour, lasting nearly 12 hours, continued through the night and threats of showers still lurked in grey skies this morning.

In Belleville, 1.03 inches of rain was recorded by 8 a.m. today at the city's filtration plant and the weatherman at Canadian Forces Base Trenton predicted intermittent rain up to this afternoon.

Temperatures were expected to reach 65 degrees today, dipping to about 40 tonight, reaching a Sunday high of 55-60.

IN MEMORIAM

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Charles Patrick Smith, passed away, Oct. 19, 1957.
What a shock it was to clasp his hand for the last time,
His happy face to see and see him pass away.
That meant so much to me.
Always remembered by wife Cecelia and family.

SMITH — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Charles Patrick who passed away October 19, 1957.
The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought his death so near.
Only God could see us fall,
The sorrow and grief in each heart.
You would wish us no sorrow,
You would wish us no tears,
But just remember us in passing years,
God, in His wisdom called him home,
Keep him in your care.
Make up for all he suffered,
And all he could not share.
Wishing God had spared you, just a few years more.
Sadly missed and always remembered by wife Cecelia, daughters-in-law Barbara and Joan, children Randy, Rhonda, Debbie and Angela.

One Room Schools Go on Sale

Anybody in the market for "old" type public school desks, piano in fair to poor condition, or possibly 4 one or two roomed schoolhouse?

If so Hastings County School Area No. 2, has them for sale.

This week advertisements are appearing in county newspapers offering 18 one roomed schools in Hungerford, Huntingdon and Rawdon townships for sale.

Also offered are six two roomed public schools, 10 pianos, and approximately 800 "old type" student desks, including some double desks.

Sale of the one and two roomed township schools is the result of school centralization which has caused the school buildings to be no longer used.

Hawk's Broken Wing Heals at Animal Shelter

The humanitarian activities of the Quinte Brqch of the Ontario Humane Society extends far beyond the picking up of stray cats and dogs.

It even includes looking after the welfare of injured feathered friends — even if they happen to be wild.

For instance, would you believe a wild hawk, or maybe a tiny wren.

Indicative of the extended service is the fact that the Humane Society branch west of the city currently has a wild hawk with a broken wing.

Two weeks ago another hawk, this time covered with mud oil and unable to fly was picked up, while an injured wren was also brought in for care.

The injured hawk was in evidence today as it attacked by a new and keen proficeyt by attendants.

Neither is he alarmed by human companionship and even tolerates a hand and arm being extended into his cage.

But remembering the hostile reception of their first hawk, Humane Society attendants are not taking too many chances.

The first hawk picked up in Middleton Park wanted nothing to do with humans and in his efforts to escape made a mockery of protective gloves.

The bird's sharp talons ripped through the gloves leaving scratches on attendant's hands and arms.

"We couldn't do a thing with him," said the handler.

But with the present hawk, Humane Society officials feel they have established some kind of a first.

"It will possibly be the first wild hawk to fly around with a pin in his wing," they laughed.

Students To Have Holiday

About 4,200 pupils enrolled in schools in Sidney, Thurlow, Frankford, Batawa, Ameliasburg and Murray Township will have a holiday Monday.

For their teachers it's a different story. They go back to school themselves for a day of lectures and discussions on open plan schools, continuous progress and child development.

The teachers' convention for the inspectorate of Hastings No. 2, Northumberland No. 3 and Prince Edward No. 2 will be held in Murray Centennial School.

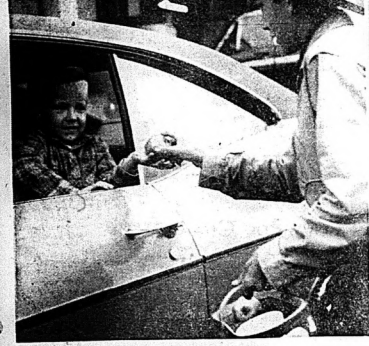
A. G. McKay, superintendent of public schools in Barrie and Mrs. Dorothy E. Banting, principal of Allandale Heights Public School in Barrie will explain operation of open plan school in their town.

Trenton Crew Seeks Plane

TRENTON — The Search and Rescue Unit at CFB, Trenton has been trying to reach a downed plane, and its two occupants, for the past two days.

The plane, belonging to Thoriault Airlines, a private charter line, was enroute Geraldton to Wawa.

A search and rescue spokesman said today, "the plane has landed and they have been transmitting to us for the past two days."



Rescue units have been sent out to the north of Kapuskasing, but as yet, there have been no results.

The spokesman attributed the lack of success to bad weather, which is making it, "pretty rough going for the searchers."

The pilot of the plane, which began its trip four days ago, is Captain Lavoie, the other occupants name is unknown.

"We believe that the pilot became lost in the area, and simply landed," explained the spokesman.

Vatican Spokesman Opposes Marriage

...norre from Tina Livanos, daughter of another wealthy shipowner and announced his marriage to Miss Jacqueline Ste. Marie Bouvier Lee Radziwill. Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss is the mother of Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. Radziwill.

...when she remarried in 1962 to Prince Stanislas Radziwill after a 1952 divorce from U.S. diplomat Michael Canfield. But the Vatican's Sacred Rota or marriage tribunal, annulled her first marriage in 1954 and she and the prince had a Catholic wedding.

The Rota may declare marriages invalid if there is adequate proof that one or both partners did not intend to enter a permanent relationship or to have children, or that the prior vow was contracted under duress or undue influence.

Should the Rota decide that the marriage of Onassis to Tina Livanos was invalid, Mrs. Kennedy's marriage to Onassis would be affected.

But Vatican theologians regarded this possibility as doubtful. The marriage lasted 11 years and produced two children, Alexander, 20, and Christina, 18.

The religious status of the Kennedy children, Caroline and John Jr., is not affected by the marriage. But the Greek Orthodox Church would require that any children born of the marriage be raised as Greek Orthodox.

Walkathon Postponed One Week

TRENTON — All three sore feet will be put off for one week.

The sore feet belong to the walkers who would have taken part this weekend in the Squadron marathon hike around the Bay of Quinte.

Due to inclement weather the event has been rescheduled for next week.

The goal of the walk was a Cessna 172 aircraft which will be used by the cadets in their trained programs.

Thieves Steal Copper

Police say thieves caused about $5,000 damage while stripping copper from mine machinery at Whetstone Lake in Lake township.

The mine which processed iron ore and was owned by Frank McCallum, of Oshawa, had not been operating in recent years.

Diesel engines used to power the operation were broken apart in the hunt for copper components. Six motors and 15 drive belts were damaged in a nearby ore - crushing plant.

Police estimate about 2,000 pounds of copper — easily disposable as scrap — was taken. But repairing the damage would cost owners up to $6,000.

Whetstone Lake is about 12 miles west of Highway 62, in dense bush country accessible only by truck.

The break-in was discovered by two men in the area readying a hunting camp.

Olympic Incident

What is done is done — and yet the "black power" demonstration by two Negro athletes at the Olympic Games leaves a bitter taste in the mouth.

True the Olympics have to do with the competitive spirit, rivalry and so on. But they also are concerned with sportsmanship, and the action of sprinters Tommie Smith and John Carlos certainly belied this essential element in the affairs of men.

Perhaps it is not so surprising though. Negro athletes at the Olympic Village in Mexico City are reported to have been practising their own brand of apartheid, keeping to themselves and aweof from white members of the United States team.

At least it was a peaceful demonstration, carried out on the winners' podium after Smith and Carlos had finished first and third respectively in the 200 metres. Much more disturbing meanwhile, was the recent spectacle in Montreal of Black Power leader Stokely Carmichael issuing what was virtually a call to arms.

Carmichael urged North American Negroes to arm themselves and join "other oppressed peoples" in the war against racism, capitalism and imperialism.

This is the way to anarchy — in a country which unfortunately already has more than its share of hatred, violence and misery. Yes misery, for despite the material wealth of the United States it has not yet evolved a common humanity.

A Toast to Judge Lane

British High Court Judge Elizabeth Lane's ruling that a man is entitled to call at the pub for a drink on his way home from work and should not be abused by his wife for doing so is said to have set spirits rising among millions of homegoing British husbands.

Mrs. Justice Elizabeth Lane granted a divorce to a 58-year-old carpenter who said his wife shouted and attacked him whenever he came home after a pause for refreshment.

They can be no doubt who is the toast of Britain right now among these same working husbands — Mrs. Justice Lane of course, who happens to be the country's only woman High Court judge. Still, the wives deserve sympathy too. As a young California woman demonstrated recently when she stopped work and picketed her own home, a woman's work is never done. Some husbands, moreover, stop at the pub for more than just a "quick one" and probably deserve a bit of a tongue lash from their wives when they finally make it home.

Yet, when all is said and done, it is the wife's responsibility, mainly, whether the home is a happy place or not. We are reminded of the "Happy Lovers Wife" who wrote to an advice columnist saying she wished she could read more opinions from married men because she was sure "many of them have secret dislikes about their wives and all women."

She added, "And how about the wives throwing in a few hints? Not just a few pleas. Most women need a daily punch on the nose. They feel that they are so hard done by and picked on. Yes, a few may be, but the majority are selfish and discontented social climbers that complained over raising a few children and housework."

Well well, between Mrs. Justice Elizabeth Lane in Britain and "Happy Loved Wife," an anonymous Canadian, a few million menfolk on both sides of the Atlantic will be lauding it over their wives. But wait, the women of Canada, at least, may soon get their own back. There is that celebrated Royal Commission on the Status of Women which has just concluded its hearings. When its recommendations are made known, the menfolk surely will have a thing or two to think about!

401 Speed Track

While noting that the new 70 miles an hour speed limit on Highway 401 is closer to "reality," The Peterborough Examiner warns there is "every likelihood that drivers will now start to travel at speeds of 75 and 80." Perhaps the Peterborough writer is more familiar with Highway 7 than with 401, but the fact is that drivers on 401 have been tearing along at speeds up to 90 for years. There are an awful lot of drivers in Ontario who think they are Graham Hill or Bruce McLaren.

Thinkers Versus Doers in PC's War of Ideas

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — As between the warring wings of the Conservative Party there is little to the party's "intellectuals," and the others, who see themselves as the "practical politicians."

The take-over of Robert Stanfield as leader seems to have settled nothing.

More than a year after "the skipper" as some call him, took the Tory helm, his grasp in the Commons still leaves a lot to be desired, and he is trying to sail in two different directions.

While neither happens to be a leader of either of the two warring wings, a pair of Maritime Conservatives perhaps best illustrates the wide gulf between them.

The "practical politician" is Robert Coates, MP for Nova Scotia's Cumberland through six elections and 11 years.

He is continuously concerned about what he sees as the everlasting federal short-changing of "have - not" Nova Scotia in particular and the Maritimes in general.

And he is convinced that if the Ottawa administration was not so wasteful of the taxpayers' dollars, there would be more of them available for good and urgent works in the Atlantic provinces.

To his left forever hounding the ministers and the mandarins of Parliament Hill about the lavish way he sees them holding themselves with fancy titles and fancier offices.

David MacDonald, three-year, two-election MP from Prince Edward Island's Egmont riding, typifies the "intellectual" contrasted to the "practical politician.

He worries about the world, and ways of saving it.

His heart is in the United Nations, in Africa, in Vietnam.

His most recent expedition — in tandem with Andrew Brewin of the New Democrats — was to Biafra where they became "instant experts" in all of 36 hours, returned home and issued a report contradiction to those of all the experts.

It was just his bad luck that while he was away, it became more certain than ever that the Conservative government in Prince Edward Island was being run under the government's harvest economy wave.

In the year-long struggle for power between the "intellectual" MacDonald side of the party, and the "practical" Coates, the Conservative "thinkers" have gained ground, but short of total victory.

Their present triumph is to be the manning of a new Tory "think-tank", with six or seven professors being assigned to dreaming up the party's "long-range" policies and programs.

For quite some time the Conservatives have maintained a small staff of researchers to assist the MPs in preparing speeches and typified reports for hometown and district weeklies.

And more and more MPs, especially those from the Prairies haven't minded at all conceding that their views have been influenced in last June's election.

But instead of beefing up this staff — there are only four — or even could be cut — the Tories again opt for the professorial "think-tank."

They tried it before, and out of their "thinkers" conference at Montmorency came the "deux nations" concept that was exposed in two seats in Quebec, but didn't, and resulted, instead, in the loss of 16 ridings in Ontario and 26 across all Canada.

Such "thinkers' conferences" are really a Liberal invention. There was the famous one eight years ago in Kingston, considered a prelude to Lester Pearson's 1963 victory at the polls, setting the new "intellectual" style in national politics.

But while the Liberals have consulted the professors at these "think-ins," they have been extremely careful to not allow the academics to take control and run their party policy from the campus.

The "practical politicians" in the Conservative Commons caucus argue that it is not enough to have professors dreaming up policy — that whatever political program still must be sold by the MPs, an impossible talent assignment as it is so obviously turned out, with "deux nations."

One more thing . . . and this they are trying to impress on Robert Stanfield as the umpire in the power game between his two competing party wings . . .

When the professors fail at political "thinkers," their only always return to the campus . . . but when the MP fails in "practical" politics, he has nowhere to go but back home.

Artificial . . . Rarefied

A Westerner's View of Ottawa

Allan Fotheringham in
The Vancouver Sun

When an MP staggers away from his daily duties at Parliament in London, he has to shoulder his way onto the underground and fight with the Great Unwashed for a seat. It's a great education. The British MP, unnoticed and unheralded in the teeming city, has it made apparent to him that there are real people alive and about.

When an MP leaves his work in Ottawa, he drifts into the grey void of a city that is not really a city — it is just an extension of government. One of the reasons Canadian governments have difficulty keeping in tune with the mood of the public is that Canadian governments must exist in this peculiar limbo. It's an artificial capital, like Victoria which sits over there in a vacuum across the water, cut off from the vitality of life of a metropolitan centre.

David Ingram is a parliamentary assistant to Public Works Minister Art Laing. He's a backer-in his late 30s and he drives a blue Mercedes convertible and he despairs. "What you've got to realize is that this is a company town — just like Powell River or Ocean Falls. Everything centres around the one industry and the place is just about as dull." He heads the blue Mercedes for Montreal. Whenever you ask an Ottawa native what is good about his city, he replies, "well, Montreal is only two hours away."

NATO Solidarity at Issue

U. S. Takes Canada's Contribution for Granted

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—The outgoing administration of President Johnson is quietly going about the business of shoring up NATO, and doing what it can to buttress such reliefs from the Soviet sphere as Yugoslavia. Deputy State Secretary Nicholas Katzenbach is visiting President Tito Thursday and Friday.

Former vice-president Richard Nixon, the Republican candidate expected to win the Nov. 5 U.S. presidential election, has given a clear indication that he intends to give NATO and Europe much higher foreign-policy priority.

After a period of almost-solid preoccupation with Southeast Asia and Vietnam, there may be compelling reasons emerging why the U.S. focus must swing back to Europe.

This is the development of two forces—the growth of Soviet influence in the Mediterranean and the situation that may develop gradually if more Czechoslovakias, more Soviet use of force to preserve its empire and a series of serious crises along the Iron Curtain among fractious satellites.

The Soviet Union has emphasized its limited intentions, apparently to ward off any army building by NATO because of the Czechoslovak crisis. Soviet spokesmen have made specific reassurances about the continuing sanctity of sensitive West Berlin.

But the NATO military, through Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, the American commanding Allied forces in Europe, is warning against "wishful thinking and complacency" about the expansion of Soviet military force in Central Europe.

Nixon, in a policy statement earlier this week on NATO, said alliance must face up to a series of questions in the light of the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

There appear to be major elements in Nixon's thinking favoring a tougher, more realistic line with the Soviet leadership, with a hard-line faction having increasing influence," he said. "These possibilities make it even more difficult to predict how far the Soviets might go in the future. How much would they risk?"

Nixon sent a special emissary to five NATO nations including West Germany, France and Britain and is reported planning a European tour if possible even after taking office, if elected.

The Republican candidate, proposing more consultation within NATO and "quite specifically, new conversations with President de Gaulle," declared that "any sign of Western weakness or Western irresolution would only tempt the Soviets to new adventures and strengthen the hand of the hard-line faction within the Kremlin."

So far, President Johnson, with restraint, has told NATO allies in Europe to continue working toward the meeting of commitments they set up for themselves last December and which most have yet to meet.

Canada has been urged in reconsider any plans to reduce its NATO brigade and its air squadrons, or to reposition them. There has been no criticism of the Canadian NATO contribution, although Canada will be urged to maintain the quality of its forces in the re-weighing that field is shortly due.

Much of the U.S. reaction so far from the Czech invasion and toward NATO has centred here —simply takes Canada for granted. For example, a senate subcommittee report made public Monday, which says the time is "obviously not propitious" for substantial reductions, forces in Europe, excludes Canada outright from the Ukrainian NATO membership in listing current economic growth rates and defence spending. All other countries are listed.

Sounding out youth during next week's Salvation Army congress in Belleville will be the Willowtones, from Toronto. Brothers, (Derek, on drums, guitarist Gordon) they are fourth-generation salvationists and have played in Canada and U.S., recorded own songs. Anglicans Hold Unity Key Says Bishop

VICTORIA (CP) — The Lambeth Conference this summer aired some of the ambivalence in the ecumenical movement between the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches, two church leaders have agreed here.

Anglican Archbishop Harold Sexton, 80, was the senior bishop and the oldest one at the conference.

Bishop Remi De Roo, at 44 was one of the youngest to attend and was one of only three Roman Catholic bishops in the world chosen to attend the Anglican Church's conference in London, held about once a decade.

At a joint press conference after returning here from the month-long conference, Archbishop Sexton said it had "had a wonderful effect toward unity."

He said he believes the Anglican Church is the key toward a unity of all churches "because we can stretch out in two directions, towards the Protestants and the Catholics."

Bishop De Roo praised steps made toward unity at the conference, and cited discussions which were begun by the Archbishop of Canterbury and Pope Paul in 1966 and were continued by the Anglican-Roman Joint Preparatory Commission which met at Gazzada, Italy; Huntercombe, England, and Malta.

"This now has moved beyond their personal initiative," Bishop De Roo said, "and has received the approval of the Anglican communion at the conference."

He cited the growing number of unity schemes developing between Anglican and other Christian bodies and between English Methodists and the Church of England.

"They came up with reports which were made available to the conference," he said. "Even from a Roman Catholic point of view, the new ordinal (the ceremonial book for ordinations) which was proposed for Anglican and Methodist churches is completely acceptable to Roman Catholic theologians."

Bishop De Roo said the Roman Catholic observers learned the Anglican Church will permit inter-communion as soon as there is a formal agreement.

Bishop De Roo said Rt. Rev. G. N. Luxton, Anglican bishop of Huron, had made church history in the closing moments of the conference when he proposed an amendment recommending that assent to the 39 Articles no longer be required of candidates for ordination. Although the amendment sparked controversy, it was accepted by vast majority.

The announcement of Pope Paul's encyclical on birth control had its effect on the conference, which re-asserted its 1958 declaration favoring contraception.

Another result was the rewording of a preliminary report from the committee on the papacy and the episcopacy to state that the Anglican communion is unable to accept the teaching that the Pope is infallible.

CHECKS POLLUTION

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state health department is using an x-ray defraction spectrometer to detect silica and other irritants in air samples from foundries. A health officer said some high silica counts have been reported in foundries in the western part of the state. The irritant causes silicosis, a lung disease which can be fatal.

Tea and Bazaar Hosted by CWL

The Marysville Catholic Women's League held their annual tea and bazaar recently in the Parish Hall.

The gay hall decorations embodied the autumn season — with flowers, leaves and fruit. President, Mrs. William Walsh, and the vice-president, Mrs. Don McLaren, welcomed the guests.

The majority of the ladies attending made their way immediately to the inviting home bake table, and then made the rounds to the country store, the candy table, and the sewing and, knock at bake tables. The children, of course, were most interested in the fish pond — all wanted to try their luck at fishing for prizes.

A vine covered trellis adorned the entrance to the tea tables. Several members from neighboring ladies groups poured tea; and everyone enjoyed the various sandwiches and dainty cookies that were served.

In the evening several games were enjoyed, and various draws for prizes were made.

Guides Receive Gold Cords at Banquet

One of the highlights of the year for Girl Guide and Brownie leaders took place Thursday evening when the annual Area dinner was held in Trenton High School cafeteria.

Nearly three hundred Leaders attended coming from as far north as Peterborough and south to Picton and from Napanee to Brighton. Miss E. M. Baker of Trenton, Quinte Area Commissioner was chairman for the evening.

Mrs. D. J. MacDonald, wife of the mayor of Trenton brought greetings from the mayor. Also present at the head table were Mrs. H. Carswell, wife of the Commanding Officer of C.F.B. Trenton and Mrs. D. Garrett, wife of the high school principal.

The program for the evening consisted of short talks from three Rangers who had travelled on International trips with the Girl Guides during the past summer. Cathy Allenbrandt of Napanee spoke on the German International camp, Nancy Poole, of Napanee, on the Ontario Adventure trip to Great Britain and Switzerland, and Susan Fielding spoke on the Henry Hudson Roundup held at Camp Drumm near Watertown. The girls were most interesting and witty.

The Brighton Ranger Company entertained at a hilarious mock fashion show.

An interesting part of the evening was the presentation of All Round and Gold Cords to girls who had earned them during the past year.

Those receiving the All Round Cord Certificate from Belleville were Carolyn Salisbury and Karen Priest of Co. 16; Deborah Jones of Co. 9; Ivy Smith, Co. 14 and Kathrine Burshaw Co. 7.

The highest award in Guiding, the Gold Cord was recognized by giving the following a small corsage in Guide colors: Pamela Thornton, Ivy Smith and Suzanne Foster, all of the 1st Belleville Land Rangers, and Carolyn Salisbury of Co. 16 Quinte Area Guiders are justly proud of these girls and of the others from other centres who received these awards.

Mrs. A. McLean Haig, former Area Commissioner for Quinte and former Guide Captain was awarded the Medal of Merit. The medal comes with a letter from the National Commissioner for outstanding service to the Guide Movement over the years. The award was presented by Belleville Division Commissioner Mrs. T. R. Colpo, who was at one time one of Mrs. Haig's Guides. In reply, Mrs. Haig gave credit to her Guide Captain, Mrs. (Dr.) Branscombe of Belleville. A standing ovation was given to Mrs. Haig by all those present.

The evening closed with the singing of Taps.

Couple Honored on 25th Anniversary

About 35 guests, including family and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Coleman of Belleville, met recently in the Odd Fellows Hall, Campbellford, to honor them on their 25th wedding anniversary.

Joe Poulton was chairman of the program which consisted of a piano solo by Mrs. Doug Johansen, and a solo by Heather Johansen accompanied by her father on the guitar. A reading by Mrs. Murray Petherick. A humorous reading was given by Harry Bennett, and a personal tribute by Larry Coleman, only son of the Colemans.

The highlight of the program was a book "This is your life," Helen and Bill Coleman. Compiled by Mrs. Joe Poulton and Mrs. Wilfred Coleman. Mrs. Peeling in a humorous way. A presentation of a money tree from the family was read by Mrs. William Cochrane and presented by Ricky Cochrane, 3-year-old son of Mrs. Cochrane and the late Jerry Cochrane of Belleville.

Several gifts were presented by friends present. Although the couple were taken by complete surprise, they thanked everyone for their lovely gifts. A beautiful dinner brought a happy afternoon to a close. After dinner there was a sing-song by the children present with Mrs. Johansen at the piano.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Heasman, the attendants of the bride and bridegroom of 25 years ago, were also present.

Eastern Star Tea and Sale Travels "Around the World"

The ladies of Belleville Chapter 55, Order of Eastern Star, invited "all aboard" for an imaginary trip "around the world" on Wednesday after noon October 16, at the Masonic Temple.

Mrs. Margaret Booth, PM, was overall convener of the Tea and Sale and Mrs. Dorothy Jones her co-convener.

Following the theme, the guests were welcomed in the vestibule by Miss Betty Jones who, from her travel bureau, complete with posters, flight bags and souvenirs, presented each lady with a vacation guide folder. World wide travel posters hung from the ceiling and covered the walls of the auditorium as well as fronting the various booths.

Each booth of saleable articles was reminiscent of some far-away land. The Home Making table (Japan) convened by Mrs. Thelma Liddle, PM and co-convened by Mrs. Leah Pitt, PM, had world globes for decoration, with the focal point being a miniature Japanese 100 yen note. The Business Girls' table (Scotland) offered knitted articles, plastic bowls, cushions and jewellery. It was convened by Mrs. Linda Keenan and co-convened by Mrs. Irene Brown, PM. The Homemade Candy table (Mexico) was convened by Mrs. Hazel Arnet Finnigan and co-convened by Mrs. Bessie Shore.

Holland was the setting for the Christmas Booth. It was under the convenorship of Mrs. Pearl Johnston, PM, and co-convened by Mrs. Gladys Bailey, and offered many imaginative suggestions for the early St. Nicholas. There was a German delicatessen with goodies for the late home comers. This was in charge of Mrs. Jessie Warren and Mrs. Lily Herman.

Messrs. Rex Chaplin, Bob Jones, Percy Kerr, PP, and Everett Liddle, PP, presided over the Hawaiian booth. At another table Miss Jeanne Stephenson sold greeting cards and gift cards for every occasion as well as pretty seasonable and ornaments.

In the tea room the main table was beautifully appointed with white linen and centred with a globe surrounded by bronze and gold mums. The centre was flanked by silver candelabra with bronze and gold candles. The small tea tables had white cloths, and centrepieces, one for each nation, with figures, animals, greenery and flowers.

Mrs. Lois Chaplin, Worthy Matron and Mrs. Wanda Clare associate matron greeted the guests at the door. In charge of ticket sales was Mrs. Lulla Brickman and selling tickets at the door were Mrs. Sarah Morgan, Mrs. Elizabeth Eccleston, Mrs. Ethel Adams, PM, Mrs. Jean Bell, Mrs. Hazel Insley and Mrs. Signe Orne.

The tearoom convener was Mrs. Myrtle Cross, PM, and co-convener Mrs. Dorothy Ellis, PM; kitchen convener Mrs. Marjorie Gray, co-convener Mrs. Ada McMullen, PM. Tea room hostesses were Mrs. Dorothy McGhahon, PD-DGM; Mrs. Edna Morden, PM; Mrs. Margaret Shaw, PM; Mrs. Phyl Berry, PM; Mrs. Luella Brickman, PM; GM; Mrs. Lillian Law, PM; Mrs. Phyl Barlow, PM; and Mrs. Irene Brown, PM.

In addition to the door prizes and other raffles, four grocery baskets were on display and tickets were sold on them by Mrs. Anne Combe and Mrs. Reta Bonnetta.

Winners of prizes were: Crib Table won by Miss Karen Clare; Grocery baskets by Mrs. Mabel May, Miss Kristin Reynolds, Mrs. Hazel Wilson, and Mr. Eddie Freeborn; Candy plate by Mrs. Olga Morrison; all: Christmas cake by Mrs. Lillian Walsh; Tablecloth by Mrs. Lois Chaplin; Centrepiece by Mrs. Thelma Liddle, and door prizes by Mrs. Hazel Baragar, Mrs. Stella Dorette, Mrs. Viola Greatrix, Miss Jeanne Stephenson and Mrs. George Brickwood.

WALLBRIDGE 111

The eighth and final meeting of the "Apple Corps" began on the 15th of October at the home of Mrs. Hawryluk.

The subject of this meeting was fresh fruit drinks. Members mixed lemonade with both orange and pineapple juice. Plans for Achievement Day were discussed and two extra work meetings planned.

YOUR ANTIQUES
by Jack Jamieson

True Oriental Rugs Disappearing from Market

True oriental rugs are fast disappearing from the market. The best were made by traditional methods in traditional designs and may date from before the mid - 18th Century to about World War I. "Chinese" deep pile solid color, with two small diagonally-opposite corner motifs or "Indian", similar deep pile but plain or in Aubusson designs, are not true Oriental carpets (although a good investment in themselves).

Rug sizes are likely to be foun to five feet wide and six to eight feet long. Runners may be found in pairs, suitable for stairs or both sides of a bed. Prayer rugs are provided with a "niche" at one end that was used five times a day by the devout Mohammedan, the niche pointed toward Mecca.

Many antique orientals have a pattern which goes in one direction. "Tree-of Life" designs may have an up and down although others may be symmetrical.

The best test of an oriental is in its design and color and the way it is knotted. Quality is somewhat related to the number of knots to an inch. This can be checked by taking a ruler to the back of the rug and counting knots per inch across the rug. In general the more difficult it is to count the knots the better the quality of the rug.

Designs are traditional The swastika is one of the oldest designs, The real significance of some designs is lost in antiquity. Three balls or circles used in conjunction are said to refer to Tamerlane. Crescent and Star refer to Turkey and Turkish dominance.

The "Paisley" design of shawls also appears on rugs. It is known as a "pear" or "river loop". Some rugs are entirely inscriptive weaving and translate to a non-Omar Khyham exhortation, sometimes philosophical, sometimes directed to the ladies of the harem.

Red made from madder with sour grape juice and alum as a mordant provided almost 60 shades. Blues were made with indigo, yellow from Jalraa berries, onion skins, turmeric, saffron and pomegranate.

Indigo and yellow were combined to produce green with backbone providing "chinese" green. An indigo-dyed wool dipped in madder produced brown. A magnificent blue was produced by applying indigo over madder. Black, purple and violet were also produced, but not as effectively, nor did they keep their color as well. The oldest and best are likely to be primary colors, red, blue and yellow.

True oriental carpets are not as popular now as they once were, around the turn of the century. In 1900 they cost about $50 retail. A good rug represented at least four years work. No rug-maker now is willing to work for $12.50 a year. Quality has deteriorated and costs have risen.

A true Chinese carpet, deep pile, probably yellow and blue, with a wood-fret, cloud-band or lotus motif, in damaged condition may sell for as little as $50 in a second hand store. It can be repaired and will last indefinitely and could not be replaced under $1,000.

MR. AND MRS. MURNEY G. BRADSHAW

Bradshaw – Brownson

Trinity United Church, Madoc, was the scene of the October wedding, when Eva Heard united in marriage Margaret Anne Brownson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Brownson, R.R. 4, Madoc, to Murney Glenn Bradshaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Bradshaw, of R.R. 1, Foxboro. Reodering the traditional organ music was Mrs. Emma Reid; while the soloist was Miss Mary Driscup.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of imported crystal crepe, featuring an empire waist of semi-attached Guipure lace with lily point sleeves and a gently scalloped portrait neckline. The full-length coat was sleeveless with the front panels in matching lace and the centre back panel in crystal crepe. A border of crystal crepe flowed from two self bows at the shoulders down the front to the hemline. The raised hem at the front of the coat tapered gently to the back to form a short train. Her shoulder-length veil was scalloped-edged and her headpiece was of white flowers and tiny pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and carnations with ivy.

Maid of honor, Miss Marlene Brownson, sister of the bride, was attired in a floor-length gown of marina blue chiffon over taffeta. The dress featured a scooped neckline and was sleeveless. The waist lines were trimmed with a border of Venise coin self-embroidery. Flowing from the shoulders in cape-like effect, panels of the same color of chiffon caught at the throat with matching embroidery. The headpiece consisted of three rosebuds of imported velvet in matching shades, and was completed by a short illusion veil.

Bridesmaids were the Misses Donna Fuller and Jana Bradshaw, sister of the bridegroom. Both were attired similar to that of the maid of honor. They carried bouquets of white mums tinted blue.

Flower girl for the ceremony was little Miss Norma Wall, cousin of the bridegroom. She was dressed in a floor length gown of white crystal crepe, styled similar to that of the bride. Her headpiece was a crown of blue flowers and she carried a basket of white mums tinted blue.

Attending the bridegroom was Rodney Moorcroft; and the ushers were Allan Brownson and Earl Reid

For the wedding reception held at the Legion Hall in Madoc, the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a marina blue silk knit dress with black accessories and a corsage of pink mums. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom wore a French blue crepe dress with an overlay of chiffon panels. Blue and white accessories and corsage of white mums with silver completed her ensemble.

For the wedding trip to North Bay, the bride donned a three piece navy suit of mint green brocade. The suit featured a mandarin collar and was in the double breasted style. The cape was detachable, and when worn was fastened with two self buttons. Brown accessories and a corsage of pink roses completed her outfit. Upon their return, the couple will reside in R. R. No. 1, Foxboro.

A Little Strategy Can Go A Long Way

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My son went with a dumbell for two years. He is 20. She is here 17.

Eight months ago he wanted to marry this empty-headed, giggly thing. In fact, he had made a down payment on a ring. When he told me about the ring I tried to keep calm and in a nice way talk him out of it. When I saw it was hopeless, I said, "All right, Allen, some kids get married young — so job, no money, no education — and through some miracle it does work. Good luck." His face brightened up. Then I added, "But you are not living in this house."

His smile disappeared and his eyes bugged out.

ANN LANDERS

Three days later Allen asked me what he ought to do about the ring. He said he wasn't sure he could handle rent and groceries "and all that." I told him it would be the best downpayment he ever lost. He didn't answer.

This morning Allen told me he let the ring go because after all, "I have the Army, my education and some growing up to do before I get married."

If I had let him move that dingaling into my house they would have been married by now. Pass the word, Ann. Sometimes a little strategy can go a long way — RELIEVED

DEAR RE: Bravo! What some mothers can't get through their heads is this: Kids, even big ones, do a lot of testing. And they don't always want everything they ask for. The roadblock you threw in your son's way gave him the "out" he was looking for.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If this didn't happen to me I would not have believed it. My husband is about 40 pounds overweight. I have been begging Herman for years to go on a diet. He said he would when he felt like it. Two months ago when his best friend who was also 40 pounds overweight keeled over from a heart attack, Herman decided he felt like it.

We went to a doctor together and he gave Herman a diet — 1200 calories a day and no beer.

We have four children and it's not easy to cook special dishes for one member of the family. I broke my neck to prepare exactly what Herman should have, thinking it was the least I could do to contribute to a longer life for the father of my children.

Yesterday at noon I ran into Herman at his favorite delicatessen. I caught him in the middle of a corned beef sandwich. There was potato salad on his plate and a glass of beer at his right. He said, "The diet the doctor gave me is supposed to be between meal snacks. No person could be expected to live on that."

When I phoned the doctor to tell him what Herman had said, he told me that Herman should find another doctor — preferably a psychiatrist. What do you think about a situation like this? — FLABBERGASTED.

DEAR FLAB: I think the doctor gave you good advice., I hope you can get Herman to take it.

THE AGELESS ATTIC

"Beauty ereish in an attic and no man regardeth." — Samuel Butler (1835-1902.)

* * *

"If your attic is tidy, your whole house is really in order and — not 'til then," a grandmother used to tell her granddaughters, who always replied, "I guess I'll never really know what it is to maintain a completely tidy house. My pilgrimages to the attic for such an attempt are utterly useless. But I'm somewhat mitlified for my husband declares an attic was never meant to be orderly!

"Even in a course of a year, it is terrifying how cluttered it can become. As time goes by it becomes harder and harder to part with out-moded treasures of other years. Overwhelmed by time's passing suddenly one's whole life seems compressed in this upper chamber, filled with old furniture, old books, letters and clothes, and takes on a lustre of unique beauty."

Indeed, attics have and do influence some people's lives: attics turned into modern penthouse apartments, into artist' studios. A writer for a Montreal newspaper called his column," "From an Attic Window."

The young poet Thomas Chatterton, author of a large number of poems, some of the highest order, by the time he was 16.in 1770, went to London with less than five pounds determined to make his living by literature or die. All the time he wrote there, he was starving. A loaf of bread lasted him a week. "bought stale to make it last longer." The struggle became harder, more and more hopless. He rejected all the little kindnesses the neighbors offered. At last, on August 24, of the same year, he locked himself in his attic room, tore up all his manuscripts, took poison and died. He was only 17.

Then, there was the small boy living with his parents in an old and lovely farmhouse, who used to climb the narrow creaking stairs to the fearful, dark attic with a thumping heart. An attic to him filled with all sorts of scarey, mysterious things, imaginable.

However, whenever a grown up went up with him, he would enter the attic boldly.

It wasn't long before he discovered the attic was a regular treasure cove, full of exciting things — old pictures, old books, relatives of generations past; and a splendid heap of green apples.

"These all tempted me and I began to know them and their home — the attic," confides the writer, the late Sir Herbert Read in his autobiography. "Contrary Experience", and speaks of how it became his delight, his private refuge, it being no longer a place or object of fear and mystery, "for I knew it."

And then adds: "... isn't life like that attic and isn't mystery to be dissipated by knowledge?"

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I'm at my wit's end, Johnny has to stay in bed, and he's so bored with all his toys. I can't get my work done. He won't play by himself."

A little ingenuity and planning on Mother's part can ease the strain of a child's convalescence. Even old toys have fresh appeal if they haven't been around for a month or so.

Keep a well-stocked box of special items — quiet games, coloring books, simple craft work and a few new toys — for tick-in-bed play. Bring items out only when needed."

There Is No Magic Formula to Fight Loneliness

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am in my early 30's, divorced for some years, with two boy friends and daughters at home. My professions are nursing and newspaper reporting. I work at each on a part time basis. I have no men friends, nor any lady friends, to speak of.

For years now there has been a terrible, empty loneliness. And it's not because one take the place of male and female adult companionship. I feel there must be many persons with circumstances similar to mine — people whose phones never ring, people who have no visitors and no one to phone.

A person in this boat feels great despair, I know. I keep hoping that it won't always be this way, and believing that it won't — but year after year that part of my life never seems to change.

I wondered if you might have any ideas on how to start a small (at first) informal club for lonely persons like me, where we could at least look forward to having coffee once in a while. — Dreary.

Dear Dreary: Well, don't just sit there and nine away — do something! Remember that you are not all set on a silly pad hoped that Providence would send him a fly? No fly turned up until he got moving and found one himself.

The best way to start something is by writing an informal interest first. Might be star-gazing. Might be toy-collecting for Crowds. Or a Great Books group. Share ideas with even one or two acquaintances and when you have worked up a little enthusiasm have an evening together. The library will have books about it, whatever you choose.

Far better to have an objective than to just have an evening to chat. Conversation may wear thin, with folk who are not too well acquainted.

Dear Doris: There is no reason at all why we should go around telling people we have been mental patients and have had shock treatment and can't remember things!

I have had two breakdowns. The first time I had shock treatment. I didn't like it at all. My memory was so affected that I didn't and still don't remember people visiting me for the first two weeks. The second time I had intensive drug therapy.. I didn't like that either, it can affect your memory too.

So now I write down everything I want to remember in an exercise book and people have actually told me what a good memory I have! I don't tell everyone about that little book. Why should I?

Does this lady know of the Canadian Mental Health Association? They run White Cross clubs for people like us and this can be a great help. The people there understand our problems and we can talk freely without worrying about "what other people will think". — Through The Mill.

Dear Through: Want to know what this "other people" thinks? That you are a pet to share it all with us. And the White Cross clubs are simply terrific for giving Pat-Ann confidence. Ottawa, enclosing a quarter for it.

Nourishing and Versatile Lunch Idea for Baby

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: I enjoy your column and have gained some good ideas from it. Perhaps I can contribute something in return.

I stumbled upon an easy, nourishing lunch for my baby. I mix one-third of a jar of strained baby food vegetable with part of an egg yolk (or a whole one for the one-year-old) and cook it in an egg poacher, stirring it a few times so it won't be lumpy. Both my children have enjoyed this dish and it makes a nice change. I also started my children on cottage cheese at an early age. I buy the "fine curd" and mix it with a portion of the baby food fruit. Now they are older and still enjoy a lunch of cottage cheese.

I have a way of getting more iron into my family. I have a baby still on baby cereal and when I am making a meat loaf I substitute all or part of the bread crumbs or oatd with the baby cereal. It has a nice, taste and is also nice in dressing for fowl or in the topping of apple crisp. I suppose it could be substituted in many other things too.

I hope you find this helpful. — Mrs. J. D. H.

ANSWER: I think your ideas will be very helpful to other mothers of small children. Thank you.

QUESTION: Two years ago you printed a recipe for a pickle which was much like a bread and butter pickle except that they had dill added. These were without a doubt the tastiest pickle I have ever eaten but unfortunately I have lost the recipe. — Mrs. K. C.

ANSWER: Thanks for such an all out compliment but after searching through all 1966 pickle files not one calls for dill in bread and butter type pickles. I am giving you my August 1967 Bread and Butter Pickles and if you want to add a head of dill, go ahead.

BREAD AND BUTTER PICKLES

Twenty unpeeled medium-sized freshly picked cucumbers, 8 small onions (2"), 2 green peppers, ½ cup salt, 2 trays ice cubes, 5 cups mild vinegar, 5 cups sugar, ½ tsp. each turmeric and cloves, 2 tsps. mustard seed, 1 tsp. celery seed. Wash and slice crosswise, paper thin, the cucumbers and peeled onions and seeded peppers. In large crock gently stir salt into these vegetables, cover with ice, then with plate and weight and allow to stand 4 hrs. or in cold place overnight. Drain well. Boil remaining ingredients 5 min. Pour over drained vegetables, bring to just below boiling point, stirring 2 or 3 times. Do not boil. Pack at once and seal. Ready in one month.

Hospital Auxiliary Needs Volunteers

The October general meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was held in Education Hall, with Mrs. Grant Harvey presiding. The auxiliary now has a membership of 245.

The report of the Opportunity Shop given by Mrs. T. Short was a most incentive for the future. The shop realized over $2,000 from April to September and the first two weeks in October another $1,000.

This service is still in need of more volunteers, especially for Saturdays. Anyone who can give two hours of their time every second Saturday, is urged to call Mrs. Short or Mrs. McIntyre. The "Op Shop" is also in need of donations of winter coats as well as new and used children's toys.

Mrs. R. S. Moorman gave one report of the Volunteer Services in the hospital for last month there were 33 volunteers who gave 63 hours of work. A new service has been added, that of transportation of outpatients to and from the hospital. If any person can donate 1½ hours of their time once a week, the Volunteer Service would be most happy to hear from them.

Mrs. W. D. Leslie had a display of small gifts that will be made by the Auxiliary for Christmas. Mrs. Beeby was thanked for her work as the Chairman of District Eight of Hospital Auxiliaries.

Mrs. H. Brown gave a report on the Napanee conference and Mrs. R. S. Moorman gave a resume of the speech given at that meeting. Both Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Moorman are to be delegates at the annual convention of the Hospital Auxiliario to be held in Toronto.

It is now expected the new hospital will open in January. At the close of the business meeting, Mrs. R. Barker was Chairman of the Constitution Committee, consisting of a new constitution for approval. Tea was served by Mrs. W. S. Greene and her committee at the conclusion of the meeting.

$403 Million Increase

Opposition and Liberals Alike Criticize Health Estimates

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal MPs joined the opposition in the Commons Friday to keep up a steady attack on the $1,600,000,000 spending estimates of the health and welfare department.

Health Minister John Munro, whose department spends more than a quarter of the national revenue, made an introductory statement and then sat silently through the afternoon of debate.

Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) complained of gaps in the health and welfare program.

Mr. Munro had explained that except for $25,000,000 as the first medical care payments to the provinces, the $403,000,000 increase over 1967-68 spending was for extension of existing programs.

Mr. Knowles said he is uneasy about government talk of a review of open-ended health and welfare programs.

Grace MacInnis (NDP Vancouver-Kingsway) was more specific. She charged there was "an unholy trinity" of medical interests, big business and politicians working together to sabotage the medical care program.

Only Saskatchewan and British Columbia has so far joined the federal-provincial cost sharing scheme that went into effect July 1. Nova Scotia and Manitoba expect to be able to join next year.

Mrs. MacInnis said the hardest pressure is being applied by MPs who speak for Ontario.

Dr. P. B. Rynard (PC — Simcoe North), Conservative health critic, said the government has a "niggardly" attitude to research and is not putting enough money into training schools to provide the doctors necessary to make medical care insurance work.

He warned that the steadily increasing expense of federal-provincial shared-cost programs could result in a decision to reduce help to medical schools and research.

The Orillia, Ont., doctor said the department could save money by campaigns to reduce accidents—one bed in 10 was occupied by an accident victim—by stimulating research on drugs to reduce recuperative periods and by having patients recuperate in inexpensive special wings rather than expensively equipped active treatment hospitals. He said some U.S. hospitals have motel-type accommodation for recuperating patients.

At the same time, he rapped the government for not putting more money into hospital construction, mental health, and programs on alcohol, drug addiction and cigarette smoking.

Dr. Gordon Ritchie (PC — Dauphin) said there are limits to what can be spent on health. Medical care had to be rationed, if not by ability to pay, then by waiting lists at hospitals.

Not on Agenda

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal-provincial meetings set for Dec. 10-18 will be devoted solely to discussions of Canada's constitution and will not deal with minimum wages, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Friday.

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) said some provinces have minimum wages as low as 80 cents an hour and asked Mr. Trudeau to call a meeting of premiers to discuss raising them above the poverty level.

Ray Perrault (L. — Burnaby-Seymour) took the minister to task over failure to increase the $5,000,000 estimate for fitness and amateur sport.

He complained that the Canada Council grant had been increased by $3,000,000 to more than $20,000,000, but the fitness grant remained unchanged.

He called for a semi-autonomous national fitness council with an adequate budget to promote competitive sport. He also suggested a national sport foundation which could receive donations that would be income-tax deductible.

Mr. Munro explained the $2,200,000,000 health and welfare account consisted of $1,600,000,000 for the old age security fund, $1,500,000,000 for budgeted statutory items and $133,000,000 to be voted by Parliament.

Treasury Board President Charles M. Drury entered the debate to read a statement explaining alleged inaccuracies in federal spending estimates, especially in the health field.

The statement was prompted by questions from Opposition Leader Stanfield, who charged the government had misled Parliament and the country last spring with a pledge that spending estimates for 1968-69 would be kept at about $10,250,000,000.

Mr. Drury said the discrepancy became evident in February when the Ontario government revised its hospital insurance estimates, bringing the federal government's share up to $774,000,000 from $267,000,000.

He said it was difficult sometimes to work out exactly what the federal share of a provincial program would be.

Mr. Stanfield retorted that all it took was a few telephone calls to the provincial deputy ministers to get the figures.

The parliamentary day opened with Mr. Stanfield wishing Prime Minister Trudeau a happy birthday "as he enters his 50th year."

Other party leaders and John Diefenbaker added their good wishes.

As the prime minister entered the House he received a birthday kiss from Mrs. Rose Carlo, 10, of Fort Erie, Ont., visiting Ottawa with a group of Young Liberals from Fort Erie, Ont.

On Monday the Commons takes up the Post Office Act amendments and then goes on to bills on the Farm Credit Act and the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act.

Law Reform Committee On Way

TORONTO (CP) — A permanent national law reform committee which would consider recommendations on legal changes by Parliament will be established with 18 months, Justice Minister Turner said Friday.

The commission will review federal laws and suggest changes and new laws that costnessary, Mr. Turner said during a special convocation here of the Law Society of Upper Canada. But it would not investigate specific grievances.

"It is my thought that such a commission might well be charged with a particular responsibility involving a continuous evaluation of the fundamental rights and freedoms of the citizen as those may be found expressed in legislative enactments both new and old."

At the convocation, Mr. Turner was called to the Ontario bar and appointed a Queen's Counsel. He criticized lawyers and law schools for being outdated. He said law schools stressed business law while the problems of the poor and dispossessed were largely ignored.

College of Art Reform Promised by Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation dealing with reforms in the administration of the Ontario College of Art will be introduced in the next session of the legislature, Education Minister William Davis said Friday.

In an interview after a speech at a service club luncheon, Mr. Davis said the 23-page report by Dr. Douglas Wright, chairman of Ontario's committee on university affairs, is under official consideration by his department.

The one-man inquiry into the college's administration, made public Tuesday, was initiated after student disturbances at the college last March. The report recommended far-reaching reforms which include giving students and faculty at the college decision-making positions.

In his speech, Mr. Davis said that although the Wright report will have an impact on the administrative setups of other post-secondary institutions, the report should not be translated as a blueprint for all Ontario colleges.

By recognizing that there is a place for students and faculty on the governing "council" of the OCA, the report has in effect recognized that there is a place for the "total community" in educational institutions, Mr. Davis said.

Referring to an advertisement placed in 24 Ontario papers this week which asked for public support for secondary school principals and teachers in the province's current labor unrest, Mr. Davis said he had been asked many times why the specific powers of principals cannot be legislated.

It is impossible to "legislate wisdom," he said.

Because student revolution is becoming part of the day-to-day environment, he said, it is the responsibility of education leaders to supply leadership to young people.

Curricula should become more flexible and more relevant to the present way of life.

Mr. Davis said this is why the province is moving into a period of "ungraded education."

Postal Rates

Postal rates and Saturday delivery have suddenly become hot items for Prime Minister Trudeau's Liberal government.

And while the fuss has generated major opposition in the cities, it will be a peculiarity of today's modern living that the rural communities will be the hardest hit when it comes to an everyday staple — the newspaper. However, the fact that Postmaster-General Eric Kierans is considering six-day delivery in rural areas is welcome news.

One out of every 10 subscribers to The Intelligencer is on a rural mail route, which means his newspaper of necessity must arrive a day later at his residence.

With the institution of a five-day postal week as envisaged by Post Master General, Eric Kierans, it would mean these near 2,000 families in the Quinte area would not receive their Friday newspaper until Mohday. And if weekend sorting did not clear the jam, their Saturday newspaper might possibly not arrive until Tuesday.

Projecting these figures across Canada it suggests that for some 300,000 families the daily newspaper will be ruled out as a medium of information at least one day a week.

The proposed increase in mail charges will also have a deleterious effect on the rural subscriber. Charges will climb 200 per cent or more on the new scale for second class mail, 10 times that of first class mail which will increase from five cents to six.

For The Intelligencer it will add an approximate $7 a year to the cost of mailing the newspaper to subscribers. For the Ottawa Journal it would take it $20. The increased cost would vary accordingly for each of Canada's dailies.

Canadian newspaper executives are pessimistic that rural subscribers would be willing to pick up the increased tab. One even went so far as to state: "The government will have killed our newspapers for the country people."

Effect of the two factors will obviously not the thought out when the proposals were announced in the bid to cut deficits in the post office operation.

There is now one daily newspaper in Canada which is subsidized in its mailing operation. Rural subscriber rates are arrived at by totaling the cost of delivering the newspaper to the subscriber. Obviously if mail rates go up so will subscription rates.

It follows that hardships will result, not so much on newspapers, but on that quite considerable percentage of Canadians who by the very nature of this immense land are cut off from normal daily sources of news.

Taste is the name of the game.

1 First move: buy some Brights fine Canadian wines

2 Taste them. Roll the wine around your palate.

3 Go back to the wines. "Say! What is the name of that wine?"

4 Your winning move: put in a cellar of President wines.

When you spend your hard-earned money for wine, you're not buying status — or you shouldn't be. You're buying a wine with a taste you enjoy.

We ask you to taste-test any Brights fine Canadian wines against any comparable imported wines costing sometimes twice as much and more. The chances are you'll choose one of Brights fine Canadian wines. You'll be in good company.

A "taste test" wine cellar:

A handsome gift. A President wine "cellar" is one of the most pleasant ways you can say: "Thank you!"

Orillia Verdict Retains Top Spot

COLLINGWOOD (CP) — Galt Hornets scored two quick goals in the third period to defeat the hometown Kings 4-2, while Orillia Terriers beat Oakville Oaks 6-3 in another OHA Senior "A" game.

Barrie and Woodstock were tied 1-1 at 10.47 of the first period of their game when officials terminated play because of poor visibility after fog spread a cloud over the ice surface.

Don Fuller's two goals gave Orillia sole possession of first place in the eight-team league, one point ahead of Galt and two points ahead of Barrie. Orillia has five points on two wins and a tie in the young season.

Grant Moore, George Vail, Moe Galand and George Westfall added the other Orillia goals. Charlie Cipolla, Gerry Maney and Pete Bettiol scored for Oakville.

Ron Hergott and Frank Hincks scored in the space of 23 seconds in the third period to give Galt the win. Joe Hogan and Bob Ertel added the other goals.

Keith Smeltzer and Jack Lumley scored for Collingwood as Galt goaltender blocked 37 shots, 14 in the third period.

CFL Official to Be Wired for Sound

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two technical innovations will spice tonight's Western Football Conference clash between British Columbia Lions and Winnipeg Blue Bombers in Vancouver — and both involve game officials.

One of the officials will be wired for sound so he can explain penalty calls to the fans via a cordless microphone linked to Empire Stadium's public address system.

The plan, approved by Jake Gaudaur, Canadian Football League commissioner, has never been tried in Canada.

The other move involves a new type offensive play better look at field goal attempts by Ted Gerela, the Lions' soccer-style place-kicker who leads the WFC's individual point parade.

The Lions' general manager, Denny Veitch, said Friday the goal post uprights will be extended to 40 feet or "may be more."

Gerela's soccer style approach gives the ball trajectory that looks like a hooked golf shot as it heads toward the uprights, making high kicks difficult to rule on.

Gerela has already set a CFL record for field goals at 25 and now is aiming at the professional football mark of 28 shared by Bruce Gossett of Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League and Pete Gogolak of Buffalo Bills of the American Football League.

The game won't have any immediate effect on the standings but the Bombers, who trail the Lions by three points, see it as a possible stepping-stone out of the WFC cellar.

The Bombers broke a 10-game winless skein earlier this year with a 17-10 decision over the Lions and will be hoping to end a three-game losing streak tonight. Both clubs are out of playoff contention.

(CP) — Niagara Falls Flyers continue to terrorize the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, but the brawling league-leaders still can't shake the pesky Peterborough Petes. The Flyers skated to their fifth straight win Friday night, defeating St. Catharines Black Hawks 5-4 in a game that was delayed 16 times because of thick fog on the ice and 98 minutes in penalties in the first period. Meanwhile, the Petes remained the surprise of the 1968-69 season with a 4-3 win over Montreal Junior Canadiens on a late third-period goal by Rick McLeish. Henry Lehtonen's goal with 54 seconds left to play gave Kitchener Rangers a 2-2 tie with Ottawa 67s in the only other game.

OTTAWA (CP) — President Sam Berger of the Ottawa Football Club said Friday that dogs will continue to be used to control crowds at Rough Rider games, at least until the end of this Eastern Football Conference. And unless the fences around the city-owned football field are made much bigger, Berger held out little hope of Riders calling off their dogs next year. Defending the use of five German shepherds at Ottawa home games, Berger said at a news conference that the short fences around Lansdowne Park are a paradise for fence-jumpers.

Watkins died following a liquor store shooting in California.

Mo-Hawks Deal Aces 'Nothing' Hand

Holmes' 6-0 Shutout Aided by Aggressive Mates

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Belleville's senior hockey fans were in as aggressive a mood as their Mo-Hawks last night, and both vented their wrath on the Kingston Aces.

Beating the speedy young Aces to the puck, the punch, and the net, the Mo-Hawks got a convincing 6-0 win, their first in three OHA Senior "A" starts.

It took 12 seconds for Wayne McConnell to ram in first goal in a goalmouth scramble, and that set the pattern for a Mo-Hawk - controlled game for most of the evening.

And when the Belleville players weren't dishing it out to the Aces, their fans were. Referee Blair Graham called a 10-minute intermission with three minutes remaining in the second period after Kingston's Bob Brown climbed over the boards after a seeing spectator. The three minutes were played following the intermission, and the final period immediately followed.

Then, midway through the third, Aces' defenceman Guy Lavallee nearly got involved in another fan-disorder, when a board-side spectator grabbed his stick after being struck with it.

Playing - coach Davey Jones' crash conditioning program had obviously paid dividends for the Mo-Hawks, who out-hustled the youthful Kingston crew and played what one veteran hockey observer said was the best defensive game in the club's three-year history.

His mates let only 23 Kingston shots through at goalie Larry Holmes, in contrast to the 38 he had to cope with in Belleville's 8-7 Tuesday loss in Kingston.

Mo-Hawk playing - coach Davey Jones was sharp around his former teammates' net collecting a pair of goals and an assist on the night. A rib injury made Jones a doubtful starter right up until game time.

Centreman George Godson continued his neat skating for the locals, being in the right spot to bang in two markers. Wayne "Wiener" Brown's blistering power-play goal early in the second period, and Wayne McConnell's quick opening tally rounded out the Mo-Hawk scoring.

Winger Ralph Plane was particularly effective, his patented brand of aggressive hockey keeping the Aces on their toes, and earning him a well-deserved assist on the Mo-Hawks' second goal.

Linemates Wayne McConnell and Ron Riley played their best hockey of the young season, but will be minus the services of their regular pivot, Bob Taylor.

Taylor suffered a concussion after crashing head-long into the boards in the Kingston zone on the 10-second mark of the second period.

There wasn't a single Mo-Hawk who didn't let the Aces know he came to play. If they weren't in on any scoring plays, chances were they'd be sitting in the penalty box after an altercation with one of the Aces.

In all, referee Graham handed out 24 penalties, four of the more spectacular involving swinging duels between Lavallee and Ralph Plane, and Colligan and lofty Mo-Hawk defenceman Doug Murray.

The Mo-Hawks hope to retain their newly-acquired winning ways when they journey to Galt today for a game with the powerful Hornets.

BCI Trample Picton

Moira Seniors Pull One Out

A last - minute single-point punt kept the powerful Moira Trojans' unblemished season's record intact, giving the MSS seniors a 21-14 win over Centennial in yesterday's featured Bay of Quinte Class "AA" football action.

In other games, Trenton boosted their record to 3-1 with a 26-6 smashing of Napanee while the defending champion BCI gridders crushed Picton's Prince Edward Collegiate seniors 54-12.

Junior play saw Centennial Chargers stretch their undefeated string to five games, handing Moira their first season's reverse by a 24-12 count. Meanwhile, BCI's junior squad was finishing off Picton's juniors 19-6, and Trenton nearly matched their senior team's output with a 20-7 romp over Napanee.

Trailing 14-13 going into the fourth quarter, Centennial's seniors pulled even with the mighty Trojans on Ken Bertrand's single-point kick with about seven minutes remaining in the game. But Moira's fourgame win string was preserved by a last-minute rouge.

The Trojans had built a 14-7 second-quarter lead on Dalton Lambert's pair of majors and a two-point pass conversion before Tom Buckle smashed into the line from seven yards to keep Centennial within a point.

BCI rolled up a whopping 523 yards of offensive gains in steamrolling Picton senior counterparts 54-12.

Steve Ling's four touchdowns and Mike Scarlett's 220 yards of ground and air gains were the highlights of BCI's massive scoring count.

Fullback John Bunner set the scene for the Centennial victory win, galloping 70 yards past Moira defenders on the game's first play from scrimmage.

Moira's Dave Nolles squared matters 10 minutes later on a reverse, and the two teams battled through a scoreless second quarter.

Nelles played the spoiler again in the third quarter. Two minutes after end Randy Derry scored on a 50-yard pass-and-run play from Centennial quarterback Mike Thompson, Nelles scooted 60 yards to make the score 12-12.

Unanswered majors by Thompson and Plevak in the final quarter gave CSS their 24-12 margin of victory. Trenton and Centennial — the only undefeated teams in the league's junior division, meet Friday, Nov. 1, the winner looking like the Quinte League's COSSA representative.

In Ottawa Clash

Ticats Out to Regain Image

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Unless Hamilton Tiger-Cats show a drastic reversal of form, they may have to accept their worst finish since 1960 in the Eastern Football Conference.

The Tiger-Cats meet the first-place Rough Riders today at Ottawa, and have to win to entertain any hope of finishing first this season.

Also, a loss combined with an Argonaut victory over Montreal Alouettes in Toronto Sunday would just about relegate Hamilton to third place. The Tiger-Cats have not finished lower than second place in any season since 1950.

Going into the important weekend action, Ottawa was first with 15 points. Toronto had 14 and Hamilton 12. The Alouettes, on the brink of elimination from a playoff berth, had six points.

The Tiger-Cats faced a difficult obstacle in having to defeat Ottawa. In two games this season, the Rough Riders collected a total of 89 points and two easy victories against the Ticats.

Ottawa thrashed Hamilton 53-12 in a season opener last August and whipped them 36-23 at Hamilton last Saturday.

General manager Ralph Sazio of Hamilton said the Riders are the team to beat this season and called Ottawa quarterback Russ Jackson "the best in the nation."

Ottawa coach Frank Clair said that Hamilton was not to be taken lightly.

"They are getting desperate for a win. If they don't win here, they'll be five points behind us and they'll have no chance for first place."

Stricken with Joy

Bob Beamon of El Paso, Tex., sobs into his hands in joy at Olympic track standout after he exceeded the world's long jump record by almost two feet — jumping 29 feet 2½ inches, almost out of the jump pit. He ran about waving his hands and finally fell to his knees in emotion. (AP Wirephoto).

U.S. Athletes Take Positive Approach to "Black Power"

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Bob Beamon and Lee Evans of the United States track and field team picked up the fallen banner of two banned black brothers Friday and set world records at the Olympic Games.

Beamon broad jumped 29 feet 2½ to break the world record by almost two feet.

Ralph Boston, also a black American, was third.

Evans led an American Negro sweep in the 400 metres, charging home in a world-record 43.8 seconds. Larry James was second and Ron Freeman third.

All had an American Negro sweep in the 400 metres, charging home in a world-record 43.8 seconds. Larry James was second and Ron Freeman third.

All had gestures to make in protest against the expulsion from Olympic Village of U.S. sprinters Tommie Smith and John Carlos.

The record-shattering performances followed a threat of an athletic boycott and the possibility the entire U.S. team would be pulled out of the 19th Games.

Evans, who said before the race "if two athletes have to go home, then the whole team must go home," waited until the last minute before deciding to run.

"I felt a lot of pressure," he said.

"I had a lot on my mind. I had to push it out of my mind to win a gold medal, just like a friend of mine did two days ago."

It was an obvious reference to Smith, who won the 200 metres Wednesday with Carlos third. On the victory Smith and Carlos had raised black-gloved fists as a symbol of racial protest in the United States and stood with bowed heads, refusing to look at the American flag.

It was for that reason that the U.S. Olympic Committee ordered them out of the Olympic Village and gave them 48 hours to get out of Mexico.

Mexican officials quickly stepped in.

Alejandro Ortega San Vicente, secretary-general of the Mexican Olympic Organizing Committee, said:

"Under no circumstances will the two athletes be asked to leave the country, unless of course, they break the law. They have permission to live in Mexico until Nov. 14."

Carlos and Smith quickly moved their belongings from Olympic Village to downtown hotels, declining comment and refusing to answer their telephones.

was a sign of protest, Evans said: "It was raining."

Beamon appeared on the victory stand in black socks, with sweat pants rolled up to bring attention to them. Boston appeared barefoot. Both gestures have been used before as signs of racial protest, but neither would comment on that matter.

All of the black athletes refused to say whether they had been cautioned by the USOC to avoid demonstrations or comment.

Aussies Becoming Track Power While Clock Runs Out On Canadians

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Australia, once the swimming power of the world, now finds itself with a fistful of medals for Olympic track and field victories.

The Aussies are 10th in the over-all standings since the modern Games began—five places ahead of Canada.

They have won eight medals so far in the 19th Games, including two gold. All but two have come in track and field.

Australia, Kenya and Britain are the only Commonwealth countries with gold to show. The Canadian team still is searching for a medal—and a team point—with the Games almost half over.

Australia's gold in the women's 80-metres hurdles Friday was the country's 52nd in the history of the Summer Games. Canada, in 15th place, has 22.

And the Australians captured two silver and a bronze as well to give them a total of 69 points in the unofficial team standing, placing them in sixth place, right behind East Germany.

Australian swimming relay teams won silver and bronze medals Thursday.

In the medal standing, Australia is seventh, just ahead of Kenya, another surprise package with six medals, including two gold.

The U.S. team won three more gold medals Friday and moved well ahead of Russia. The U.S. had 262 points after 44 events, the Russians 161½. In over-all medals, the U.S. led 24-21. In gold column, the Americans led Russia 12-6.

But still to come are a flock of wrestling, boxing and gymnastics gold, and the Russians are strong in all three categories. Only one Soviet boxer has been beaten in the tournament so far.

Canada has only Donato Padauano of Montreal left in the boxing competition, and he hasn't fought yet in his welterweight class.

Time is running out for the track team, with only four athletes remaining to contend for medals—Abby Hoffman of Toronto in the women's 800 metres, Norm Trerise of Vancouver in the 1,500 metres and Andy Boychuk of Oshawa and Peter Buniak of Toronto in the marathon.

Miss Hoffman qualified easily for today's 800 final. Abby finished fourth in the semi-final, but she practically jogged the final 100 metres, "because there is no one close and I wanted to save myself for the big one."

Trerise runs in the semi-final of the 1,500 metres today while Buniak and Boychuk compete Sunday.

Canadian track teams have been shut out of the medal column in three Olympics—the last time in Rome eight years ago.

Vancouver Mile Novice Places Fifth Behind Ryun

MEXICO CITY (CP) — A Vancouver runner who wasn't good enough to make Canada's track team is his special event, qualified Friday for the semi-finals of the Olympic 1,500 metres.

Norm Trerise, a 5,000-metre specialist who began running the mile and the 1,500 metres in mid-summer, recovered after being boxed in on the final lap to finish fifth in three minutes 47.5 seconds. Jim Ryun of the U.S. won the heat in 3:45.7.

Meanwhile Dave Bailey of Toronto, first Canadian to break the four-minute barrier in the mile, finished sixth in a separate heat and was eliminated after being spiked and boxed in on the final lap.

"But you loafed down the final 30 yards," Swindells told Trerise.

Bailey ran in the pack most of the way and attempted to move out on the second last turn of the final lap. He was unable to find a hole and found himself chasing six other runners as he hit the stretch.

5 Classes Afloat

Canadian Boats Still in Sight

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP) — After four races of the seven-race Olympic regatta, the world's best small boat sailors had a day off Friday.

Canada has entries in all five classes, and at least three sailing teams are nudging leading boats in the standings.

In the Star class, Americans Lowell North and Peter Barrett lead the 22-foot boats with 5.7 points.

Norway's Peder Lunde is second with 14.7 points followed by Durward Knowles of the Bahamas with 20.4.

Bruce Kirby, Ottawa-born Chicago resident is 17th overall.

In the 34-foot 5.5-metre ocean racers, the three Sundelin brothers of Sweden have three victories for no points in the best-three-of-four series.

Following them with six points is Louis Noverraz of Switzerland in Toucan. Britain's Robin Aisher is third with Yoeman XV and 16.7 points.

Stanley Lebel of Toronto has 66 points, placing him 11th in a field of 14.

In the Dragon class, Buddy Friedrichs of the U.S. has posted two firsts and a second in his heat three races to lead with three points at the helm of Williwaw.

East Germany's Paul Borowski is second with eight points in Matafo. Denmark's Asagr Birch at the helm of Chok stands third with 14.7 points.

The Vancouver entry of Stephen Tupper was fifth after a sixth-place finish Thursday. Tupper's Mia IV was third on opening day and then finished eighth and 12th for 50.4 points.

Finland's Rodney Pattison and Ian MacDonald-Smith have a perfect Olympic points score of zero in the Flying Dutchman class.

Following the British are West Germany's Ulli Libor and Peter Naumann with six points and the Norwegian brothers Bjorn and Odd Lofterod with 17.8.

Toronto's Dr. Roger and Stewart Green, finished fifth in Thursday's fourth race—the same as they had in the third race. They now stand sixth over-all.

In the 14-foot one-man dinghies, Valentin Mankin of Russia leads 36 Finn entries with 5.7 points. Austria's Hubert Raudaschl has 19.4 and Australia's Ron Jenyns 21.

Eight Qualify For Soccer Play

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Round-robin competition has determined the eight teams that will compete in the quarter-finals of the Olympic soccer tournament.

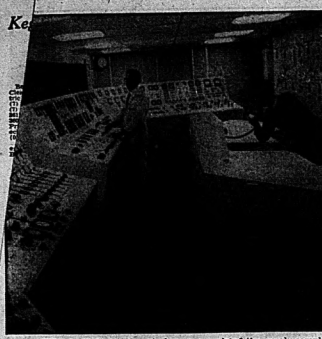
They are Mexico, Hungary, France, Japan, Israel, Bulgaria, Guatemala and Spain.

Czechoslovakia made a late charge to get into the last eight, defeating Thailand 8-0 Friday, but Bulgaria clinched the last spot with a 2-1 victory over Guatemala.

In other games Friday, Japan and Spain played to a scoreless tie and Brazil and Nigeria battled to a 3-3 draw.

The quarter-finals begin Sunday.

The U.S. basketball team, undefeated in five games of the tournament and in 71 games since Olympic basketball started in 1936, defeated Panama 95-60. Russia clobbered Cuba 100-66.



The Americans and Russians are virtually assured spots in the semi-finals.

Hercules in Brazil

Beer on Biafra Relief Plane--3,600 Cans

OTTAWA (CP) — One of three air force Hercules transport planes assigned to Nigerian and Biafran relief operations carried 3,600 cans of beer, a defence department spokesman said Friday night.

The plane is still in Recife, Brazil, waiting for orders whether to fly to Lagos, Nigeria, or Fernando Poo, an island off the West African coast and one of the main supply centres for mercy flights into Biafra.

Another Hercules is at Lagos and the third at Ascension Island in mid-Atlantic, also awaiting flight orders.

Opposition Leader Stanfield in an interview said Canadians will be disgusted to learn that a relief plane carried beer for the Hercules air and ground crews.

He said Canadians will want to know what Prime Minister Trudeau and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp are doing about food and medical relief.

David Lewis, NDP parliamentary leader, said the beer shipment is "criminal stupidity" which Canadians would hear about with "shock and disgust."

The defence department spokesman said the beer-carrying plane is carrying support equipment for the relief operation and not relief supplies.

He said beer had the "lowest priority" for loading and that it was tucked into "nooks and crannies" after all other equipment was located.

The 3,600 cans represent 150 cases of beer weighing 2¼ tons. A Hercules fully loaded carries 20 tons.

The spokesman added: "The beer went on the plane we waited to put the press on." However, there had been no room for passengers.

The first Hercules flew to Nigeria last weekend but no relief flights have yet been made.

The spokesman said the air force is still surveying airfields in Nigeria.

External Affairs Hearing

Canada Could Play Role in Mediation

OTTAWA (CP) — A socialist and a Liberal politician agreed Friday that Canada could play a mediation role on its own to settle the Nigerian civil war.

The intermediary idea was advanced at a meeting of the Commons external affairs committee by Norman Cafik (L—Ontario) while questioning the witness, Stephen Lewis, NDP member of the Ontario legislature for Scarborough West.

Mr. Cafik thought that the government should take some initiative before it loses the opportunity through a loss of a neutral stance.

The witness approved of a diplomatic initiative, possibly at a high level with External Affairs Minister Sharp involved.

Mr. Cafik said governments like to set up task forces to cope with problems.

"Perhaps we ought to consider a task force for peace in this area to get something going."

Earlier, Mr. Lewis, who spent six days in break-away Biafra earlier this month, testified that he had heard reports that British military personnel are advising federal Nigerian forces laying siege to Biafra.

The advisers, stationed in the Nigerian capital of Lagos, fly to the front in the morning and fly back at night. After the hearing, he told a reporter the reports originated with pilots involved in the airlift bringing in food to starving Biafrans.

Mr. Lewis also agreed with the proposal for a team of parliamentarians to pay a fact-finding visit to Biafra. The team could learn a great deal in 10 days.

Observers Return to Lagos After Visit to Front Lines

LAGOS (CP) — A four-country military observer team returned to Lagos Friday following its third journey to areas near the front lines of the Nigerian civil war.

The team, including Maj.-Gen. W. A. Milroy of Kingston, Ont., travelled to within a mile or so of the scene of recent fighting between Nigerian federal troops and Biafran troops just outside Onitsha, 250 miles east of Lagos.

On the basis of visits to camps at Onitsha and Asaba near the front line, it is difficult to see how the team's third report, to be made probably about next Tuesday, can differ greatly from the first two in absolving federal forces of practising genocide against the Ibo people.

At both camps people appear reasonably well cared for although some showed effects of malnutrition.

Many of those who fled in terror after federal troops recaptured the area late last winter, have still not returned to rejoin their families. Thousands of others departed with the retreating Biafran army.

Practically everyone in both camps seemed to have at least one relative who had vanished without a trace.

In many cases, a refugee's entire family had disappeared. The observers were free to wander about the camps as they wished, talking to whomever they wanted, whether individuals or groups. Many refugees can speak English so it was possible to have private, intimate conversations. Col. Ibrahim Haruna, 32-year-old officer commanding the Nigerian 2nd division which occupies the western front centred at Onitsha, talked of the campaign in an interview with reporters who accompanied the observer team.

Asked why his troops have advanced only seven miles beyond Onitsha—now a ghost town—after seizing it in March, he said the main reason is humanitarian.

It was necessary to get his men fully "indoctrinated" in the right rules of conduct toward prisoners of war and the civilian populace of the overrun territory.

Hebrews Is Faith's Hall of Fame

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Every red-blooded American boy knows about baseball's Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y. Here enshrined in a building set aside for this purpose are plaques and keepsakes of some of the game's greatest stars.

In Hebrews 11 there are listed some of the greatest men and women of faith who ever lived. This chapter is truly faith's Hall of Fame. These are people who lived by and for God. They were not perfect, but were people who because of their great faith in God accomplished something worthwhile.

The chapter begins with a definition of faith. Faith is defined as "the assurance of things hoped for." (Hebrews 11:1 RSV) It is also the "conviction of things not seen." An example cited is the faith that God created the worlds. There is no way to prove this, but it makes sense to believe that the precision scientists find in the universe was planned by a careful divine Workman, and did not just happen.

The author makes an interesting statement. He says the worlds were made by the 'word' of God. (Hebrews 11:3) This is in keeping with the Genesis account that says, "And God said 'Let there be light;' and there was light." (Genesis 1:3) Each act of creation is introduced by the phrase, "And God said."

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 20: "Loyal in the Faith," Hebrews 11 and 12.

Not everyone can paint a masterpiece, compose a poem, or create a great piece of sculture, but everyone creates something every day by what he says. It may create joy or grief, friendship or hostility, but once a word is spoken, it can never be recalled. The good or evil it caused lives on in the memories of those who heard it.

Then begins a list of people who showed they were men of faith because of what they did. Abel proved to be a man of faith because he offered an acceptable offering to God. Enoch showed he was a man of faith because he lived so as to please God. Abraham's faith was proved by his obedience when he went out in response to God's call, not even knowing where it would lead him.

So the story goes. Moses proved his faith by affiliating himself with the hardships of his people rather than enjoying the pleasures of Egypt. The people of Israel showed their faith by marching toward the Red Sea confident that God would liberate them. Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jepthah, were honored of God, not because they were perfect — some of them were far from it — but because they acted on faith, and God honored their faith.

The 12th chapter pictures a large stadium. All around is the invisible presence of countless numbers of men and women who lived and died by faith. They cheer on those who try to live by faith. It is not always easy to persevere in the race of life. To run well, a person must give up everything that is an unnecessary weight, and what ever sin easily besets him. It requires patience. But the race can be run to the glory of God if the person will keep his eye on the goal of a Christ-like life, remembering Jesus as the One who pioneered and perfected the kind of faith He expects in His followers. (Hebrews 12:1-2)

America was founded by people of faith. The Spaniards in the South, the English in Virginia, the Pilgrims and Puritans in New England all brought their faith with them. They sincerely believed that this is a nation under God. At first, some of them tried to impress their particular view of faith on all the others. Only as each person was given freedom to believe and practice his faith as he understood it could America be a land of blessing for all.

Many people today seem to have lost any vital faith in God. Most of their faith is invested in material things. They look to science and economics to save them. Certainly these conditions are extremely important. But in a world where millions have fanatical faith in the false doctrines of Marx and Lenin, where many still believe in the ability of violence and war to solve men's problems, there is need for a resurgent faith in God and in the teachings of the Jewish and Christian scriptures. Only this kind of faith can create the discipline, character, good-will, and the confidence in the eternal goodness of God needed to shore up the sagging moral principles of our day.

Rasminsky Favors Non-expansionary Bud

OTTAWA (CP) — Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, does not often make speeches or discuss policy with the prime minister.

Within a few days of next Tuesday's budget, he has done both.

In Victoria Thursday, delivering his first public address since Jan. 30, the governor said what kind of "sound fiscal and monetary policies" he favors at this time.

In a word: Non-expansionary.

Prime Minister Trudeau himself revealed in the Commons Friday that he had talked to the governor about price and cost stabilization.

That discussion on Oct. 11, with Finance Minister Benson also on hand, could deal with stabilization only in the context of budget decisions.

Mr. Rasminsky has been a firm proponent of co-ordination between the government and bank to ensure a blend of monetary policy, fiscal policy and debt-management policy.

He established his views in an unprecedented statement after his 1961 appointment and has since worked closely with successive finance ministers. He meets Mr. Benson at least once a week.

The governor said in Victoria that "so long as the strong upward trend in prices and costs continues, there are real risks in taking steps to accelerate the expansion of total spending in the economy."

A plan of cost-price stabilization would be needed "in addition to following sound fiscal and monetary policies."

A deficit budget next week, by adding impetus to economic activity, would appear to run precisely the risks mentioned by the governor.

Revenues from existing tax rates would fall $400,000,000 to $500,000,000 short of expenditures in the fiscal year ending next March 31 unless last spring's predictions are far off the mark.

But selective tax increases Tuesday could produce a smaller deficit regarded as non-expansionary, particularly if it results in balance as measured by the broader "national accounts" formula.

Has Mr. Rasminsky supported in advance such tax increases?

This seems much more likely than one alternative—that he was dissociating himself from government intentions to finance another substantial deficit.

Worker No Longer Hired Hand

REGINA (CP) — T. C. Douglas, federal leader of the New Democratic Party, said Friday night there is a growing demand among Canadians for more participation in the country's economic decisions.

He said students concerned about the running of universities "want some voice, and they ought to have it, and they're going to have it." Workers and housewives also were insisting on being heard.

Speaking at a dinner to honor Marjorie Cooper-Hunt, a member of the provincial legislature from 1932 to 1964, the former Saskatchewan premier said:

"The worker is no longer going to be satisfied to be regarded as a hired hand, who can be tossed away like a squeezed-out orange when the owners no longer have any need of him.

"More and more, workers are going to demand a voice in industry. In a genuinely democratic society, the farmer and the fisherman are not going to be content to stand aside and watch someone else cut up the pie and decide how much they will get."

"I think the day is coming when the consumers will have some voice about the distribution of goods and services and the prices that they have to pay."

Stock Market Review

Moderate Gains Restore Climb

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The climb toward new high ground picked up on Canadian stock markets this week after a pause for five trading sessions while the major indexes went into a shallow decline.

The revival began Wednesday, and was followed Thursday and Friday by further moderate gains at Toronto and Montreal.

Over the past four-day week, the Toronto industrial index, which is widely accepted as the broadest indicator, advanced 1.59 to 179.53. This is less than two points below the record established Oct. 7.

Both seasoned and speculative issues shared in the recovery. Among the biggest rises Ford of Canada was up 10 to 285, Reichhold Chemicals 4 to 33, Dome Pete 3¼ to 75¾, Pine Point 2½ to 47 and Home Oil A 2¾ to 30¾.

The strongest groups were base metals, western oils, steels, beverages, communications and banks, while golds and forest industries were fractionally off.

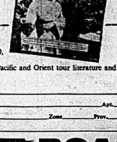
Although brokers have been warning investors against the soaring list of junior industrials which have led the market throughout the summer, there was no sign that the speculative boom has lost steam.

The "Go-Go stock" index 28 issues in this category compiled by J. H. Crang and Co. touched a new high for the year, and currently shows a gain of over 32 per cent since the bull market started in April.

The new real estate index, which is now included in the Toronto industrial index shows an even greater rise. This week it climbed more than 4 per cent to 254.85, which represents an average gain of 254 per cent for each of the seven stocks in the group this year.

The strong bull phase which has gripped the market with unexpected vigor since early September contradicts the forecasts of many analysts who thought a business slowdown would hit both Canadian and U.S. share prices later this year.

dential campaign was another ... In a recent interview with Barron's, the financial weekly published by the Dow Jones company in New York, a Montreal stock broker, Richard G. D. Lafferty, said the election of Pierre Trudeau as prime minister could have a long-term stabilizing effect on the Canadian market.



He said market standards have already improved a great deal in recent years and there is less of "the general feeling that Canada is another Monte Carlo, with terribly loose or non-existent securities regulations."

Asked if the Toronto market is as wild as it used to appear from an American point of view, Mr. Lafferty said: "It's much calmer these days."

Among improvements, he cited the legislation which enforces the publication of "insider" trading in the shares of a company by its own officers.

Sunday School Lesson

Hebrews Is Faith's Hall of Fame

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

Every red-blooded American boy knows about baseball's Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y. Here enshrined in a building set aside for this purpose are plaques and keepsakes of some of the game's great stars.

In Hebrews 11 there are listed some of the greatest men and women of faith who ever lived. This chapter is truly faith's Hall of Fame. These are people who lived by and for God. They were not perfect, but were people who because of their great faith in God accomplished something worthwhile.

The chapter begins with a definition of faith. Faith is defined as "the assurance of things hoped for." (Hebrews 11:1 RSV). It is also the "conviction of things not seen." An example cited is the faith that God created the worlds. There is no way to prove this, but it makes sense to believe that the precision scientists find in the universe was planned by a creative divine Workman, and did not just happen.

The author makes an interesting statement. He says the worlds were made by the word of God. (Hebrews 11:3) This is in keeping with the Genesis account that says, "And God said, 'Let there be light;' and there was light." (Genesis 1:3) Each act of creation is introduced by the phrase, "And God said."

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 20: "Loyal in the Faith," Hebrews 11 and 12.

Not everyone can paint a masterpiece, compose a poem, or create a great piece of sculpture, but everyone creates something every day by what he says. It may create joy or grief, friendship or hostility, but once a word is spoken, it can never be recalled. The good or evil it caused lives on in the memories of those who heard it.

Then begins a list of people who showed they were men of faith because of what they did. Abel proved to be a man of faith because he offered an acceptable offering to God. Enoch showed he was a man of faith because he lived so as to please God. Abraham's faith was proved by his obedience when he went out in response to God's call, not even knowing where it would lead him.

So the story goes. Moses proved his faith by affiliating himself, with the hardships of his people rather than enjoying the pleasures of Egypt. The people of Israel showed their faith by marching toward the Red Sea confident that God would liberate them. Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephtah, were honored of God, not because they were perfect — none of them were far from it — but because they acted on faith, and God honored their faith.

The 12th chapter pictures a large stadium. All around is the invisible presence of countless numbers of men and women who lived and died by faith. They cheer on those who try to live by faith. It is not always easy to persevere in the race of life. To run well, a person must give up everything that is an unnecessary weight, and what-ever sin easily besets him. It requires patience. But the race can be run to the glory of God if the person will keep his eye on the goal of a Christ-like life, remembering Jesus as the One who pioneered and perfected the kind of faith He expects in His followers. (Hebrews 12:1-2)

America was founded by people of faith. The Spaniards in the South, the English in Virginia, the Pilgrims and Puritans in New England all brought their faith with them. They sincerely believed that this is a nation under God. At first, some of them tried to impress their particular form of faith on all the others. Only as each person was given freedom to believe and practice his faith as he understood it could America be a land of blessing for all.

Many people today seem to have lost any vital faith in God. Most of their faith is invested in material things. They look to science and economics to save them. Certainly these contributions are extremely important. But in a world where millions have fanatical faith in the false doctrines of Marx and Lenin, where many still believe in the ability of violence and war to solve men's problems, there is need for a resurgent faith in God and in the teachings of the Jewish and Christian scriptures. Only this kind of faith can create the discipline, character, good-will, and the confidence in the eternal goodness of God needed to shore up the sagging moral principles of our day.

Real Risks

Rasminsky Favors Non-expansionary Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, does not share many speeches or discuss policy with the prime minister.

Within a few days of next Tuesday's budget, he has done both.

In Victoria Thursday, delivering his first public address since Jan. 30, the governor said what kind of "sound fiscal and monetary policies" he favors at this time.

In a word: Non-expansionary.

Prime Minister Trudeau himself revealed in the Commons Friday that he had talked to the governor about price and cost stabilization.

That discussion on Oct. 11, with Finance Minister Benson also on hand, could deal with stabilization only in the context of budget decisions.

Mr. Rasminsky has been a firm proponent of co-ordination between the government and bank to ensure a blend of monetary policy, fiscal policy and debt-management policy.

He established his views in an unprecedented statement after his 1961 appointment and has since worked closely with successive finance ministers. He meets Mr. Benson at least once a week.

The governor said in Victoria that "so long as the strong upward trend in prices and costs continues, there are real risks in taking steps to accelerate the expansion of total spending in the economy."

A plan of cost-price stabilization would be needed "in addition to following sound fiscal and monetary policies."

A deficit budget next week, by adding impetus to economic activity, would appear to run precisely the risks mentioned by the governor.

Revenues from existing tax rates would fall $400,000,000 to $500,000,000 short of expenditures in the fiscal year ending next March 31 unless last spring's predictions are far off the mark.

But selective tax increases Tuesday could produce a smaller deficit regarded as non-expansionary, particularly if it rejects in balance as measured by the broader "national accounts" formula.

Has Mr. Rasminsky supported in advance such tax increases?

This seems much more likely than one alternative—that he was dissociating himself from government intentions to finance another substantial deficit.

His 1961 statement said that in a serious and persistent conflict between the views of government and the central bank on monetary policy, the government should instruct the bank what policy to follow and should take responsibility for that policy.

If he, as governor, could not in good conscience carry it out, it would be his duty to resign, Mr. Rasminsky said.

No such breach is indicated by the Victoria speech, in which he defended to the hilt the direction of monetary policy this year.

Lugtenburg Rolling Along!

Ed Lugtenburg, master five-pin bowler from Belleville, rolled a 340 final to split the $600 first prize in the first of this year's six Ontario Masters Tournaments at North Bay.

Lugtenburg was rolling against Fraser Hambly of Toronto, the Canadian five-pin singles champion, for the first-place honors.

Each of the competitors hit a total of 2,822 in the ten-team event, but Lugtenburg picked the harder way to go. He trailed the national champion by 97 pins after the ninth game. But the Belleville Master bowler rolled a 349 in the tenth game to create the tie.

More than 150 Master bowlers participated in the weekend tournament. Edna Rimmer, Canadian women's singles champion won her division with a 2,722 series for her fifth Masters win.

Hockey Keeps Executives

A general meeting of the Tweed Minor Hockey Association in the Community Centre saw the members retain last year's officers, with one exception, to their executive offices.

Re-elected were Walt Holster, president; Robert Gardien, vice-president; Barry Wallace, second vice-president; and Burton Vance, secretary.

Rally Set for Sunday

The Quinte Auto Sport Club is offered a chance for a Sunday drive in the country with a little competition thrown in.

The club is holding its annual "Fall Leaves Rally" this weekend. It starts Sunday at 1 p.m. from the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club and is expected to attract only 100 miles in length before the finish in the Red Lion parking lot in Trenton.

Entrants under 21 years of age must have the written permission of their parents or guardian. Anyone interested in manning a rally checkpoint should report to the starting line at 1 p.m.
